The blazing round left dapper Jimmy tied with young Jim Ferres with 138. Ferres had a 68 at the tough Cypress Point layout. Wall went to Pebble Beach today, where the final 18 will be played Sunday.

Bunchel at 140 were Jay Hebert, who won the pro-amateur prize last year, Gene Littler and Dow Finsterwald. Nine were tied at 141—Bud Ward, Joe Kirkwood, Leroy Silva, Wesley Ellis, Bo Winlager, Julius Boros, Billy Maxwell, John McMullin and Bob Rosburg.

Wall not only was in the top spot for the $4,000 first prize but was leading the pro-am division with partner Charlie Coe, U.S. amateur king. Their best ball 60 gave them $25, a stroke ahead of Ellis and Frank Tatum, the Demaret and California football coach Pete Elliott.

Connie Broden, 'Goose' Gosselin To Join McFarlands

May Obtain Another Player, Should Retain World Title Says CAHA Prexy B. Lebel

MONTREAL (CP)—Bob LeBel, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said today that through co-operation of three senior clubs, reinforcements have been lined up for Belleville McFarlands, Canada's world tournament representatives.

The reinforcements are three forwards—Connie Broden of Hull-Ottawa Canadiens, George Gosselin of North Bay and Denis Boucher of Cornwall. Gosselin and Broden played with the Whitby team that won the title last year. Another player, yet unchosen, may be added later.

Broden, playing coach with Hull-Ottawa, had previously expressed a disinclination about making the trip to Europe again and also indicated he didn't want to jeopardize his job.

PERMISSION GRANTED

LeBel said permission to use Broden had been obtained from Senator Hartland Molson, president of National Canadiens of the National Hockey League, parent club of the Hull-Ottawa team.

"We feel Broden is in good condition and can render a great service to the club with," said LeBel. "He is the inspirational type of player.

"Through generous willingness of the North Bay team to cooperate Gosselin, a Gosselin, left wing, will be loaned to Belleville. He is rated a good penalty killer.

"We have had good reports about Boucher and with Corbeil's cooperation, we think he will fit in with the McFarlands.

"We feel the McFarlands have a chance of shaping up well and, with the reinforcements, they can retain the world title for Canada."

The tournament is scheduled for Prague, Czechoslovakia, from March 5 to 15. The Belleville team plans to leave by air Feb. 15 to play a heavy series of exhibition games in half a dozen European countries.

LeBel said that while the CHA is anxious to help in arranging reinforcements, he felt it only fair to say that the CAHA has nothing to do with reported current subscriptions to raise money for the team.

"We have heard letters have been circulated asking contributions towards an amount as high as $50,000.

"The CAHA has nothing to do with this campaign. When Belleville applied to the CAHA, as the amateur hockey governing body, to represent Canada the Belleville representatives took us they had all the financial support they needed through local organizations and the team management.

"I don't want to imply that the CAHA doesn't want to help. We are supplying uniforms, as well as trying to lend a hand in getting reinforcements. But we have no part in a subscription campaign."

University of Toronto Blues humiliated McGill Redmen 14-3 and Laval University edged University of Montreal 7-6 in Intercollege Senior hockey games Friday night.

The Blues who have lost once, remain one game behind undefeated Laval in the four-college circuit. McGill is in the basement with four losses in four starts while University of Montreal Carbins have one win in four starts.

Des Killen had two goals and Ivan Saunders the other for McGill. Redmen goalie Alex Herron made 68 stops.

At Montreal, Claude Duguay and Robert Landry had two goals each for Laval, and Lorne Arsenault, Raymond Roche and Claude Blanchette counted singles.

Chatham Clobbers Bulldogs Dutchmen Trounce Wolves

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Belleville McFarlands have finally bulled even with Whitby Dunlops in the OHA Eastern Senior A. But their chances of taking the league title still are slim.

They won their eighth straight game Friday night, dumping Kingston Merchants 4-2, but have only eight games left to be abbreviated schedule which lets them off early to head for the world championships.

Whitby has played four fewer games than Belleville and still has 15 to go in the schedule. And with Belleville out of the way at the end of this month the Whitby crew ought to have easy sledding against the lower division clubs.

LEADERS WIN

In the OHA-NOHA circuit the race for first place remained tight with wins by Chatham Maroons and Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen.

Chatham clobbered Windsor Bulldogs 7-3 to avenge three previous upsets by the fourth-place Windsor outfit and Kitchener took Sudbury Wolves 4-1. The results kept Chatham one point up on Kitchener and lowered a Windsor bid to take third place from Sudbury.

The last-place Merchants were in contention most of the way at Belleville. It wasn't until the midway point of the third period that Al Dewsbury's goal gave Belleville a two-goal edge.

Other Belleville scorers were Billy Graham, Jean Paul Lamirande and Davey Jones. The Kingston scorers were Knobby Clarke and Roy Partridge.

WOLVES FIGHT HARD

It was a similar affair at Sudbury where Kitchener gave the slim one-goal lead against the rampaging Wolves until Ray Frederick was pulled from the Sudbury goal in the closing seconds. Ken Laufman chilled Sudbury's 11th hour hopes by lofting the puck into the empty net.

Sudbury took the lead twice in the second on goals by Frank O'Grady but Kitchener answered with markers by Ted Maki and Wig Wylie. The visitors went ahead for the first time in the third on Bill Saunders' goal off Laufman's rebound.

Chatham had an easy win against a club which has made a hobby of beating Chatham and Kitchener in recent weeks.

SUB GOALIE SHINES

Substitute goalie Al Bennett, making his first appearance for Chatham, was a sparkling in the Chatham nets after regular tender minder Don Head a week ago when he suffered a shoulder separation in a player collision.

Ted Tower, Fred Pietsch and Roger Leyte gave Chatham a two-goal lead in the first period and Gary Sharp, Lloyd Ferguson and Al Cleary added to it in the second. Jim Connelly's goal in the third rounded things off. Windsor scorers were Gord Haidy, Bobby Brown and Bob Seymour.

Quebec Hockey

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Ace, scored two goals in the third period to play the league-leading Montreal Royals to a 2-2 overtime tie Friday night in a Quebec Hockey League game.

Skip Teal and Roger Dejordy scored for Quebec at 5:44 and 7:37 of the third respectively.

The Montreal goalgetters were Jean Paul Denis and Ken Mosdell, in the first and second period respectively.

Magee, both from Toronto, led the Canadian entries with 145 totals.

Al Balding, also from Toronto, had a 144 time over par to finish the second round with a 71-75—146 score.

Veteran Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Lachute, Que., was tied with Magee.

Moe Norman of Kitchener turned in the best score among the Canadians — a 71 — but his nine-over-par 81 Thursday left him far off the field with a 151 total.

Rough Play Returning to Amateur Hockey

MONTREAL (CP)—Rough play in amateur hockey has been cropping up unduly and leagues and clubs had better take a look at the situation, Bob LeBel, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said today.

"We are asking presidents of all CAHA branches to set in line with a resolution they themselves approved at the last CAHA annual meeting," said LeBel.

"We felt then that rough play had been too prevalent and the resolution was aimed at seeing that branches take steps to deal with it. Now reports to us indicate usually rough play is developing again.

Irish Nipped By Bilts 5-4

GUELPH (CP) — When it comes to pulling games out of the fire, Guelph Biltmores have no equals in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

Guelph came from behind three times Friday night and scored the winner in the final minute to edge Toronto St. Michael's Majors 5-4.

The win brought fourth-place Biltmores to within five points of St. Michael's.

Biltmores trailed 2-0 early in the first, were behind 3-2 entering the second and at the halfway mark in the final session were down 4-3.

Jean Ratelle fired the equalizer while Majors were shorthanded and Bob Ertel scored the winner. Other Guelph scorers were Bob Ertel, Eno Krak and John Lowes.

Cesar Manlago was outstanding in the Majors' nets as all six Guelph outshot the visitors 40-24. Bruce Draper, Larry Keenan, Jack Costello and Dave Chambers scored for Majors.

C.F.L. Gives Interlocking Schedule Year's Deferred Treatment

By AL VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — An interlocking schedule between the Big Four and the Western Interprovincial Football Union has been sidetracked again for at least another year.

Delegates to the second annual meeting of Canadian Football League, governing body of the two circuits, decided Friday there would be no effort to try for an interlocking schedule this year.

Ralph Parliament of Winnipeg and Frank Gibson of Hamilton were named as a two-man committee to investigate the possibilities of either a full or partial interlocking schedule for 1960.

The CFL was scheduled to discuss several other important matters today, including imports, negotiation lists, territorial rights and the college draft.

DRAFT DEBATED

Drafting of Canadian college students by the nine major professional clubs received a lengthy going over at Friday's closed meetings.

It appears the draft will be continued this year with all nine clubs participating. But it is likely it will be a cut-down version in the future, with only the Big Four Toronto Argonaut, Calgary Stampeders of the WIFU, drafting graduates from the eastern intercollegiate league.

One official said there was such a move afoot and that the four other WIFU teams—Winnipeg, Saskatchewan, Edmonton and British Columbia — would operate on a basis of territorial rights in signing the juniors and players at their respective universities. Stampeders would be limited to the eastern college draft because there is no university at Calgary.

The CFL changed its waiver rule so the price of a Canadian would remain at $500 but the figure for an import would be lowered to $750 from the $1,000 used in 1958.

In a separate meeting, the WIFU went on record of being behind a Winnipeg proposal for a change in the setup of the Shrine all-star game.

Bombers proposed that the Canadian Intercollegiate final be made the Shrine game, thus keeping it at an amateur level, boosting minor league football and reducing the costs.

Big Four delegates have not indicated whether they will go along with the change. The matter will come up before the CFL when a Shrine representative will be present.

Dunnies Make Room For Macs On League Top Rung

Extend Unbeaten String to 8 With 4-2 Win Over Kingston; Battle for Top Spot Tonight

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The McFarlands gave the league-leading Whitby Dunlops the "shove. over, bub" sign here last night, defeating the Kingston Merchants 4-2 in a close, hard-checking battle before some 2,000 fans.

They share the top spot in the Eastern Senior "A" league for the first time this season after stretching their latest unbeaten string to eight games and can take over undisputed possession if they defeat the world champion Dunlops in Whitby tonight.

The Ikemen were extended to the limit in stopping the hard-fighting Merchants. They were not as effective around the nets as in the recent battle with the Dunlops, and they did not salt the victory until midway through the third period.

They held a 3-2 edge in the first period of a tussle that saw the clubs divided 52 shots on goal. The second frame was scoreless and Al Dewsbury, who stood out all night, scored the only goal of the third frame to put the victory on ice.

Dewsbury also racked up an assist with other Mac goals scored by Jean Paul Lamirande, Davy Jones and Billy Graham. Assists also went to Crawford, Fayette, Hildebrand, Brown, Smrke and McLellan.

Nobby Clarke had a one-and-one record for the Merchants with Roy Partridge scoring the second goal. Billy Colvin recorded an assist.

Both Gordie Bell and Lyn Davis in the respective nets came up with fine performances with Davis' habit of coming well out of his cage to hoist the puck into the crowd, saving possible goals on two or three occasions.

Intensive forechecking on the part of the Merchants stymied the Mac defensives in the opening frame and although they grabbed a 5-3 lead were outshot 11-5. In fact they registered 100 per cent effectiveness their first two shots on goal scoring both times.

Nobby Clarke opened the scoring at 3.07 intercepting a Macs blueline pass and racing in alone on Bell to flipshot a drive through the goalie's pads.

Two minutes later the Macs tied the count when Fayette's pass struck Bill Graham's stick net. Captain Green was assist and webfed straight into the on the play.

Billy Colvin broke away and on a beautiful play swept through the defence to circle the net and tip Partridge a pass which the big blonde converted into a goal.

With seconds to go Al. Dewsbury broke down the right boards and slipped a perfect rinkwide pass to Davy Jones in the clear. The slim winger swept in on Davis and his low drive hit the rigging to give the Macs a 3-2 lead.

The scoreless second period saw five penalties handed out, three to the Macs and one, a misconduct, to Kingston's Olsen.

Both clubs hit a high tempo, checking closely both ways with both Davis and Bell coming up with fine work in the nets.

Jones and Bellringer were the first two sinners, then Dewsbury got the gate for flattening Savard. He was still off when Hildebrand was thumbed, giving the Merchants a two-man advantage for 45 seconds. They could do no more about it however, but Bell stopped Bellringer on his misconduct. Then Davis kicked out two lightning shots from Wemer Brown on the crossbar.

Olsen swung his stick at a spectator and was waved off for ten minutes. The Macs outshot the Merchants 10-8 in the scoreless frame.

The teams hit the same close-checking pattern of hockey in the third period with both goalies tested hard in the opening minutes. The Macs held the edge in play outshooting the Merchants 11-7 and bringing out the best in Lyn Davis in the Merchants' nets.

He stopped Barton Bradley from close in then McLellan and Minnon both missed on a close play. The period was half over when big Al Dewsbury, who played one of his best games in a Macs livery, blasted Lorne Smrke's pass on a ganging attack.

Olsen was booked for interference at 14.00 and Bellringer broke into the close from a McFarland power play. Moe Reinhart, playing his first game since a knee injury, rode the stress-ling Kingston line, the boards and was chased for hooking.

They held the fort and took over the play until Billy Graham was thumbed for tripping with a minute to go in the game.

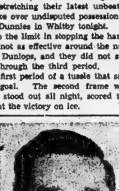
Plan 300 MPH Jet Speedboat

NEW YORK (AP) — One problem in designing the new jet speedboat in the world is building it so it won't take off and go straight up in the air. Another is to keep the driver from being knocked right out of the cockpit by the vacuum that develops at high speed.

Ted Jones, a big unassuming man from Seattle, thinks he has solved both of the technical stoppers. He plans to put together a jet powered craft that will go 300 miles an hour.

Jones here for the national motor boat show, said Friday he had hoped to have the new jet craft ready for trials early this year—but the business of earning a living interfered. He now has set June or July as his target.



"A strange thing about getting a thing started is that nothing ever has been written that you can learn from it", he explained. "You can't go to the library and read it, you have to learn by trial and error."

That's how he learned about what strange manners lurked behind windshields.

"It like you right off the seat," he said. "You have to hang onto the wheel. This time I plan to put a cover over the cockpit."

Ike Hildebrand, playing-coach of the Belleville McFarlands, received the newly-designed Carling's Player-of-the-Week award for last week's outstanding performance. Alderman Claude Tice, chairman of the arena committee made the presentation of the handsome aluminum shield which was designed and produced by local resident Paul Mercier, together with E. J. "Al" Hardy of Carling's. The shield is engraved with the player's name and the date of the presentation with the letters emphasized by a baked enamel relief. Mr. Hardy is seen between Alderman Tice and Coach Hildebrand.

Famous Jockey Ted Atkinson Hangs Up Boots and Saddle

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Ted Atkinson, the scholarly Canadian-born jockey who became one of the world's greatest riders, came down to the finish line Friday for the last time. He said it wasn't an easy decision.

Plagued by a chronic back ailment that has bothered him for months, the little "professor" of the saddle has bowed out on the advice of his physician.

"It wasn't easy to say goodbye to what has been my life for more than two decades," he said. His wife, Martha, nodded assent.

"I lived out of a trunk for 21 years. You kind of get used to it."

He has ridden horses that have earned $17,649,360. Since jockeys get 10 per cent Atkinson has done well. His farm on Long Island, where he boards horses and breaks yearlings for various clients, also brings in a good income.

Only three other jockeys have ridden more winners than Atkinson—Johnny Longden, Sir Gordon Richards and Eddie Arcaro. Longden, with 5,241 and Arcaro, with 4,206 winners, still are active. Richards retired with 4,870 winners and Atkinson bowed out with 3,795.

Atkinson, 42, is the father of three children. Born in Toronto in 1916, Ted always worked after school and during vacations to help bring home some money to help out.

Ted moved with his family to New York state, Had it not been for the giant telescope now at the observatory at Palomar, Calif., racing might not have got Ted Atkinson. He was laid off at the Corning glass works in a production cut while the plant concentrated on making lenses for the telescope. He went to Brooklyn and worked for $8 a week mixing paints in a small chemical plant. He also helped load trucks in the shipping department.

A big truck driver told Ted he should exercise—that he was overweighed only 26 pounds. The driver knew a man who got Ted into racing.

Atkinson began riding at Beulah Park in Ohio in 1938. His rise was rapid and he was the leading rider in the United States in 1944 and 1946.

"The greatest horse I ever rode," that's easy—Tom Fool," Atkinson replied when asked the inevitable question. Tom Fool never got to the Kentucky Derby because of a virus, but in 1953 nobody beat Atkinson and Tom Fool.

Rochester Bows To Providence

ROCHESTER N.Y. (AP) — Providence Reds took sole possession of fifth place in the American Hockey League with a 5-1 victory Friday night over Rochester Americans.

The Reds and Americans previously were tied for fifth place. Jimmy Peirson scored Providence in front in the first period. Second period tallies by Pete Panagabko, Bill Sicyarski and Jerry Heffernan gave the visitors a 3-0 lead.

The lone Rochester tally was collected by Rudy Migay, who suffered 13 stitches in his forehead as the result of a first period collision with Ernest stick. Migay hit early in the final period, but Bo Ellis and Lorne Davis counted later to make it 5-1.

Belleville Wins Aldermanic Broom Battle

Belleville city fathers swept to a 1-0 triumph over their Kingston counterparts in the battle of the bouncing alder-men last night in a broom ball game prior to the senior fixture between the Macs and Merchants.

The second half of this series, for the unofficial broom ball championship of Eastern Ontario, will take place in Kingston Wednesday night when the Macs and Merchants also do battle again. Belleville will carry a one-goal advantage into the second game of the total-goals-to-count series.

Led by their mayors, Gerald "Skin" Hyde, and Bob "Rocket" Gale of Kingston, the clubs trooped onto the ice last night attired in skates and sweaters from their city's senior hockey clubs. And for ten minutes before the start of the senior fray the spectators cholced weird throngs some weird and wild antics while chasing a soccer ball around the ice with brooms.

Bill "Hardrock" Argue provided the Belleville team with the margin of victory when he drove Bob "Whitey" Temple's pass-out from behind the net home for the lone goal midway through the game. Thereafter both Frank "Brimsek" Granger in the local nets and Bill "N.D." Good for Kingston, kicked out some hot shots and the fixture ended 1-0.

Included in the Kingston lineup were Mayor "Rocket" Mills, "N.D." Good, Jimmie Prevost, "Spider" Webb, "Treetop" Kennedy, "Broom Boom" Leach, "Digger" Graves and "Foxy" Sly.

Brazil Wins Over Canada In Basketball

SANTIAGO, Chile (CP)—Brazil defeated Canada 69-52 Friday night in a first-round match in the world basketball tournament championship — a defeat that came as a surprise and a sharp disappointment to Canadian coach Fred Cullen.

Although the 29-year-old coach of two Canadian championship teams said little after the game, he had indicated before that he had hoped Canada would take an easy victory in the opening of the 12-country tournament.

Doug Birchman, a late addition to the Canadian team who did not see action until Canada trailed the sharpshooting Brazilians by 10 points, was top scorer for Canada with 17 points.

In other games, the favored United States entry crushed Argentina 87-73 and Bulgaria toppled Puerto Rico 67-55.

Canada was playing in a division with Brazil, Russia and Mexico. The tournament is divided into three round-robin divisions, with the two top teams from each division to meet in a final elimination tournament.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The way John Compton talks, you'd expect to find him in a western or maybe "the real McCoys." Here's how he describes how he came to Hollywood:

"Well, fair, I was out on a ride in the moonlight with this pretty girl down in Tennessee. She looks up at me and says, 'Jeale you just handsome enough to be a movie actor.' That was enough for me. The next day I told my mummy and bought a plane ticket for Hollywood."

No cowpoke or hillbilly actor is Compton in the TV world. He plays the part of Sam D'Allessio, NBC's new Saturday night crime series. Compton is the wily undercover police officer who tracks down crooks to force out criminals for "Sam Benedict" (8:30 p.m. EST).

John tells a different story. Whether you believe it or not is up to you.

He did come to Hollywood 12 years ago in search of the fortune which only now is materializing.

"One year I made over $25 from acting," he related. "How did I live? I worked in a gas station at night for $1.25 an hour."

He had a contract at Warner Brothers for a couple of years. Then the film executives changed and he was back on the streets again. He got several good jobs, has been doing well in TV lately. He credited for the "Days Man" for finding him. "I didn't have a chance because he knew I could be satisfactory for the show."

He lived with one of the stars of "Days", Jack Weiss. The producer saw some film on Compton, had a couple of chats with him and ordered him signed.

Record Take From Grey Cup

WINNIPEG (CP) — Gross receipts from the 1958 Grey Cup game in Vancouver was a record $142,564 although attendance was below that of the previous record revenue year in 1955, the Canadian Football League has reported Friday.

Finance board counsel the sole speaker Friday at the league's annual football meeting here said gross revenue in $142,563 from 1955, when $284,662 was taken in for the first national football final played in Vancouver.

Attendance in 1958 was 24,062, compared with 29,417 in 1955. Ticket sales for the game Nov. 29 totalled 26,567 for revenue of $293,962 compared with gate receipts of $197,182 in 1955.

Tickets sold last fallis had a top price of $10 compared with $7.50 in 1955. The 1958 total included 2,584 standing room tickets at $2 each.

Television, radio and film rights for 1958 brought in $160,259 for the Canadian football league compared with $85,000 in 1955.

T-V TIPS

By JOHN WETTLAUFER

When a rather old television set requires a great deal of repairs, as sometimes asked of it it is worth the expense of a new one? overcome. This is a difficult question for us to answer, but here are several points to consider.

First of all, we are in the TV repair business and we have yet to see a set in such bad condition that we couldn't make it perform like new. Naturally, the cost could very well be high —but still a lot less than the cost of a new TV.

If you are considering trading it in on a new model, remember that the allowance will be low if your old set isn't working. After all, the dealer must have it repaired before he can sell it.

However, new sets do feature advances in engineering and modern furniture styling . . . or perhaps you feel that you can afford the luxury of the latest model. It's up to you!

We'd like to point out again that no matter how old your television, or how bad its condition CECILE TV SERVICE, 364 Coleman St. can make it operate like new. Phone WO 8-6791 (In Trenton EX 2-7689) and we'll be glad to give you an estimate on YOUR set.

Fined $200 For 'Cussing' An Official

TORONTO (CP) — T. P. Gorman, prominent Ottawa sports man and harness-racing promoter, was fined $200 Friday by the board of directors of the Ontario Trotting Association for using "abusive language" to a CTA official, C. R. Bradley.

The fine resulted from an incident in Connaught Park in Hull, Que., last October. Gorman, president of the Ottawa Valley Trotting Club, must also submit a written apology.

Gorman, who admitted the offence in the board meeting, said he was provoked. Bradley said Gorman's remarks have been damaging to the association.

Other board members present were Hugh Bronskill of Fort Coulonge, Que., first vice-president; Gerald Dr. C. H. Bishop, Milton, Ont., secretary-treasurer.

The board said he hopes to effect an amalgamation of the Canadian Standardbred Association with the Canadian Harness Horse Association during the week of the Canadian International Exhibition.

Matthews Loses First Fight

Matthews, unbeaten in 16 previous fights, weighed 133½, and Armstead, the California state champion, 136.

Referee Jimmy Wilson, under Golden Gloves rules scoring system, gave it to 21-year-old Armstead, 97-95. Judge Lee Grossman and Hugh Sheridan gave Armstead. Judge George Latka gave it to 19-year-old Matthews 96-94.

There were no knockdowns but there was action from start to finish.

Armstead, beaten only four times in 27 fights, staged a wild rally in the last round which apparently caught the eye of the officials. His hit-and-run tactics sold off despite the fact he had taken a bad beating in close fighting.

Millar Tourney Dates Named

TORONTO (CP) — The Millar golf tournament, a 54-hole match-play event exclusively for Canadian professionals, will be held for the new Cedar Brae course in Toronto from July 29 to Aug. 1, the Ontario branch of the Professional Golfers' Association said Friday. The tournament has been held at Scarboro Islington, although as an experiment it was moved to Rosedale Cutten Club in 1947.

Mickey Wants More Money, Say $85,000

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Mickey Mantle, New York Yankees' home run slugger, says he may not be the best fielder in the world but thinks he deserves a bigger pay cheque.

Bauer was quoted as saying Thursday night that Mantle is a great ball player but "If you had 25 Mantles on a team you wouldn't be sure to win the pennant. When he's in a slump he tends to let down on himself and the club."

"He may not be too far wrong about that part," Mantle said. "I'm not exactly the best fielder in the world."

Mantle hinted to reporters he has laid plans for a long battle to get the 1959 contract he thinks he deserves from the Yankees. He is reported to have received $75,000 last season and to be asking $85,000 this year.

AT THE PARK — Burl Ives, right, as the renegade chief of a band of Florida plume-hunters, confronts Christopher Plummer, the new Everglades bird warden, while Toby Bruce, a member of Ives' gang, looks on in a tense scene from "Wind Across the Everglades," a Shulberg Production in Technicolor for Warner Bros. release which opens at the Park Theatre for its first Belleville showing Monday. On the same program and also having its first Belleville showing "An Affair in Havana", starring John Cassavetes with Raymond Burr and Sara Shane.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Sunday, January 18, 1959

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Desirous of acquiring more wealth that is derived naturally, the astrological aspects are favorable, but you must be sure to adhere to the high-minded basis which have proven successful in the past. Start by taking inventory of all assets.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — This day appears to be fraught with work, worries and trouble of some sort or another. But this is only a challenge to see how you meet tensions. Rise above them and labor methodically. Also good time to lend a helping hand where needed.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Your closest relatives and friends are just as concerned about their affairs as they are about yours. Don't expect them to foolishly sacrifice in order to assist you. Paddle your own canoe and smile. P.M. is fine for fun and joy then.

Leo (July 22 to August 21) — Conditions about you will really be a pain in the neck if you pay any heed to grumpy associates with personal troubles. But do give a word of comfort where needed. And voice that helpful suggestion that gives a practical solution to problems.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Regardless of the fact that you and a comrade do not see eye to eye on a certain point, there is no reason for heated argument. Follow the example left by the Prince of Peace and soon all is settled and happiness will follow.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — The idea today is to be impersonal in the handling of all your work and dealings with others. Don't take things too seriously or you will be most unhappy. Think intelligently, make your plans, then follow through with them.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Endeavoring to coerce others into doing what you would like to have them do would be very detrimental now. Relax and wear a smile as your umbrella of safety and success. Hostility is a poor tool. Be friendly, kind.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — The right free time for writing letters is here now, also to do any shopping that has been neglected. Then be certain to do research work which will enable you to advance in your chosen career. P.M. have a delightful time in own home.

If your child is born today . . . The delightful child born today will be somewhat of a paradox, since the early childhood is spent seriously going about with the air and mien of a professional person and in adult years suddenly the nature changes to a very airy one. And the appetite will be voracious during adolescence. To keep larder well stocked. Good chart for the needs writer, lecturer, salesperson, actor, actress.

High School Activities

Here we are back at school with the first month of the new year almost half spent. The first week back at Q.S.S. seemed a relatively quiet one as both students and teachers were still in the process of recovering from a long and delightful holiday. None of the club secretaries or reporters got around to reporting the news of their club's activities with the exception of Tony Wrigge, press reporter of the Tractor Club. He reports that at the January 5th meeting, all of the executive and fourteen of the sixteen members were present. Mr. Clarke of the Kemptville Agricultural School was the guest speaker and he stressed the importance of tractor safety and gave out Tractor Service Records to the members.

Incidentally, if you want the news of your club or organization to appear in this column, see Miss Rose in Room 31 for further information.

This week we have seen us swing once more into a full program of activities. Everything's normal again!

OPEN HOUSE SUCCESS

The teachers started their extra-curricular activities on Tuesday evening with an "Open House" program sponsored by the Quinte Home and School Association. The event, convened by Mrs. D. McDonald, was well organized and judged by the long lines outside the teachers' classrooms where many 'confidential' talks between parents and teachers.

The gymnasium on Tuesday after school was the scene of one of the highlights of the school year — the student-staff volleyball game, sponsored by the Girls' Athletic Society in an effort to raise funds. (And we know they did!) The girls' basketball team challenged the 'female' staff members (otherwise classified as "home wreckers, carnivorous, pedantrix) and the challenge was accepted in true athletic spirit. The members of both teams appeared in outlandish costumes to the delight of the crowd in the gymnasium. They were cheered on during the game by several distinctive 'senior' cheerleaders in most fetching costumes. The originality and enthusiasm of their cheers and the 'saintliness' of their disposition did much to compensate for the knobbiness of their knees. There was time for only two games which were split, the staff winning the first one and the students the second. Spectators and players alike thoroughly enjoyed this classic sports event.

"POSTURE WEEK"

The Girl's Athletic Society is busy in other ways this week too. They are sponsoring "Posture Week" at Q.S.S. from January 12th to 16. The aim of this project is to improve the posture of all students, and this can certainly met with considerable success. Everyone is expected to sit, stand and walk correctly, and if anyone is found breaking the regulations, he or she must forfeit his Posture Tag. At the end of the week, a "Posture King" and a "Posture Queen" will be chosen and prizes awarded. The basketball may be connected to the toe bone, but let's straighten those to-be-known bones!

NEW SYSTEM

Another project of this busy Society will be the sale of sweatshirts, which will be put on sale in approximately two weeks for the price of three dollars.

The Society recently passed a new point system for athletic letters. A few changes have been made to the number of points for each sport. The general change is the total number of points for a letter letter. Now 40 points for the Junior "Q" and 75 points for the Senior "Q". It was felt that too many letters were being given each year, and it is hoped that the new system will help the person winning the letter to have a greater feeling of pride and accomplishment.

BID GOODBYE

Mid-week Wednesday was the day that an informal coffee party was held in the Home Economics room after school. The teachers gathered to say goodbye and good luck to Miss Anita Snowden, the school's senior secretary, who is leaving Q.S.S. to join the staff of the new school, Moira Secondary. A gift was presented to Miss Snowden from the staff and the inscription, "Well Miss Snow on the accompanying card was genuinely felt by all.

There were some 'Hails' as well as 'Farewells' this week, however. We welcome Mrs. Alice Heery, a graduate of Hull University, England, who will join Mrs. Patrick on the secretarial staff. Mrs. Heather Fisher, a graduate of Oxford University, England, is now a full-time member of the teaching staff. She is a well qualified member of the Language Department, and will be teaching a program of Latin and French. Incidentally, she is also a wicked volleyball serve, too.

HOLD DANCE

No school function of late seems to be complete without an alliterative title and it must be the influence of the English Department). The latest of these is the "Crayon Crawl", sponsored by the active Sketching Club. It's scheduled for the last Friday night. The dance will star the popular "Haircuts" and the "Rockin' Rebels" and the "Jays". The latest jingle on the subject is, "Crayon one, crayon all, to the Crayon Crawl."

And speaking of dances, plans are now well underway for the "Blue and Grey Ball," to be held on February 6th at Q.S.S. This, of course, is the big formal dance of the year, sponsored jointly by the Cadet Corps Band and the Student Council. The music will be supplied by the Trenton RCAF Band, and the committee says that there will be exciting decorations and sensational refreshments. Other surprises to come later they report. All the food and frolic can be your for only $2.50 a couple. And it's only a bit too early to make your plans, fellows. Even a 'steady' gal appreciates a little advance notice when the dance is formal. So jet off now on your plans for the Blue and Grey Ball.

ORATORY ALL AROUND

"Friends, Romans, and Countrymen," of "Mr. Chairman, and fellow students," seem to be common words of salutation heard about the halls these days as the fever of public speaking days descends upon us. All kinds of orations are being delivered in English classes, and the more serious and eloquent orators will be entering a school competition and then move on to the finals of C.O.S.S.A. to be held on January 30 at Picton Collegiate Institute in Picton. As the teachers make the assignments, however, the 'fighting spirit' of the students is "Et tu, Brute!"

Another of the educational diversions is being polished up these days too — that is, the preparations of the second act of the play, "The Saturday Evening Quest" that the Q.S.S. Eastern Ontario Drama Festival to be held at Queen's University, Kingston, on January 22 and 24.

Wing Commander Easton of RCAF Station, Trenton, was at Quinte on Wednesday afternoon and evening to conduct the inspection of the Air Cadet Squadron.

And that, for the moment, is what's new at Q.S.S. until next week.

DRAMA CLUB

It's her again: The B.C.I.V.S. Drama Club's annual dramatic presentation. This year it's a three act comedy entitled "The Happiest Days of Your Life" by John Dighton. The setting is the story of a situation at a boys' school when two girls accidental visitors arrive. The play is being presented on January 29 and 30 at 8:15 with a matinee on the Friday night presentation. Tickets are on sale in the main corridor at 1:00 every day.

Parents of students in grades 9 and 10 were invited to meet their teachers last night between 7:30 and 9:00 p.m. Next Monday, parents of students in grades 11, 12 and 13 are invited.

The cadet ice hockey program at the arena at noon hours will begin next week.

Kampus Kapers practices are being held regularly for the presentation on February 26, 27, 28.

Honorable Sidney Smith, Minister of External Affairs, will address the Annual Meeting of the B.C.I. and V.S. auditorium during the afternoon session of the Federation's Educational Conference, February 6.

Common sense dictates that you first visit an ear specialist. If a hearing aid is recommended you can rely on MAICO hearing aids BECAUSE: 90% of all precision hearing test instruments used today are MAICO made ... every new advance in hearing aids was developed by MAICO such as the first vacuum tube aid, the first transistor aid, the first ear-level aid, all approved by the American Medical Association.

Our competence in fitting hearing aids has been approved by the American Society of Hearing Aid Audiologists. The society prohibits salaried employees selling or offering advice on hearing aids.

Your ear physician's recommendations are carefully followed by qualified hearing aid audiologists.

You Can't Spank Dictatorial Mama But Here Is How to Handle Her

By THOMAS COLLINS

Here's one who needs it.

"My husband, a very lively 69, expects to retire next summer, I am 57.

"My mother is living with us. She is 86. She confidently expects us to look after her in our home for the rest of her life. She screams if we mention nursing homes.

"If statistics are to be given credence, she may well outlive my husband. With the care she gets she may live to be 100. She says she's going to.

"How my husband and I long to dump our life savings into one big smashing investment — namely a trip to Europe. We'd be perfectly willing to stay home the rest of our lives, if need be, and warm ourselves at the glowing coals of memory.

"But — if we put Mother in a nursing home, she will die as soon as we leave, I mean it! It would make her so mad, she'd have a stroke.

"If we wait, my husband might be too old to enjoy the sort of trip we have in mind, or die before Mother does — "

This is a ridiculous situation. And people who are growing old — particularly dictatorial women — should take note. Children have a responsibility to give care and attention to aging parents. They don't have to put up with this.

The first inclination is to tell this wife to give her mother the address of a good undertaker, and take off for Europe. Of course, she can't, though it would probably cure the old lady of her selfishness for good. What then can be done?

WHAT TO DO

1. Call in the family doctor and get his assurance that the mother is physically fit for any normal living arrangements outside the daughter's home.

2. Announce to Mother that the trip to Europe is going to take place. Don't ask her anything about it, and don't discuss it. Just announce it as a fact. And immediately afterwards have something to do in a hurry, like keeping an appointment at the beauty shop.

3. Don't mention the matter again until Mother does. She will. When she does, the only matter left for discussion is what Mother wants to do with herself while you're gone. And Mother had better decide soon because the trip is next summer.

4. Now the war of nerves begins. Busy yourself with reservations, literature, phone calls and conversation about the "smashing investment" that is coming up. Ignore Mother's problem. And when she brings it up, ask her, well what does she want to do with herself? And leave it at that.

MAKE SUGGESTIONS

5. Start making some casual suggestions. And don't mention nursing homes. Older people don't like the name. Around most cities are many residences for older people under palatable names, like Resthaven, Elm Tree House, etc. Seek these out and see that Mother gets the information about them. See if Mother has a nearby friend her age with whom she can live — or with whom she can go into a residence or possibly an apartment hotel. Again just make the information available to Mother. She must decide what she'll do. And if she doesn't, tell her your only choice is to put her in "The Old Ladies' Nursing Home" when you leave.

6. Understand now that no matter what, Mother is going to complain. Loudly and from here on. If she dies at 105 she'll probably say your European trip shortened her life.

All these suggestions are not intended to encourage a callous attitude toward older parents — Lord knows they have enough of that. But strong-willed mothers tend to become dictatorial with age.

'Jest a Second'

"Hmmm, I think I'll try on the double-breasted one again—".

And the only way their children can protect their own happiness is to figure out what is reasonable and just, grit their teeth, kindly say "no!" and stick to it. They will seldom win, since dictatorial mothers never give up, but they at least, can get their right to happiness. And they should.

TWEED

St. James Church B.S. Group Meets

TWEED — The afternoon Bible Study Group of St. James' Anglican Church resumed its weekly meetings on Tuesday this week after the lull of the holiday season.

The meeting was held at the rectory and a good attendance testified to the interesting and instructive quality of the studies.

Mrs. L. E. Hawkes, wife of the rector, is the leader of this group, and through her efficient guidance, resulting from well prepared lessons, she is bringing better understanding of the Scripture to those who attend.

Starting from Genesis, the group has progressed to the Books of Joshua, and all find these sessions absorbing.

Discussion is prompted from both the reading and the enlightenment gained is gratifying to the members of the group.

Mikoyan Renews Plea West Pull Out Of W. Berlin

Chat With Eisenhower Most Inconclusive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan today accused of continuing the cold war by refusing to ease restrictions on Soviet-American trade.

Mikoyan delivered his blast after a meeting with the deputy under secretary of state, Douglas Dillon, who is in charge of foreign economic policy.

His face grim, Mikoyan told reporters afterward:

"Apparently the state department is not prepared to repeal those discriminatory restrictions which are in force by way of expanding shipment of Soviet goods in the United States."

Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov, who accompanied Mikoyan and acted as translator, added:

"He's of the impression the cold war in the state department is going on and that it affects foreign trade. We hope the cold war will be over and that trade will expand."

SCHEDULED MEETING

Mikoyan's second trade conference set for this afternoon, with Secretary of Commerce Lewis Strauss.

Between those two conferences Mikoyan was due at the National Press Club- for a luncheon and answer session with reporters.

Mikoyan renewed on a radio-TV broadcast yesterday the Soviet's demand that the Western powers pull out of West Berlin. He described as "impossible" a suggestion that Russia's proposal for a West Berlin free city be broadened to include Communist East Berlin as well.

The Soviet leader leaves for Moscow Tuesday.

Despite the lack of any new suggestions from Mikoyan for 19 Fatalities From Mishaps Across Canada

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nineteen Canadians died in accidental mishaps across the country during the weekend, a Canadian Press survey showed today.

Eleven of the 19 were highway victims. And nine of the 19 were killed in Ontario.

A Saskatchewan plane crash took the lives of three persons and Quebec and Nova Scotia each reported single traffic deaths.

In Ontario, four persons were the victims of traffic accidents and four more died from carbon monoxide fumes from a defective muffler.

The CP survey covered the period from 6 p.m. local time Friday to midnight Sunday.

SHOT BY SMALL SON

The Ontario dead:

Harold Hardick, 27, of Sarnia, fatally wounded by a bullet in the head when his four-year-old son, Kim, pulled the trigger of a rifle as the family returned home after a trip from rabbit-hunting Saturday.

Marilyn Kaiser, 22, of Sarnia who died Saturday of injuries received when her car rammed off Highway 24 near the Simcoe-district village of Waterford. A passenger, Reginald Serfe, 21, of Brantford, suffered back injuries.

Edward Flynn Sr., 42, of London, killed Sunday in a car-truck collision on Highway 17, 45 miles west of Sudbury. Mr. Flynn's son, Edward Jr., 21, suffered a fractured skull, bone. Dusan Milenkovic, 36, of Elliot Lake suffered a fractured hip. Frank Debassige, 26, of Sudbury, and Lionel Commais, 35, of Cutler, who were in the truck, were also injured.

Walter Ryerson, a 24-year-old Stratford school teacher, died Sunday from injuries he suffered when struck by a car that did not stop.

Kenneth Schrale, 29, Ottawa; John James Millar, 33, of Brampton, and Mrs. Georgina Bowman, 48, and Mrs. Margaret Perry, 35, both of Prescott, who died in a fire sparked car at Prescott of carbon monoxide fumes escaping from a defective muffler.

Bush fires continue to rage through farm and forest areas in Victoria, South Australia, and Tasmania, although no loss of life has been reported.

A fierce fire, raging across a six - mile front, threatened the South Australian town of Port Gambier, where unofficial estimates put damage at $4,000,000.

Fire officers and farmers estimate stock losses in the area at 50,000 head, mostly sheep.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: A disturbance moving through Michigan has entered Southern Ontario and is preceded by mild, air temperatures and widespread snow in southern and central Ontario with more intense snowsqualls off lake shores. This disturbance will cross the province today after having deposited three to five inches of snow. Behind the disturbance northwesterly wind will bring the colder air in again with some snowflurries and in the snowbelt areas snowflurries will be more frequent. Tuesday will see generally clear skies but a new system in southwestern United States is a potential threat for some more snow Tuesday night.

PREMIERS ASKED TO PROPOSE NEW TAX AGREEMENTS

Hint of Action In Throne Speech

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker this week is writing to the provincial premiers to propose federal - provincial discussions on tax - sharing arrangements, it was learned Sunday night.

It was considered possible that the prime minister has in mind negotiations of a new federal-provincial sharing of income tax revenue to replace existing agreements.

A hint of federal government plans was contained in the speech from the throne opening the new session of Parliament Thursday.

NO TAX PAT

The speech disclosed the government's intention of standing pat for another year with a multi-million-dollar agreements with the provinces.

But it added:

"My government proposes that the entire subject of financial relations between the Dominion and the provinces should receive continued active co - operative study.

All provincial governments are being asked to agree to the setting up of machinery for the study of the existing federal-provincial continuing committee on fiscal and economic matters working under the direction of a federal minister and the provincial minister of finance and all provincial treasurers."

Mr. Diefenbaker is likely to table a copy of his letter to the premiers in the Commons within a few days.

YEAR'S EXTENSION

The throne speech announced the government's intention to extend for another year after April 1 the agreement under which it pays the provincial share of personal income tax revenues.

Plans to make use of the committee of senior civil servants as the centre of discussion for possible new tax-rental agreements has been taken by some observers as an indication that the government is not anxious to arrange a full - scale federal-provincial conference on this touchy subject.

Mrs. Brockbank joined the fray and managed to yank off one of the bandits' boots before she was knocked cold.

The joint overseas funds of the McFarlands Booster Club and the civic organization have approximately $18,000 in the treasury, it was announced yesterday.

Any local groups and organizations not contacted are requested to send donations to the Overseas Fund, City Hall.

It was pointed out that for income tax purposes, city merchants will be asked to make a donation through a small ad to be placed in a special supplement to the McFarlands official souvenir program.

The management of the company has donated $500 to the overseas fund while employees are lining up a collection which will be presented to fund officials between periods at Friday night's hockey game.

School children of the city will be asked to donate their pennies.

Lavery; dairies, Glen Hoolin; banks and theatres, Mayor Gerald Hyde; cleaners, Kirby Lloyd; insurance, Lorne McDougall; lawyers, Messrs. Efforts will be made to contact local industries with a view to having collections taken up among employees.

"We haven't much time left" Alderman Ireland said, "and we hope all or nearly all of the people mentioned will cooperate with us in this eleventh hour drive."

Mayor Gerald Hyde who conducted several business and industrial firms throughout the province told the meeting that responses had been fairly good, but a few were yet to be heard from.

He urged residents of the city as well as industry business and the professions to get behind the team and back it up with donations that will make it possible to send them overseas.

Red Cross Raises 85 Per Cent of Its Objective

The Belleville branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society raised $17,892.06 or 85 per cent of its objective or $11,107.94 in last year's Red Cross campaign, Mr. Kenneth G. M. Ross, campaign chairman, disclosed in a report given members at the annual meeting of the local branch Friday night.

This year funds were raised through the Belleville United Appeal campaign, of which the local Red Cross Society was a participant.

The city of Belleville contributed $13,837.33 last year, as compared with $13,517.37 in 1957. The 1958 quota was set at $13,300. The total district funds amounted to $4,944.87, of which $2,825 was contributed by Trenton.

In his annual report Mr. Ross urged more newspaper and radio publicity be given Red Cross services throughout the year and not just during the campaign.

A short discussion ensued during which a suggestion was made that a publicity committee be included in the incoming slate.

Number of Dogs Running at Large Causing Concern to Officials

With the increasing threat of rabies in the area considerable concern is being felt by officials in Belleville and Thurlow township of the number of dogs running at large.

They point out the possibility of some of these dogs having had contact with foxes which might be rabid with result that it may be passed along to humans.

Many of these dogs running at large seem to congregate at schools where children are playing and this, it is noted, increases the possibility of rabies being passed on accidentally to the children.

According to officials it is not necessary for a rabid animal to attack another animal to pass the disease. It can rub off onto fur and thus be passed along to humans.

"I don't like to create any alarm but the situation is more serious than many people realize," stated Thurlow township Clerk Earl Dafoe.

He noted that foxes suspected to have been rabid have been shot at Hillcrest, at Point Anne and also at Foxboro and in Sidney township. Reports on the dead animals have not yet been received.

He noted that the township by-law required dogs to be kept on owners' property "and during this rabies scare at least we intend to enforce the by-law."

In the city Police Inspector J. Clair Hayes noted that the police department was also receiving complaints of dogs congregating at schools, principally Queen Alexandra School.

He also noted that the city by-law required dogs to be kept on owners' property and if dogs were allowed to continue to run in the vicinity of schools it would be necessary for the dog catcher to pick the dogs up and impound them.

Fifteen Inches Of Snow Falls in Picton District

Money allotments for snow removal took another beating in the Bay of Quinte district over the weekend with the weatherman pilfer another heavy snowfall onto snow already received.

The storm was heaviest apparently in the Picton and lower Prince Edward county area where an estimated 15 inches of snow fell on Sunday.

And the snow was still falling today although Informants said the snow was light and the big problem was drifting of yesterday's fall.

In the Belleville area at least six inches of the fluffy white stuff fell over the weekend causing city road and sidewalk plows to see full time operation to keep roads and walks passable.

In Prince Edward county many sideroads were said still plugged today and waiting for the snowplow.

Reports from motorists seemed to indicate that the snowbelt ran in a northerly direction through Quinte area.

One motorist driving up from Kingston noted the highway was clear to Napanee with the going being very heavy between Napanee and Belleville.

Some day we hope to meet you,
Some day we'll reach the shore,
We shall meet in a better land,
And never part again.

Never to part again.

Two Six-Car Crashes at North Front St. Bridge

Snow covered and slippery streets resulted in two six-car collisions in the city yesterday, both at the same location and within two hours of each other.

No one was injured, but property damage in both incidents totalled about $400. The accidents occurred at the overhead bridge on North Front Street and were caused by the first car in line having to stop for another vehicle crossing North Front Street.

The first crash reared-end smash was during the late afternoon as southbound autos crossing the bridge piled up when the first in line was forced to stop for car crossing on Ridley Street.

In the one accident five southbound cars piled up with the fifth swinging across the road to clip a northbound vehicle. The second mishap was a straight six vehicle rear end crash. Greatest amount of damage to any one auto was $150.

There were several other minor accidents.

MIKOYAN

breaking the Berlin deadlock, U.S. officials believe an East-West foreign ministers' conference on German issues is probable in a few months. They will begin consultations with the NATO allies this week in an effort to develop detailed Western proposals for such talks.

SAYS NEWS DISTORTED

Several times before the TV cameras Mikoyan accused the American press of distorted reporting on the Soviet Union, saying it "imagines facts" and "spreads untruths." He maintained his composure even in the face of such questions as whether Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev is trying to make himself into a Stalinist - type dictator. Mikoyan declared that is happening.

"I'm not afraid of questions," Mikoyan said when told beforehand that the questioning by a panel of four newspaper men would be tough. "In Odessa it is said that the way to answer one question is to ask two more."

But some of the questioning was criticized after the program by members of Mikoyan's party. His 29-year-old son, Sergo, said after the program that some of the queries were "not so much questions as speeches."

A. A. Soldatov, chief of the American section of the Soviet foreign ministry, said questions were put in the spirit of the cold war rather than in the spirit of settling differences.

COMPARISONS

Mikoyan was reminded at one point that he had compared Soviet intervention in Hungary with U.S. intervention in Lebanon. Then he was asked whether the Soviet press had published the example that "there had no one in Lebanon and that you killed, according to reports in your country, more than 20,000 Hungarians."

Mikoyan said that showed the "untruths" spread by the American press. American troops killed no one in Lebanon because the Lebanese "decided not to resist," he said.

Mikoyan went on to say that a UN decision permitting Russia on the Hungarian issue was adopted "through a mechanical majority, which is at the disposal of the United States."

The TV program was Mikoyan's first public appearance since he left meeting Saturday with President Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles.

VIEW UNCHANGED

In speaking of his talk with Eisenhower and Dulles, Mikoyan said Sunday night:

"I advanced many arguments in support of our position on the question of a free city of West Berlin. I must say frankly that I did not succeed in any counter-arguments — any convincing counter-arguments to shake our position on that problem is well augmented, is solid and correct."

He was asked whether the Soviet government would include East Berlin in its proposal for a free city of Berlin.

"That is impossible," he said, "because East Berlin is the capital of the German Democratic Republic. Furthermore, West Berlin is not a part of West Germany. It is the territory of the German republic. Furthermore, West Berlin is not a part of West Germany and

SHOULD HAVE LISTENED TO 'ORESTES'

When Alistair Cook presented the oldest play handed down to us from the ancients, Orestes by Aeschylus (525-456 B.C.), on "Omnibus" a couple of Sundays ago, Gordon Sinclair of the Toronto Star said it was over his head and intimated that he believed it was over the head of most other viewers, too.

All the evidence points to Sinclair being right.

When Agamemnon wished to sail for Troy, to avenge the theft of Helen, the winds were unfavorable. So he sacrificed his daughter to the gods. On his victorious return, his wife Clymtemnestra killed him to avenge the death of her daughter. In his turn Agamemnon was avenged, by his son Orestes, who slew his mother and her lover. Fleeing before the Furies who pursued in response to his mother's dying curse, Orestes appealed to Athena. The goddess placed him on trial before a court of just men and, when their ballots produced a tie, cast the deciding vote which granted Orestes mercy. So was the chain of vengeance broken and the rule of law substituted for revenge.

Quite a few people might have benefited had they watched that play and learned the lesson Aeschylus taught 2,500 years ago.

There may come a day when a certain Fidel Castro and his followers in Cuba wish that they had bowed to Athena's wisdom and allowed the chain of vengeance to be broken.

Newcomers to the U.S. who have been howling for the blood of one Anastas I. Mikoyan of the Soviet Union have been more fortunate. U. S. security forces have played Athena to their Furies, saving Mikoyan whose hands may be red as those of Orestes the matricide but whose punishment while on a visit to the U.S. would hardly be the end of the chain of vengeance.

A MAN OF VARIED TALENTS

G. D. H. Cole died in London last week.

To many people that may mean little or nothing. But there are two groups of people to whom it means much — economists and detective story fans.

Cole wrote more than fifty books on economics, one of them being published in the early thirties and having the imposing title of "An Intelligent Man's Guide Through World Chaos." We suspect that the title was cribbed from George Bernard Shaw's "An Intelligent Woman's Guide to Socialism." In any event, Cole and Shaw shared the same political views. At the beginning of his decade Cole was chairman of the Fabian Society, the group of intellectuals which Shaw helped found in the dying years of the last century.

It seems strange that a man of this sort, whose influence in British politics was considerable as a theoretician for the British Labour party, should also be a prolific writer of "who-dun-it's." Yet besides his 50 books on economics Cole also found time to write 30 detective novels.

Come to think of it, though, if one and the same man could write "An Intelligent Woman's Guide to Socialism" and "Pygmalion" why should we be surprised at Cole's dual role in contributing to literature?

And then there was another Fabian Society stalwart, H. G. Wells, with "An Outline of History" and "Tono Bungay."

COUP D'KRUPP

We see that Mr. Krupp is back in business. A sign of the prosperity of the times probably. In case some do not remember, Mr. Krupp was one of the "angels" who financed the Nazi regime in Germany not too long ago.

Because the Nazis lost their "game" Mr. Krupp, as one of their sponsors, was supposed to have his vast steel, coal and munitions empire taken away from him and be reduced to a mere nobody. We are not sure where the credit is due but Mr. Krupp has apparently managed these difficulties and is back in action as a world industrial figure.

Who will be doing business with Mr. Krupp, or will he promote his own business and create a consumer demand? His forefathers Krupp were experts at this. In fact it was suspected they sold their wares on both sides of the street. Business was twice as good that way.

BLUE SKY

By EDGAR A. GUEST

Time was I thought that six per cent
Was very little money,
And so a-gunning out I went
In search of more financial honey.

All propositions paying ten
I scorned the manner that was haughty.
I told those wily-gentlemen:
'I want a stock that pays' me forty.'

Time was I found the favored stock
And bought it. Oh, how sad the tale is!
Although I do not want to knock,
The shrewd promoter now in jail is.

No more I'll purchase blue sky stuff;
No more I'll pay for fine engravings;
Of high finance I've had enough.
Henceforth, I'm going to save my savings.

Worst Threat to Economy

Advertising Ads

The most dangerous snake-oil in the American economy as we enter the year 1958, is not a matter of prices, or production, or profits. It is the oven of affluent merchandising and marketing.

It is a who-the-hell-cares attitude of mind. What C. H. Brower recently dubbed "Confidence as the great goof-off."

It is the attitude of the workman, the manufacturer, the distributor, the retailer that nothing is really important, to be too perfect, and that inefficient production and inefficient distribution, and parts and products that don't work very well or hold up well, is to use are to be expected; this is the era of the good-enough and what-do-you-expect.

A few weeks ago we ran an item about Hotpoint replacing washer-dryer combinations that turned out to be faulty. And promptly we got a bitter letter from a reader complaining that Hotpoint but said his experience with another was considerably different. "Hotpoint considered two service calls in three years a suitable reason for replacement of the combination. Mine, a combination had around 20 service calls the first year and they refused to replace the machine—for another year."

"The dealer? He washed his hands of the whole affair—just said 'too bad, sorry, 'tent.' The distributor? Same script, same song and dance . . .

"One section of my cellar has now been set aside as a permanent exhibition hall," he went on. "Here our competitor's less splendor . . . combination washer - dryer . . . Everyone in the neighborhood has been invited in to see it . . . Let . . . publicize it. I want them to. Then the money is wasted in any area within sound of my voice."

We don't know, of course, whether our correspondent's item is 100 per cet accurate or not. But all of us have had similar enough experiences to feel that too much of this sort of thing goes on even in the best of firms.

Clearly, most products are no longer built to "last forever." And just as clear is that consumers don't want products to last forever. But there is all the difference in the world between building products to last forever and building them so that they don't work the very first day, so that they don't even have a chance to get broken in.

There is a vast difference between responsibly producing products built to be mass produced at a reasonable price and products thrown out without thought or care or proper inspection or attention.

Tells What Animals See

St. Louis Post Dispatch

Don't worry; about that red sports jacket the next time you ride across a pasture and a bull spots you. He is color blind and will be no more stirred up than if the jacket were plaid or black and green. It will be you the bull charges out after, not the red jacket.

Put a square of red flannel on a fish hook and catch some frogs if you like to see red bait at the end of your line. But don't think it has any extra appeal for the frog. He doesn't flash around in the early thirties and having the imposing title of "An Intelligent Man's Guide Through World Chaos." U.S. Railways' Views Differ

Christian Science Monitor

In the summer of 1956 the Pennsylvania and the New York Central Railroads announced that they would petition for permission to raise fares in sleeper and parlor cars by 45 per cent, on a report persisted that they were thus underpricing their more profitable "first-class passengers to the air lines."

The roads denied the charge vehemently, while pleading that the "out-of-pocket" cost of the passenger traffic were mounting calamitously. Subsequent actions by these and other railroad lines indicate that they are, at most, holding their own in fares and service.

This past year the Kansas City Southern and the Missouri Pacific lines cut sleeping car fares and improved service, while now the Rock Island, whose network reaches from Chicago down into the great Southwest, has said that on January 23 it will cut coach-plus fares for tourist and parlor-car users by 23 per cent.

Conditions for these Eastern and Western lines seem to differ in a multitude of ways, by regions and by individual roads. What to do, however, have one large factor in common. They all must maintain the same rails, roadbeds, bridges, signal systems, and rights-of-way for freight traffic, whether or not they carry a passenger. Therefore, the cost of passenger service, actually, only the expenditures beyond those, the roads must undertake for maintaining freight service alone.

The two Eastern lines are following the course of seeking larger income from a quality of fewer passengers that ride them after some have been driven away by the higher fares.

Certainly seeking income by way of volume is more in the American industrial tradition. It follows the classic story of the Model T Ford. The Rock Island will watch the progress of these two explorations with a keen interest born of having a considerable stake in the outcome.

The annual vestry meeting of Christ Church was held in the Parish Hall with a goodly number of the congregation present, and the Rector, the Rev. G.G. Wright presiding. The Women's Guild reported contribution of $400 towards current expenses and in addition had contributed $600 towards reduction of the mortgage debt. Mr. D. R. Cleland was appointed rector's warden for the ensuing year, and Mr. F. G. Chamberlain was elected people's warden.

Mrs. Donald Baxter of Bloomfield is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Denike.

Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Gorman entertained the executive of the Women's Canadian Club last evening in honor of Miss Alice Johnston of London, Eng., following her address at St. Andrew's hall.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Stevenson who have been visiting in the city, have returned to Toronto.

At the home of Mrs. C. A. Cameron yesterday, a delightful afternoon tea was held when teachers of Queen Alexandra School had an opportunity of meeting the members of the Home and School Club. Mrs. Cameron received, and Mrs. W. H. Frinkle presided at the tea table.

January 19th., 1929

The greatest rainfall ever experienced in this city and vicinity occurred yesterday afternoon and last night. Streets were flooded, driveways and sewers could not carry off the great body of water. The water ran like rivers on both sides and residents' basement cellars were flooded, and fires in town were extinguished. With the coming of the morning the water began to subside, but left behind it much slime, mud and drains. The cessation of the rainfall and the lowering of the temperature brought relief from the flood.

Mr. Frederick Boyd will leave tomorrow for Capreol where she will install the efficers of the Intermediate Chapter of the Order of the Royal Star.

Bill Crawford and Frank Howard are spending a few days in Montreal.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

How do wilful, bossy, cranky old people become such successful mess magnage to get along with all the infuriating traffic lights and other inconveniences of modern life?

For example, how enraged must be an old gentleman, at whose request a thousand employees tremble in their boots, when nobody will let him make a left-hand turn.

The way the world is today, he is hardly worth being a millionaire.

Among my fishing cronies is a bachelor of middle age whom I can never get to spend the evening with me because he works until ten p.m. every night of the week. He is the private secretary to one of those angry old men of big business.

He works until ten every night, because both he and his famous boss don't have a down to work until 2 p.m. in the afternoon.

At that hour, the old gentleman finds little traffic to inconvenience him. Besides, by that hour, all the spade work at the office has been done by his inferiors who get down to work at 9 a.m. For three hours, he listens to them and their problems; and then they leave to go home for the big traffic rush at five.

And in peace and quiet, from five p.m. until ten, he and this favorite secretary of his devote themselves, in serene isolation, to the business of outmarting and scuttling all enemies, competitors and adversaries.

Then they go home, a little ahead of the theatre and hockey crowds.

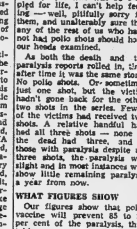
TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

STEAM PRESSURE

To get action behind steam pressure it is necessary to have an objective, or scientific plan. You can't just wish things. Neither can you rub them and get them. And this is true with a machine and an ambitious human being.

William Jones once wrote this wise saying: "The secret of man's eminence of elementary power is that goals him forward. They may be rare- and he do nothing. It is the steam pressure behind the inch that makes that moves the machine."



The man who is wise: we "put on the pressure" and with a watchful eye look to nature and to the necessities to evince courage and incentive. We get nowhere by merely standing around waiting for something important to happen. Day by day pressure upon our ideas and observations is what keeps us moving closer each day to what we want most to accomplish.

That final pressure which the rider, in a horse race, uses is what wins the prize. This pressure is what writers use, backed by their enthusiasm; and pride of accomplishment. It is pressure that; Balzac was so stirred up in the writing of his great books that many a page was still wet with ink as so much copy leaped from his pen!

We need this pressure of ideas and objectives to keep us alive and awakened. None of us can live happy as we view our dreams taking form and substance. Dreams are evident in all nature, else there would be no constant change and progress on the part of all God's creations. There is movement in all the forces that make up the world. Our Creator's purposes keep giving birth and beauty and usefulness.

POLIO SHOTS ARE URGED FOR EVERYBODY

They say that a prophet is without honor in his own country, and if so, today's remarks may at least be accepted in some cities other than my own.

My own city has just passed through another polio epidemic, the worst in American history, with a score of victims dead, and more than 10 times as many paralyzed to some degree, running up to the damage dooming them to live in iron lungs.

Tyre, we have managed, with the obvious gratitude of the disease all around us, to persuade several hundred thousand people in the metropolitan area to get polio shots — at last. And also to have their children inoculated.

I regret that it required an epidemic to convince these neighbors of mine to have the shots. No doubt I failed the year before, and the year before that, as I tried to impress, wheedle, lead, frighten folks into getting shots. And I didn't succeed well enough.

So then the epidemic struck. As I made — and still make — rounds in the hospitals where these people who will be crippled for life, I can't help feeling — well, pitifully sorry for them, and unalterably sure that any of the many who have not had polio shots should have our heads examined.

As both the diseases and the paralysis reports rolled in, time after time it was the same story: No polio shots. One member was just one shot, but the victim hadn't gone back for the other two shots in the series. Fewer of the victims had received two shots. A relative handful had all three shots — none of the dead had had them. Of members: Ketcheson Ward, Robert Anderson, W. B. Deacon, Harry Stock, and Harry J. Clarke; Baldwin Ward, Fred Bailey and Russell Zufelt, Charles Walsh and John Bordridge; Bleecker Ward, Charles Ives, H. Wrightmyer, George Madden and S. Burrows; Coleman Ward, Alf. Clarke, Thomas and George Dulmage; Murray Ward, Alex. Wallace, Chas. Symons and Harry Morgan.

Wife Gave Him An Airplane

Cape Breton Post

When he got up to open his presents Christmas morning, a man in Portland, Ore., found the biggest one was an airplane parked in the front yard — a gift from his wife. He didn't know how to fly, but his wife arranged for the flying lessons. When her husband had expressed a longing for an airplane she thought it was as good as another. It could be that the airplane was a plan for recreation to keep him away from convivial company at the 19th hole on golf courses. It's hard to say exactly what's in a woman's mind when she gives you an airplane for Christmas. It could be, however, nothing more complicated than a bright idea.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WONDER WHAT'S UP THERE

Beginning about the year 1500 the world lived for almost four centuries in an age of discovery.

The first discoveries might be called water discoveries for men travelled from one continent to another in sailing ships. But next age of discovery was political. Men struggled for freedom. In the eighteenth century this struggle resulted in a quite definite place of achievement through the ancestral revolutions against tyranny. Then, about 1900 there became the age of scientific discovery. Especially during the past 100 years we have learned so much that past achievements seem as nothing to us.

Now we are in a new era. Our eyes are turned heavenward. We are making rockets. We think in terms of satellites and space stations. We hope soon to enthrone the ideal of government by God.

Let's not be too impressed with our own cleverness. Let's not be too sure that we are the first to circle the moon and some even believe that we may land thereafter or perhaps on other planets.

Note the way man has been progressing in the realm of discovery.

First he peered at the heavens. Then he looked up with wonder at the thrones of tyranny and power which one could rend them down. After that he dug into the world about him and peered into its secrets. Now he is turning his eyes to heaven.

It's a safe bet that the next discoveries purely on a materialistic basis, will make a great mistake. We are living in a marvelous age, when not only do the great of mind walk — turn upwards but their worth also.

We may learn great truths from the heavens more than about the heavenly hosts and about God and His purposes.

Women of the Bavenda tribe pound millet in front of their huts in a native village in Northern Transvaal in South Africa. Although primitive living such as this remains among the tribes, the educated South African native is entering more and more facets of his country's professional life. Three Million Whites in Africa Striving to Preserve Way of Life and Racial Integrity

Russell Elman, former Canadian Press staff writer now touring the Commonwealth, reports in the following story on social and political conditions in South Africa —particularly as affected by apartheid, the government's policy of racial segregation.

BY RUSSELL ELMAN

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (CP) — South Africa's 3,000,000 whites, outnumbered nearly 4 to 1 by non-Europeans, are striving to preserve their way of life, racial integrity and political security.

Conditioned by fear of being overwhelmed by the non-white majority, the average European is brought up in a society where there is no alternative to the color bar.

Few Europeans admit to basing their racial prejudice purely on the color of a man's skin, although under the influence of individual ministers of the Dutch Reformed Church, some Afrikaners may sincerely believe the white man has a superior mission in life to guide and educate the black.

NATURAL SEPARATION

On historical grounds, South Africans say the first Dutch settlers who landed at Capetown in 1652, found such a wide gulf between their way of life and that of the indigenous Hottentots, Bushmen and later Bantu, that a natural separation resulted. Today segregation is enforced by law as well as convention.

In defense of the European, Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd asked in Parliament whether "the white man is not entitled also to protection—the white man who is the founder of the state, who is the founder of this prosperity, who is the protector of the Bantu (African) and who is responsible for the growing number of the Bantu."

Both the ruling Nationalist and opposition United parties are committed to preserving the European's political entity with no breaking of the social color bar. But whereas the U.P. supports an evolutionary middle-of-the-road path towards economic integration, the Nationalists say that integration can lead only to racial chaos and black control of South Africa.

Today in the Transvaal, Orange Free State and Natal there is almost total racial segregation in housing, schools, buses, trains, taxis, eating places, hotels, libraries, theatres, post offices, swimming pools, park benches, apartment elevators and public conveniences.

PARTIAL SEGREGATION

In Capetown segregation has been implemented on suburban trains and a few bus routes. There is no separation on the main trolley bus services, several restaurants still serve meals to all races and multi-racial meetings are held in the city hall. Persons of different color also mix on planes of the state-owned South African Airways.

At home, Johannesburg businessmen, housewives on Karroo farms, bus conductors in modest Capetown bungalows equally abhor social contact with non-Europeans. Only a tiny minority of liberals are likely to pursue any relationship outside the office or factory with the African, Colored or Indian. Coloreds are people of mixed European, Hottentot, Bushman and Bantu origin.

In an average South African home, Negro nursegirls are often employed, and an African cook usually prepares the food. Yet the European housewife will never sit down to a meal with an African.

"There is no logical reason, I know, why I shouldn't invite a well-dressed and educate native (African) into my house," says Mrs. N. K. Hobson in the lounge of her comfortable home on a sheep farm.

"But I couldn't do it. I allow the native to cook my food and look after my child because I always know I am the boss and they are the servants. They are doing chores I prefer not to do, and I can afford it."

SOCIAL DIFFERENCE

Another woman says she would no more entertain an African in her home than she would her gardener if she were living overseas.

The white man generally adopts a paternalistic attitude to his African laborers and servants. "Baasskap" (boss-ship) or master-servant relationship these days rarely means sjambok-swinging and slavery, although farmers still often give an erring African a disciplinary hiding rather than turn him over to the police.

Servants are paid, fed, housed and usually treated kindly. In wealthier homes, despite a growing shortage of African help in the cities, there may be four to five servants. Whether the servant is a 25-year-old cook or a 60-year-old gardener, she or he is always called "girl" or "boy." Abusive terms still often heard are "Kaffir" and "Nigger."

In urban areas few white residents visit African townships or make an effort to know about the personal lives of their servants. Rarely meeting Africans other than their employees, most Europeans consider the African generally is financially untrustworthy, cannot be relied on to stay in his job and has extremely low productivity.

At work the European himself organizes and maintains high standards in skilled crafts or business, where individual effort is the decisive factor. But the white semi-skilled worker, whose productivity has been estimated at one-quarter of the Canadian's, has it easy. A bricklayer only lays the brick—his African "boy" picks it up and hands it to him.

The average European wage is about £73 a month, with the average family income £115. In the 1930s there was an acute "poor white" problem but farming schemes, employment on the railways and in new industries has eased the situation.

However, as the African advances and poses a threat to lower-class whites, who still manage to employ a servant, the government has begun reserving certain jobs for Europeans. In Capetown, over virile opposition, posts such as traffic police, ambulance drivers and firemen are to be reserved for Europeans. In Durban garbage collectors now are Europeans only. Only Europeans drive trains and buses that carry white passengers.

Although the color problem tends not to be a live topic in most homes it probably has had an effect on family life. Children, waited on by servants from birth, often are spoiled. Young brides used to having everything provided by father, sometimes find it difficult adjusting to married life in which the husband still has to start at the bottom of the ladder in his work. The divorce rate is high.

Some liberal-minded South African families have been concerned enough to leave the Union. These parents are moving to Britain and Canada where they hope their children can grow up in an atmosphere of racial tolerance.

Nurses Must Pass Exams In Alberta

EDMONTON (CP)—A new examination system for graduating nurses will go into effect in Alberta this year to ensure a uniform high standard of nursing throughout the province. The first examination is scheduled for August.

The examination, formerly the registration exam for nurses, now will become a requirement for graduation from hospital schools of nursing. It is set by the National League for Nursing Examinations Inc., of New York.

Nurses who pass the examination at their hospital training schools will automatically have RN status but must apply for the RN certificate from the Alberta Association of Registered Nurses.

Alberta is believed the first Canadian province to adopt the measure, first recommended by Dr. Andrew Stewart, retiring president of the University of Alberta, who headed the university's nursing education committee.

Previously the only assurance of nurses' standards was membership in the Registered Nurses' Association. Now, after taking the examination, no one will be called a graduate nurse who has not already met the RN standards.

The majority—of directors of schools of nursing in Alberta favor the new examination, and a committee has been appointed by the nursing schools' committee to look after final details.

The examination next August will create a change in graduation exercise programs in provincial nursing schools. Under the old system examinations were written in April and September.

Holloway W.A. Installs 1959 Officers

Holloway Street United Church W.A. met for its January meeting in the church parlors with the president, Mrs. F. Wilson presiding. Mrs. Wilson extended a welcome to all and spoke of the W.A.'s achievements of the past year in grateful thanksgiving for help and co-operation of all members in carrying on this worthwhile task of the W.A.

Reports were given by the various secretaries and group leaders. Mrs. T. Poste, in the absence of the treasurer, Mrs. Campbell, gave a full financial report of the year's work, with a fine balance on hand to start the year 1959.

Mrs. W. Oliphant showed a sample of a silver tea pot which the W.A. is purchasing for the church, and asked the approval of the ladies. Four silver tea pots and two sugar and cream services will be purchased.

Mrs. N. Brown reported 38 subscriptions to the United Church observer.

Mrs. F. Scott reported on flowers and Mrs. Cook on cards. Mrs. Joblin gave a fine synopsis of the worship group's achievements of the past year.

Mrs. Bertrand took charge of the worship period, taking as her subject, "Time." "Take Time To Be Holy" was the hymn used. Mrs. Coleman read the Scripture lesson from Ecclesiastes 3:1-11. To everything there is a season and a time for every purpose under the heaven.

Mrs. Bertrand said, in part: "When we spend time that adds to the elements of life already achieved we are not losing time. To live right is to live so that yesterday, today and tomorrow are all becoming useful and purposeful. Jesus was the Supreme Master of the art of spending time. If we let time master Him. He did not give the impression of rushing about, trying to save time. Yet He knew His earthly working days were few.

"He had time to sit and talk with people along the way. He paused to play with little children. He took time off to spend whole days in prayer.

"He was not keeping to a calendar but was fulfilling a life. We talk about time in terms of daily terms; we speak of making time, of wasting time, of spending time; of killing time.

"If we are to fulfill our lives we must live days to the full. Put ourselves into the moments so that the moments can become the bits of eternal life."

Mrs. Coleman closed the meditation with prayer.

Mrs. Ketcheson favored with a lovely solo, "Lord Let Me Live Today."

Last Post Being Sounded For Painted Fabrics Limited

SHEFFIELD, England (CP)—The Last Post is being sounded for Painted Fabrics Limited, an ambitious experiment in the rehabilitation and employment of disabled veterans of the First World War.

The old army camp at Meadowhead, Sheffield, which for 22 years has served as both home and workshop for hundreds of 100 disabled sailors and soldiers, is to be taken over by civic authorities and turned into a modern housing estate.

"It's a pity, but no doubt inevitable," says Mrs. Annie B. Carter, who got the idea for the project while visiting military hospitals during the war.

The veterans, who over the years have turned out more than £250,000 worth of hand-patterned furnishing and dress goods and other articles, have reached, or are approaching, retirement age and there are no replacements.

They started out as a form of treatment for men who had lost both hands," said Mrs. Carter. A professional artist, she started giving the men painting lessons during her hospital visits in an effort to bolster their spirits. "We lent a paintbrush to what they felt was a man's hand and then started in to convince him that he could do something."

Later, she decided to see what she could do about employing the men—"They were regarded as unemployable in those days"—and decided to found a company, employing only disabled help to produce hand-painted and hand-patterned fabrics.

In 1924, Mrs. Carter established her disabled painters at the Meadowhead camp, Huts which had once served as barracks for an army of the Women's Army Corps, were converted into bungalows for the men and their families. Other buildings were turned into workshops.

Raw materials were bought and the cloth bleached, dyed, patterned and made up by the disabled veterans. Products ranged from knick-knacks to fine curtains and ecclesiastical garments and furnishings.

A slightly-built, energetic and determined woman, Mrs. Carter did always was the driving charges a reasonable place in society. She was proud of the fact that her project has survived by its own industry and industries, and never appealed for funds."

Mrs. Carter's favorite story is about the time she entered the workshop and saw two men sitting opposite another, singing loudly and hammering in time to their hammers. I got closer. I saw they were both hammering nails into each other's wooden legs. Apparently each kept slipping down."

Meadowhead, matter - of - fact attitude is banishing signs of regret as painted fabrics, like all old soldiers, fade away.

About 48 families still live on the Meadowhead site, although the last three of the veterans are retired on disability and old-age pensions.

"Naturally, it's hard to think about the project disappearing after all these years," said Miss Muriel Silcoe, assistant to Mrs. Carter. "But the new housing scheme means the families will have better living accommodation. Looked at in that way, it's really a good thing."

Tokyo Defined By Word, Slide At Women's UC

The president, Mrs. J. Haig, welcomed a large number of members present for the recent meeting of the Belleville and District University Women's Club.

During the business meeting it was announced that Mrs. P. T. Seibert, past president, will act as chairman of the nominating committee, assisted by Mrs. J. E. Pugh and Mrs. William Hurst.

Mrs. J. H. Bateman has consented to act as overall convenor of the club's "Spring Fair."

Mrs. W. Simmons introduced the main speaker of the evening, Miss Hazel Farley, of Trenton, who told her fellow members of her trip to Japan last summer on an east-west cultural mission to Hiroshima, sponsored by UNESCO.

Because of her wide interests and personal contacts in Japan, Miss Farley was able to give her listeners a fund of fascinating information about this country. This country, the size of Saskatchewan, has a population of 90 million—the highest per cent of the land is arable. Forty-five per cent of the people are farmers who are allowed only about two and one-half acres each; 20 per cent are fishermen, and they give one-fifth of their earnings to help the country's allout effort to develop industry.

DELEGATES WELCOMED

Scrupulously clean, thrifty, and honest, the Japanese welcomed the UNESCO delegates with hospitality and courtesy, and wherever they went they were impressed with the beauty of the country and fine accommodation.

Also impressive was the growth of many flourishing industries, and the energy with which the Japanese are working for peace.

Tokyo, a city of nine million, is modern in high schools 80 per cent of the people speak English. The city has 76 universities. It is the home of the Imperial Palace, surrounded by a moat, though figuratively speaking the barriers are down between Emperor Hirohito and his subjects. He is no longer regarded as a god, but as a symbol of the state and its citizens. The Emperor was conducted by an elected Senate, and a house of representatives, both of which have several women members.

CULTURAL CENTRE

Tokyo is also a cultural centre and here are found five philharmonic orchestras; concert halls and over 300 movie theatres where American films are frequently shown. The delegation witnessed the 14 act opera of Noh Play, the oldest Japanese drama form, with masked actors and elaborate costumes, presented in ancient Japanese manner.

Until General MacArthur established freedom of religion, the national form of worship was Shinto. This was originally nothing more than nature worship, but through the years the Shinto religion took on some of the aspects of Buddhism and Confucianism and from these the people learned the virtues of asceticism, contemplation, and tolerance.

Congregational Meeting

VICTORIA AVE. BAPTIST

The annual meeting of Victoria Ave. Baptist Church, Belleville, was held on Wednesday evening.

Prior to the business meeting a delicious dinner was served to over 200 people.

All of the organizations of the church has arranged displays to portray in pictorial form the many activities of the year and a tour was taken to study them.

Following a brief worship service an interesting quiz was conducted to test the powers of observation and memory, but in many cases the answers had to be obtained by searching through the mimeographed book of reports prepared by Miss E. Easton.

The reports of all organizations indicated a busy and successful year, both in spiritual growth and financial gain.

The treasurer's report showed that the Sector Plan had been an outstanding success and that the total givings from the church and all the organizations to be $37,546.91, which is an increase of over $5,000 over the preceding year. Of that sum $7,338.43 was sent for Missions.

There are 323 active church members.

There was a sadness throughout the evening as the Rev. L. K. Daniel and his family are leaving to begin duties in Brampton Baptist Church. It is regretted that Mr. Daniel has seen fit to terminate his pastorate here after more than seven years of faithful and fruitful service. All are grateful to God for his ministry and pray for His blessing and guidance both upon Mr. Daniel and his family in their new field of service and upon the church in its endeavor to obtain a new spiritual leader for the continuance of the Christian task in this community.

The chairman of the Board of Deacons reported that there will be a "reunion" at the close of the evening service January 25th to say farewell to Mr. Daniel at that time.

The budget for 1959 was presented by Mr. G. A. Law and adopted. This will be a further challenge for the coming year.

Miss E. Nurse gave the report of the nominating committee and the proposed slate of officers was approved.

The annual meeting was brought to a close by the singing of the Doxology and by benediction by Mr. Daniel.

COLLEGE HILL W. A.

The afternoon group of College Hill W. A. held its First meeting of the year on Wednesday. The newly elected president, Mrs. D. Hunter, welcomed all present and opened the meeting with an appropriate poem, followed by the theme song and prayer.

During the business period, the treasurer's annual report showed a substantial balance on hand at the close of 1958.

Projects for this year were discussed, also suggestions for raising money.

A letter of appreciation was read from the retiring president, Mrs. H. Thompson, thanking all those who had helped in any way during her two-year term just completed.

Mrs. C. Bailey was again chosen as leader of the Baby Band—Mrs. J. Sproule, Mrs. A. May and Mrs. E. Flunder were named to the social committee.

The devotional period was taken by Mrs. G. Jenkinson, Mrs. C. Bailey and Mrs. R. Neal. The theme for the first worship service of the year was the first great Commandment "Thou shalt have no other gods, before Me." The Scripture lesson was a portion of Deut. 6 and Matt. 22. "Thoughts on the lesson", said "Today's world finds us surrounded by temptations to put love of self and love of material possessions in first place. God, in his wisdom has given us no alternative — God must come first in our hearts and lives."

After the devotional closed a social half hour was enjoyed by all.

A steaming bowl of homemade soup—rich with the real thing—sticks to the ribs and warms the heart on a wintry night.

Soup For Supper

by Mary Moore

A soup-serving trick taught me by an English Home Economist is to serve two thick cream soups — side by side — in a shallow tureen.

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

MONDAY

How to achieve this harmonious soup togetherness is to have both thick cream soups — Cream of Tomato and Cream of Celery — as recommended — piping hot and ready to serve, then with a steady hand, you can pour the two "halves" of your soup into the tureen so that the soup appears when you bring it in as two perfect segments of color in your dish. To achieve this harmony, you must pour each soup simultaneously into the tureen, allowing it to fill slowly and evenly. Each soup will then remain separate, giving a really blue-ribbon look with each color-division defined. Increase the effect, if you like, with a fine line of fresh green parsley along the division.

You could use the following Mushroom Cream Soup beside the Tomato Soup for the above idea or serve it as is for a nourishing lunch.

COUNTRY - STYLE MUSHROOM SOUP:

One-half pound mushrooms, dash of vinegar, 4 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 2½ cups milk or chicken stock and milk, seasoning, 2 tablespoons cream, and grated nutmeg. Wipe mushrooms with damp cloth and put into saucepan with 1-2 cups water along with dash of vinegar. Bring to boil, simmer until tender — about 10 minutes. Cut into strips. Melt butter in pan and cornstarch and mix well, add milk and stock in which mushrooms cooked. Cook for 5 more minutes, stirring, add mushrooms and seasonings and boil for a minute. Just before serving stir in cream and add a dash of nutmeg.

INTERNATIONAL WHITE ONION SOUP

This is a rarely seen recipe so if you have one lurking longings for a bowl of Onion Soup, French style, take heed. Four large white onions, 1-2 cup butter, 5 tablespoons butter, 6 cups each chicken broth and water, salt and pepper to taste, 6 French bread toasted, grated Parmesan cheese. Slice onions in 1-8-in. slices. Blanch for 1 minute by pouring over them boiling water to cover. Drain and dry. Brown onions in butter until lightly browned. Sprinkle with flour, add chicken broth, water, salt and pepper. Boil for 15 minutes. Place toast in Soup in individual containers 3-inch full. Cover with a layer of toasted bread and grated cheese, add more soup and repeat toast and cheese. Top with dabs of butter and bake at 400 deg Fahr until golden brown.

CHINESE SCOTCH BROTH:

One cup dried green peas whole, 1-2 to 1 cup navy beans, 1 meaty soup bone, 4 to 5 quarts water, 1 cup pearl barley, 1-3 cup yellow split peas, 2 large carrots and onions, 1 cup each diced turnip and diced celery, 2 cups cut up cabbage, 3 medium potatoes. Salt and pepper to taste. Soak beans and whole green peas over night. Simmer soup bone in water for 2 hours. Add barley beans, peas, and cook another hour. Add vegetables and cook another 1-2 hour.

Club Activities

WEDDING RING CLUB

On Tuesday the regular meeting of the Wedding Ring Club of College Hill United Church was held in the Sunday School room.

The meeting opened with a devotional period conducted by Group 3, with Mr. R. Dafoe, Mrs. D. Dafoe and Mrs. William McIlquham taking part.

After the devotions, the business of the Club was conducted. Among the items of business was the proposed constitution of the club. After much discussion and a few changes this was voted on and adopted.

Following the business session the group joined in the playing of games. In one game the group formed a circle with hands behind their backs. A number of articles were passed from hand to hand and each contestant given a piece of paper on which to write the names of the articles. The winners of this game were Mr. C. Line and Mrs. B. Moorcroft.

After the games pie and coffee were served by Group 3.

PRESENT OR TIP TO APARTMENT SUPT.?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At Christmas-time my husband and I gave the tips to the service employees of our apartment house—elevator men, handyman, and so forth—as well as a tip (larger, of course, than the others) to the superintendent of the building. Last evening we were having Sunday supper with friends of ours who live in the building, a married couple whom we knew before we moved here last April. They happened to mention that they gave tips to the others, but that it is considered correct to give a superintendent a present rather than a tip. This my husband and I didn't know, nor had it ever occurred to us. Is this really the correct thing to do?—Apartment-dweller.

This procedure is very often given as the correct thing to do — but to me it doesn't seem the practical thing to do, because in most cases it would be extremely difficult, if not impossible, to choose a gift that would be right, really welcome. And I have a strong feeling that the majority of superintendents would prefer the cash or cheque to buy something they would like to choose for themselves.

WHICH NAME FIRST IN THIS INTRODUCTION?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The other day, at a small party at the home of a friend of mine, I was confronted with the circumstance of introducing a young woman acquaintance of mine (about 40 years of age, I should say) and an older man (in the early seventies, I should say.) I had an awkward moment deciding which name to mention first. Since he was so considerably older than she, should I have mentioned his name first. Or was I right in mentioning her name first?—Reader.

You were right in mentioning the woman's name first.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Allen K. — We'll be better off by ourselves.

Ruth K. — My husband and I have been having a controversy about what to do about a maiden aunt of his who wants to share an apartment with us and pay the full rent.

Aunt Hilda lived with her father until he died a year or two ago, and she has been very lonely ever since. She has quite a good job and inherited quite a bit of money. Allen has always been her favorite nephew, and she says she would like to help us out for a few years in exchange for the comforts of living in a home with a family.

I think she is a nice person, and it is a wonderful opportunity for us to save up some money for the education of our three young children, but my husband is opposed to the idea.

Allen K. — Aunt Hilda isn't a bad sort, and it isn't easy to turn down a proposition that is as attractive as this one, but I think that each family is best off all by itself.

I feel that Ruth is being kind of greedy about the money. Why should she be so ready to sacrifice our privacy? It is true that Aunt Hilda isn't the average, annoying type of person, but it's still not the same as being entirely on your own.

Ruth says I have no right to sacrifice the children's future like this, and it does make me feel kind of guilty. I don't know whether I'll ever be able to give the kids the right advantages, but they'll just have to get along on what their Dad can give them. Like all the other poor slobs.

The Council: We think Ruth ought to consider herself lucky to have a steady, clear-minded husband who cannot be tempted away from his own sane track. She is very wrong to try to make him feel guilty about it. The children have a much finer advantage in their possession of solid, excellent parents than they could have with whatever their aunt's money would buy for them.

Some families can live quite happily with an additional person in the household, and we would have no quarrel with such an arrangement if it were a perfectly comfortable one for every member concerned.

But we gather that Aunt Hilda is just a bit too ready to take over as head of the household. The person who pays the rent is someone to be seriously reckoned with in any home and we think that the man of the house should reserve his power for himself.

Aunt Hilda may be a "nice person" but life is filled with strange and intricate complications and nobody can predict the effect upon a growing family of the odd arrangement she offers. Allen's instinct to keep things simple and basic in his family unit is a good one and his wife ought to give her wholehearted backing. Aunt Hilda sounds like the kind of person who'll make out somehow.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

They'll talk about that Saturday night game around the local cracker-barrels in Wallby for many a moon.

For nothing quite like it has happened to the loyal town burghers since their beloved Dunnies made Spokane say "uncle" and brought home the Allan Cup.

It was a bitter hard-fought struggle between two teams of champions. There was heartbreak and triumph. Heartbreak for the shoulder-to-shoulder Whitby fans who saw their beloved Dunnies trail by a 3-0 score, and heartbreak for the cheering Mace boosters who saw the lead wiped out and the foemen take a goal lead.

The "Go-Dunnies-Go" slogan rang with triumph as the world champions swept into the lead. But there was a golden ring to the cheers of the coterie of McFarland supporters as the Allan Cup champions, on a daring gamble, erased the margin with the clock reading 25 seconds left.

The stage was set for this tense struggle in Memorial Arena last Tuesday night when the McFarlands administered the soundest whipping of the season to the Blairmen. There was no ill-feeling on the part of the Dunnies, just a hurt pride and a dogged determination to avenge the setback Saturday night.

Both teams went all out for the victory. The Dunnies, determined to wipe out the 6-2 defeat, were met by a McFarland team that was just as determined to prove their victory was no flash in the pan. And they did just that.

It was no knock-em-down drag-em-out struggle. Both the Mace and the Dunnies realized that a loss of manpower was an invitation to disaster. There were only six penalties handed out, all in the first period and three of those included a minor, misconduct and game misconduct to a McFarland player.

The tide of hockey fortune swing first one way then the other and in a dying gasp back again. The Maces, driving hard, took a 2-0 lead in the first period. The Dunnies cut it in half in the second. In less than two minutes midway through the third frame the pendulum of victory swung to the Dunlops.

Up to the dying seconds of the game, the goal-marrion looked like a million. The Maces appeared headed for their first defeat in ten starts. With 60 seconds to go, Ike Hildebrand with the habitual coach's derring-do, took Gordie Bell out of the net, and sent six attackers to the blue line. The strategy works one time in twenty. This was the twentieth.

"Lammy" Lamirande, a veteran campaigner well-versed in power-punch plays of this kind, was patroling the point, and suddenly saw his opportunity. He let go, the puck slithered past Long John Hendrickson and a hundred Belleville tonsils rent the air in a howl of triumph. Don Foster nearly collapsed in his elown suit, and the banner "More, Mace More" fluttered in waving hands.

Yesterday, the Maces rounded out a trispunhani five-point weekend and are perched at the top of the Eastern League two-points in front of the Dunlops, by virtue of their more or less anti-climatic 5-1 victory over the Cornwall Chevies.

They rest, hockey-wise until Wednesday night when they pay their final visit of the season to Kingston where they take on the Merchants. Next Friday they entertain Cornwall.

Tomorrow they will be the guests of the management of the Bata Shoe Company at Batawa at a luncheon and a tour of the plant.

Incidentally tickets for the Kingston game Wednesday are on sale at Bill Cook's. That night, the sidemarable bronco-bail championship between Kingston and Belleville city fathers will be settled prior to the start of the senior tussle.

JUNIOR HOCKEY

Belleville Lambert - Rollins, riding the crest of a five-game winning streak. will play host to Kingston there tonight in a regular scheduled OHA Central Ontario Junior "B" fixture.

Eddie Plata's boys chalked up number six in Picton Saturday night, downing Chris Lockyer's Prince Edward Combine crew by an 8-5 score to all but clinch third spot. That win evened their record for the season at nine wins and nine defeats. Gary Goyer sparked the win with the hattrick.

Game time here tonight is 8.30 following the senirt games from six to eight. The boys are playing excellent hockey and deserve box office support. There is no senior game here now until Friday so fans can appease their hockey appetite by catching tonight's affair. How about it?

Hawks Back In Form; Strengthen Hold On Second

Slap Down Broadway Blues Hold Canadiens to 1-1 Tie; Red Wings Point off Cellar

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The mighty have fallen and the humble have risen in the National Hockey League standings.

Detroit Red Wings, tie many seasons the most feared team in the NHL, have won only one game in their last 15, and Chicago Black Hawks, for many seasons the league patsies, are riding a crest that has put them into second place.

The Wings lost two on the weekend. Saturday they were edged 2-1 by last-place Toronto Maple Leafs and Sunday New York Rangers trimmed them 4-2. They now are only one point away from the cellar.

Black Hawks solidified their hold on second by slapping down third-place New York 7-1 Saturday and then fighting the league-leading Montreal Canadiens to a 1-1 draw Sunday before a crowd of 16,482 fans, the largest in Chicago since Jan. 31, 1950.

HABS 12 POINTS UP

Canadiens kept a 12-point edge over the Hawks by drawing 3-3 with Boston Bruins in Montreal Saturday, vaulting from fifth to fourth place by beating Toronto at the bottom of the league by beating Leafs 4-3 Sunday.

Detroit felt the cold shadow of the mighty Wings that won a record seven consecutive league titles between 1948 and 1955 when the weak Leafs beat them Saturday.

Dick Duff put Toronto in front against Detroit goalie Terry Sawchuk and Bob Pulford upped it to 2-0 in the third. It was his 14th.

Sunday, Rangers got away to a three-goal lead in Detroit as Camille Henry, Andy Bathgate and Lou Fontinato scored.

In the second period Detroit's Gordie Howe set up two goals—by Ullman and rookie Len Lunde, but in the third Andy Bathgate scored to make Rangers' win certain.

BATHGATE'S 23th

It was Bathgate's 25th goal this season, and it kept him on top of the league's marksmen.

In Chicago Saturday afternoon Montreal went right after the Rangers as the Hawks ran the score to 6-0 before New York got its only goal.

Ted Lindsay, Ron Murphy, Elmer Vasko, Glen Skov, Earl Balfour, Jack Evans and Eric Nesterenko were the Hawk marksmen, Glen Hall getting the New York's goal.

Towering Eddie Litzenberger assisted on three Chicago goals and on their only one Sunday against Montreal. That goal was scored by centre Tod Sloan after the teams had gone through two scoreless periods.

HALL KEPT BUSY

The real star of the evening was Chicago goalie Glen Hall who kicked out 30 Montreal shots, including three from point-blank range by Bernie Geoffrion.

Saturday in Montreal Boston grabbed a 3-1 lead before Jean Beliveau scored twice in the third period to give Habs the tie.

Goalie Don Simmons of Boston made 44 saves during the game. Bruins, Bruins almost let another lead slip away as they went ahead 4-1 before Toronto came on in the third with two goals.

TWO FOR STASIUK

Vic Stasiuk was the Boston hero with two goals, both of them in the first with Toronto's Tim Horton in the penalty box.

George Armstrong scored for Leafs in between Stasiuk's goals and in the third Horton and Ron Stewart scored.

The lean Pennsylvanian credits three colleagues for making him the year's big money winner, but he didn't look that good Sunday as he fired on the final nine of the 72-hole extravaganza.

Wall carded a final nine of 41 while Gene Littler was closing fast. Only a shot booked into the Pacific on the 18th removed Littler from contention.

Littler came to the par five 540-yard hole only one down. With a national television audience looking on he bit his drive, then hooked his second shot into the ocean. The TV producers blacked out before the golfers putted but viewers must have known who would win.

Wall won with a total of 279, after shooting 34-41—75 for the day. Littler and Jimmy Demaret, who started the day in second place, tied for second place with 281 and $2,150 apiece.

Wall won $4,000 for the individual pro and $2,000 for low pro-amateur score — $2,000 was national amateur champ Charles Coe. Littler added $1,200 to his haul as he and Art Anderson finished third in the pro-am with 259.

The big haul gave Wall $9,910 for three tournaments this year.

But after that of Monday, he indicated he might seek more service before the Palm Springs-Thunderbird invitational starts Thursday.

MONEY FOR CANUCKS

Gerry Magee of Toronto was four over par with 76 Sunday for a 283 total. George Knudson, Toronto, ran into more trouble than he could handle and took an 80 for 302.

Moe Norman of Kitchener had the same card and the same score. Each Canadian received $100.

Al Balding of Toronto and Stan Leonard failed to survive the cut-off Saturday.

Finishing behind Littler and Demaret were Bob Rosburg and Cardinals to Put Faith In Rookies

NEW YORK (AP)—St. Louis Cardinals apparently are going to leave it to eager beavers in their 1959 bid to claw their way out of the second division.

Rookies will constitute the greater portion of their roster when the Redbirds line up before their new manager, Solly Hemus, for spring training next month. In addition, at least a half dozen fledglings will get thorough tests. Only the matter of bookkeeping and the 40 - player limit keep their names from being on the parent club roster.

Best of the new pitchers may be Ernie Fazoglio, 23, Nelson Chittum, 25, and Marshall Bridges, 27. All are righthanders. Others rated a fair chance to stick are righthanders Bob Blaylock, 24, and Joe Ricketts, 25, and southpaws Ray Luebke, 23 and Bill Smith, 24.

Broglio was acquired by the Cards in a cost-season trade with the San Francisco Giants. In 1958, after copping eight out of nine decisions with Phoenix in the Pacific Coast League, he was switched to Toronto of the International League where he posted a 9-3 record.

Jim Schaffer, a 22-year-old catcher who hit .314 with 19 homers and 87 RBIs at Winnipeg, probably needs more experience.

Injured Star Will Go To Olympics

TORONTO (CP) — Jack McMaster, 20-year-old hockey player confined to hospital with partial paralysis of his legs, says he is going to the winter Olympics in 1960 in one capacity or another.

"It'd hate to think that one," said the left-winger of Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen. Canada's representatives at the Olympics at Squaw Valley, Calif.

McMaster suffered complete paralysis as a result of a freak fall into the boards in a game at Sudbury Dec. 5. He regained the use of his arms overnight. In two operations here pieces of crushed vertebrae were removed from his spin, a piece of hip bone was grafted onto the seventh vertebrae and the sixth and seventh vertebrae were grafted together.

He now has regained feeling in all his limbs and partial use of his legs.

He said Saturday he does not know whether he will be able to play in the Olympics but he will be there in some capacity.

Toronto Gets Grey Cup Final East-West All-Star Game Out

By AL VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Toronto will be the site of the 1959 Grey Cup final, but it still isn't decided the classic will be played there in the 33,000-seat Canadian National Exhibition stadium or the 27,000-seat Varsity Stadium. It appears the CNE has the edge.

This and a decision to abandon the annual East-West all-star game were among the top matters settled during the closed meetings of the Canadian Football League which wound up here Sunday.

But for the football fans little new came out of the four-day meeting which included sessions by the Big Four and the Western Interprovincial Football Union now controlled by the CFL.

Playing rule changes were left to a committee of six—three each from east and west—which will meet in Toronto Feb. 7-8 to discuss various recommendations.

IMPORTS UNCHANGED

The number of imports allowed each club was left unchanged at 12 as were the changes a team can make up to Dec. 15—seven. The number of players a team can dress for each league and playoff game and for the Grey Cup will be 28, unchanged from 1958. British rugger players will be classed as imports for football-playing purposes — leaving players with Canadian citizenship papers as the only non-imports. The annual proposal for an interlocking schedule between the Big Four and WIFU also was sidetracked for at least another year.

About the only major changes made—and these affect the clubs more than fans—were that each club's negotiation list has been increased to 15 from 12, with the clubs having to submit the names of at least six players for its list by Dec. 1, and that a club may carry an unlimited roster up to Aug. 15, when it must be reduced to 50, with further reductions to 42 by Sept. 1 and to 38 by Sept. 15. Last year, the final figure was 26.

Under a new ruling, a player suspended by a club will remain on that team's roster, but a player transferred by Commissioner G. Sydney Halter may be replaced.

MONTREAL BID WEAK

Montreal was the only other city to bid for the 1959 Grey Cup final — to be played Saturday, Nov. 28—but indications were that its delegates did not challenge the Toronto offers too strongly.

Bob Gillies of Regina, western secretary and newly-appointed CFL treasurer, said the club submitted a rental fee of $25,000 for the game, compared with the $30,000 paid to Vancouver's Empire Stadium last year. Officials of Varsity Stadium, scene of the national final for many years, have not yet established a rental figure.

Decision to abandon the weather - jinxed, early-December Shrine game came from William A. Johnston, representing the Shrine, who said in an interview Sunday the Shriners had decided not to continue sponsorship of the game at that late date. The Shriners proposed a mid-season game.

"After experiencing bad weather the last four years," Johnston said, "we feel in fairness to the public that the Shrine cannot ask for the fans' further support for a game that is played so late in the year."

McFarlands Rule Roost; Tie Dunlops, Defeat Chevies

'Lammy' Bangs in Tying Goal With 25 Seconds Remaining In Spine Thriller at Whitby

The high-speed McFarlands, following a five-points weekend, are now looking down at the Eastern Senior "A" League pace for the first time this season.

By virtue of triumphs over the Kingston Merchants and Cornwall Chevies and a spine-tingling tie with the Whitby Dunlops, the Hamen hold a two-point lead over the world champions.

The 5-1 victory over the Chevies yesterday, anti-climactic after the sensational three-all tie in Whitby Saturday night, extended the Hildebranders unbeaten string to ten. They have won 20 of their last 23 starts, tying four.

"Lammy" Lamirande earned the key to the city Saturday night when he fired the goal that snatched a three-all tie from almost certain defeat in the dying seconds of the game. It came in a six-man power play during the familiar goalie-out-of-the-net strategy.

BELLEVILLE 3 WHITBY 3

WHITBY (Staff) — Jean-Paul Lamirande's tying goal with Gordie Bell on the bench in favor of an extra attacker at 19.35 of the third period climaxed a sensational "battle of the champions" here Saturday night.

A complete sellout crowd roared Heidi Hockey as for two and a half periods it appeared that Ike Hildebrand's Cinderman crew would register their first victory on Whitby ice in two years.

They grabbed a 2-0 lead in the opening minutes with a pair of power-play goals. Whitby launched an all-out attack from this point on and finally cut the deficit to one goal with the only marker of the middle period.

Gordie Bell, who turned in probably his top performance since the Allan Cup days'down last spring, thwarted the Dunlops' scoring bids time and time again until midway through the final twenty minutes to take a final twenty minutes. The Dunnies struck hard and fast for two goals in less than 3 minutes to take a 3-2 lead and move the way for the Frank Merrivell finish.

Coach Ike Hildebrand made his move with 68 seconds remaining in the game. Gordie Bell skated to the bench and Ike threw on Smrke, Brown, Graham and Payette with Lamirande and Bradley noit on the points. Whitby cleared the puck to centre ice twice. Finally with 25 seconds remaining Lamirande's shot along the ice from the right point, after two passes from Smrke and Benoit found an opening and nestled in the rigging for a split in points.

While the game was hard fought from the first whistle, referee Jack Shropshire handed out only six eatables, all in the first period. Al Dewsbury watched the game from the sidelines when at 2.13 of the first he drew a minor for elbowing and talked himself into a misconduct and a game misconduct. They were the Macs' only penalties.

Payette shot wide on a clear breakaway while the Macs were a man shy but when Treen was thumbed for kneeing at 5.59, "Wiener" Brown converted passes from Hildebrand and Bradley to open the scoring. Ted O'Connor was thumbed at 18.46 and while he was off Billy Graham made it 2-0. Assists for a high hat one by Henderson's waving glove from well out at 19.29. Crawford and Jones assisted.

Whitby commanded play all during the second period after Bell netting a goal at 2.25. Fred Etcher, curling across the front of the net, slapped home Bob Hesard's goal-mouth pass after Sinden started the play.

The Dunlops peppered the Mac custodian with a torrid barrage of shots again in the third but he guarded the citadel flawlessly until 17.27. Samolenko intercepted a Graham clearing attempt and Gordie Myles completed the play with Attersley to knot the score at 2-2. Samolenko put the Dunlops in front for the first time at 14.06, whipping the glac into a corner 'iron the faceoff.

Samolenko with a goal and assist and Attersley with two assists were the only two-point men. Other marksmen were Etcher, Treen, Graham and Larsinrade. Benoit, Smrke, Hildebrand, Bradley, Crawford, Jones, Hazzard and Sinden picked up assists.

CORNWALL (Special) — The high-flying McFarlands used the Cornwall Chevies as a stepping-stone to the top perch in the Eastern senior league here yesterday defeating the seaway city club 5-1 to round out a five-points weekend.

The Allan Cup champions, somewhat travel weary after a game in Whitby Saturday night, which ended in a 3-3 tie in the first period, but broke out in two-goal rashes in the second and third periods to register the victory.

However, the Macs were not too tired to hand out a rugged brand of hockey being assessed with 24 penalties minutes handed out by the referee. One of the 24 penalties minutes resulted in a Belleville goal. The loss dropped the Chevies into the league cellar.

Bart Bradley fired the Macs' initial scoring two goals and grabbing an assist. Jean Paul Lamiham, Keith MacDonald and Floyd Smrke each were the other Mac snipers. Paul Payette had two assists, Benoit, Dewsbury, MacDonald, Lamirande, Hildebrand and Jones getting singles.

Muir put the Chevies ahead at 3.46 when he tipped in a long shot from Gerry Service. Neil Burke set up the play by digging the puck out of the corner. With Bryan Bailey in the penalty box for tripping, Barton Bradley tied the game up for the Macs. Moe Benoit and Al Dewsbury, on the points in the power play, picked up assists. This was all the scoring in the period.

The McFarlands took a 2-1 lead in the second period on Billy Graham and Keith McDonald scored two minutes apart. The first goal was scored as Paul Payette was used as a perfect screen by Graham to pick the far corner of the net. MacDonald scored on a three-way passing play with Jean-Paul Lamirande and Barton Bradley.

Barton Bradley scored the fourth goal for the Belleville club on a passout from playing coach Ike Hildebrand. Keith MacDonald also picked up an assist. Both goals were scored as the result of a five-stitch foot cut. In the third period Davey Jones was ordered off the ice dragging his left leg after being hit by a shot.

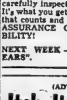
Wings Battle Worst Slump In History

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit Red Wings, champions of the National Hockey League eight times in the last 10 seasons, are battling the worst slump in the club's long history.

"It's so bad that we can't even blame our trouble on bad luck," coach Sid Abel said Sunday night. "We're just lousy—that's how simple it is."

The Wings bowed 4-2 to New York Rangers Sunday. That made it nine straight games without a victory for the once-mighty Detroiters, who have only one win in their last 15 games.



Only one point separates Detroit from the last-placed Toronto Maple Leafs and for the first time in 17 seasons the Red Wings are in danger of not making the Stanley Cup playoffs. Leafs beat the Wings 5-1 Saturday night.

Abel, who succeeded Jimmy Skinner as coach last January, can find no remedy.

"We've tried extra practice, we've tried resting them, we've tried to talk and speed with them —but this one really has me stumped," he said.

Attendance at Olympia Stadium always is good when the Red Wings are home, but now the fans are booing the players and some are publicly criticizing general manager Jack Adams for trading so many players.

SHELL'S OILPRINT ENGINE TEST!

Developed by Shell Research...proved in Canadian commercial motor fleets! Shell's Oilprint Engine Test is now being brought to the public. Another exclusive service offered by your Shell Dealer. It costs you nothing.

LOOK WHAT ONE DROP OF OIL CAN TELL ABOUT YOUR CAR!

Is your cooling system leaking? The Shell Oilprint Engine Test will indicate the presence of water or anti-freeze in your oil. This is important because even a few miles of driving with anti-freeze in the engine oil can cause sticky valve lifters or engine seizure.

Are you wasting fuel? Oil from a car engine that's burning too rich a mixture, either from improper carburetor setting or too much choking, quickly becomes overloaded with carbon. A Shell analyst can detect this condition upon examination of your Shell Oilprint Engine Test Card. Once you correct this condition you'll enjoy better mileage and more power.

Shell's Oilprint Engine Test takes the guesswork out of oil drain periods. A single Oilprint Test will show whether or not your oil needs changing at the time of the test. Tests at regular intervals will help tell you how many miles your car can be run between oil changes.

TAKES LESS OF YOUR TIME THAN AN OIL LEVEL CHECK.

Your Shell station attendant can take an Oilprint Test at the same time that he checks your oil level. He simply lets one drop of oil from your car's dipstick fall on a specially prepared card. The card with your oil sample is then sent in for analysis. The results will be ready for you in five days.

REMEMBER, YOUR OILPRINT ENGINE TEST IS FREE!

Lions Get Randy Duncan

OTTAWA — (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders traded the football-playing rights for starry American quarterback Randy Duncan to Big Ten Conference Lions.

Officials of the Big Four club said Sunday night th. Western Interprovincial Football Union club had agreed in principle to allow Ottawa one of its Canadian college draft choices.

Also part of the agreement was a stipulation that should Duncan — who left Iowa State University to the Rose Bowl Committee's New Year's Day game — agree to join the Lions, the B.C. club would further compensate Riders with either an unstated amount of money or another player. If a player is involved, he likely would be either tackle Urban Henry or end Jerry Janes, imports now with Lions.

Golden Gaels Whip Redmen

KINGSTON (CP) — Queen's University Gaels of the Intercollegiate Union senior hockey series downed the winless McGill Redmen 7-3 Saturday afternoon.

Sirkel officially produced a total of 12 minor penalties, equally divided, while Kopchevich, Club, claims he has set what may be an unofficial world weightlifting record. He says he bolted 405 pounds with a bent arm pullover press during a workout last week.

Knocks off Hull-Ottawa 7-2

Kingston Merchants put together two weekend wins to move ahead of Cornwall into fourth place. They trimmed Cornwall 8-3 Saturday night and blasted Hull-Ottawa Canadiens 7-2 Sunday. The spurt put them to within three points of Hull.

Kingston dumped Cornwall into the cellar in decisive fashion, piling up a six-goal lead before the latter's cagey attack got a scoring rally working in the third period.

Ken Linesman and Don Bellringer each fired two for the winners with singles by Frank Chiarelli, Billy Colvin, Moe Savard and Bud Gagnon. Chet Miskell scored twice for Cornwall with Ray Laplante providing the other goal. At Hull the Kingston club poured it on again this time rapping home four unanswered goals in the opening 20 minutes and three more in the middle period. By the time Hull hit the scoresheet the third period was half over.

Archie Exposes Diet, Boxing Secrets in Book

The world light - heavyweight boxing champion says he is writing a book on his secret diet, another on "how to tax" and an autobiography.

The diet is a regimen Archie learned from an Australian aborigine which has enabled him to pare off 15 pounds in a few days before a fight.

He also has a record album coming up and is going to head a jazz unit.

He will also find time to fight fisherman Yves Durelle of Baie St. Anne, N.B., knocked out by Archie in a sensational bout in Montreal last December.

Youth Anonymous Is More Than Good Factual Report

BY CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—ABC News presents tonight a superb documentary of juvenile delinquency, Youth Anonymous (11:30 p.m. EST) is, specifically, an examination of why Detroit has a declining rate of juvenile delinquency when it is rising nearly everywhere else, though the factors appears to be an organization called Youth Anonymous that uses the general methods of gang leaders anonymous and is headed by an ex-convict named Ernest (Tripi Rumsby.

After viewing this filmed program in advance I believe that as the result of some extraordinary work by producer Robert Northshield and an ABC crew, Youth Anonymous succeeds in being more than a good factual report of a situation in a specific city.

Northshield's cameras roam, listen, probe—and have dramatic result- basic problems that beset many youths. Lack of support, lack of interest, scarcity of adult drawers of poverty.

There is some pretentious commentary by ABC News chief John Daly and reporters Edward P. Morgan, Don Goddard and Robert Fleming.

CBS radio offers a remarkable program tonight with The Business of Crime, a report in which a number of persons, some noted and others anonymous, share in very thin sociological ice. The program (9:05 p.m., EST) avoids sensationalism or sanctimony At is basic thesis that at some of our current manners and morals.

Produced by George Vicas of CBS Unit One, the broadcast is a factual study of commercialized sex as an adjunct of otherwise legitimate business relationships.

Its noted participants are an unpopulist Margaret Mead; D. Harold Greenwald, executive director of the Association for Applied Psychoanalysis; New York City Commissioner of Correction Anna Kross; and Rev. Benjamin Masse, associate editor of the national Roman Catholic weekly, America.

The anonymous participant are call girls, procurers, semi-legitimate con men of the business world and legitimate business men whom Vicas and his staff succeeded in interviewing on tape.

Dutchmen Dump Greyhounds Maroons Shade Bulldogs 5-4

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Leadership of the OHA-NOHA Senior A race changed twice on the weekend and ended up back where it started.

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen grabbed it briefly when they bumped Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds 6-1 Saturday night to wind up their latest northern tour with three straight wins.

But Chatham Maroons reversed things less than 24 hours later with a thrilling 5-4 overtime victory over Windsor Bulldogs before 3,721 fans, best Windsor crowd of the season.

HITS EMPTY NET

Kitchener's Bill Wylie slapped the puck into the empty net on the following Tubs' departure, ruining the hopes of 3,282 fans.

Ted Maki, Ken Laufman, Bill Flick, Dick Mattiussi and Bill Hicks fired the earlier Kitch. over goals. Soo scorers were Jim McBurney, John Lumley, Laurie Peterson and Don McLean.

At Windsor the Bulldogs, who are tied for fourth with the Soo, gave Chatham a rough time when they came roaring from behind to bang home three goals in the final five minutes of the third period.

Until then it had looked like a sure thing for Chatham which had some sensational goaltending from Al Bamett, a Senior B veteran brought up from Walkerburg to substitute for injured Don Head. He handled 32 Windsor shots.

HAD 4-1 LEAD

Chatham was held to a 1-1 tie in the first period but leaped in the only two goals in the second. Another in the third gave them a 4-1 lead until Windsor came to life and spurred things.

Ron Ingram's goal in the second goal to give Chatham the edge. The rest of the Chatham scoring was handled by Danny Blair, who picked up two goals, and Cooper Lecky. Bob Brown and Erwin-Grosse were the big men for Windsor. Brown collected three goals and an assist and Grosse assisted all four. Len Speck bagged the other goal.

Quebec Hockey

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

One game ended in a scoreless draw, the other was declared no contest after the referee got hit by an irate fans' rubber. That sums up Sunday's Quebec Hockey League action.

The league - leading Montreal Royals and Quebec Aces played to a 0-0 overtime tie in Quebec City. The deadlock advanced the Aces into second place, 11 points behind the Royals. Trailing Quebec by a single point are Trois-Rivieres Lions whose game at Chicoutimi with the tail - end Sagueneens was ruled out after the second period because of an injury to referee Alex Barilko.

The ref lost his balance after being hit by a flying rubber and fell to the ice, striking his head. After first aid treatment, Barilko said he couldn't continue and league president Cyrou Higgins declared the game no contest. The Sagueneens were leading 6-1 at the time.

The game will be replayed at a later date.

AT THE PARK — Sara Shane and John Cassavetes star with Raymond Burr in "Affair In Havana", at the Park Theatre today and Tuesday only. On the same program is Technicolor "Wind Across The Everglades" starring Burl Ives, Christopher Plummer, Gypsy Rose Lee and many other fine, first - run attractions are first Belleville showings.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Take time to have long talks with associates, and competitors also, so that you have a clear picture of conditions today. Many new ideas will be voiced and there will be a real meeting of minds which will bring about progress.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — A day for laboring with vim and enthusiasm, for much can be accomplished and the powers of the planets is with you. Both mind and hands are swift, so be sure to bring your capabilities to attention of higher ups.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Home problems should be the first duty on the agenda today. Use all free time bringing harmony higher with ties, putting real estate in good order, condition, attending to all practical affairs in that vital sphere of your existence.

If your child is born today — The wonderful child born today will have many, many talents and gifts, but it is up to you to see that the energies and capabilities are properly guided to bring about a wonderful career as evidenced in this chart. If you do not teach to finish what is once begun, however, the whole life may be ruined. Give the finest college education possible, and all accredited institutions for ideal results.

Union Ratifies 3-Year Contract With Company

CHICAGO (AP)—Most of the International Harvester Company plants resume operations today, marking the end of a strike of 61 days by some 37,000 United Auto Workers union members against the big farm implement firm.

The union's rank-and-file members ratified a new three-year contract during the weekend. Seymour Kahne, international representative of the UAW's harvester department, said the voting by members, of 33 union locals showed about 90 per cent favored acceptance of the contract.

Thirty UAW locals voted to accept the new pact and three rejected. The 33 union members of the East Moline, Ill., local rejected the pact bit agreed to return to work if it was approved by a majority of members. Two locals elsewhere will remain on strike.

ANNUAL INCREASES

The new three-year contract calls for annual pay increases of six cents an hour or 2½ per cent, whichever is greater. The average wage under the old contract was $2.35 an hour. New fringe benefits include a fourth week of vacation for workers with 25 years or more of service.

In Hamilton, Ont., about 70 workers laid off by International Harvester will get their jobs back as a result of the new contract. There was no vote in Hamilton, International Harvester's 1,000-ber of the United Steel Workers and are at the mid-way point of a two-year contract.

FIONEER ROUTE

Lake Champlain on the Quebec-U.S. border was a main water route in pioneer days.

TWEED

St. James' Anglican W.A. Elects Officers

TWEED — The annual meeting and election of officers of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. James' Anglican Church took place on January 15th, and was held at the rectory.

After the opening with a hymn and prayer, the roll was called and each of the members responded with a verse of Scripture containing the word 'new.' Next month verses with the word spirit will be chosen.

The president, Mrs. George Owens, called for the reading of the minutes of the last meeting and a very comprehensive year-end report was also given by the secretary, Miss Ana Thompson.

Mrs. Ernest Heidman, trasurer, followed with her report which showed a balance on hand to start the coming year.

Other reports were given by Mrs. A. Baker, Dorcas secretary; Mrs. H. Leitch, flower fund; Mrs. A. Dickenson, Little Helpers; Mrs. J. J. Luffman, Living Message, she also reported on the work of the Altar Guild.

After the reports were concluded, president, Mrs. G. Owens thanked the members for their co-operation throughout the year, and led the gathering in prayer, remembering particularly two valued members who had passed away during the year. A moment was given to silent prayer in tribute to their memory.

This closed the first part of the annual meeting. Mrs. Owens vacated the chair and called on the rector, the Rev. L. E. Hawkes, to conduct the election of officers, with the following results:

OFFICERS ELECTED

President, Mrs. George Owens; secretary, Mrs. Ana Thompson; treasurer, Mrs. Ernest Heidman; "Little Helpers", Mrs. A. Dickenson; "Dorcas", Mrs. A. Baker; "Living Message," Mrs. J. J. Luffman; educational, Mrs. T. H. Jarrett; prayer partner, Mrs. S. Jones; flower fund, Mrs. H. Leich; Altar Guild; Mrs. N. Barker and Mrs. J. J. Luffman, all members to assist in turns.

The election of a second delegate to the Diocesan annual meeting was left until a later date, and the president is automatically a delegate.

The evening's program, somewhat curtailed, followed, and included a resume of the life of Joseph Scriven, writer of some of the best known hymns, given by Mrs. L. E. Hawkes. Mrs. Hawkes chose the one of these which is perhaps the most widely used by all faiths of the Christian world, "What A Friend We Have In Jesus," and asked Mrs. Jarrett to read it. A second interesting reading was given by Mrs. A. Dickenson.

Arrangements for the World Day of Prayer, which this year is to be held in St. James' Anglican Church, were discussed and the day prepared for.

NEW MEMBERS

Two new members, Miss Randall and Mrs. Earl Thompson, were officially welcomed to the W.A., introductions having been made earlier as the members arrived.

Refreshments were served, the hostesses being Mrs. L. E. Hawkes, Mrs. Leslie Brady and Mrs. Albert Baker.

— A word of thanks is given to those who drove their cars to bring all the ladies through the inclement weather to this important meeting, the Rev. L. F. Hawkes, Miss Ana Thompson, Mr. Fred Mitchell, Mr. Samuel Jones and Mr. George Owens.

Pearson Attacks Jobless Policy in Long Speech

Delinquents Said Senators Of Tomorrow

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — An earnest young man circulated an "open letter" in the Indiana General Assembly Monday urging creation of a governor's youth council to help teen-agers.

He seemed puzzled by the resulting hilarity.

The letter's punch line:

"The juvenile delinquent of today is the senator or representative of tomorrow."

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker says the government will continue its policies of spending and lending to meet the "serious" unemployment problem.

He told the Commons Monday night this will be done, though he said economists haven't been able to solve the problem of putting people into idle economy without inflation.

But he gave the hopeful prediction that "we are on the way out" of the unemployment.

Mr. Diefenbaker was replying to a strongly-worded charge by Opposition Leader Pearson of government "bumbling and fumbling" with inflation, recession and unemployment.

BENEFITS REDUCED

Mr. Pearson said inflation in the last year sliced nearly $2 from the value of the $67 monthly increase in old age pension put through by the Progressive Conservative government in 1957.

He wound up a marathon 140-minute attack with a non-confidence motion accusing the government of "lamentable indecision" and of failure to meet economic issues including unemployment.

CCF House Leader Hazen Argue charged the government with ignoring the unemployment to curb unemployment and inflation.

He presented another non-confidence motion blaming "contradictory and confusing" policies of the government on an absence of social and economic planning, and saying the government has not given agriculture a fair share of the national income.

DEBATE TO CONTINUE

Those two motions will form the basis of the Liberal opposition speech debate which continues today.

Mr. Diefenbaker's 100-minute speech in reply to Mr. Pearson contained little of substance to back his contention that last year "Canadians worked more, saved more, spent more and saved more than in any comparable year in the history of this country."

He repeatedly accused Mr. Pearson of being a "professional gloomster trying to frighten Canadians for political purposes."

And he returned again and again to the charge that current economic problems are an inheritance from the former Liberal administration. In a statement which Mr. Pearson termed a "deceptive device" and "quite worthless" after 18 months of Progressive Conservative government.

PRIME RESPONSIBILITY

But a key section of the prime minister's speech was his declaration that the government's first responsibility is to keep people employed, and that it would continue past policies of extending unemployment insurance payments.

Peterborough Man Is Charged After Shot Fired

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Francis Eugene Lafave, 46, today was remanded to the Ontario Hospital, Kingston, for observation for a period of not more than 60 days.

Four police cruisers with 10 men armed with gas bombs converged on Lafave's apartment Saturday after a shot was fired. The apartment was empty but Lafave was arrested later.

His wife, Doris, and son, Jeff, told police that he called them into the living room Saturday afternoon.

They said a shot missed Mrs. Lafave and left a bullet-hole hole in the wall. They ran out of the house and took shelter at a neighbor's.

Today's Chuckle

Door-to-door salesman to housewife: "I'd like to show you a little item your neighbors said you couldn't afford."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — Skies are clear or partly cloudy in Ontario and temperatures range between zero and 10.

A belt of snowfalls is expected to reach the northern shore of Lake Erie by about noon today and the northern shore of Lake Ontario before evening. Widespread snowfalls are covering southern and central Ontario by Wednesday morning, when a serious storm centre is expected to move up the Ohio Valley. Milder air will raise temperatures close to freezing in southern Ontario today and Wednesday. In the Lower Lakes region the snow could be mixed with rain or freezing rain early Wednesday, creating hazardous road conditions.

DISAPPOINTED MIKOYAN FLIES HOME TO MOSCOW

No Progress Made On Trade, Berlin

Before boarding a train for New York, where he will take a plane this afternoon, Mikoyan said he regretted:

"Please convey to the population of Washington and to all the people I met in the United States in gratitude for their very warm reception and hospitality and their desire for peace and friendship with the Soviet Union. And when I arrive in my country I will convey to high people all the best wishes and the desire for peace of the American people."

Mikoyan left his private car on a train which left Washington at 9:47 a.m. EST. He arrived here 47 days ago.

Mikoyan evidently was disappointed that he failed to budge Eisenhower administration leaders from their restrictions on Soviet trade and their policy of standing firm against further Communist gains. He charged that the cold war still is on in the state department.

State department officials were disappointed that the Soviet visitor came up with no concessions in Soviet policy on Berlin and West German access.

Mikoyan had his own explanation of that as he made his final call on Secretary of State Herter's basay reception Monday night.

"We should not make concessions if no one else is making any concessions!" he asked a questioning reporter. "Everybody is talking about concessions but no one is making them."

Addressing the National Press Club, Mikoyan said he had found no new ways to break the deadlock.

NATO Scientists Say Reds Capable Of Large-Scale Germ Warfare

WASHINGTON (AP)—Could a big enough germ or virus attack wipe out the population of New York City—or even annihilate all the world's inhabitants? Can continent?

Could plague germs spread by an enemy touch off a nationwide epidemic?

Could enemy planes or saboteurs destroy crops and livestock, reducing the land to starvation?

The truth about gas and germ warfare is shrouded in secrecy and confusion.

Last May the North Atlantic Treaty Organization released to an official report: "The Russians are capable of waging biological (germs) and chemical warfare on a large scale."

A written question was submitted to the Pentagon asking if the U.S. has enough biological warfare weapons now to combat the enemy if they used them first. After 25 days came back the reply: "The chemical corps has no capability in biological warfare."

In such an atmosphere of secrecy, little wonder that the most lurid distortions and conflicting statements?

Item—Dr. Brock Chisholm, former director - general of the United Nations World Health Organization, says scientists have discovered a substance so deadly that seven pounds of it would be enough to kill all the people in the world.

Item—Army pamphlet No. 8-12 entitled What You Should Know About Biological Warfare: "One kind of biological warfare could be used to kill a few people in a large area or city. Talk of one million tons of material—killing millions is silly."

Item — The British Medical Journal says that the production of nerve gas on the skin will kill within 30 minutes. One drop in the eye or a tiny amount inhaled as vapor kills in a few minutes.

Item — Major - General commanding officer at the Edgewood Arsenal, Md., centre where nerve gas is manufactured: Nerve gas has not the superpowerful attributes that some writers would have you believe. One drop on the skin will not kill in 30 minutes, and one quart jar will not kill every living thing in a city block.

What, then, are you supposed to believe in all this welter of conflicting statements?

Defective Gas Valve Boxes Found as Pipelines Checked

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Fuel Board says its inspectors found 12 defective gas pipeline valve boxes in the neighborhood of a Nov. 5 explosion at Paterno, Ont., that killed a woman and her child.

The jury at a coroner's inquest into the deaths of Mrs. Roy Skinner, 34, and her son, Gregory, two months, ruled there was negligence by the United Suburban Gas Company Limited of Hamilton, owners of the line, and the Gas Machinery Company of Canada Limited, the contractor who built it. Evidence at the three-day inquest had concerned Dec. 11 was that the explosion resulted when a substandard valve collapsed.

The jury also recommended the line inspected by more fuel board and the Ontario government followed through by ordering it be put immediately.

Fuel board chairman K. R. Crozier said Monday his engineers had gone over the entire 50 miles of pipeline owned by United Suburban. This included the inspection of 733 valve boxes, 25 of which were uncovered and found acceptable. An additional 116 also were pronounced satisfactory.

But the remaining 82 boxes were questioned and Mr. Crozier said the company had two days to have them uncovered—aside from the 12 known defective ones—were up for specification. If proof isn't shown, he added, the 80 boxes left also will be uncovered and improvements promptly ordered.

In his original inspection directive, Mines Minister Spooner, who has since left the post for another one in the cabinet, instructed the fuel board to check all Ontario gas that had been put down since Jan. 1, 1957.

Mr. Crozier said about one-third of the valve boxes between Port Hope and Brockville had been examined and about 20 had been found to require corrective one type or another. These were also owned by the Lakeland Natural Gas Company.

Next week, the experts will begin checking the Dawn Gas and Fuel Company in the Hamilton district where another explosion occurred Oct. 16. After that the inspection teams will move to Brantford and from there check the rest of southwestern Ontario.

Talks Between Hydro, Union Approaching Critical Stage

TORONTO (CP) — Talks between Ontario Hydro and its employees' union were expected to be in a critical stage today with the union's executive reported ready to set a strike deadline Wednesday.

Negotiating groups met in Labor Minister Daley's office Monday but they were believed to have limited their discussions to one of the issues in the dispute.

Daley's meeting was expected to tackle the prime topics of wages, shorter hours for salaried workers and a ban on contracting out work which could be handled by Hydro staff.

Observers at Queen's Park say it is unlikely the Ontario cabinet would allow the dispute to go to a strike deadline. Daley is believed to have been given a free hand in resolving the remaining issues.

The union's latest demand is for a 5½-per-cent increase in the first year of a two-year contract with an unspecified increase in the second.

Hydro has offered 1½ per cent in each year of a two-year agreement with a guarantee to continue the three per cent cost of living increase now paid until April.

Average wage is $2.18 hourly.

Session Could Be Final One Before Election

LONDON (Reuters)—Parliament reassembled today with what could be its final session before a general election.

The Commons has only a light program of legislation before it. The main interest is when Prime Minister Macmillan will seek a new mandate from the people.

He is not required to call an election until May, 1960, when the Conservatives' five-year term of office expires, but most political observers think the vote will be in the next 10 months.

Unemployment figures are expected to present a big test for Macmillan's decision. The number of jobless totals more than 600,000 and there is speculation that if there is no drop in the next few months the prime minister may hold off until fall before calling an election.

DISSIDENCE IN PARTY

But if there is a sudden upturn in employment, observers say, he may call an election for May.

Latest public opinion polls show the Conservative and opposition Labor Party running neck and neck. If the elections were held tomorrow, the polls indicate, the result would be a hung parliament.

But political commentators on newspapers which support the government say that if unemployment rises from its present 2½ per cent to five per cent of the employed population, it would give Labor a victory.

Unemployment is the sharp in the prestige the government gained from the recent big expansion in Britain's economic strength. The upsurge enabled Macmillan to end a long period of austerity and take the brakes off domestic spending.

The unemployment affects particularly Wales, northwestern England, Scotland and Northern Ireland.

Jobs for 7,188 Men Provided Under Program

TORONTO (CP)—Municipal Affairs Minister Warrender said Monday 7,188 jobs for winter relief have been provided in Ontario so far under the federal - provincial program for boosting winter employment.

He issued a report showing 126 municipalities and conservation authorities have won approval for projects worth $4,183,537. Total cost of the employment projects was $19,811,025.

The program, terminating April 30, provides that Ottawa is to pay half and Ontario 25 per cent of wages in special municipal works projects for unemployed workers.

As of Jan. 16, a total of 377 projects had been approved, with applications coming from 126 municipalities, 10 counties, 51 townships and 11 conservation authorities.

The greatest would provide 447,842 man-days of work at a labor cost of $2,239,210. Of that cost $5,591,274 fell within the program's five-month period, $2,795,637 is to be met by the federal government and $1,397,842 by the provincial government.

Chrysler Strike Deadline Nears

WINDSOR (CP) — Marathon talks between Chrysler of Canada and the United Auto Workers CLC continued early today with a strike deadline at 3 p.m. EST Wednesday.

There was no word on progress of the talks but Alvy Kennedy, UAW publicity director, said they would probably continue until a strike deadline is reached.

The session which began at 8 a.m. Monday, was reported to be "amiable".

Some 3,300 workers at the main Chrysler plant in Windsor and Chatham are involved in the dispute. The union says it is seeking a "substantial wage increase" on a two-year agreement with improved pension and supplementary employment provisions.

Chrysler wants a three-year agreement and says the most the UAW has signed in recent weeks with General Motors of Canada and Ford of Canada.

COURT RULES QUEEN ENTITLED TO HER PRIVACY

Stops Use of Story On Life at Windsor

LONDON (Reuter)—The London high court decided today that Queen Elizabeth is entitled to privacy in her home and stopped a series of newspaper articles written by a former palace employee.

If man's home's is his castle, the court said, it is said then the Queen's castle is her home and she should enjoy as much privacy as the ordinary citizen.

The case before the court concerned an article about the Queen at Windsor Castle where the Royal Family spends many of their weekends.

The article appeared in the Sunday Pictorial Jan. 11, under the name of William Ellis, 51, former superintendent at the castle. It was billed as the first of a series.

ELLIS AGREED NO MORE

The case ended after a brief 15-minute hearing today when Ellis, through his lawyer, agreed not to write anything further on the subject.

Ellis, who retired in November, 1957, after 14 years of service at Windsor, had signed an agreement not to publish anything about the Royal Family when he left his post, the court was told.

Attorney-General Sir Reginald Manningham-Buller told the judge, Mr. Justice Havers, that the article which appeared under the name of Ellis was a "gross breach" of Ellis' resignation agreement.

HE BROKE PROMISE

"In my submission," he said, "Mr. Ellis has broken his given word and that if he was paid he broke it for money."

Manningham-Buller said Ellis undertook in the agreement not

Between November and December of 1957, the jobless jumped by 131,000 from 393,000 to 524,000.

The latest figure is 150,000 below the post-war high of 590,000 in March of last year.

Winter Much Tidier in West But Keeps Making Mess in East

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winter tidied up its conduct in the western provinces Monday but kept making a mess of some parts of the east.

Temperatures readings department was rapidly going broke trying to keep ahead of the weather. There was anything anticipated when the city budget was brought down last year, with $600,000 for falling Monday afternoon just as the streets were beginning to get through clearing away 15 inches of the stuff.

Fifteen more inches of snow fell at Ottawa Monday and a Hull Que., man died of a heart attack after shovelling snow.

Eight inches of snow were on Montreal streets Monday after a Monday night and the northern New Brunswick city had the coldest Maritimes temperature—16 degrees.

In the Magdalen Islands, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, a woman who had just given birth to a baby was driven to hospital in a snowmobile through 10-foot drifts. In Nova Scotia, the threat of more flood from unseasonably high temperatures at Truro and Windsor, Nfld., ended when the mercury dropped.

Snow fell on Toronto Monday night to cause rush-hour traffic a dozen points. Forty cars wound up in the same pileup on the Queen Elizabeth Way west of the city and two motorists were taken to hospital. At Fort Erie, Ont., where a freak blizzard filled in streets with two feet of snow early Sunday, the work of clearing sidewards went ahead.

There was 12 inches of snow in northern Manitoba and some places in the province.

It was cold in Saskatchewan and Alberta a few hours after sightfall. At Saskatoon it fell to low zero at Dafoe, Sask. An inch of rain down at Fort McMurray and a whopping 19 inches at Prince Albert, Sask. It's mostly clear and the snow blanket ranged from five inches in the south to as much as 15 inches north of Edmonton where the temperature stood at seven below.

The temperature ran between 32 and 48 at Vancouver.

Military Trials Face Strikers In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — The Argentine government, in its toughest action so far to break a nationwide general strike, today ordered all Buenos Aires transport workers to report for work or face military courts.

The trolley, bus and subway operators were given to the army as the strike already showed signs of collapsing. It began Sunday under the leadership of Communists and Peronists loyal to D. Peron and Communists.

One government official pointed out that the strike already had failed in one objective: To force President Arturo Frondizi to cancel a two-week state visit to the United States. This failure apparently led to the order of continued defiance of the government by 113 unions, the official said.

Rotary Members Enjoy Color Films of Japan

Rotary Club members must be getting the feeling that their presence elsewhere than in Belleville would be a matter of state of affairs. For the second week in a row club members were left with nothing to do after an early closing by-law calling for gasoline retail outlets to close at seven o'clock in the evening and also to be closed on Sunday.

Stations would be closed from seven p.m. to seven a.m. on Saturday night and seven o'clock to seven a.m. the following Monday.

This will not mean however that motorists will be unable to purchase gasoline after hours. Under the by-law special permits will be provided to allow purchases after the hours set. Belleville gas stations to remain open evenings and on Sunday if they wish on a rotating basis.

Also under provisions of the by-law new car dealership having all night mechanics and operating towing services will be permitted to remain open 24 hours per day.

Ernest Gunnett, Canniffon Road service station operator, spoke against the by-law claiming the by-law would be unenforcement among service station personnel and stations would be forced to allow men to go.

He said that 16 of 32 service stations operating in the city were opposed to the by-law. On Tuesday, July 15, a petition signed the petition in favor of the by-law but had changed their minds.

FAVORS CLOSING

Seeking for those in favor of the closing by-law, Mr. Angus Hall said that the vast majority of service station operators in the city.

He said he was a firm believer in free enterprise and noted that the by-law was not unfair unfairly as free enterprise the wishes of the majority must be respected.

Following a lengthy illness, Frank W. Rathman, B.A., former editor of the Ontario Intelligencer and a lifelong and highly respected resident of Belleville, died in Kingston early this Tuesday morning.

He had been in the big steep city for several months.

Mr. Rathman was born in this city 74 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Claus Rathman. He received his early education in the public and high school of this city, he entered Albert College, graduating with honors, and then he entered Victoria University in Toronto, where he graduated with a B.A. degree, taking honors in English.

Mr. Rathman then decided on a journalistic career and joined the staff of the Intelligencer and through the various stages of cub reporter, city work and the like, he became the editor of the Ontario Intelligencer and served in that capacity until his retirement in 1947. He was an excellent newsman, a factual writer and a strong sense of justice and a kind and considerate gentleman. Mr. Rathman was a kind friend and enjoyed a wide circle of personal friends, who will sincerely regret his death.

He was a member of Bridge Street United Church, and fraternally was a life member of The Belleville Lodge, No. 123, A.F. & A.M., and a past member of Moira Chapter No. 7 R.A.M. GOVERNMENT ments, loans of millions of dollars for housing, and expenditures on public works.

Mr. Pearson said the speech from the throne outlining government legislation had contained barely a mention of the state of the economy.

The chairman, Mr. Diefenbaker to interrupt the throne speech debate and discuss the state of unemployment before the House.

Mr. Diefenbaker replied that he expected Mr. Pearson's request was to use such an occasion "to make political capital in the hearts of the Canadian public."

CONTINUES BARRAGE

Mr. Pearson said confidence in the government's financial credit had fallen and if strong action was not taken soon it was taken "we may very well reach a very disastrous situation."

He said there was an early convening of a small, special Commons committee to give a "searching examination" to government air defence policy, particularly the $1,000,000,000 air defence system, whether to order into production the CF-105 Arrow interceptor.

Dealing with the economy, Mr. Diefenbaker said "energetic action" by the government to get better situation than had been forecast was needed to avert trade department economists.

WAGES ROSE

Wages and salaries had risen 10 per cent comparable with a forecast decline of 1.1 per cent, while dividends rose 11 per cent, though the forecast had been for a rise of only three per cent. And while the gross product was for a 13-per-cent rise in new construction housing, the actual gain had been 23.7 per cent.

Disposable personal income rose 6 per cent, but after-tax agricultural cash income by eight per cent and consumer spending by four per cent.

The recession in Canada had come before it hit the United States. Yet Canadian industrial production had fallen through July only by only seven per cent—compared with a 13-per-cent drop in the U.S.

Mr. Argue said inflation is eroding the purchasing power of old age pensions, family allowances and family savings.

Tight money and high interest rates of the Liberal government, which had been criticized by the Conservatives, now were tighter and higher.

Three Hamilton Workmen Killed By Gas Fumes

HAMILTON (CP) — Three workmen were pulled dead from a gas-filled manhole Monday, two of them apparent victims of a rescue attempt which failed.

The men, employees of the Dominion Foundries and Steel Company, were John G. Venator, 53, Raymond Mahy, 30, and Edward Smith, 32.

A foreman discovered the bodies in a street manhole just outside the Dofasco plant where the men were purging a gas line used to carry coke-manufactured gas between two company plants.

Company officials said it is believed that Smith, who first was overcome by the fumes and the others went down into the manhole to rescue him. They were probably felled before they could pull their companion out or call for help.

Mahy is survived by his wife and daughter Kathy, and Venator leaves a wife and 14-month-old son. Venator is survived by his wife.

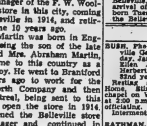
the United States that the American people, including business men, are not "soft on the cold war" and want peace in the world.

Replying to question, he also predicted better relations with Truman.

Mikoyan said he had been told that Truman "warns against my meetings with American businessmen." Truman, he said, seems to fear better relations between the United States and the Soviet Union "because it was under his administration that relations with our government worsened."



"It is a good thing," Mikoyan said, "that he is not now in office."

He also took the occasion to argue that Germany must be disarming of West Germany with rocking and modern weapons.

Asked what would happen if West Berlin were blockaded and the Western powers tried to get through, he hesitated a moment and then said: "Force meets force with force, you know."

U.S. officials credited Mikoyan with having created a new image of Soviet leadership in the American mind, that of an image of a friendly, warm man interested in all aspects of American life and talking to all kinds of people.

They also credited him with having made many business men that Russia offers an undeveloped market for American products.

Hear Municipal Board Plans To Oppose Private Bill to Retain 14-Alderman Council

Possibility that the Ontario Municipal Board may oppose the wishes of the Belleville electors in their decision to retain a fourteen alderman council was made known to city council last night.

Alderman Robert Temple said that it had come to his attention that the Board would oppose the city's application to the Private Bills Committee to set aside a previous vote of the people who a year ago approved an eight alderman council.

Ald. Temple asked that a strong deputation from the city be in attendance when the hearing for the city's application to the Private Bills Committee is held some time in February.

City Clerk Mrs. Anne Haggerty said she had received the information from the deputy minister of the Municipal Affairs Department, who advised her that the municipal board would oppose the city's application to set aside the previous vote of the people.

City Will Supply Free Sand for Icy Sidewalks

Slippery street and sidewalk conditions as result of heavy snow and ice conditions, were up for discussion at city council last night.

The discussion was touched off originally by local resident George DeVuyst who asked if it was not possible for sand to be available to help keep pedestrians on their feet.

Later in the meeting Alderman Robert Temple asked if salt could not be added to sand applied to sidewalks and streets to assist in cutting the ice which was making conditions slippery.

He was told by City Manager Drury Denyes that already sand combined about 40 per cent salt, 'mixed' in just for this purpose.

Ard Alderman William Argue wanted to know how residents went about getting sand from the city if they wished to sand their own sidewalks. He was told that a call to the public works department would result in free delivery of sand if residents provided their own containers at their home.

to publish anything about his engagement in the newspaper service.

The attorney-general then referred to the issue of the Sunday Pictorial Jan. 19 which, he said, carried the following front-page headline: "Girl Found Dead in Car" and then a line or two above by the man who ran her weekend love."

Manningham-Buller said:

I repeat that the publication of these proceedings are not brought on account of anything that is said in the Sunday.

PAPER NOT INVOLVED

"I am not suggesting for one minute that the Sunday Pictorial was aware of the undertaking. I do not think it was. But I do say that a few inquiries by the paper would have led to their knowledge if it had done so.

"It is in those circumstances that I ask that this injunction should be continued."

"It is a common saying," he continued, "that an Englishman's home is his castle and no one will dispute that English men and women are entitled to some privacy in their homes.

"In my submission, the same principle applies where the castle is a home. It is a sad reflection on our times that it should be necessary to make such an undertaking as in this case in answer to a writ. I can't conceive who should know better from committing a breach of trust and confidence and enriching himself by infringing that privacy."

Alderman Bullen noting that Ellis had offered an undertaking against any further writings so that he could be released, said he was prepared to accept this.

Ellis's lawyer, T. G. Roche, said Ellis wished to make public clear that he had no intention or desire to cause anything to be published that was derogatory or objectionable to the Royal Family.

It also had been made clear that the action had not been brought with a view to the contents of the article published but as a matter of principle, he said.

He said that if Ellis had been supplied with a copy of the undertaking he signed on leaving the royal service the present trouble never would have arisen.

Now that Ellis had seen the terms of the agreement he signed, he thoroughly appreciated its nature and extent and had authorized his lawyer to give the undertaking.

Both sides then agreed that on Ellis giving his undertaking in the agreed terms all further proceedings would be stayed and the judge made an order accordingly.

Harold Scarlett of Trenton Goes on Trial for Murder After True Bill Returned

COBOURG — Harold "Gus" Scarlett, of Trenton, pleaded not guilty to a charge of murder yesterday after the Grand Jury brought in a true bill against him in the knife-slaying of his 24-year-old estranged wife, mother of four children.

Following the decision of the Grand Jury, the accused was brought into the court room of the new, modern Northumberland - Durham Municipal Building before Mr. Justice Gale, where he was informed of the charge against him. He was asked by the judge if he was ready to proceed with his trial, to which he replied, "I am."

In a firm clear voice he said "Not guilty," when asked how he wished to plead to the charge against him.

After the charge and the plea were recorded, the trial began — the lengthy task of picking the jury which would try the case. A total of 36 veniremen were called before the petit jury of 12 men were agreed upon by both counsel for the defence, A. H. Richardson of Cobourg, and his assistant, Harry Deyman, also of Cobourg.

RECEIVE INSTRUCTIONS

When the selected jurymen had been sworn in, counsel repaired to their respective seats in the court room, to receive their instructions by Mr. Justice Gale. He told them that their responsibilities were very great, and "that I am prepared to think you will carry them out to the best of your abilities and the traditions of our way of life."

He explained to the jury the course the trial would take.

"The charge in this case is murder," he said, "and consequently the unlawful killing of another human being under certain circumstances leading you to believe the intent was there.

"In a case of this kind we're continued, "Mr. Deyman, the crown prosecutor, will outline the case to you and then will proceed with the calling of witnesses to give their evidence."

Mr. Richardson, the counsel for the defence, may or may not call further witnesses, depending this they both will sum up, will address you, and then it will be up to you to reach a decision."

IMMUST WEIGH FACTS

"All the evidence you will hear or see will be facts and will be your responsibility to decide what weight those facts have and as triers of the facts you must rely on the evidence you hear or see in the court.

"I therefore charge you," the judge continued, "to purge your minds of anything you may have heard about the case or anything you may have read in the press or any other source and pay close attention to only the evidence which will be brought forth in this court.

"I also charge you to keep an open mind on the matter until you are asked to reach a decision. This is most important, for you cannot reach a decision properly until all the evidence has been heard."

Mr. Justice Gale went on to tell the jury members they would be confined until the case was over and that they were not to discuss the case even amongst themselves and that they would not be allowed to associate or communicate with outsiders, not even their own families, at anytime during the trial.

The sheriff's officers were the only men they would be allowed to talk to, he told them, or needs only. The officers, and the driver of the bus which would carry them to and fro between the hotel and the court room, were not to discuss the trial with them.

HIGHEST DUTY OF CITIZEN

"This," said Mr. Justice Gale, "is the highest duty a citizen of our country can be called upon to perform. I will now adjourn this court until tomorrow (Tuesday) morning at 10 a.m. and hope you will be here on time as I'm sure you will ask for by writting on a card you will be given by the sheriff's officers, and you will be brought to you."

Members of the Grand Jury, who during the afternoon brought in the true bill after hearing the testimony of more than three hours they deliberated, were Jack Ann, Tamilien Twp.; Harry Anderson, Brighton; Charles Bailey, Port Hope; Harold Carpenter, Northumberland; J. Gilson, Campbellford, Douglas Hoskins, Haldimand; Albert Hoover, Port Hope; Harold Ingram, Cobourg; Charles Lyall, Port Hope; Ralph Macdonald, Bowmanville; J. W. Pearce, Cartwright; John Reid, Clarke; Fred Maxwell Telford, Colborne.

VON Asks to Be Appointed To Provide Nursing Service

TRENTON — Don McPherson, president of the VON in Trenton addressed the town council last night at its regular meeting and asked the council to give support to a home nursing service, the cost of which would be paid on a 50-50 basis by the provincial government and the municipality.

Both Mr. McPherson at the council meeting were two members of the VON staff in Trenton and Mrs. Ruth Hammond, secretary of the group.

Following the address presented by the VON president to the town councillors:

The Homemakers and Nurses Services Act came into effect August 1st, 1958. Its basic purpose is to give assistance in home and family life during sickness and other emergencies by extending the use of homemakers and home nursing services.

In Trenton there are homemakers service but there is no home nursing service — namely the V.O.N.

The V.O.N. is the best qualified home nursing agency to provide this service. It has maintained a good quality of service for years, with a well trained supervised staff, uniform policies and a minimum of administrative overhead.

The policy of the V.O.N. is service to anyone in the community who needs it, rich and poor alike. It is a teaching service and by working closely with family physician and nurse helps each of the family to provide the care needed in the patient's home.

In 1958, $21,000 was made to welfare patients in the town of Trenton. At $2.70 per visit this cost per visit in 1958: these patients' cost was $7,776. In addition $145.50 collected from these patients. Le $2070.20. Under the Act, the municipalities would have been re-imbursed by the Province to the extent of $5,185.50. It will cost town less money if indigent patients, now receiving home care can remain in their own homes and receive home nursing service.

Estimated budget for 1959 for the Trenton Branch of the V.O.N. is $7,827. If home nursing service is extended, more money will be needed. The town grant in 1958 was $3,000.

The purpose of this brief is to request Council to appoint the V.O.N. to provide this nursing service in Trenton. The Victorian Order has the full backing from the Provincial Department of Welfare to carry out the nursing service under this legislation.

United Appeal To Seek to Cut Tag Day Number

The newly-elected board of directors of the Belleville United Appeal is going to make a concentrated effort to "oblige the public" with fewer house to house calls during the year, it was decided at the first board of directors meeting after the public luncheon of Belleville United Appeal membership drive Thursday evening in City Hall. The meeting was called by the chairmanship of the president, Mrs. Ross Reid, and officials whose aims coincide with the aims of the Belleville United Appeal.

The aim of the BUA is to establish and operate a co-operative scheme of financing those organizations engaged in philanthropic, charitable, or educational work. One of the regulations governing the participating agencies is that none of these agencies are allowed to solicit funds on their own. Exception is the Boy Scouts Apple Day which is not actually considered a "tag day."

It was noted some of the agencies which have held this last year have aims which would make them eligible to enter BUA, while others do not. The board of directors is planning to invite these agencies to be sponsored tag days last year and discuss with them whether their aims would be acceptable to the public, philanthropic or benevolent, thus allowing them to participate in BUA if they so desired.

Several points of business regarding the organization of the board of directors for 1959 were also discussed.

It was decided the regular monthly meetings of the board of directors will be held on the first Thursday of each month, at 7.30 p.m., in the Belleville Y.M.C.A., Campbell Street.

Plead Guilty To Manslaughter In Ottawa Fire

OTTAWA (CP) — Two men today pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of manslaughter in connection with a fire that claimed the lives of seven persons here Sept. 15.

The trial of Merrill Plouffe, 27, came to an abrupt end when Mr. Justice Charles D. Stewart accepted a guilty plea on the manslaughter charge. Minutes later William Warren, 34, entered a similar plea. They will be sentenced Thursday.

Arthur E. Evans gave the testimony as the trial of Plouffe on a charge of murder got under way. Both Warren and Evans face a murder charge, to be heard at a separate trial.

Evans said he drove Plouffe to Montreal the day of the apartment building fire. He said Plouffe told him Warren had agreed to "do the job" of setting the building afire for $500, suggesting it would be paid out of $40,000 in insurance on the building.

"I took it as a joke," said Evans, "thinking he was only fooling."

ARE SPORTS CHILDISH?

One of the results of the strike of CBC producers at Montreal has been that television viewers in that city have been deprived of their customary Saturday evening hockey games.

This, we feel sure, has caused considerable discontent amongst supporters of Les Canadiens, both French-speaking and English-speaking. At least one man, though, is happy about the whole affair. Writing to the Montreal Gazette, Patriek A. Dillon of Mount Royal admits that "there is no doubt the majority of viewers like to watch televised hockey games" but contends that "the fact these are shown simultaneously on both the English and French-speaking networks would tend to discriminate against many who might prefer a more adult type of entertainment."

The point which intrigues us about this statement is the suggestion that there is something childish about an interest in hockey — and, we presume, sport in general.

We suggest that the facts prove otherwise — that while children play games it is not until they near adulthood that they become interested in sports, which differ from games in that they have a code of rules which must be followed. It is true that interest in sports frequently slackens as the young adult matures, but that is true of other activities which are certainly not childish, sex, for instance.

We fancy Mr. Dillon feels that an adult who is interested only in sport is not measuring up to the challenge of life and with this view we agree. We do not think, though, that it is fair to label this attitude childish. By attaching this label to a wide variety of types of conduct of which we do not approve we are attempting to hoist onto the shoulders of children blame for conduct which, alas, is typically adult.

MAKE ROTTEN EGGS EDIBLE

Eaten any rotten eggs lately?

Before that question is answered with an indignant negative, perhaps we had better explain that our cousins to the south are consuming three million rotten eggs a year, without knowing it.

The U. S. Food and drug administration is the authority for this figure and it is all adither about the fact. It charges that racketeers go to poultry hatcheries and buy eggs that have been rejected from incubators as infertile, paying about seven cents a dozen, and that they then process these rotten eggs, with chemicals or by pasteurization, to remove the smell, freeze the eggs in 30-pound cans and sell them to bakeries at about 10 per cent below the market price for good eggs.

These rotten eggs, it is said, have almost as much nutritional value as fresh eggs and, since there is no tell-tale odor, people who purchase bakery products containing them are unaware of the fact that rotten eggs have been used.

Memory seems to tell us that one of the great delicacies in some Oriental lands is an egg as old as the person consuming it. This may strike us as strange, but we probably eat and relish things which, in other lands, would be viewed with distaste. Customs, and circumstances, differ. In a land plagued by famine, using aged eggs as a food source is a basics good and which produces no tummy-ache might be considered not merely enterprising, but patriotic.

REMEMBER PEARL HARBOR?

It should not be beyond the powers of recollection of many of us to remember the large shipments of steel which the United States sent to Japan prior to December 7th, 1940. The interest which the Americans received on this business transaction was considerable. Pearl Harbor being the first instalment.

Today they are shipping steel to Russia. We wonder what interest rate they are expecting to receive? Russia, of course, is an infinitely larger customer than Japan was. It should be able to pay back at a much higher rate of interest.

The United States, however, has not expanded so much since 1940. We wonder if it will be in a position to bank all the interest if it comes?

TWO VIEWS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

He listened to a famous man
And heard the people cheer.
He saw them scheme and plot and plan
His presence to get near.
He saw them smile who'd grasp his hand
As though great joy was theirs
And then thought he: "I must be grand
To lead in state affairs."

The famous man got home at six,
And heard the children his tea,
Then cried: "Good wife, my dress shirt fix,
Get out my suit for me;
Have handy, too, my tie of white
And place my shoes in reach;
I've got to hurry out tonight
To make another speech."

"I wish that I could live unknown,
Save only to the few;
I'd give 'most everything I own
To stay at home with you.
My cup of joy would overflow
And men who cheer I'd mock,
If only some night I could go
To bed at ten o'clock!

The Holly Authority

By John Allan May writing in the Christian Science Monitor from England

Which of these is imaginary?

The White Fish Authority,
The Egg Marketing Board,
The Oils, Fats and Dried Fruits Division,
The Holly Authority,
The Brussels Sprouts Board,
The Potato (Finance) Division,
The Director of Stamping,
The Office of the Umpire,
The Lord Privy Seal,
The Royal Commission for the Exhibition of 1851.

Well?

They are all perfectly good committee in sound normal condition, except one. And the exception is not the 1851 Exhibition Commission which is still going great guns.

I should have known. I suppose, when I pulled my next door neighbor's leg that the very fact that nine out of ten people would say that he would spoil (or make) my little joke.

You see, my neighbor had cut down a Christmas tree for Christmas. Having a lot of spare holly he decided to sell some. He put a hand-painted notice outside my gate, which is immediately before me. "Holly for Sale. Apply Within".

It was good holly. We both had some of the same stuff, but we were so many members, or so-ted.

Well, of course, it was not this I saw red. When I spied his notice all I saw were little white letters on a red background, like wheels of light. It seemed to me that there was here the opportunity for a little fun—fun about him, about me, about the ridiculous. For the ridiculous had seemed greatly enhanced in recent days by Victorian possession of the wherewithal for making artistic, apparently-press-printed notices by "Rotaprint".

So I got Virginia to print me up an official looking letterhead, allegedly from the Government of the highest local authority. And, to add to the official department, we gave it the telephone number of the County Council.

Thereunder I typed a letter of such grandiose phraseology and legalistic amphigouri that it was completely meaningless and useless. (This eat anyway.) I salted it with witnesses and peppered it with numbers. I gave it the ref. 48376-b of the Casual Vending (Sale of Marketing Goods") and italied it "per pro the Commissioners (The Holly Authority)."

In it I warned my neighbor that it had come to our notice that he had established himself illegally in the holly trade. The holly and that, in order to obtain the necessary licence, he should register at once. Penalties, I said, were severe.

Unfortunately, for reasons I mails were delayed and the document arrived on a Saturday morning. My neighbor opened it, his wife. I say unfortunately, for I am not sure my neighbor's banker, would have realised at once exactly from whence it came, or detected what the general direction. But women are not entirely adjusted to the ridiculous in the same fashion and ridiculous in this man-made monstrosities and organizations and it seemed quite probable to her that the Commissioners (The Holly Authority) might be right for it. Which, of course, they were.

Now a cursed like this needs a lot different over the telephone than it does when read aloud in the bosom of a family. Telephoning is an authority. The letter sounded like a virus. So the husband stopped what he was doing and telephoned the County Council. He asked to speak to the right department. Flames came out of the telephone at the other end.

These extinguished, there was, to begin with, an interesting exchange as he tried to reach the Tree Department and register as a Licensed Purveyor. Eventually he was handed on to the Horticultural Denartment. The man there had never heard of and The Holly Authority. He said he would go upstairs and inquire. When he came back he had not been able to find out anything further, but was feeling tired and most everyone was out office.

"Well, I intend to sell everyone of holly I can find, even without a beastly licence!" declared my neighbor, 6th determination.

"That's exclusively what I should do in your place," said the council officer, who was a bit of a privateer at heart himself, "if what I had some to sell."

There was a pause. Then the officer asked, "I say, do you think someone is pulling your leg?"

My neighbor agreed that was possible and said he would find out.

Now this is the payoff, which I had never in my wildest dreams expected. Such is the state of our modern society, and so fine is that line between the solemn and the ridiculous, that probable and the impossible, that the council officer added there words:

"Let me know on Monday, old boy, will you? I'll look into finding your leg I just better know about it — suppose I'll have to consult the Commissioners (The Holly Authority) myself."

I nearly squared it with my neighbor that he should ring on the Monday and say, no, his leg was not being pulled. Who knows where it might have gone?

Could Be War Without Dead

New York Herald Tribune

The American Ordnance Association is accustomed to meetings, at its annual sessions, of weekly of unpleasant ways of making war. But on Wednesday it encountered a somewhat different kind: a prediction that, by Maj. Gen. Schomburg put it, at least part of a war might be fought without killing or wounding anyone. For the Army has research program underway on "non-lethal weapons — a gas, for example, that makes a rat turn tail (This eat anyway.) I salted it with witnesses and peppered it with numbers. I gave it the ref. 48376-b of the Casual Vending (Sale of Marketing Goods") and italied it "per pro the Commissioners (The Holly Authority)."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

I see the pop composers have run out of ideas again. They have resumed stealing themes from the classics. Every once in a while, Tin Pan Alley boys who give us our three-week popularity of popular music brazenly pinch one of the glorious passages of the world's classical music — for copyright having run out — and serve it up with soupy words to fit.

In recent years, Tchaikowsky, Beethoven, Schubert, Grieg and many another of the greats of music have been so robbed. The composers, these top-tier masterpieces of the juke box and the record manufacturers make more cash money, in one theft, than the famed creators chalked on a passage cathedral.

Thus we have the comical spectacle of the young devotees of pop orchestrated indignantly when they hear Tchaikowsky's Sixth:

"Why, that's a straight steal from So-and-So," naming a recent juke box special.

The tragic part of it is that however we may hide from pop sooner or later the thefts reach our ears, borne on the wailing, whooping voices that pass for singers at the moment. And any time that the most sensible jazz combo takes it up and does a specialization of it it is like another ring in a dirty ward brought with him a great side

Rare Metal For Rockets

Timmins Daily Press

A metal much more precious than gold may some day help send rockets to Mars. The metal is cesium, still little known outside scientific circles. It costs about $150 a pound.

Cesium could be used in the iron rocket engines now under study. In the new type of engine, nuclear-powered turbine generates an electric current. The current creates a magnetic field which accelerates ions — charged atomic particles — of such elements as cesium to speeds reaching 400,000 miles an hour. The ions are ejected out of the engine and the reaction provides the forward thrust. Cesium is high on the list of possible propellants because it is easy to ionize.

An iron rocket engine would operate more efficiently and longer than chemical-fuel rocket engines, but its thrust would be smaller. Hence a bigger vehicle would have to be hoisted into space by a chemical engine, and the new engine would take over once the vehicle was free of the earth's gravitational pull.

Cesium was unknown less than a century ago, the National Geographic Society says. Its discovery was made possible by the spectroscope — the instrument thus discovered. It never occurs naturally as a metallic state but is found combined with other elements, usually chlorine and oxygen. It is widely distributed through the world but rarely in considerable quantity. Some cesium is found in the ashes of certain seaweeds, in tea and tobacco, and in some mineral springs. It also spears in the drainage water of mines.

South Africa supplies most of the cesium used in North America, but small quantities have been mined in Maine and South Dakota. A body of unexploited ore lies in Manitoba.

PLANTING THOUGHTS

One thing—we know about thoughts — if they are real thoughts is that they are bound to come up it planted.

So often these thoughts are planted in our own brain, nourished there as a baby on the breast of its mother. And then, when fully developed, they are given birth, or perhaps I should say — life.

Sometimes we plant these thoughts in other people's minds, in soil more fertile than our own, and they then find fruition and are again scattered to carry on the endless journey of the race.

The mind grows rich from the thoughts, if they are rich thoughts in themselves. How very wonderful to spend a period with a friend and to tap his thought. A gentleman recently called at my office—I thought the interview would be over in a few minutes but it lasted for hours. The caller had of thoughts that were unusually stimulating. I could not part with him until I had feasted upon his experiences.

If we plant our thoughts so well in others that they feast upon our thoughts, then we have, indeed, planted something of unique and lasting value.

But what about a person thinking about and trying to be close to his entire character.

Many a thought of thoughts have been planted in the great of the world. What fun it is to hunt them out for a little then as our own for a little while. I always like to meander late on the mood of the one who has given me a lovely thought.

Thinking is the greatest art in the world. Most of us are very poor artists in thinking. But there is a greater pursue. And there is nothing that makes this art endure so richly as to plant your thoughts as they come, in fertile soil.

To Your Good Health

FOOT AND LEG TROUBLES CAN AFFECT CHILDREN

"Dear Dr. Molner: I would appreciate information about treatment for flat feet. I am concerned about a little two year-old girl. When she was a toddler the pediatrician had no suggestion to give the mother. — M.D.L."

This letter is in fact ambiguous, in that apparently five or six years has passed since there was mention of flat feet. Does this girl of 7 have a foot problem now, or is this a case of worry over something that was said a long time ago?

While I'm in the dark in this instance, there have been other letters, and perhaps can can answer some of them.

Most babies have flat feet at birth. The average age for walking is about one year, anywhere from 9 to 18 months is quite normal.

Until about age 3, the chubbiness of a toddler's foot makes it appear flat, even though it is not abnormal. I've been happy to note that sometimes complaining people will get all their shoes and toddlers' shoes will make a point of mentioning it if they ce a youngster with feet that seem sufficiently out of average to require special attention.

The child with c genuinely weak foot often tends to toe in, for support. There may be no complaints, however, of pain or fatigue. Treatment is in fact, a fairly flat arch may be perfectly comfortable and cause no symptoms at all. Such a foot will not be in.

The foot most likely to cause difficulties is the high-arched type which, if it toes in, can be distinctly uncomfortable.

OTHER SYMPTOMS

Other symptoms of a flat foot that needs attention include clumsiness in walking, particularly by a small child of walking or playing, pain in the foot itself, and pain in the back of the leg — this latter usually in adolescence. I have mentioned that before. If a child complains of leg pains it is always well to see a doctor to see just whether they aren't really more associated with the foot than with leg.

Other factors involved in foot troubles include a tight heel cord, or relaxed ligaments which cause strain under use.

As to corrective shoes, general rule is possible. Sometimes heel wedges are necessary, or bars across the sole of the foot or other supporting devices in the shoe. Sometimes special exercises are most effective. In any case, the type of devices or treatment will have to be determined by an orthopdist or podiatrist.

"Dear Dr. Molner: It is presumptuous of me to question anything you say, but in your discussion of ulcers you said, "When an ulcer perforates it does so painlessly." Is this not a misprint?

— H.W.

It is not presumptuor of you

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

SEASONS IN WORLD AND IN LIFE

Winter is a natural decline and decay of all living things. The verdure of spring becomes the teeming harvest of mid-summer, and then come the rich colors of autumn to dress the growing world for dormancy. Leaves drop off the trees.

Among humans we begin to grow old almost as soon as we begin to live. The forty year old person feels that a new generation has taken place in his life. At fifty, sixty, seventy, vast and noticeable changes come about.

Yet this is all part of God's creation. It is the natural order of life. We live, we are tested, we die. We grow, we yield our harvest, we fall into the cycle of decline of autumn.

What is troubling about this is that should give us either the last concern or the least concern. It is not a cycle without the great cycle of God's love. We have nothing to do with the beginning of this cycle or with the end of it. We are not responsible for what takes place. For just one reason — it is part of a larger plan of God. It is our privilege and our duty to enter into that cycle with joy — with resignation to its lead-

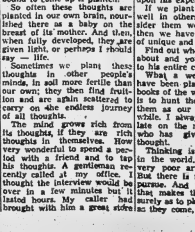
Woman Boxing Champion Dies

Brockville Recorder and Times



A rather interesting fact was revealed in a brief news item from Dublin when the death was recorded of Mrs. Polly Burns, 77, wife of a former middle name of Polly Fairclough became uncrowned "woman boxing champion of the world" beating a number of well-known men in a day while taking on all comers in Britain and Ireland in the early 1900's.

Polly must have been a most unusual woman. It would take quite a man to beat up 40 men in a day. It would be a woman to have this reputation, she must indeed been a character. We keep wondering if there are any pictures of her, and then in her publicity. It has been television some 50 years ago. Perhaps she was going strong, tossing men to all four corners of the ring, she would certainly have had a following greater than "Gorgeous George" and the like.

Ireland has a reputation for producing strange and wonderful characters and there seems like a fine example. We see her as a sort of "feminine" version of Jack London, which starred John Wayne in the title role of the films a few years ago. Perhaps some enterprising movie company could make a new film, entitled "The Quiet Woman," on the life story of this unsung-about woman boxing champion of the world" — but they might run into difficulties finding a suitable actress to deplet the part.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Campers pitch their tents on the shores of Windy Lake in the Sudbury district of Ontario, one of 57 campsites operated by the provincial lands and forests department. Fast-growing interest in outdoor camping brought an estimated 300,000 people to provincial camp sites last year. Park authorities expect 500,000 this year. Provincial park sites cost 75 cents a day for basic facilities which include a fireplace, firewood, pumped water and hot and cold running water. (CP Photo).

Fastest-Growing Pastime In Ont. Is Outdoor-Camping At Parks Operated by Dept.

By BEN WARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Twenty years ago most people looked upon outdoor camping as a rigorous activity suited only to boy scouts and over-enthusiastic sportsmen.

Today it's the fastest-growing pastime in Ontario.

Last summer an estimated 300,000 people spent weekends or vacations on camping trips in the province. If the current rate of increase keeps up the total will top the 500,000 mark next season.

Most of it was concentrated on parks operated by the lands and forests department which this year ran 57 camping sites. It's hoped to have upwards of 100 available within the next two years.

DEMAND GROWING

W. B. Greenwood, chief of the parks division, admits the province has been unable to keep up with the rising demand for camping facilities.

"In two years we've almost tripled the number of parks available for campers but each one has been 'overflowed' almost as soon as it opened," he says. In this year Ontario spent $2,000,000 on its camping parks development.

"Preliminary figures on park use in 1958 have astonished everyone. In 1957 the number of people entering provincial parks for picnics, hiking, swimming or camping was 2,100,000, including 163,000 campers who stayed from one to 14 days. This year it hit 3,500,000, including 278,000 camping enthusiasts.

No account was kept for another 30 or so parks in various stages of development which were opened because of demand. There is no figure available for an estimated 85 sites privately operated.

During the peak July-August holiday period some of the larger provincial camps were running 150 per cent of planned capacity by allowing campers to occupy undeveloped sections. Bass Lake near Orillia, Sibbald Point on Lake Simcoe, Presqu'ile near Trenton, Ont., and Kakabeka Falls in the Port Arthur area reported volumes up 100 to 400 per cent above the previous year.

Most of the campers came in family groups. Provincial park sites run 75 cents a day or $4 weekly for basic facilities which include a fireplace, firewood, pumped water and beach facilities. Some have washrooms with flush toilets and hot and cold running water.

Although fishing is usually available nearby, parks officials find most campers aren't too interested. Swimming, boating and trail hikes are the most popular forms of activity.

City residents form nearly 90 per cent of the camping traffic. About 15 per cent are from the United States or other parts of Canada. A large number come from Quebec, where public camping is not encouraged.

Mr. Greenwood said Ontario is prepared to continue park expansion until it feels the demand for facilities has been fully met.

"Right now we have a building program laid on for the next five years and it may go to 10 years until we catch up."

Tabloid Will Not Publish More Episodes

LONDON (AP) — The tabloid Sunday Pictorial has announced it is not going to publish any more episodes of its controversial new series The Queen in Her Castle.

The Pictorial a week ago published what was to have been the first instalment of a series by William Charles Ellis, for nine years superintendent of Windsor Castle.

But three days ago an interim injunction was issued on Queen Elizabeth's behalf in the High Court, restraining the paper from breaking an agreement he is said to have made not to give information about the Royal Family for publication in the press. The Pictorial told its millions of readers its decision to discontinue the series was voluntary.

Arrest German Trying to See Anastas Mikoyan

WASHINGTON (AP)—A man who insisted on trying to enter the Soviet embassy to see Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan was taken into custody Sunday by city police.

The man identified himself to police as Karl Hertle, 28, of Wilmington, N.C., and said he was a refugee from Germany. He said he wanted to show the visiting Soviet leader an agricultural inventing.

Hertle struggled briefly with a patrolman and was taken to a police station for questioning. Police have been guarding the embassy during Mikoyan's stay there.

A large briefcase Hertle was carrying was placed in a nearby vacant lot until a police bomb disposal squad examined it. The briefcase was found to contain nothing but papers.

He Likes North Though 70 Below Commonplace

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — The mercury dropped to 52 below zero here in January but the record was only common place to Oscar Maxness, a visitor to this northern Saskatchewan city.

Mr. Oscar works, even 70 below zero is not unusual.

LIKES THE NORTH

"I like the Far North . . . the people are wonderful," said Mr. Maxness, who came to Canada from North Dakota in 1910.

At the radar centre there are Eskimos, a few Beaver Indians and government and private fliers passing.

He cook for about 200 men usually, sometimes more and occasionally fewer when crews are in the north working. Mr. Maxness said.

"We eat like kings. Every day that flying is possible fresh fruits and vegetables are flown in from Vancouver. We get our supplies regularly from Edmonton and our menus are always up to par."

Sports Council Advocated by Vancouver M.P.

By BOB TRIMBEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Conservative Sports Council should be set up to do for amateur sports what the Canada Council is doing for culture, says John Russell Taylor.

Taylor, son of hockey great Fred (Cyclone) Taylor and a Progressive Conservative member of the Commons for Vancouver-Burrard, adds he is ready to more than just talk about it.

The 41-year-old lawyer said in an interview: "I have placed on the House order paper a motion asking the government to establish a sports council."

Taylor said action should be taken now when a majority of our Canadian sports editors agree amateur sports need government help. But the help should be given without interference or government control."

Paul S. Peak To Be Speaker At Sales-Ad Club

The Sales-Ad Club will hold their monthly dinner meeting this evening with Paul S. Peak, manager of the advertising and public relations department of the Imperial Bank of Canada. Mr. Peak's topic will be "Thrift is a Challenge in 1959."

A former senior advertising executive with the Oldham Press Limited when he was in England, where he was born, the speaker came to Canada in 1945 to take a position in the advertising field. Woman Downs Bull Moose in North Woods

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP)—When a woman shoots a half-ton moose three miles from camp, there's only one thing to do—back out his heart and liver with a hunting knife and leave the carcass for the men to collect.

This is what Mrs. Helen Ripka of Sudbury did when she downed a 1,200-pound bull moose recently. She had been gunning for a moose for three years, trumping up to 50 miles a day during hunting trips.

Brought home, the moose is butchered into roasts and steaks and stored in a freezer.

Mrs. Ripka is a keen sportswoman. Mrs. Ripka scores holes about four inches square in a roast and stuffs narrow strips of fat pork into each. She flavors it with garlic.

Non-hunters are also out for their own invention. She makes three parts of ground moose meat with one part of minced pork, chopped onion and salt. The meat is shaped into patties, panfried and served in split buns.

VON Requests Larger Grant As City Grows

A urgent request, with council asked to take into consideration the city's increased population as result of annexation, was presented Monday night by the local Victorian Order of Nurses.

The city's grant in the V.O.N. last year totalled $3,500, according to its president, Mrs. Harold A. Parker, who acted as spokesman. V.O.N. nurse Miss Dorothy Connor also attended the meeting.

Mr. Parker noted that the V.O.N. served the city and a three mile radius outside the city. With annexation the service area would automatically be expanded and this year would include Point Anne.

Mr. Parker gave a resume of last year's V.O.N. activity, noting that a total of 2,020 visits had been made by nurses of which only 723 were paid for in full. If all visits had been paid in full the V.O.N. receipts would have been $8,000 greater, he said.

The V.O.N. request was referred to the 1959 budget meeting.

Stolen Poodle Home After 5000-Mile Trip

"They're wonderful," sighed two little girls and gave Bimbo, the victim of a cross - country dognapping, another big hug.

Bimbo came home by plane on a C.O.D. ticket. He had traveled some 5,000 miles by train and plane since Dec. 20 when taken from the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Goff.

They had purchased the poodle for $100 as a Christmas gift for their daughters, Patricia Ann, 8, and Lois Jean, 6.

Last Saturday, detective L. R. Zimmerman located Bimbo in San Diego, Calif.

"We found out the woman who took the dog is a known shoplifter," the detective said. "She slinked into the house through an unlocked window, grabbed Bimbo, and rent him to her husband as a gift."

Dogs Best Hope For Men Trapped By Avalanches

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP) — Search dogs are man's best hope if he's trapped by the white death, as avalanches are called in Austria.

During the recent holidays 13 persons lost their lives in snow slides. But scores owe their lives to the avalanche dogs and their human helpers.

Beach Clothes By Designers Multi-Colored

FLORENCE, Italy (Reuters)—Straw wigs, bikini bikinis and colored cotton tights are featured in beach clothes shown by Italian designers.

Scarcely-there brightly - colored cotton bikinis had short loincloths fore and after of negligible bloomers. The skeleton-strapped torso had an elongated flap back and front.

Scarabocchio, whose gay cotton summer dresses were printed with stylized parrot and wicket playing cards, had wide, short skirts and the new sack-cloth-wide sashes.

An exotic exhibition dedicated to the fantasies which drew crowds in Rome last fall, has greatly influenced Italian fashion designers. Glans, the Milan boutique, showed a knee-length Japanese coolie coat with parrot and white vertical awning stripes, widely sashed in red and worn over white a matching tunic-and-bloomers sun suit.

Myrtlene, famous for fashionable adaptations of peasant costumes, introduced the colored cotton tights to be worn, without shoes, below big-skirted summer dresses — necessary tights with white pique, or white cotton tights with flat, printed.

Falling in with the new Italian stiff look for next season, Myrtlene used a great deal of thick hemp and sacking.

Congress Party Head May Be Nehru's Child

NEW DELHI (AP)—Mrs. Indira Gandhi, daughter of Prime Minister Nehru, says she is fulfilled but a bit frightened by the prospect of becoming president of the Congress party, India's biggest.

"It will be the biggest challenge," the 41-year-old Mrs. Gandhi said. "I hope to be able to live up to what I've expected of me."

Mrs. Gandhi, a slim, attractive brunette of 41, has been nominated by her father to lead Congress committees to head her father's party, which has governed India since independence.

Although the nominations remain open until Feb. 1, it is expected she will be named by acclamation when the votes are counted March 5.

Mrs. Gandhi is the mother of two boys. Her grandfather was president of the Congress party until succeeded by his son in 1929. The present prime minister served five terms before asking to be relieved in 1956 because of the pressure of other duties.

Indira said her father is "not very happy" about her candidacy but as always allows her to do her own work. She is known to Perez Gandhi, a prominent lawyer and a member of Parliament. He is no relation to the late Mohandas Gandhi.

Miss McIntosh went to Bella Coola during the Second World War. Conditions at the hospital were most primitive. There was no electricity, no medicine in the area, and those who were Indians, were afraid of the medicine man, a fearful looking creature who was hereditary in the hearts of his patients. The hour glass was the only hospital that was three weeks old when they received it. There was no dentist; no radio; no theatre and no optician.

Conditions are more quite modern. They have a modern hospital operated by the United Church; there are two physicians in the hospital; electricity and a dentist.

Every logger in the valley gives a day's pay to the hospital. Lawns are covered with flowers.

With church and government help, a nurses' residence is to be built.

Library Board Hears Report For December

Miss Olive Delaney, librarian, informed the Library Board at its regular meeting that there were many new and interesting titles added to the book collection in December much to the delight of the library patrons. The somewhat controversial book by Field-Marshal Montgomery perhaps aroused the greatest interest. Four Canadian titles were immediate favorites — Pierre Berton's book on the Klondike, Farley Mowat's tale of salvage operations in the St. Lawrence and the North Atlantic — entitled "The Grey Sea Under", "Without, Pete, Favour or Affection", a book about the Royal Canadian Mounted Police written by Vernon Kemp and "Varied Operations" the life story of an eminent Canadian doctor and former Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, Dr. Frank A. Bruce. On the lighter side, "The Rainbow and the Rose" by Nevil Shute, "Nightmare" by Francis P. Keyes; a new tale about Admiral Hornblower entitled "Hornblower in the West Indies" and a rousing adventure tale by Hammond Innes "The Land God Gave to Cain," were perhaps the most outstanding. The addition of many new and many others accounts, in part, for the increase in circulation in December.

CIRCULATION

There were 13,419 books circulated during the month of which 9,299 boys and girls. The December 1957 total was 11,926. In 1958 — Adult fiction, 6,674, juvenile, 1,462; Queen Elizabeth, 1,463; non-fiction, 1,402; Sir Winston, juvenile 1,344, King George, juvenile 705; Queen Mother, juvenile 993; total books 12,419; periodical pamphlets issued 48.

FILMS AND RECORDS

Fourteen new members enrolled in the record library members this month. Circulation of records was satisfactory.

The film library has been successfully in December is a major factor in the increased circulation. Lawrence Belleville South, Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, Trenton and Quinte are the Y's Men's Club were some of the many local organizations using the Film Library in December.

REFERENCE

The Encyclopedia Canadian is complete now. It has been completed in nine volumes during the year and it fills a great need.

Reference questions were numerous and in no way reflect the tone of the Christmas season. Requests for information on tanning hides, how to make a telegraph set, the laws of police age, critical material about the play "Death of a Salesman," what a "spade" guinea, the uses of foam rubber, are typical of the many interesting questions that were answered.

EQUIPMENT

The 60-drawer card catalogue, ordered last October, arrived in time for Christmas and the cabinet has the same finish that the woodwork in the extension and which have fit is finished according to the formula given by the architect.

A new typewriter was purchased just before the end of the year and is a most welcome addition.

REVIVAL EVIDENCE

"There is much evidence of revival in the past year," says Many students in university are taking religion as a major course and received some given briefly were, first, unrest, uncertainty in the religious world, return to faith in God as Supreme Being. Often their religion is shallow and they are unprepared to meet it.

In America today the "Unknown God", seems to be faithfully, this new faith, however, is a far cry from the old fashioned faith as St. Paul encountered in Athens. Here he contrite Christian humbly implored the mercy and guidance of the Almighty God to help him in temptation.

Probably the greatest step forward at this time has come from the growing realization that the Bible is the Word of God, and that all can meet together in one congregation. The coming age of science and space travel will be the most terrifying implication for Christianity.

The benediction, followed by a social half-hour, brought the meeting to a close.

Wren Petty Officer Rosalee Auger of Port Arthur and Winnipeg has been appointed to the staff of Exmond Butler, assistant press secretary to Her Majesty the Queen. PO Auger will join the royal household staff this month, for duties in connection with the royal visit to Canada this summer.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Victor S. — He's wearing his time.

Warren K. — She'll have me in the end.

Victor S. — I am a happily married man living in a home a bachelor friend who seems determined to make life hard for himself.

Warren is 22 years old and has been courting the same girl for the past five years. Betty is an extremely attractive girl, but in my opinion she is more than a little nuts. She just doesn't know what she wants. She blows hot and cold. One week she tells me Warren as though she's crazy about him, the next week she treats him like dirt.

I have been trying to convince Warren that he is wasting his time. The worst thing that could happen to him is to have Betty accept him. Plenty of attractive girls could be seriously interested in Warren if he'd get over his obsession about Betty.

Warren K. — The way I look at it, Betty is really just a spoiled kid. Eventually she'll grow up and be a worthwhile person. She was only 20 when I first met her, and she is still young enough to change a lot.

It seems to me that Betty just happens to be too appealing for her own good. A lot of guys go for her and they turn her head. In my opinion none of them really cares for her as I do. They just like to be seen with a sexy looking doll. Most of these men have looks and money, and it's natural for a young girl to become confused by it all.

I feel that I really love Betty — almost in spite of her looks. Underneath she is sincere and warm-hearted. If I'm patient, I'm sure she'll have me in the end.

The Council: Far be it from us to argue with true love. If Betty's warm heart and good sense triumph she may be able to appreciate it. However, we're not so sure that Victor isn't right when he feels that Betty's acceptance is the worst thing that could happen to Warren.

It is true that physically attractive women and men run into certain special problems. They get a lot of attention and much of it cheap and synthetic. But if their personality and character development is sound, they will slough off this kind of attention. They will gravitate naturally to-ward others who are sincere, interesting and kind and will never turn against a friend and treat him "like dirt".

Attractive women and men who use their beauty as a means to power and who enjoy the spectacle of others fighting for their favor are at heart as insecure as individuals of such ugliness or deals who hide from others. There is a bonus that an unselfish person is happy to love someone he loves. Usually he makes light of it and is more interested in others than in their reaction to him.

So we think that Betty's "warm heart" is probably covering a layer of such ugliness as egotism and fear and dislike of both men and women. She should consider it not only good to be her advantage to accept psychiatric help, we doubt very much whether her feelings have much depth or staying power.

Must Have Strong Character To Be Success as Majorette

By EDNA USHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—If you want to be a success as a drum majorette or a cheerleader you must have a strong character as well as the "usual attributes," says Marie Parkes of the University of Toronto.

Miss Parkes is associate secretary of the Students' Administrative Council secretary-treasurer of the Women's Athletic Association at the university. Since majorettes and cheerleaders first started to perform at Varsity football games in the 1920s she has had a part in their selection.

At the University of Toronto the girls are chosen by a small committee of students and it is part of Miss Parkes' job to see that consideration is given to character and appearance as well as physical endowments.

CHARM POINTS COUNT

The committee selects one drum majorette and 10 cheerleaders each season. Miss Parkes becomes their guide and chaperone.

"The drum majorette can't be self-effacing, but she must not be a showoff," she said Miss Parkes. "She must have humor—plus, because she may have to deal with trying situations.

"Students at a university we are visiting may try to kidnap the drum majorette.

"That happened once when we visited University of Western Ontario. I was able to shield the majorette, but some students told cheerleaders about a stunt a very first-year student — that they wanted to interview her for the newspaper. They sent a car to take her away from the main group, the door was closed in and spirited her away."

Miss Parkes recalled the incident: "It all ended happily enough, but if the girl had been an hysterical or timid type, it might have caused trouble."

MEETS MOST GIRLS

Miss Parkes' job brings her in contact with many girls. There are the 3,500 women students at the university.

Herself a Toronto graduate and a keen athlete in student days, she gives guidance to girls who are wanting to get the most from university life.

She has part in extra-curricular activities—especially those dealing with the Women's Athletic Association and musical organizations.

She is in her academic work earlier in a gay rough of social work.

"Don't retire into an academic shell—but don't neglect your academic duties," she said.

Miss Parkes said that top students often are the most active in student activities.

"But this does not mean that girls who lack the capacity should tackle additional work."

Paris Remains Laboratory Worldwide Fashion Trends

By PEGGY MASSIN

The big designers are the croupiers who spin the wheel, while the players are the buyers who try to put their chips on lucky model numbers.

Each individual collection shown by a major house represents an investment of about $100,000, not including the furs Couturiers and their backers take this gamble twice a year.

The Paris couture repeatedly proves its ability to draw the crowds. Statistics show that attendance has continued to increase steadily every year. Today there are 800 accredited journalists who gather here each January and July, compared with about 50 before the war.

DESERTER RETURNED

Recently as important North American store decided that Paris had nothing more to offer. "We must treat the source of styles like the mint," he said. "When the pit is dry, drill for another."

Following orders, buyers of this store sought inspiration elsewhere. Just one year later, the entire buying staff reappeared in the French capital.

Like any game of chance, the haute couture business has its ups and downs. It is impossible to launch every season a revolutionary style such as the tapered.

MILD RECESSION

Judging by the precise figures on couture sales are issued, it is known that there has been a mild recession in the haute couture market during the last season.

Textile sales are down by 25 per cent compared with last year. There have been rumors that the couture is in bad, financial trouble; that government subsidies are to be withdrawn; that certain famous houses will go out of business. Nothing of the kind has happened houses are financially sound. Nevertheless, several problems make apparent the need for a basic reorganization of the couture industry as an entity.

Paris designers are creative artists. But, today, they must be more. They realize that they must become astute businessmen as well. Accordingly, they have the silhouette, but there is a feeling that longer skirts should be closer professional unity to promote the collective couture picture to the greater common good.

Christmas cards were signed and mailed by the Pack Brownies, while the rest of the Pack got busy with scrapbooks to be given to the retarded children's class. Then everyone joined in a sing-song, and later in making Santas from a cholate-banger and colored paper. RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

YOU CAN HELP

The McFarlands senior hockey club, Canada's representatives at the world hockey tournament at Prague in March, leave for overseas at the end of the month.

They carry with them the best wishes of twelve million Canadians in general, and 28,000 Belleville residents in particular.

They will visit nine European countries including Czechoslovakia during their overseas junket.

Some may think visits to the majority of these countries are unnecessary. This is not the case.

The blues will play some sixteen exhibition games before entering the world tournament starting March 5. They will play four exhibition games in Czechoslovakia after the tournament.

Primarily these pre-tournament exhibitions are arranged to give fans of the various countries the opportunity to see a top Canadian hockey squad in action.

Secondly, they are designed to give a sport that is rapidly growing in popularity not only in Europe but the Orient, an additional needle.

The most important reason from a Canadian standpoint is that exhibition games played in Europe give Canadian teams the opportunity to sandbagtize their players, and get a close-up practical acquaintance with international rules under which the tournament games are played.

With their heavy schedule commitments taking them right up to the point of departure, the McFarlands will have little or no opportunity to practice international rules. Fortunately for them, one of the bugbears of Canadian teams in previous tournaments was the fact the games were played on outdoor rinks. That will not be the case. Prague boasts a beautiful "indoor" stadium" seating some 14,000 where the final games of the tournney will be played.

As was said, the McFarlands will visit nine European countries to fulfill their exhibition games committments.

But, like the fabled mare, it takes money to make the Macs go — to Europe.

Up to the moment some $18,000 has been raised. Much more is needed before the financial objective is attained.

The McFarlands Booster Club executive under President Armand Duffy, Dick Steare, "Spider" Mathieu, Harry Hazlitt, Jim Ward and others, has done a magnificent job. They have raised, through various projects and money-raising "gimmicks," one-half of the amount obtained thus far and hope to obtain the club's objective of $10,000 before the fund closes.

The Civic Overseas Fund Committee, under chairman Alderman Jack Ireland and Mayor Gerald Hyde, has raised some eight or nine thousand dollars so far but the fund, this is far from its objective.

A list of this money is donations from out-of-town firms, associations and individuals. The general response from these sources has been gratifying.

But it seems the onus of raising the rest of the money rests on the population of the city and district.

The question has been asked in many places including the press: "Why doesn't the government assume the costs of overseas transportation of its overseas representative hockey team."

This department learned from a highly reliable source that the government has been approached on the matter. However, it appears there isn't much time for the government to change or influence a policy covering this matter, so there doesn't appear to be much chance of federal help along these lines.

The Civic Overseas Fund Committee is organizing a city-wide drive for funds that covers industry, business, the professions and the individual.

Within the next few days the wheels of th's fund-raising machinery will start to move.

Merchants and others affected may give donations through the medium of advertising in a special supplement to the McFarlands souvenir program, in order to get tax deduction.

Industry plants personnel will be asked to contribute through the medium of a collection, following the pattern of the Bata Shoe Company.

Business and the professions will be contacted by special committees. If the proper committee help is forthcoming a house-to-house canvass will be organized.

Everbody will be asked to help.

Should the McFarlands win the world tournament championship for Canada again, you, and you and you will feel a warm glow of pride when you hear the news, or welcome the boys when they arrive home. But the glow will be all the warmer when you recall it was your nickel, dime or dollar, that helped make the victory possible.

How about it?

Last Week's 5-Point Splurge Almost Caused a Dead Heat Howe, Litzenberger Are Next

MONTREAL (CP)—Andy Bathgate's five - point splurge last week has all but turned the National Hockey League's scoring race into a dead heat at this stave.

The hustling right winger of New York Rangers put together two goals and three assists and today finds himself only one point behind Montreal Canadiens' Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion.

The burly Boomer, who hasn't been able to beg, borrow or steal a gal in a 19-game streak since Dec. 27, feverishly tossed in three assists in a single game and now leads the pack with 54 points. Bathgate has 53.

BOTH PACESETTERS

The same players are pacesetters in different departments. Bathgate, who has collected 29 assists, tops the goal-getters with his 25. Closest are Dickie Moore of Montreal and Don McKenney of Boston Bruins with 23 each.

Geoffrion whose goal total stands at 19, leads playmakers with 35 assists. Defenceman Fl Ciadoy of New York is next with 31.

Third and fourth in the scoring derby are Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings and Eddie Litzenberger of the Chicago Black Hawks. Both are pressing Ahe leaders, Howe with 47 points and Litzenberger with 46.

HOWE IN ON ALL GOALS

The nine-point Howe effort scored only three goals in last week's play and has participated on all three. His assist total of 28 in the NHL's latest official compilation is four behind the pace he set last season, said the league. However, he wasn't expected to rebound to assist in the previous issue of statistics.

Litzenberger failed to score a goal but harvested four assists in Chicago's two games.

Tied for fifth place at 39 points are McKenney and Montreal's Jean Beliveau. The Boston winger scored one goal and one assist and moved up from a seventh - place tie. Beliveau bounced up from ninth place with his two goals and one assist.

HOCKEY RESULTS

Veteran Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Montreal was blanked in his team's two games and fell from sixth to an eighth-place deadlock with Alex Delvecchio of Detroit who had a single assist. Each has 38 points.

Vic Stasiuk of Boston and Ron Murphy of Chicago follow with 37 points. Stasiuk's performance last week was two goals and an assist. Murphy had a one-one count.

Rocket, Sawchuk Are Injured, Will Miss Game

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens will surely be without Maurice Richard when they play Maple Leafs in Toronto, and the slumping Detroit Red Wings minus goalie Terry Sawchuk in Chicago against Black Hawks Thursday.

Richard suffered a foot injury when struck by a puck fired by Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion in Canadiens' 1-1 tie with Chicago Sunday. Sawchuk was injured in a pre-game practice Sunday, suffering an injured right shoulder.

Montreal coach Toe Blake said a Monday Richard's foot was to be X-rayed. It was not known when he would be back in action.

Detroit has goalie Bob Perreault on loan from Hershey of the American League. Sawchuk is expected to be back by the weekend.

Detroit centre Forbes Kennedy suffered a five-stitch gash just above his left ankle when he collided with defenceman Gordon Giradie. However, Kennedy will be able to play Wednesday.

Defencemen Red Kelly will move the cast removed from his foot Tuesday and probably will play in the same game. Kelly suffered a severe bruise last week but should be back in action this weekend.

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—The drawings for the championship round of the world amateur basketball tournament was postponed Monday night until a political tiff between Cuba and Uruguay is settled.

Russia and Bulgaria were reported assured to playing against Nationalist China in the round-robin competition. The United States also is among the seven finalists. Canada was eliminated Sunday.

Brazil, Puerto Rico and Chile are the other nations entered.

Stan Mikita Widens Gap In Junior Race

TORONTO (CP)—Stan Mikita, all-star centre for the league-leading St. Catharines TeePees, opened the gap this week in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A scoring race to nine points over his nearest rival.

Still playing with a cast on his broken right wrist, Mikita has collected 28 goals and 46 assists for 74 points in 35 games.

Second is Peterborough Pete's all-star left winger, Wayne Connelly, with 25 goals and 40 assists for 65 points, four better than his linemate, Bill Mahoney, who leads the league in goals with 33 along with 28 assists for 61 points.

Kid Paret Whips Zalazar

NEW YORK (AP) — Fastpunching Benny (Kid) Paret of Miami Beach, Fla., scored a first straight over Victor (Bullet) Zalazar Monday whipping the lean Argentine in a 10-round slugfest at St. Nicholas Arena. Paret weighed in at 153½, Zalazar 153½.

Three years ago Paret, a 21-year-old middleweight prospect, gained a split decision over Zalazar in a non-title scrap. It was the first pro defeat for Zalazar who had won all 15 of his previous fights by knockout.

Referee Teddy Martin and Judge Bill Forst each had Paret ahead by 5-4-1 scores.

Judge Leo Birnbaum had it 7-3, the AP 6-3 for Paret.

Tell Tribe Critics Lay Off Until They See Tiefenauer

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Those who have been criticizing Frank Lane for trading Cleveland's relief ace Ray Narleski and Jim Mossi are advised to hold off judgement until they get a chance to see Bob Tiefenauer in action.

Tiefenauer, one of the 14 rookies who will report to the Indians' training camp in Tucson, Ariz., next month, could make Cleveland fans forget Narleski and Mossi. Based on his minor league record, the 29-year - old relief specialist might possibly develop into a bullpen beauty. The prospect of Billy Tief undoubtedly influenced Lane's decision to trade the two relief pitchers.

A former member of St. Louis Cardinals, Tiefenauer enjoyed a phenomenal season with Seattle of the International League last year. Depending solely upon a sensational fork ball to baffle big league trial, Bob came up with a sinker pitch last year. As a result, he was almost impossible to hit, especially in the clutch.

The 6-3, 195-pounder hurler won 17 while losing five. He appeared in 64 games, all in relief and finished 52 of them. He hurled 157 innings, struck out 105 and walked only 49. His most glittering achievement, however, was in holding enemy batters to a mere 1.89 earned runs per game.

Another standout newcomer is Carl Averill, son of the former major league star. Averill, the Pacific Coast League's most valuable player in 1958, returns for another shot with a .347 batting average. He hit nine runs and drove in 78 runs batted in with the San Diego club. The second baseman, he stands 5-10 and weighs 200—is listed as a third baseman but he'll be converted to outfield anywhere on the diamond.

Few of the other newcomers are given much chance to stick. Three outfielders have a chance, however. They are Jim Rivera, Dale Bennetch, 22, drafted from Williamsport, 22 from Reading and Jim Piersall, 23, batted .301 with 10 homers and 46 RBIs at San Diego.

Baby of the squad, and possibly the best is 22-year-old Dick Stigman. The 6-2 right-hander posted a 17-7 mark at Reading and turned in a 2.41 ERA.

'Weird Actions' By Executive Football League

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram says that "in some weird and baffling actions" Sunday the executive of the Canadian Football League undermined the prestige of Commissioner Sydney Halter by reversing a ruling he made only a month ago.

In a dispatch from Winnipeg by Bob Erwin the paper says executive members of representatives from the Big Four Football Union and the Western Interprovincial Football Union upset Halter's rulings that end Morgan Clark was eligible for the college draft.

The executive voted to let Clark sign with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Sarnia Golden Bears of the Ontario Rugby Football Union by British Columbia Lions of the WIFU.

The vote meant that the commissioner "is supreme only when it comes to fining players and such," the story said.

Peg Reopens Suit Against Leafs, Canadiens

WINNIPEG (CP)—Mr. Justice A. M. Monnin Monday announced he will hear application for leave of Queen's Bench Wednesday for reopening a $125,000 damage action by Winnipeg Members of the Western Hockey League against Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

Mr. Justice Monnin had dismissed the suit last fall but announced last week he had recalled his judgment because of a mistake that there had been "a misstatement of admissions of facts" in the original proceedings.

The suit by Warriors claimed that the NHL clubs had not lived up to two-year agreement which required them to supply the Winnipeg outfit with a number of WHL-calibre players.

IBC Explosion Halts Fight

CHICAGO (AP) — Negotiations for a middleweight title rematch between champion Sugar Ray Robinson and Carmen Basilio are at a standstill because the court order dissolving the International Boxing Club, the sport's promoter, Truman Gibson said Monday.

"There still are a lot of unresolved questions of law in court decision yet to be settled" said Gibson. "Until we get the mechanics of the decree worked out as to what we can and cannot do, I am not going to have any title fight negotiations with anyone."

Quebec Referee Has Concussion After Fall

MONTREAL (CP) — Referee Alex Bartiko, who fell to the ice on being struck by a rubber shoe during a hockey game in Chicoutimi Sunday, said Monday he has been ordered to rest at home because of a slight concussion.

Bartiko was handling the Trois-Rivieres — Chicoutimi Quebec Hockey League game when a fan heaved the rubber shoe. It struck Bartiko, who lost his balance and fell. He struck his head on the ice.

Kids Won't Agree but Coach Phil Watson Says Playing in N.H.L. Gets Pretty Boring

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP)—Most kids wouldn't agree with him, but New York Coach Phil Watson figures that playing in the National Hockey League can get pretty boring.

It usually happens about this time of year, he says, and that makes coaches go grey. The boredom means players relax more quickly, he explains, and so the last games they would win if the skaters tried a bit harder.

START FRESH

Watson not known for being philosophical about anything connected with hockey, sums up his idea this way:

At the start of the season, players are fresh after a summer vacation and glad to be back on skates. They enjoy hearing the fans cheer them on a good play. Rookies are full of bounce to try to stay with the team.

In the last weeks of the season, when playoffs are in front of the players and they go all out to improve their standing.

"You have to like it," Watson explains. "In almost everything you read, it's stale news after you've yourself. Well, here we go again—another game." Th..t's the way it goes.

"All of a sudden you find your daily schedule becoming very monotonous. You come into Manhattan, practise and go home. You take the same trains at the same time for games in the same cities. You stay in the same old hotel rooms. You eat the same pre-game meals at the same time and at the same places.

"That's why this is the most important time of the year. If you can keep driving, and winning, you may be able to make the other teams gradually quit.

"This monotonous period won't last forever. Once you start getting close in the playoffs, you start smelling money. That's incentive enough to keep driving."

A check of the weekly records of the New York Rangers bears him out. In compared with the first four weeks of the NHL season shows that—if Watson is right—Boston Bruins and Detroit Red Wings are the most bored NHL teams.

Detroit has been so bored it has dropped to a record of one win, four ties and seven losses from six wins and five losses as the season opened. The Bruins hopped from four wins and seven losses while they were fresh and eager.

LEAPS UP

Toronto Maple Leafs, perhaps taking advantage of their lessening slump, improved with five wins, four ties and six losses from two wins and seven losses at the start.

Montreal Canadiens, as the league entertainers, naturally didn't let themselves show their boredom. They opened the season with seven wins, two ties and four losses and have lost only four ties and two losses from Dec. 13 to Jan. 11.

Chicago Black Hawks also showed little change—five wins, two ties and five losses at the start and seven wins, three ties and six losses in midseason.

Watson's own Rangers? They're up impressively to seven wins, three ties and three losses compared with two wins, five ties and six losses at the season's start.

Boosters Meet In Broom-Ball Battle Tonight

Tonight in Trenton Community Gardens starting 7.30 sees the beginning of a unique sports series.

It is the first of two-of-three bloodless broom-ball battles between Boosters.

The participants are the Belleville McFarland Booster Club and the Trenton Booster Club.

The big prize is the Dow's King's Beer Trophy, presented through the offices of company representative Armand Duffy, who, incidentally is the kingpin of the Belleville Boosters.

The series is an unusual affair that has been going on for a couple of years. Thus far no insurances has been collected so worrying wives need have no qualms over the result of tonight's battle.

But Duffy has a problem. He's got players — and "can-passers".

The players have to don skates and wiggle a broom. The "Passers" go through the crowd with tin can receptacles for collection purposes.

The receipts will be applied to the Macs Booster Overseas Fund.

Belleville Booster members wishing to "play or pass" are requested to get in touch with the Russ Duffy.

And a lot of boosters members from both clubs are urged to go along and give their teams support. They need it. Morally, definitely; physically, possibly.

International League Players Told Not to Sign Unless Granted Pension Plan

NEW YORK (AP) — International League baseball players were instructed by their representatives not to sign 1959 contracts nor report to spring training unless they are granted a pension plan.

The action was taken according to player representatives Eddie Bluske and Bob Chakales, because league officials refused to discuss a compromis or to submit the matter for arbitration.

The two players made their announcement at a press conference held at the offices of their lawyers, J. Norman Lewis and James Durante. Lewis also represents major league players.

EXPECTED MOVE

Actually, the decision to "strike", a word the representatives were reluctant to use, reaffirmed a resolution adopted last Oct. 14 at a meeting of players representing all eight IL Clubs.

At the annual league winter meetings in Washington last month, the league flatly rejected the players' request for a pension plan as "impractical."

League President Frank J. Shaughnessy, informed of the players' latest stand, declared he was in complete sympathy with the players but reiterated that the league was not financially able to grant any part of a pension plan. He said all clubs with the possible exception of Toronto, lost money last season.

"If they want to strike, it's up to them," he said. "If they think they can budge us by refusing to sign their contracts or report to spring training, they're wrong.

"We'll operate as usual in 1960. We'll have enough players to open the season. And if there are any malcontents, we'll just have to send them somewhere else. Those who refuse to report will be put on the restricted list."

The other IL clubs are Montreal, Rochester, Richmond, Havana, Miami, Buffalo and Columbus, Ohio.

The proposed pension plan would be patterned after the major league pension fund with the benefits scaled down to approximately two thirds and without certain benefits currently enjoyed by the big leaguers. It was estimated that the cost of the plan was approximately $295,000 which the players would contribute $37,000 at the rate of $1.50 a day per player.

The players are practically 100 per cent behind us in this" said Blake, former Cincinnati Redleg pitcher now with Toronto.

When we adopted the original resolution, we received the support of all but five of the 160 players in the league."

Chakales, another Toronto chattel was more outspoken:

"They say minor league ball is deteriorating and no wonder. There is a great deal of discontentment in the league."

Bud Aylesworth Scores 4 Goals As Kingston Nips Belleville 7-6

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Buddy Aylesworth scored four consecutive goals here last night, including the only one of the third period, as Kingston Johnson Motors edged Belleville Lambert-Rollins 7-6 to snap the locals five-game win string.

The smooth-working Kingston forward potted a well-earned goal after dekting two Belleville defencemen at 12.26 of the third period to produce the margin of victory. He also tallied 2 goals during the second half of the middle heat to erase a 6-3 Belleville lead.

Kingston's victory kept them atop the OHA Central Ontario Junior "B" league standing. Belleville rests in third place, ahead of Prince Edward and Port Hope.

During a see-saw first period the lead changed hands three times before Belleville came out of the period leading 4-3. The locals scored two goals in the second and appeared to be well on their way to their sixth consecutive win, leading 6-3 at the 11.03 mark.

Bob Aylesworth began his one-man show at the 12.11 mark, scoring on a play with O'Donnel, to make it 6-4. Penalties paved the way to the next pair near the end of the period. Elliott was waved away for slashing at 17.35 and Rowbotham got the gate at 18.31 for high sticking.

Aylesworth bagged his second goal while both Belleville players were repeating their sins at 19.12. Twenty-five seconds later, and with Rowbotham still in the sin-bin, Aylesworth got the hat trick to make it 6-6 as the period ended.

Lambert-Rollins had several good chances to snap the tie during the first half of the third period but could not finish off their plays as Nichols improved in the Kingston cage. Then at 12.26 Aylesworth, after taking passes from Mulholland and O'Donnel, slipped around both Belleville defencemen and quashed home the winner.

Ralph Place opened the scoring for Belleville in the first at 6.52 but Shea tied it at 9.10 and Ber Mulholland, who had two Kingston goals and four assists, put the visitors ahead at 11.29. Gary Goyer scored on a good corner shot to make it 2-2. Mulholland's second goal at 16.37 gave the visitors the lead again. Jimmy Ellis sank one from in close to tie it for Belleville and Dennis Kerruish gave them the lead with Kingston Jarvis in the penalty box at 18.15.

Gary Goyer upped the Belleville lead to 5-4 to play with Hull after 28 seconds of the second. Roger Drake cut up the right boards and fired a good blast to make it 5-3 at 11.53. Then came Aylesworth's four goals and the game.

Coach Eddie Plata removed Bill Moxon from the nets in favor of a sixth attacker and with Kingston a man short at 18.43 of the third The play did not work however and Moxon returned with six seconds left a draw.

when a faceoff was held in the Belleville zone.

Mulholland's two goals and four goals gave him top point honors while Aylesworth added two assist to his four goals. Dennis O'Donnel, third man on the line, had three helpers. Roger Shea also scored with Fred Curran, Bob Carey and John Tuttle getting assists.

Gary Goyer had a pair of goals for the losers while Dennis Kerruish and Roger Drake had one and one. Jim Ellis and Ralph Place also scored. Assists went to Rowbotham and Ben Hull with two each, Tom Yardy and Jerry Mcnn.

Tom Pettitt served four of Kingston's seven minor penalties. Jerry Mann sat out three of Belleville's five.

Sportsmen and the Golden Rule

It was the opening day of the pheasant season and we had parked our car beside the highway, directly behind another car from which two hunters were unloading their gear. Their dog, a big pointer, romped joyfully through the high grass of an adjoining field, working off some of his accumulated steam. Suddenly he came down on a good scent point.

"Hey!" exclaimed one of the hunters. "That dog has found a bird."

Then from the other side of the field I saw two hunters approaching. They weren't walking; they hurried, and came across the field on a dead run. On past the pointing dog they went and each flushed a big ringneck rooster. Both guns cracked and down came the birds. One of the men picked it up, stuffed it into his coat, and both of them walked off across the field once more without so much as an over-the-shoulder glance at the dog's owners.

I looked at my friend; he smiled and shook his head. "Standard procedure in these parts," he said. "This territory attracts a pretty unsavory crew from the other side of the mountain. If your dog goes on point, make sure you get there first."

Only last fall there was a rather serious altercation in the county in which we live over a ringneck rooster. As it was related, this is what happened. Hunter A was across a field, flushed the rooster and shot at it three times. The rooster kept on going, passing Hunter B, who shot and killed the bird. Hunter A, a large, strong fellow, came over and claimed the bird, taking it away from Hunter B.

SERIOUS ARGUMENT

Hunter B, after warning the other fellow what to expect if he didn't drop the bird, pumped a load of high-speed sixes into the leg of Hunter A. Result—arrest, hospital, jail, lawsuit, and much much trouble and pain, all over one ringneck rooster.

Pennsylvania, as you know, is a great deer state. Our house is right in the deep country and about 20% of the big game that is killed in the United States is shot within a radius of 200 miles from my desk. This hunting attracts all sorts of hunters, among them the undesirables. Deer stealing — taking deer on another man's legal kill — is not an infrequent happening.

My son, Dick, when he was eighteen years old and hunting alone, had a deer taken from him by a party of five men from the coal regions. Nothing to do about it; he couldn't while five husky miners. That sort of miserable business goes on every fall in these mountains. Not always, however, does the offending party come out on top.

Only two years ago a friend of mine, a doctor in his mid-fifties, knocked down a large buck with a well - placed heart shot. The buck tumbled into some heavy brush so the doctor walked over to tie his tag to the deer. When he reached the deer, there was another hunter tying his tag to the buck's leg.

Naturally an argument ensued. The other man was a big fellow, young and active, and the doctor knew he had no chance in a fistfight.

"Well," he said, "seeing as how you're determined to claim I didn't kill him good and dead." Whereupon, he proceeded to empty his gun into the buck. One of the bullets ricocheted, just about every bit of usable meat in the deer was thus rendered worth taking home. Result — pleasant day spoiled and a beautiful big buck wasted.

SPORTSMANSHIP MISSING

This same absence of sportsmanship shows up all too often on our trout streams and bass waters. Time was, before our streams became crowded, that a man who was fishing a pool could safely consider that pool to be "his" for so long as he wished to fish it. Not so today!

Now when a fellow is fishing to a school of rising trout it is not uncommon to have seven or ten crowd in right beside him, sometimes so close that lines are soon tangled. Remonstrance is useless with this type of fisherman. The reply usually is summed up in the incontrovertible, "You don't own the ——— crick!"

Over the years, the solution of this sorry state of affairs seems to be to take the line of least resistance. To become embroiled in an argument not only is inconclusive but it spoils the flavor of the day. Best to leave disputed areas or game to the other fellow (who, after all, must derive but little satisfaction in living with himself) and find new and undisturbed conditions.

No, the Golden Rule in sportsmanship has just about been discarded. Perhaps we would do well to adopt David Harum's version — "Do unto the other feller the way he'd like to do unto you an' do it fust."

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In 1930, when the depression began settling in, Lona Smythe had $25,000 and two players under contract. Lona, sunny-tempered man, from Ottawa Senators, Smythe and his senses had not panicked.

At that time the money spent on the ruinous Leo-pond-ers have bought the nucleus of a top National Hockey League team. As it turned out, the gamble was one of the greatest Smythe had made—and Smythe never forgets it.

The Kids was an immediate hit, a rookie gang in an era when team rosters were loaded with veteran names spelled out crowd appeal. He had helped the one-time famous Ottawa Senators to three Stanley Cup championships in eight years. He was the Maple Leaf uniform until Nov. 24, 1936, when he called a halt to his famous career.

IN UPSTAIRS JOB

Now, after nearly 30 years and broken only by a short stint as coach of the old Montreal Maroons and a refereeing job in the International - Amer-ican Hockey League and the NHL, he still is with the Leafs. His salary is a secret between Smythe—"Goodwill Ambassador"—and him like a pair of skates.

At 55 years of age, he has spent more than two-thirds of his effervescent life—38 years—in the big league, a record that probably only General Manager Jack Adams of Detroit Red Wings can surpass. Adams also played hockey at the start of the century when Clancy was a toddler in Ottawa's Lower Town.

Talking with Elmer (Moose) Stan Ferguson the other night, Clancy said he had spoken to Smythe a year ago about his job and was told:

"Hell, you never let me down, and I'm not going to let you down. You're on the payroll as public relations and goodwill emissary. Make some speeches, tell tales but don't ate good. If Leafs are bad, press the panic button."

Clancy never let anyone down in his hockey career.

Two years after he joined the Senators they went West to defeat Vancouver and then Edmonton to win the Stanley Cup.

MEMORABLE GAME

In one game on that trip, Clancy, then a utility man, played every position, including goal, when Clint Benedict was penalized. After backing down a player, Benedict threw his stick to Clancy and said:

"Take care of this damn place till I get back, kid." Ottawa's defense was so good that Edmonton didn't get a shot on goal.

In his six years as player with the Leafs he was the driving force behind the rush in the forefront of the NHL and it was often said that Maple Leaf Gardens that this was the "house that Clancy built."

He was a driving player who kept up an incessant stream of chatter to team-mates and reckless acts that won them penalties. He had the reputation of not being able to punch his way out of a paper bag, but opponents, no matter how big they were, and say his most ardent admirers, he hasn't stopped talking in years.

"It has been said that he can carry on three separate conversations simultaneously" said one kind critic. "But this is grossly unfair. Even on his worst day, Clancy can work in a minimum of five concurrent conversations, and if some of them are inclined to be incoherent, all are vastly amusing."

Psychic Phenomena Dealt With in New TV Series

By CHARLES MERCER

Although his belief has been life-long, he says, he has not had the opportunity to participate in the expression of it in dramatic form until now. He is the host of a new series which dramatizes mystifying experiences on Alcoa Presents, making its debut tonight (Tuesday) on ABC-TV (10 p.m. EST).

A Guide to the Unknown is the way Newland characterizes his role in the series. Each program, he says, tells a story employing the basic elements of love, suspense or adventure but based on an actual event with psychic overtones.

The opening half-hour drama concerns, he says, "a girl possessed of a mother wandering spirit who uncovers a murder. The case actually happened in Rome and was authenticated by the Vatican."

A man sitting at the table with Newland asked him whether he believed that one skeptical of psychic phenomena who watched the series was likely to be converted to belief in such phenomena.

JUST GOOD DRAMA

"We aren't trying to convert anybody," Newland replied. "We're trying to present good drama. But I believe that watching the program will make it mystifying experience on Alcoa Presents, making its debut tonight (Tuesday) on ABC-TV (10 p.m. EST).

Writers Vote 'Gashouse Gang' Most Colorful

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The 1934 St. Louis Cardinal "Gashouse Gang," National League and baseball champions, were honored at a Baseball Writers of America Association banquet here Monday night as the most colorful team to ever represent this city."

The banquet was in observation of the silver anniversary of the gang.

During the speaking, Ken Boyer, present third baseman of the Cards, announced that he had signed a new contract.

Some 1,030 fans turned out to pay homage to the 1934 club, and hardly seven of the members of that team, including Leo Durocher, Rip Collins, Joe Medwick and Pepper Martin, recall anecdotes of the swashbuckling crew.

Stratton Takes American League Scoring Lead

NEW YORK (AP)—Cleveland rookie Art Stratton has taken over the American Hockey League's scoring lead from Ken Schinkel of Springfield, the pacesetter for the last 12 weeks.

League statistics released today show Stratton with 22 goals and 36 assists for 58 points. Schinkel has 59 assists.

Rookie Bill Hicke of Rochester is third with 53 points, one more than Bill Sweeney of Buffalo.

Hershey's Bobby Perreault displaced Marcel Pelle of Buffalo as the scoring punch with an average of 2.65 goals allowed a game. Pelle, who has led all season, dropped to second with a 2.68 mark.

Big Brand New Double Shock Show to Thrill Horror Fans

MISSILE vs. FRANKENSTEIN
Tops 'Em All!

Horror films come and horror films go, but this combination of total horror . . . no holds barred, tops them all when "Missile vs. the Moon" and "Frankenstein's Daughter" explode across the wide screen at the Park Theatre. This unusual program is guaranteed to raise the hair on the strong hearted, and by all means be avoided by the timid.

"Missile To The Moon" is itself descriptive. Here is seen man' final conquest of outer space, and his ultimate goal, the moon. The film depicts the extensive preparations for the unusual rocket to be launched with its human cargo, the final blastoff, the hazardous journey and the actual landing on the moon. From this point on the strange and forbidding adventure unfolds.

"Frankenstein's Daughter" tells the eerie story of the son of the mad scientist who follows in his father's footsteps and pursues a gory trail to fulfill the dream of his father. But this time the creature to be born from the grave, more hideous, more destructive, more terrifying, is the daughter of Frankenstein. And it was born more deadly than her predecessors.

Both attractions are first showings and open for a two-day engagement only at the Park Theatre Wednesday.

Many old friends and neighbors from Thomasburg, Moneymore, Roslin, Tweed, Trenton, Campbellcroft, Belleville and Port Hope were on hand to congratulate them.

Their son William, who resides in Burlington and their daughter Catherine, who teaches school in Tomoio, assisted Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sills, Roslin, cousins, to plan this delightful evening.

At the head table, which was tastefully decorated and centred with the traditional anniversary cake, the happy couple were presented with many lovely gifts, among which was a 400 day mantel clock from their family and a step-table, table lamp and pop-up toaster from their friends in Roslin and surrounding district.

During the evening cards were played and a delicious supper was served buffet style.

The Angel of Hudson Bay

Thirty years ago, Cree Indians on the eastern shore of Hudson Bay were literally starving to death. Beaver, the mainstay of their lives, were disappearing. And without beavers the Crees had nothing to eat, nothing to sell.

Then Maud Watt and her husband (manager of the Hudson's Bay Co. post) stepped in with a startling plan to bring the beavers back.

In this week's Saturday Evening Post, you'll read of Maud Watt's own personal sacrifice, her desperate search for outside help, and her final triumph in bringing hope and prosperity to a whole people once doomed to death. Don't miss "The Angel of Hudson Bay."

Agriculture in South Africa, especially in Cape Province, suffers from primitive farming methods, but government officials are waging an intensive program to promote better techniques, soil conservation and irrigation. In Spite of Apartheid Laws African Materially Better Off Than Anytime in History

Russell Elman, former Canadian Press staff writer now touring the Commonwealth, in the following story describes present conditions and prospects of Africans under apartheid, in South Africa, and can government's racial segregation policy.

By RUSSELL ELMAN

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (CP)—Within the framework of strict segregation, the African today is materially better off than ever before in South Africa.

Throughout the country modern schools, hospitals and houses are being built. There is more economic opportunity, wages are rising and productivity is slowly increasing.

In spite of the apartheid laws, thousands of Africans from neighboring territories are lured to the Union each year to earn the higher wages offered in the mines. In Johannesburg smartly dressed African men and women drive cars through the busy streets and shop in the large stores.

DEVELOPMENT OUTLAY

The South African government estimates $50,000,000 to $56,250,000 of the national revenue is earmarked each year for native (African) development. At present this outlay is not met by direct African taxation, of which the principal item is the poll tax recently increased from £1 (£2.12) to 35 shillings ($4.75) a year.

However, Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd told Parliament that Africans do contribute £30,000,000 to £40,000,000 in other ways, including indirect taxation, towards paying for the services provided for them. European employers pay a 2½-shilling weekly levy towards these services in urban areas.

Today the average wage of an African in Johannesburg is £13 ($36) to £15 a month (the average European wage is £71); some truck drivers earn up to £40-£60; domestic servants receive £8-£10 a month plus board, lodging and sometimes clothes.

But the 1958 report of the Johannesburg non-European affairs department states that "when it is considered that the household size is generally five, it becomes evident that the majority of families (in Johannesburg) are living in poverty. Since it has been fairly clearly established that a family of five requires at least £30 to meet the basic requirements of food, rent, clothing and transport." A survey by the South African Institute of Race Relations places this figure at £22.

Rapid industrialization of the Union since the war and a growing European manpower created new jobs for Africans in factories. Inside the African townships new openings have arisen in skilled building jobs, bus and truck-driving and teaching.

Because the African's educational standard is not yet generally high, at first he usually fills unskilled manual laboring jobs. But more are being given semi-skilled operative jobs and an East London fabrics factory was able to reduce its African staff by 25 per cent in two years and yet maintain output.

However, many skilled trades are closed to the African because he is not allowed to join European unions and cannot undergo the necessary apprenticeship. There are still only a few vocational schools for Africans. Under the 1956 Industrial Conciliation Act, the minister of labor also was empowered to reserve occupations for different races, thus enabling him to exclude Africans from competition with Europeans for jobs.

More Africans are going into business for themselves and many own prosperous butcher shops, furniture shops and general stores. In Durban one man built a large modern shopping centre and organized a syndicate of 11 others to run it under business. In East London an African offered £30,000 in cash for a bus fleet.

FINANCING DIFFICULT

But young Africans wanting to start in business find it difficult to raise loans from banks and building societies because they have no freehold title to their land in urban townships. The government plans to set up a Bantu Areas investment organization to encourage development of commerce inside the rural reserves.

There are African lawyers, doctors, nurses and teachers. Few African are inclined to enter accountancy, architecture, pharmacy—professions in which they would not easily find practical training after university.

Under the universities apartheid bill, Witwatersrand, Capetown and Natal Universities will no longer be allowed to admit Africans.

Five new universities are planned by the government for the reserves, but doubt has been expressed whether enough teachers as well as money to finance the necessary libraries and laboratories can be found to maintain high standards.

Only a few professional men so far have taken advantage of the increased scope offered in the reserved African areas, where there is no competition from Europeans. An exception is Dr. Francis Gumede, a graduate of Witwatersrand, who hopes to be the first doctor in Durban's new Kwa Mashu township, designed for 110,000 Africans. Many of the best African graduates are leaving the Union for higher-paid positions in Ghana, Nigeria and British East Africa in teaching or civil service.

A new department of Bantu education now controls all African schooling for which £8,500,000 is set aside annually by Parliament. Schools are being built at the rate of one lower primary school for every 800 houses in the new urban areas. Total enrolment is 1,200,000 and within five years every child of school age is expected to be taught how to read and write.

Primary schools are overcrowded and classes are doubled up, with a different set of pupils attending morning and afternoon sessions. Fees and lack of parental guidance keep many children out of secondary schools, even when places are available.

Hospitals, welfare centres, sheltered employment workshops, creches and old age homes are also going up. In Durban private welfare organizations spend £30,000 ($84,000) on milk for African schoolchildren and in recreation 250 African soccer teams have been formed. The $2,500,000 Crest Oppenheimer Hospital for African goldminers at Welkom in the Orange Free State and Baragwanath hospital in Johannesburg are among the largest and best equipped in Africa.

African agriculture, particularly in the Trans-Kei and Ciskei reserves of the Cape Province, still suffers from primitive farming methods. Overstocking and overcropped soil erosion. Government agriculture officers are intensifying efforts to teach better farming techniques, soil conservation and irrigation but it is an uphill struggle.

BELLEVILLE BRANCH — W. T. SIMPSON, MANAGER

Company Became Canada's Largest Exporter in 1951

The amalgamation of the firms of W. S. Cook & Son. Ltd. and Black Diamond Cheese Limited is an event that while new in form is not new in principle. As far back as 1919, Mr. Robert F. (Bob) Hart who was then employed by the F. W. Coon Company of Philadelphia was working with W. S. Cook & Son and Mr. James S. (Jim) Cook in buying selected Canadian Cheddar cheese from the Belleville area for export to the United States. One of their favorite factories was Quinte Factory, located just west of Redneresville on the south shore of the Bay of Quinte. The maker was then John Hall and when Mr. Hart eventually came to Belleville, Mr. Hall became one of Mr. Hart's employees.

The association between Mr. Hart and Mr. Cook continued until 1925 when the F. W. Coon Company was taken over by Kraft Cheese Company and Mr. Hart was transferred to another position.

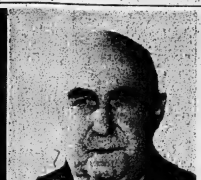
When Mr. Hart came to Belleville in 1933 to start a cheese company it was natural that the first person he looked up was Jim Cook. It would be hard to state that Jim liked Bob Hart's new role, a competitor rather than a customer, but from the start there was friendly, although competitive co-operation.

Prior to the war, both firms were active in exporting cheese to Great Britain but the war-time regulations laid down by the government did not allow cheese to be weighed in Belleville and ruled that all weighing must be done in Montreal. W. S. Cook & Son found their warehouse on Albion Street of little use and rented it. Eventually, with the help of Mr. S. L. (Slam) Joss, then secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association, Belleville, weighing was accepted and Mr. Hart's firm, the Belleville Cheddar Cheese Limited and W. S. Cook & Son pooled their export quotas, and profits equally, and handled the cheese through the Pinnacle Street warehouse of the Belleville Cheddar Cheese Limited.

WORKED IN CO-OPERATION

Again in 1951 the two companies worked together on export. That year W. S. Cook & Son did the handling of the export cheese both for Belleville Cheddar Cheese Limited and the Belleville branch of Swift Canadian Co. Limited. It is worthy of note that in 1951 W. S. Cook & Son were responsible for the handling of nearly five million pounds or about three times as much as any other Canadian exporter and the co-operation shown by the other two firms allowed W. S. Cook & Son to handle a volume that allowed each firm some small profit.

It is therefore with a history of past friendship and co-operation that the amalgamation of these two Belleville cheese firms has its setting.



The story of W. S. Cook & Son Limited, Canada's oldest cheese exporting firm is hardly a story of a firm but rather a story of a family and the family members who worked in the firm. As in most family firms, business is a continual topic, of conversation The Cook firm was no exception and both men and women of the family were well grounded in the problems of the business.

The beginning of the Belleville "Cheese Cook's" was with John Scott Cook who was born in Glasgow, Scotland, and emigrated to Belleville in 1858. With him was his family which included William Scott Cook. John Cook was a grocer and operated a successful grocery store in the stone building on the northeast corner of Victoria and Front Street. Family stories report he also legitimately sold spirits by the bottle and by the glass.

Here, young "W. S." as he was later known, began his business career. Local farmers coming to Belleville to purchase supplies of various kinds would first stop at Cook's to sell or trade their excess produce. Eggs, farm butter, hides, tallow, and later farm cheese were all traded for cash and other available supplies. "W.S." attended college during the winter and looked after these purchases during the summer. When he finished college he found the available produce was overtaxing the grocery facilities so he started his own produce company.

W. S. COOK

WILLIAM J. COOK

In 1885 cheese making in central Ontario had ceased to be back-shed operation and a cheese factory, Front of Sidney was opened. As we all know today cheese is a remarkable food product. In 1885 its worth was not based on its nutritional qualities, but on its ability to preserve surplus milk and yield cash. Naturally a dry stiff cheese was required to withstand the heat of summer without refrigeration. Notwithstanding this, cheese made in the Belleville area soon became known as a quality product on the British market, and W. S. Cook sales of cheese for export grew very rapidly while its sales of farm and factory produced butter fell as specialized creameries grew.

Buying cheese in the early days was a continuing job. Then, as today, cheese was made to be eaten and repeat orders required a quality product. W. S. Cook and later his sons, J. S. and W. J. Cook travelled by horse and buggy to the various cheese factories inspecting their cheese. Leaving early in the morning and arriving home late at night a good horse was a "must" as he could take his owner home while he slept. One story about W. S. is that one morning he had taken a strange horse. Homeward bound he went to sleep and awakened with the sun. Rather than being home as expected, the horse had turned around and after going off the road had only stopped on the brink of a steep cliff.

The cheese business, then as now, was a troublesome business sometimes, and did interfere with a normal life. W. J. Cook sometimes complained that it interfered with his Saturday lacrosse, as he would often be called in to help load a car of cheese. This may well be the reason that for some years he left it for the government service.

ANNUAL TRIP TO U K.

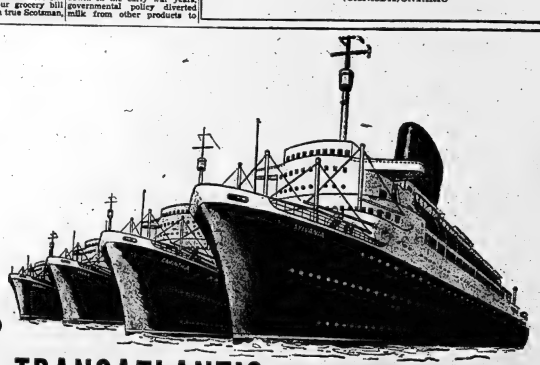
Notwithstanding the rush and bustle of summer the winter then was a time of quiet in the cheese business. Nearly every winter "W. S." was able to take a trip to Great Britain. There he renewed business connections on the cheese importing Tooley Street of London, Victoria Street of Liverpool, Dunlop St. of Glasgow, and of course quite a quality product. W. S. quaintances with old friends of his family and wife's family. Perhaps it should be mentioned that prior to conference and agreed charges on ocean freight, it was quite customary for the steamship companies to give some concessions to large shippers. An ocean passage, while not actually free, could be arranged that was little more expensive than your grocery bill at home. Being a true Scotsman, "W. S." took full advantage of this and he and his wife enjoyed their business trips to the full.

When W. S. Cook died in 1926 the integrity of the firm he had begun was well founded, and his friends were many. He had been able, unlike so many other cheese companies of the early days to weather the storms of falling exchange rates and fluctuations of the world market.

After the death of W. S. Cook his son Jim Cook actively carried on the business with W. J. Cook as a silent partner. Jim Cook had assistance from his sons Jack and Jim Junior, and two nephews, Bob and Kent Chadwick. It must be remembered that in those days and even today, the handling of bulk cheddar cheese was back breaking work. Cheese then weighed up to one hundred and twenty-five pounds. Handling these large boxes, waxing, roping or stapling the lids on, and loading them in cars for export was hot and heavy work. At least then it was easier to put relatives to work than to get outsiders, for families would work together when necessary.

In the depression years the production of Canadian cheddar cheese reached a low of less than 100 million pounds so naturally the export was away down. In the early war years, governmental policy diverted milk from other products to cheese and the production of all dairy products was encouraged. However, the requirement that all cheese be weighed in Montreal rather than at country points made it difficult and unprofitable for outside firms such as W. S. Cook & Son to export to the British Ministry of Food. With the help of Mr. S. L. Joss then secretary treasurer of the Ontario Cheese Producers Association, the requirement of Montreal weighing was removed and W. S. Cook & Son and the Belleville Cheddar Cheese Limited were able to export.

Shortly after this working arrangement was begun Jim Cook died, in 1942 and William John (Mud) Cook took over the ownership of the business. Jack Cook who had been working on the combined export stayed with the Belleville Cheddar and Douglas Scott Cook went in with his father and managed the firm. While W. S. Cook &/Son continued to concentrate on the export market, due to requisitioning of most cheese for export, they started to sell a few cheese to the local stores and wholesalers. In 1946, W. D. Cook returned from overseas and entered the business and also more cheese was allotted for the domestic market so W. S. Cook & Son were able to expand their domestic distribution. When W. J. Cook retired from the government service he devoted full time to selling cheese and made a number of trips across Canada and to Great Britain. Concentrating on bulk cheddar cheese from selected factories, the sales volume of W. S. Cook & Son continued to grow.



Their main branded product, White Clover fully matured old cheese was introduced in 1946 and designed to give the many employers, needed in the production season for handling and waxing bulk cheese, a job until Christmas. Sales of this product have grown and it will become one of the Black Diamond family of fine cheese.

The death of Doug. Cook in 1947, of Jack Cook in 1950, and in 1956 of W. J. Cook, leaves W. D. Cook, the only remaining member of the Cook family engaged in the cheese business.

Better Quality, More Attractive Packaging Have Increased Demand for Cheddar Cheese

By FRANK MALCOLM of WM. E. TAYLOR LTD.

Cheese is one of the oldest of the staple food items known to mankind. It is a basic food that has been known and enjoyed universally down through the centuries.

The making of cheese is an ancient art, it having been recorded that cheese formed a staple part of the diet in the Near and Far East as early as 2000 B.C. Authentic information regarding the origin of the product is unknown, however, it has been suggested that Arabia was probably the first home of cheese. It has been further suggested that the discovery of this delectable product may have been quite by accident and perhaps happened [illegible]

"A traveller [illegible] desert journey, carrying a canteen of milk. As was [illegible] custom in those days, the canteen was made from the dried stomach of a sheep, goat or other domestic animal. Somewhere along the journey, the traveller decided to satisfy his thirst, but found that only a colorless liquid poured from the canteen — a liquid quite unlike the creamy milk he had poured into his canteen only a few hours earlier. The traveller cut open the canteen and found there a handful of [illegible] white curd — the world's first cheese."

During and enjoying the [illegible] substance, he must [illegible] have passed the story on to others and thus began experiments to make this new food. Early experimenters of course, did not know why the canteen produced this strange phenomenon. Later discoveries however, found it was the presence of certain enzymes in the stomach of certain young animals which acted on the milk, coagulating the protein in it into curd and leaving a thin liquid or whey.

MANY DIFFERENT TYPES

Numerous different and distinctive types of cheese have since been developed and several have been named after the country or region where they were first produced. Among these numerous types of cheese there are hundreds of different varieties produced and eaten throughout the world, each having its own distinctive texture and taste. Many of these peculiar to the country or region of origin.

In Canada there are two types of cheese that have been most popular, namely, cheddar and processed. During recent years, however, many other types and varieties have appeared to meet popular demand. The number of these new varieties is continuing to increase, due largely no doubt to the increased immigration of peoples from Europe and other parts of the world who want to buy the [illegible] of cheese with which [illegible] familiar in their [illegible] countries.

Our Canadian per capita consumption in 1957 was the highest Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures available, was 6.6 pounds per person and this compares with 4.2 pounds in 1934 and 5.7 pounds in 1951. In Switzerland, cheese is consumed in the amount of 19.6 pounds per capita and in Norway it is 17.8 pounds. Most other countries, including the British Isles, range from 10 pounds to 15 pounds per capita and our neighbors, in the United States, consume cheese to the extent of 7.8 pounds per person per year.

Our per capita consumption in cheese in Canada is gradually increasing because of increased immigration from high cheese consuming countries, because of the wider selection of varieties of cheese available, as a result more active Canadians are developing a taste for cheese and because more Canadian cheese eaters are increasing their consumption of this excellent high food value product. This latter reason is no doubt being spurred by the stepped up advertising, promotions and special merchandising events conducted by the Dairy Farmers of Canada, the Cheese Producers and Processors and by the merchandising efforts of the retail food trade which is evidenced by the excellent display of large varieties of cheese seen in our supermarkets.

MERCHANDISING IMPROVED

The merchandising of cheese today is a far cry from those methods used even up to a few short years ago when all cheese was purchased by the stores in the form in which it was produced in the factory and was sold to the consumer in bulk or by the piece. Many of us can remember seeing the storekeeper cut a "wedge" from the large cheese in his store — of a size to suit the requirements of the particular customer.

This old method of selling cheese has almost disappeared, except perhaps in specialty or delicatessen stores. Instead, pieces of all types and varieties is being merchandised in prepackaged forms — in a range of shapes, sizes and weights best suited to consumer requirements. These pre-packaged units are attractively packaged and well displayed in refrigerated counters making it easy for the shopper to select the variety and size she requires or prefers. The cheese being kept refrigerated, ensures better keeping qualities and thus it reaches the consumer in factory fresh condition.

The pre-packaging of cheese has greatly facilitated the display and merchandising of a much wider variety of cheese products to the consumer than was ever possible under the old method of bulk selling. This attractive and efficient cheese packaging has been made possible through the scientific development of packaging materials of a type suitable for such a perishable product as cheese. This packaging material must, among other things, be airtight, moisture proof and transparent. The development of "film" types of materials has been the answer.

Cheddar cheese was the original cheese produced in Canada, consequently, it has been perhaps the most widely used cheese in Canada over the years. It is a product that has a wide range of uses beyond that of table use. Cheddar cheese takes its name from the Village of Cheddar in Somersetshire, England, where it was first produced over 500 years ago.

The first cheese factories were established in Canada in 1864 in Oxford County. They increased with great rapidity and within a comparatively short time Ingersoll, Brockville and Belleville became widely known as districts producing a very high quality product.

BELLEVILLE CHEESE FAMOUS

In due course, the Belleville district exported millions of pounds annually and it has continued to be recognized as one of the finest cheddar cheese producing districts, not only in Canada, but the world over. Of the many fine cheddar cheeses produced in the Belleville district, none has gained wider fame, both within and beyond the borders of Canada, than has Black Diamond Brand. First produced in 1932, the uniform and distinctive flavor of Black Diamond Cheese made it an immediate hit and today, it can truly be called "World Famous."

In today's market, packaging is of vital importance in the merchandising of Black Diamond Cheese. The packaging material must be of the highest quality with several important factors incorporated. It must be a material that will hold sufficient moisture in the cheese to prevent excess drying and crumbling. It must be airtight to prevent mould. It must be transparent to show the product. It must be a material on which can be printed a clean, sharp and distinct label for easy brand recognition.

"Black Diamond Brand Cheese" is packaged by drawing a vacuum on each package followed by air-tight sealing. As a result of this air-light packaging, the Company has been able to overcome a packaging problem and also to extend the distribution of the product to more distant markets. It prevents flavor loss, weight loss and mould and ensures the product reaching the consumer in first class condition. Black Diamond Cheese is pre-packaged in several different shapes and sizes of consumer packages, including 8 and 12 ounce wedges, 8 and 12 ounce sticks, 8 ounce squares, 1 1/3 and 5-pound circles. It is also available in half and full moons, 5 and 10-pound blocks as well as in the large factory produced solids and blocks for bulk selling.

VALUABLE FOOD

Cheese is one of our most valuable foods and should have a prominent place in the meals of both adults and children.

It is a food that is very high in protein and mineral content and in these high cheese consumption countries it is a basic food, taking its place with meat and eggs. It requires more than one gallon of milk to produce one pound of cheddar cheese so a one-ounce serving (about one cubic inch), provides the equivalent food value of a glass of milk.

Earlier in this article, we pointed out the low per capita consumption of cheese in Canada as compared with many other countries. If we in Canada would increase our consumption of this highly nutritious food, even to the 7.8 pounds per caplta of the United States, it would mean an increase of approximately 20,000,000 pounds in our total yearly consumption which would be of assistance to the economy of the industry and the country and more important, would result in an improved diet for many of our Canadian people.

The Black Diamond Circle was the first packaged item that was merchandised by the company. It is now sold throughout all territories where Black Diamond is represented and is exceptionally popular for buffet purpose and gifts.

Black Diamond Wedges were first introduced into the market in 1954 and are now available in mild, medium and old flavors. They are presently sold in all territories where Black Diamond Cheese is represented.

Black Diamond Sticks were first marketed in 1957 and after that year won the Cryovac Award of Merit as the "Profit Package of the Month". They have proven very popular and are now available throughout North America.

Canadian Dairy Industry Faces Keen Competition

HAMILTON (CP) — The greatest single problem facing the Canadian dairy industry is maintaining a market for dairy products, E. A. Lewis of Calgary, president of the National Dairy Council of Canada, says.

This must be done in face of the most intensive battle for the consumer's food dollar that has ever been waged, he said.

To win the battle, Mr. Lewis proposed selling more products to consumers at competitive prices; providing only finest quality products; stepping up education and promotion; developing new and improved foods to meet consumer needs.

Speaking to the annual convention of the Western Ontario Dairymen's Association, he said there was a sharp decline in 1958 butter consumption totaling more than 10,000,000 pounds. He noted the drop came after six years during which increases totalling 53,000,000 pounds were recorded.

J. J. Baker, director of the provincial milk products division, said current population increases may soon use up any surplus unless production is increased.

Good Management Featured Cheese Firm's Success

Black Diamond Cheese Ltd. Established in City in 1933

The founder of Black Diamond Cheese Limited, Mr. Robert F. Hart, came to Belleville in the fall of 1933 and established the company at 364 Pinnacle Street, its present location.

Mr. Hart's family was originally from Braintree, Essex, England, and emigrated to Connecticut many years ago. He entered the cheese business in New York City in 1897, later moving to Philadelphia where he worked for the E. W. Coon Company, founders of the famous "Coon Cheese." When the E. W. Coon Company started operations in upstate New York, Mr. Hart was put in charge of them and later ran the operation for Kraft-Phenix. During this period he spent considerable time in Canada purchasing cheese for the New York State operation.

For a long time Mr. Hart felt that there was a definite market in England for a standard quality mature Canadian Cheddar cheese, and when the company he was then working for refused to enter the market, he came to Canada and established the Belleville Cheddar Cheese Limited which later became known as Black Diamond Cheese Limited. During this period most Canadian cheese was shipped to the British market before it was aged, and then was cured in England. By Black Diamond's shelf curing process, aging was completed in Canada enabling the company to make regular shipments to England of a uniform mature product. This policy met with immediate acceptance on the part of English importers and today Black Diamond is an accepted standard in measuring Canadian Cheddar Cheese quality.

ORIGIN OF NAME

During the early years of the company the waxing of cheese in the country factories was virtually unknown and consequently during aging process the cloth covering the product collected a mould which was a dark grey in color. It was soon discovered that when this grey mould was dipped in liquid wax it turned a jet black . . . hence the name "Black Diamond."

Originally the company only handled the standard 90-pound wheel of cheddar. It was not long after the company started operations, however, that Mr. Hart gave his initial order for one hundred ten-pound circles to Foxboro Cheese Factory just north of Belleville. Originally they were intended to fill a modest retail summer demand for Black Diamond Cheese which had been developing in Canada and the United States. As the fame of Black Diamond Cheese increased, the business in circles grew rapidly until today tens of thousands of these cheeses are mailed to all parts of the world each year. This is, indeed, a significant advance from the small beginning of around one hundred circles some twenty-five years ago.

During his travels in England, Bob Hart noted the best hotels in that country provided a very attractive cheese tray from which their patrons could serve themselves. This was much different from the usual practice on this side of the Atlantic where a small piece of cheese was offered to the individual guest. Through Mr. Hart's continued efforts he succeeded in trading the idea of the cheese tray, centred with a Black Diamond Circle, to many hotels and clubs in North America. The Queen's Hotel in Belleville was one of the first hotels in North America to adopt this method of serving Black Diamond Cheese.

RELINQUISHED COMMAND

Mr. Hart relinquished command of Black Diamond Cheese Limited to the late Stanley L. Joss in 1947. Today Mr. Hart is doing a fine job as sales manager of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Co-Operative Limited in Belleville.

Mr. Stanley L. Joss attended Guelph Agricultural College after World War I, and immediately after his graduation entered the dairy industry. In February, 1934, he became the first Secretary-Manager of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association, which post he held until 1947 when he purchased control of Black Diamond Cheese Limited.

The development of sales and marketing were perhaps the two most important achievements of Black Diamond Cheese Limited under the management of Mr. Joss from 1947 to 1956.

The company title was changed from the Belleville Cheddar Cheese Limited to Black Diamond Cheese Limited in 1952 to capitalize further on the well-known trade name.

The purchase of the Old Cave Cheese Company in Tweed from Ottawa Dairy Limited was completed in 1952. The Old Cave Cheese operation was primarily a packaging one and this acquisition marked the entrance of Black Diamond Cheese Limited into the pre-packaged cheese business. Today Old Cave Cheese is sold in hundreds of stores throughout Ontario and Quebec. Pre-packaged Black Diamond wedges were first introduced to the market until 1954; now a large percentage of the company's sales is in factory packaged cheese. This change in the merchandising methods for natural cheese is not only noted in the dairy cases of food stores but in the internal organization of the company as well. Over seventy-five per cent of the staff of Black Diamond Cheese Limited are now exclusively engaged in the packaging operation, whereas only ten years ago the packaging of cheese was handled on a part-time basis by regular warehouse employees.

DOMESTIC MARKET CULTIVATED

The basic sales policy of the company underwent significant changes during the years 1947-1956. The emphasis was changed from export markets to the domestic market. In 1953 the American market was closed by an embargo on Canadian cheese entering the United States and the export of cheese to the United Kingdom was controlled by the Canadian government from 1939 to 1955. These stumbling blocks to foreign trade necessarily forced the company to look to the domestic market to maintain its sales volume. Accordingly in 1949 an exclusive sales agent was appointed in Ontario and in 1952 and 1954 the same action was taken in Quebec and the Maritimes respectively. Following this policy of domestic market development instituted by Mr. Stanley Joss, the new management opened the British Columbian market in 1956 and the Prairie market in 1957.

In 1955 the United Kingdom market was opened to private exporters. Foreseeing this move, Mr. Joss went to England in 1934 to re-establish Black Diamond's old business contacts which had not been used since 1939. As a tribute to a job well done, the Black Diamond business in the United Kingdom has been growing steadily since the first post-war shipment of Black Diamond Cheese in 1955. This steady growth has been achieved in spite of wide price fluctuations in the world markets price of cheese. This latter point would tend to reaffirm the soundness of the company founder's idea that there was a steady market in the British Isles for a standard high quality mature Canadian Cheese.

SEEKS EXPORT MARKETS

Today . . . as trade barriers are being relaxed on food products, Black Diamond Cheese Limited is again looking towards export markets. Increased agency coverage in the United States and the West Indies was achieved in 1957 and 1958 and the markets in these new territories are developing rapidly.

After Mr. Stanley L. Joss' death early in 1956, the management of Black Diamond Cheese Limited passed to his son, Don Joss, who now is vice-president and general manager.

The history of Black Diamond Cheese Limited has been truly marked by the three essentials of progress . . . the idea of a standard high quality in mature Canadian Cheddar Cheese was conceived . . . a company created . . . and the challenge of today's marketing trends accepted.

FREIGHT SHED AT BELLEVILLE DOCKS

Early History of Cheese Industry in South Hastings Recalled by Chas. B. Meyers

Charles B. Meyers of R.R. 3, Belleville, ex-president of the Belleville cheese exchange and of Bayside factory, now in his 88th year, has been able to supply some interesting information on the earlier days of the cheese industry in Central Ontario from 1890-1915.

Mr. Meyers believes that the Front of Sidney factory on the east side of the village of Bayside was the first factory in central Ontario, being built in 1865. The water for this factory came from a spring and was piped eight hundred feet through bored cedar logs. The milk was collected morning and evening and in order to keep the evening milk fresh overnight, the spring water was circulated through the vat liner to cool it. Mr. Meyers suggested that this twice daily delivery to the factory may not have been done entirely to maintain the milk's quality but may have been done to prevent the cream settling to the top of cans at the individual farms and being skimmed off.

NEW PLANT BUILT

This factory was closed about 1904, and replaced by the newer Bayside plant. Mr. Meyers, was elected president of the new Bayside plant in the fall of 1905. He was chosen as president. The water from this plant was pumped from the Bay of Quinte by a windmill. One Saturday afternoon Mr. Meyers went over to the plant and found no one around but saw a number of men crowded around the windmill, which was two hundred yards south of the plant.

He walked down and found that the windmill had stopped working and no one was willing to climb up the seventy-five foot steel tower to see what was the matter. Mr. Meyers proceeded to do so. He got the necessary nuts and bolts and fixed the windmill so the factory was able to make cheese that Saturday night as usual since cheese factories did not make on Sunday. At the election that fall, he was elected president of the Bayside factory.

One of Mr. Meyers' first actions as president of the Bayside factory was to have a cool curing room made and to purchase a mechanical agitatorz for the factory. The cool curing room allowed this factory to make a softer cheese for the domestic market which was well received by the local stores.

Not only did each farmer truck his own milk, but he was responsible for trucking equivalent qualities of cheese to the dock and when ice cooled curing rooms began, the farmer had to truck ice to a storage, the amount based on the quantity of milk he expected to deliver.

While some movement to Montreal was by rail, the S. S. Alexandria, loading each Monday at Belleville, was a large carrier of cheese to Montreal. The Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Company could not land at the small Belleville dock so these ships had to be loaded at midnight on the Murray Canal.

CHANGE BASIS OF PAYMENT

Prior to 1915 cheese patrons were paid for pounds of milk delivered instead of butterfat. In 1912, Mr. George Publow, dairy instructor arrived at the Belleville Cheese Exchange with cheese each week made from 500 lbs. of milk at the experimental farm. The varying size of cheese clearly showed that a high testing milk did produce more cheese and payment was then changed to payment based on fat test. Mr. Meyers still wonders how much his low yielding Holsteins were subsidized by his neighbor's jerseys before the basis of payment was changed.

When asked if he remembered W. S. Cook, Mr. Meyers told about a specially cured cheese Mr. Cook had served at a small party for his factory friends at Christmas 1911. "W.S. had taken a large 90 lb. cheese in June and plugged it. Regularly he had poured champagne in the plug hole and by Christmas that cheese was the best I ever tasted."

VICE PRESIDENT NIXON TOOK HOME BLACK DIAMOND CHEESE

(From the files of The Ontario Intelligencer July 8, 1957 . . .)

"The Vice President of the United States was in Belleville for the weekend. Queried as to why he was in Canada, Mr. Nixon replied that he "had come to pass the weekend playing golf on the course he had heard so much about and to get some of Hastings County famous cheddar cheese."

Five pounds were bought from Black Diamond by the skipper of the Widgeon II."

The three pictures appearing on this page were taken in 1912 by Mr. M. Topley, photographer for the Illustrated London News published in London, England. It was believed his publisher sent him out to photograph industrial plants, including cheese factories, in the Bay of Quinte area, to encourage emigration from the Old Country.

The pictures on this page show some aspects of the cheese industry of 1912 including two factories, one, of the factory at Bayside, and the other at Zion, about twelve miles north of Belleville. The warehouse is at the old Schuster dock and shows cheese being delivered from the cheese factories by wagons for shipment by water to Montreal and from there to London, England.

TERMINAL AND CHEESE WAREHOUSE — BELLEVILLE

The cheese industry in the Belleville area during the first world war and since that time would hardly be complete without some evidence from W. R. McCreary and Canada Transport Limited of the part they played during such years in the cheese business in Central Ontario.

While cheese had been moving to Montreal by ships for many earlier years the "Glen Allan" commenced operating in 1923, and in 1940 Mr. McCreary purchased the "Glen Allan" and during the second world war moved tremendous quantities of cheese from this area to Montreal for export.

In 1946 Canada Transport Limited replaced the "Glen Allan" with the modern "City of Belleville" which was built in Port Arthur, Ontario, as one of twenty such ships during the second world war. With highway development this ship was sold to Vancouver for Pacific coastal service.

With the falling of cheese production in Ontario and the lessening of exports to Great Britain, Canada Transport Limited now moves its cheese and other merchandise by modern trucks.

Canada Transport Limited extend to W. S. Cook & Son Limited and Black Diamond Cheese Limited a successful future during their amalgamation.

English Cheese Makers Noted For Quality Of Product

Welsh Caerphilly Cheese which the Black Diamond Cheese Company is importing for the Canadian trade.

Famous English Cheeses Will be Marketed By Black Diamond Company

By BRUCE SCOTT
Milk Marketing Board of England and Wales

English producers of cheese have for centuries been recognized throughout the world as being second to none for the quality and workmanship of their products. By way of historical significance it is interesting to note that the forerunner of our own Canadian cheddar cheese was first produced in the picturesque little Somerset village of Cheddar. This cheese proved a universal favorite from the era of the Tudors, at least, and has not surrendered its position of importance in our present day and age.

Cheshire cheese, the most favored variety of North England, is possibly the oldest English cheese which has stood the test of time, for writers as early as the twelfth century have referred to its fine quality, and later, in the early seventeenth century, Sir Kenelm Digby acknowledged the product to be "quick, fat, rich, well-tasted cheese for toasting purposes."

Another delicious cheese of Britain is Caerphilly, the famous cheese of Wales, and this variety, with its fresh, delectable flavor was originally made on the small farms in the valleys around the eleventh century castle and town of Caerphilly, where it was sold in the local markets and has now found much favor throughout Britain and the world.

From the foregoing then, it is evident that the British cheese maker of today has hadia very real tradition in the ultimate development of his skill and art. Its formative years, centuries ago, the arts and talents of cheese manufacturers were passed from one generation to the next, and as may well be imagined the proficiency and dexterity of the cheese maker of this age has meant English cheese varieties today cannot but be of the very higest standards of perfection.

A LIVING TRADITION

As John Arlott points out in his most excellent publication "English Cheeses of The South and West" — "English cheese making is a living tradition because it goes on changing and developing. When a tradition ceases to develop it dies, and becomes material for the museum. The good cheese maker, because he is a true craftsman goes on increasing his knowledge and skill, so the tradition lives."

The Milk Marketing Board of England and Wales has long recognized the vast potential markets in Canada and the United States for such as English cheese. Particularly does this apply to the specialty cheese outlets in these two tremendous countries. Therefore, it is with extreme pleasure and sincerity that the Milk Marketing Board is now offering genuine English cheese to Canadians and Americans.

MILK MARKETING BOARD OF ENGLAND AND WALES

The year 1938 marked the Silver Jubilee of the Milk Marketing Board of England and Wales. This organization is a manifestation of agricultural planning. In almost every rural parish throughout the length and breadth of England and Wales there are milk producers. 132,000 of these men, whose dairy herds produce over two thousand million gallons of milk each year. Such vast production entails problems of marketing, and since the Board undertakes the responsibility of this phase producers are better able to concentrate their attention upon their many production problems and other farm activities.

MAJOR TASKS

The collection of farm milk is of course a major undertaking, and the Board also assumes responsibility for arranging transport of milk, not only to its own creameries and dairy plants, but to all dairy plants in England and Wales. To provide some indication of the task of the Board in respect to milk collection, it is a fact that in 1937-8 there was an average milk collection of nearly 5,000,000 gallons each day, and approximately 5,000 lorries throughout the country were engaged in this task. In all, some 650,000 ten-gallon cans were collected daily from 132,000 farms by the Board organization.

The Milk Marketing Board is, as part of its marketing activities, one of the leading manufacturers of dairy products in England and Wales. It has creameries and dairy plants in different parts of the country. The milk from 7,500 farms is delivered to them each day, and in total they handled approximately one hundred million gallons in 1937-8. The Board operates, therefore, a sizable business undertaking in this respect, although of course it also operates other agricultural enterprises as well.

The financial turnover of the business of the above mentioned creameries was nearly $33,000,000 in 1937-8. The dairy plants are engaged principally in the manufacture of butter, cheese and milk powders, but each has different activities according to its circumstances. Since this is so, dairy products are marketed in England under its own trademark — "Dairy Crest" and in Canada and United States. English cheese varieties are sold under the names "English Crest" and "Black Diamond."

1,750 PEOPLE EMPLOYED

To carry out the varied operations of the Board organization, some 4,000 people are employed, and of these relatively few are engaged in administrative work. At once however, the internal administration by the Board organization is most essential and worthy of note. Milk cheques to producers are forwarded monthly to over 130,000 shippers, from one central office, and this represents, indeed, a feat of modern mechanized accounting systems. This mammoth accounting task requires detailed records and accounts relative to producers and buyers of milk. For this purpose then, the Board houses in its main office at Thames Ditton, Surrey, many machines and mechanical aids, which are a source of wonder to the numerous visitors.

The Board's accounting processes of course cover all Board responsibilities and taken collectively they all form part of the running of an organization with an annual turnover of 5,000,000,000 each year.

CHESHIRE CHEESE

In connection with the excellence of Cheshire cheese, what higher compliment could be paid to that variety than to have named a famous old English public house "The Olde Cheshire Cheese," "An Eating House for Goodly Fare". This particular inn, in the Fleetmarket of Fleet Street, London, England, survives to this day. It is interesting to note that the great Doctor Johnson much patronized "Ye Olde Cheshire Hoard" during his lifetime.

Reference has previously been made to the fact that Cheshire was know as such in the twelfth century, and it is even said to have existed when Doomsday Book was compiled. In the sixteenth century the famous historian, John Speed declared Cheshire cheese to be the best in all of Europe.

In a more modern vein, and to emphasize that the Cheshire of today possesses the identical high qualities of another era, it is only necessary to refer to the writings of Maurice des Ombiaux, who, while admitting the English gourmet's preference for Stilton, rated Cheshire cheese higher, and he observed "how much more delectable is also when one takes care to give it a good piece of Cheshire for a companion." Adjoiningly, from the more modern standpoint, all through English cookery books until the end this fine cheese is written of with admiration and affection.

Cheshire cheese is notable chiefly for its nutty, very slightly salty flavor, and is characterized by its reddish color. Its very special tangy flavor is said to be due to the soil Cheshire County, which contains rich deposits of salt. This is imparted through the pasture to the milk from which the cheese is made. Hence, one of the characteristics for which the cheese is famous.

It would be wrong perhaps to conclude this brief outline of Cheshire cheese without reference to one curious legend on Cheshire, which has persisted to this day, and which points up the pride a Cheshire cheese maker has in his product. It is said that a West Indian planter was boasting to a Cheshire cheese manufacturer of the fruit they grew in Jamaica, sometimes two crops a year. Whereupon the Cheshire producer brought in a great cheese of particularly delicious quality — "this is the fruit we grow here" said the cheese maker, "even twice a day".

CAERPHILLY CHEESE

Wales! What images are conjured in the mind when one considers this wonderful little country, with its legends and traditions of hospitality, valor and independence. This splendid country, today part of the United Kingdom, preserving with pardonable pride their customs, national dress and speech.

With specific regard to Welsh contributions to the world in connection with cheese, Caerphilly can truly be said to have unique characteristics, entirely different to other cheese varieties of the world. You see, no Welshman would produce a variety unless it was different, and this fia is well with his national character!

In 1540 Andrew Boorde narrated following and somewhat humorous tale in his book "A Compendious Regyment or a Dyetary of Helth," referring in a round-about way to a Welshman's fondness of cheese and independence, "at a certaine tyme, there was in bevern a great controversy of Welchmen which with their rayrakinge and babelyne frobelyd all the others. Wherefore God says to St. Peter that was very of them and he would fayn have them out of heven. To whom St. Peter sayde "Good Lorde I warrant you that shall be shortly done." Wherefore St. Peter went outside of heven gayts and eryd with a loude voice, "Cause Babel Cause Babel" that is as moche as to say "Rosty'd cheese" which thynges the Welchmen herynge ran out of heven a greteful. And St. Peter went into heven and lokyd in the doré and so spayrd all the Welchmen out."

Caerphilly, the town from which the cheese derives its name, lies at the foot of South Wales Hills, fifteen miles north of Cardiff.

It is an extremely old town, its exact date of origin not being known, although references are made to it in ancient documents before the year 1000 A.D. Caerphilly castle was captured in 1327, and apart from this fine Edwardian edifice it is the characteristic Caerphilly cheese which has made the town famous. Caerphilly cheese, in its traditional shape, is a flat circular variety nine inches in diameter, two to three inches deep, and weighs approximately eight pounds. Originally it was believed that the product matured too quickly to be sold throughout the world, but because of the miracles of modern packaging by Black Diamond Canadians and Americans are assured they can enjoy this remarkable product in the same manner to which the people of Britain have become accustomed.

John Arlott, in his excellent book states quite candidly "there is no other cheese quite like Caerphilly."

It is a semi-soft cheese, white to off-white in color, with a mild, sweet, nutty nature. It possesses a mild, yet distinctive flavor, with a rather fresh creamy tang. Its greatest quality lies in the fact that it may be eaten with great generosity without any tendency to cloy.

AWARDS AND PRIZES

It may well be asked if the Milk Marketing Board Creameries can produce the high quality English cheese for the North American market. For a reply it is only necessary to refer to the awards and prizes won by the board organization at the various festivals and cheese grazing competitions held across the United Kingdom. For example, possibly the London Dairy Show held annually in London, England, is the most widely known World Dairy Products Exhibition, and awards won here undoubtedly would satisfy the most severest of critics. In 1957-8 for instance, Board Creameries were awarded six first prizes for Cheshire cheeses, one of which was the New Zealand Perpetual Challenge Trophy. With respect to Caerphilly cheese, in the only class provided, the Board Creamery at Sturminster Newton was awarded first prize. Similar results can be anticipated for the 1958-9 London Dairy Show.

APPOINTMENTS

With pride and pleasure it is respectfully announced by the Milk Marketing Board of England and Wales that the Black Diamond Cheese Limited, of

So she plucked up her courage, went into the dining room and apologized to Sir Winston. 'I am very sorry we haven't got any more cheese,' she began. Compulsory Cheese Grading And Payment of Premiums Greatly Improved Quality

By the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa

The art of manufacturing cheese was no doubt brought to Canada by the early settlers. At first cheese was manufactured only on the farms, but in 1864 the first cheese factory was established. By the year 1867 more than two hundred cheese factories were operating in Ontario. The cheese industry developed rapidly, until in the year 1900 there were 3,389 cheese factories, as well as an additional 358 establishments which produced both cheese and butter.

In 1890, the first dairy commissioner was appointed by the government of Sir John A. Macdonald. The grading of dairy products as we know it in Canada today is the result of a continued effort over many years to introduce and maintain order in the marketing of dairy products. In 1900 an official referee of butter and cheese was appointed on the request of cheese factory and creamery operators who claimed that the reports they received on their shipments from the buyers were not always in accordance with the actual quality.

At first the only classification used was "Finest Quality." Later the official referee was required to class the cheese or butter as "Finest" or "Under Finest" quality. This was an attempt at grading on an optional basis. Factories soon found that practically all complaints were justified, and the position was abolished in 1909 through lack of requests from sellers and buyers for such service.

COMPULSORY GRADING STARTED

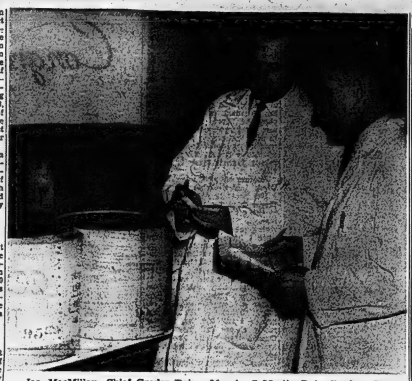
There is little evidence in the records of any attempt at further grading until the year 1917 when the United Kingdom and Canada had an agreement for the purchase of Canadian cheese. Prices for "Finest Quality" and "Under Finest Quality" were set, and the cheese was classified in those grades. This grading afforded an opportunity to follow certain grades and standards which were generally adopted. Compulsory grading of cheese and butter for export became effective in 1923. Great opposition to this legislation came from importers in the United Kingdom, from exporters in Canada, from country cheese buyers, and factory operators. However, grading is recognized as having done more to improve the quality of butter and cheese than any other measures ever adopted.

Today cheese and butter are classified into four different categories: Canada First Grade, Canada Second Grade, Canada Third Grade and Below Canada Third Grade. As the name would indicate, only the highest quality product is included in Canada's First Grade. When undesirable characteristics appear in dairy products, they are classified according to intensity and objectionable tendencies not to the other three grades. To qualify for Canada First Grade the flavor of a dairy product must be clean, without any objectionable flavor, and have corresponding desirable characteristics of color, texture and packing.

PREMIUM PAYMENTS

To the credit of the perishleaders of the dairy industry, the sound grading standards they established have changed little over the years. Occasionally a new development is included in grading procedure. As an example, in an effort to improve the quality of Canadian Cheddar cheese, the Cheese and Cheese Factory Improvement Act was passed in 1939. This provided for payment of premium to factories that produced high quality cheese as determined by officers of the Dairy Products Division. Today about 70 per cent of all cheese graded qualifies for this bonus payment, which materially affects the price to the producers of milk for cheesemaking.

In an endeavor to improve the quality, the Ontario Department of Agriculture initiated an educational program for the purpose of eliminating foreign matter from cheese. Effective June 1st., 1955, the Government of Canada lent assistance to this program by denying payment of premium on all cheese which did not meet a high standard of extraneous free content. Further incentive for the production of clean milk and ultimately clean cheese was provided by the Federal Government when as of July 1st., 1957, results of extraneous matter analysis became a factor in determining the grade of cheese. In 1958, approximately 96 per cent of all cheese graded fulfilled the requirements of Canada First Grade insofar as this particular consideration was concerned.



Grading of dairy products is a free service provided by officers of the Dairy Products Division, Federal Department of Agriculture. It has done much to bring about uniformity and quality improvement of dairy products.

Cheese Test Weighing Ended Incorrect Weight Complaints

By "The Observer"

The Biblical phrase "Weighed in the balance and found wanting" was so true of the frailties of human nature that a system of test weighing cheese came into being. Buyers complained, not without good cause, that the marked weight on boxed cheese did not always correspond with the true weight.

It must be admitted that sometimes this state of affairs was due to innocent mistakes made in the stencilling of the weight on the box. For instance, it has been noted that the marked weight is 98 lbs., whereas the true weight was 89 lbs., a transposition of figures which could have been unintentional but the loss would be nine lbs. to the buyer and not test weighing been instituted. Even so, such a mistake may pass unnoticed as only 10 per cent of not one query has been made regarding the result of test weighing as stated on each individual certificate which must accompany every lot.

We would like to make public the honesty and integrity of the buyers in general, and one in particular, to wit, good Bill Cook of W. S. Cook & Son.

The official weigher brought to his notice that a particular cheese factory was giving an average of two pounds overweight on each standard cheese shipped. Mr. Cook immediately reached the cheese-maker by phone and explained the "plus" situation. As a result every box was re-weighed and re-marked, because of Mr. Cook's honesty, and an opposite example may be quoted. Before test weighing came into effect, Bob Hart of Black Diamond found that every box from a certain cheese factory was five lbs. short weight. The cheese factory owner was very indignant and almost abusive when Mr. Hart complained. Then he did the only thing possible, he requested that a test be made of the scale at the cheese factory by an official of the Weights and Measures Department.

When the test was made it was discovered that although the scale in question was correct, the cheesemaker used a proportional weight which did not correspond to the leverage of the scale. When the error was pointed out and the marked boxes ready for shipment tested with the substitution of a correct proportional weight, and every box ready for shipment marked five lbs. plus, the cheese factory owner was most apologetic! Needless to add, that wrong proportional weight was confiscated and buried into a stream when on the return journey back to Belleville.

Another anecdote might be related. At a cheese convention a few years ago a well known cheese factory owner approached this official weigher with the remark, "Thanks old man for giving me correct weights, for since I have been sending my cheese to the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association at Belleville, I have had hardly one short weight cheese, whereas when I used to send 'em to buyers direct, they used to short weight me plenty." And this crusty old official weigher rejoined "What the 'ell have you got to thank me for, if your ruddy cheese had been short weight, they would have been so reported, so don't thank me for anything."

Finally we might explain and we quote the official weigher, that "all standard cheese, average 90 lbs., must have a surplus of one-half pound over marked weight to cover wax and cloth. And if by chance you cheesemakers receive a certificate to the effect that you have not given correct weight you can be assured that what you have marked on the box does not come up to standard weight."

To quote a remark made by that wise old sage of the cheese industry, W. H. (Herb) Morton of The Ontario Intelligencer, "You can't lose anything if you don't give it."

MOSCOW (AP)—Moscow has put out a new telephone book—its first since 1954. The first volume in the 20,000-copy edition contains only office numbers and most of them are government offices. Officials say the second volume—presumably with some private numbers—will be published later.

WEDDING IN APRIL

TOKYO (AP)—The cabinet today designated mid-April as the time for Crown Prince Akihito and his commoner fiancee, Michiko Shoda, to marry. The exact date will be fixed later. Akihito, 25, and his bride-to-be, 24, met on a tennis court in August, 1957.

System Of Selling Cheese Has Changed Greatly In Recent Years

By ARNOLD JOHNSON
Secretary Ontario Cheese Producers Marketing Board

The system of selling cheddar cheese from factory to buyer has changed greatly in recent years. Gone are the cheese boards which served the industry for many decades. The Belleville Cheese Board, later the exchange, was held in the city hall council chambers until 1956. The cheese exchange is now located in Kingston. The picture above is the Dutch Clock which is used to auction all cheese produced in Eastern Ontario.

During the early years of the cheese industry in Ontario, it became apparent that a method of selling the product was needed to protect the interests of the primary producer. The farmers owned the product and in many instances the manufacturing plant, so it was natural that they should wish to control the sale.

In the large dairy producing sections of Ontario there was a cheese factory at nearly every crossroad. A group of factories would organize in an area and establish a cheese board, or auction sale, where the product was sold to the highest bidder. As transportation was difficult in that period, many cheese boards were operated throughout Central and Eastern Ontario to look after the needs of the cheese milk producers.

At this time a large volume of the production was sold for export to the United Kingdom and only a small amount was used for domestic consumption. Many of the buyers purchased cheese for export firms and there began to appear the term "Regulars" as factories sold to the same men each week and did not board their cheese on the exchanges. The system spread until a large proportion of the cheese was sold in this manner, and gradually some of the cheese boards ceased to operate, or were auctions only in name and did not function in the manner that was first intended.

When the Ontario Cheese Producers first organized in the early 1930's one of their main objectives was to re-establish the cheese board in its proper place. The ordinary farmer was not pleased with the prices he was receiving in those depression days and a number of auctions were reinstated and others functioned on a much improved standard. In 1933 there were cheese boards at Belleville, Campbellford, Kingston, Madoc, Napanee, Delta, Lansdowne, Perth and a number of others throughout the Western and Eastern parts of the Province.

There were still a number of abuses with this system of selling and in 1935, when the Ontario Cheese Producers were empowered at the annual meeting to market Ontario cheese, many cheese boards were closed. The name was changed to "cheese exchanges" and only six operated in the province, as follows: Belleville, Brockville, Kemptville, Cornwall, Vankeek Hill in Eastern Ontario and Stratford in Western Ontario. Finally the system of selling as it had been known was cancelled in 1956 and only two exchanges operated in Ontario.

For Western Ontario the Stratford Exchange has been conducted on an auction basis. The exchanges in Eastern and Central Ontario were closed and one was opened in Kingston to look after the needs of the area. Instead of selling the cheese as on the old exchanges, a Dutch Clock system was installed. The clock is situated in the sales office on Bagot Street, Kingston, Ontario, across from the LaSalle Hotel, and it is operated by means of electricity. Each buyer is allocated a seat on the exchange and a button stops the clock at the price which he wishes to pay. The clock is run by an operator who starts it at a price higher than he expects to receive. As the hand travels in a counter-clockwise position it indicates the amount and the price continues to drop. When the hand points at the figure the buyer wishes to pay for a particular lot, he pushes the button and automatically stops the clock at the price indicated, and his number lights up on the clock's face. This method of sale was instituted during 1956 and has continued throughout 1957 and 1958.

Rowe Family In Cheese Making Business 60 Years

Mr. Douglas Rowe, owner-operator of the Warkworth Cheese Factory, "tries" one of the 40-lb. square cheese manufactured in his plant.

In contrast to the modern labor saving, machinery in the new Warkworth factory, cheese factories at the turn of the century had but the barest essentials. Shown above is the interior of one such old time factory in the Quinte area.

Exterior view of the modern Warkworth Cheese Factory which is the only factory operating in Northumberland County west of Campbellford. Milk is hauled from as far as Port Hope for processing.

Warkworth Factory Largest And Most Modern in District

A family cheesemaking tradition dating back to before the turn of the century is being carried on by Douglas Rowe, owner-operator of the Warkworth Cheese Factory, one of the largest plants in Eastern Ontario.

Douglas' father before him was a cheesemaker as was his mother who operated the factory following the death of her husband in 1918.

But in the 60 years during which cheese making has been a tradition of the Rowe family, the industry has seen a great many changes.

Before the turn of the century, the operation was entirely by hand. During the cheese making process milk in big wooden vats was stirred by hand rakes, the curd mill was operated by hand, and the cheese press was hand operated.

Today all this has been changed with the Rowe Factory at Warkworth having all labor saving machinery possible. Vats are mechanically agitated, cheese is pressed by automatic compressed air presses, and even milk cans are mechanically washed before going back to the milk producers.

During the late 1800's Northumberland County had a cheese factory almost at every cross-road. But increased shipment of milk to city dairies for the fluid milk trade and amalgamation of smaller plants have caused most of these to disappear.

LARGE STAFF

Today the big modern plant at Warkworth with all its labor saving machinery is the only one left west of Campbellford. Milk is brought in by truck from as far distant as Port Hope and factory personnel, including truck drivers operating company-owned closed milk vans, totals as high as 12 during the summer production peak.

As noted earlier the owner-operator of the Warkworth plant comes from a cheese-making family. His father, the late William Rowe, learned his cheese making with David Wallace at the Old Forest Cheese Factory near Hoard's station, and later operated several factories in the Madoc district, where Doug was born. His mother was also an experienced cheese maker and operated the factory herself following the death of her husband in 1918.

Two uncles of Douglas also were cheese makers, while two brothers likewise are in the cheese-making business. Delbert Rowe is maker at Zion's Hill Factory in Hastings county and Harold Rowe is at Hoard's Station in Northumberland.

All three brothers showed cheese in the British Empire Dairy Show at Belleville last November.

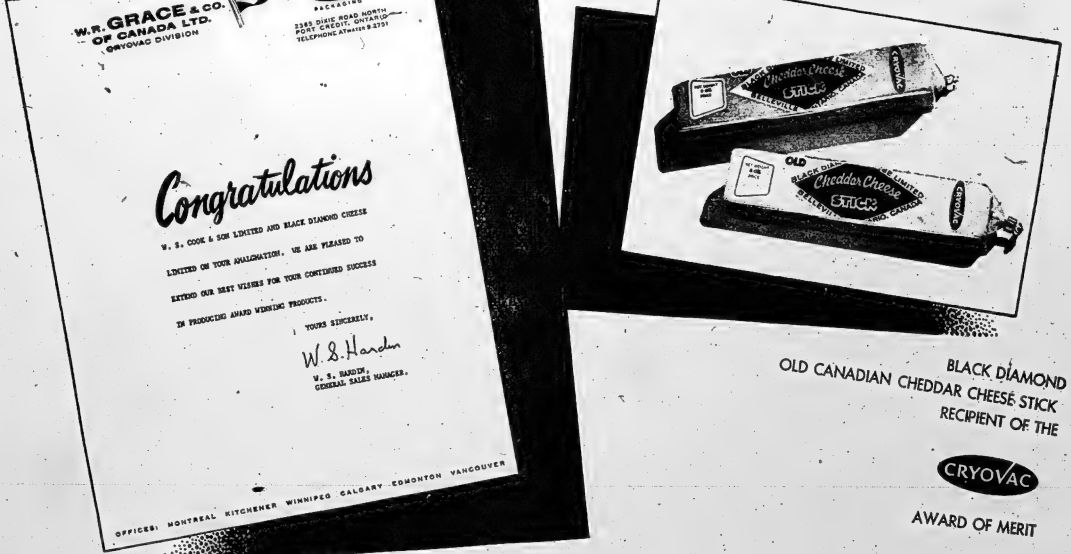
EXTENSIVE EXPERIENCE

Although a cheese maker for most of his working years Douglas nevertheless has a farming background. After finishing school in the Stirling district he spent four years on a farm following which he took up cheese making in 1933. He spent five years with the late Morris Rose at Central Factory near Stirling attended Kingston Dairy School in 1934 and in 1935 took his first factory at Wellman. The following year he operated the Stirling Cheese Factory on the fourth concession of Rawdon. After his marriage to Emma Hopkinson of Stirling he went to Hoard's Station where he operated the factory there for eight years.

They then decided to go into business for themselves and purchased their own factory at Warkworth. At the time there were eight factories operating in the district all with a fair volume.

But soon increased demands for whole milk saw farmers shipping to city dairies, and as help became scarcer on the farms, milk producers cut down their milking herds and turned to beef cattle. Consequently cheese factory volume decreased until the point was reached where it was no longer profitable to operate the smaller plants.

At this time Mr. Rowe purchased the Norham factory and brought the producers' milk from this area into Warkworth. During the next year two other factories closed their doors and with milk from these being taken in to Warkworth the production could not be handled in the old Warkworth plant.



MODERN FACTORY BUILT

A new site was purchased on the outskirts of the village and with the assistance of the Federal Government under the Dilapidated old Warkworth cheese factory is striking contrast to modern lines of the new factory building. Douglas Rowe purchased the old Warkworth factory when he decided to go into business for himself, then constructed new plant when old factory was no longer able to handle volume of milk.

The latest in labor saving machinery and milk handling machinery is installed in the Warkworth Cheese Factory, one of the largest in the Central Ontario area. Owned and operated by Douglas Rowe, the plant employs as high as 12 manduring the peak season. Square cheese for a specialized trade are manufactured at the modern plant.

In this plant was installed the latest in labor saving equipment with the view of handling a large volume of milk. For greater ease of handling the old large 30 and 40 gallon cans were exchanged for smaller 8gh-gallon cans which are now hauled from the surrounding area in covered trucks.

On arrival at the factory the milk is emptied into a stainless steel tank and automatically weighed in the receiving room. Empty cans are run through a straight way automatic washer and are returned to the truck completely sterilized ready for re-use.

After weighing, the milk is pumped through a clarifier removing any sediment which may be in the milk, then is run through a high temperature short time pasteurizer and then cooled to manufacturing temperatures.

After pasteurizing the milk flows into stainless steel vats each with a capacity of 10,000 cr 12,000 pounds.

AUTOMATIC EQUIPMENT

These vats are equipped with automatic agitators for stirring the curd in the whey and with forkers for stirring curd after removal of the whey.

"During faster's time stirring was all done by hand with wooden rakes and hand forks," said Mr. Rowe.

The old horizontal cheese presses in which cheese was pressed through operation of a lever and ratchet advanced worm gear, has been replaced by stainless steel automatic equipment operated by air pressure.

And with the passing of the years even the shape of the finished cheese has changed. Instead of large 99-pound round cheese which still make up most Canadian export cheese shipments and also a percentage of the domestic trade, cheese at Warkworth are put up for a more prompt and replaced with specialized market in 10-pound lumbed cheese.

Losses Turn to Profits With Cheese

The wait in the restaurant queue for lunch can be long — especially when you're hungry. But it happens . . .

It can also be annoying to the restaurateur, especially when potential customers turn away to eat elsewhere.

But those queues are a fine source of revenue to one salesman of cheeses and cheese crackers.

He proposed to one restaurant owner that he offer cheese and biscuit appetizers to lunch-hungry queue-waiting customers.

The idea worked. Waiting customers felt mollified, somewhat pleased . . . the queue grew longer and nobody seemed to mind . . . least of all the salesman of cheeses.

HUGE SEALS

Sea elephants, largest type of ore seal compared to the Bellseals, may grow 20 feet long and 4½ tons, which weigh more than 5,000 pounds.

GET NEW BLOOD

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)— The Agustin boys, premature triplets born to a 15-year-old wife last Friday, have new blood in their veins today. They underwent exchange transfusions Wednesday night after physicians became convinced over their pans the domestic trade, cheese at dried appearance. Their blood Warkworth are put up for a more prompt and replaced with specialized market in 10-pound lumbed cheese.

CANADIAN CEDAR

Eastern Canadian cedar trees are small compared to the Bellseals, may grow 20 feet long and 4½ Columbia spruces, which weigh more than 5,000 pounds, reach heights of 175 feet.

Plane Downed, Mikoyan Spends Night In Canada

Struggles to Argentia, Nfld. on Two Engines

ARGENTIA, Nfld. (CP)—Anastas Mikoyan, bound home to Russia, made an unexpected stop in Canada overnight when two engines on his transatlantic plane failed over the ocean south of Newfoundland.

The Scandinavian Airlines DC-7C struggled in to this United States Navy base on its two remaining engines, escorted by an RCAF rescue plane and a Pan American World Airways plane.

The sinister Newfoundland office said there were 49 persons aboard, 35 of them passengers. They were flying from New York to Copenhagen.

Sergo.

NO SIGN OF WORRY

Capt. W. E. Hastings, base commander, said: "Mr. Mikoyan appeared not at all bothered by the incident. He was very matter-of-fact—very casual."

Mr. Mikoyan took a stroll and dropped in to the bowling alley to watch league play.

Elias Chavin, a New York fur dealer who was a fellow-passenger, said: "Mr. Mikoyan was not perturbed at all when the announcement that an engine trouble came over the plane's loudspeaker."

Oleg Troyanovsky, Mikoyan's interpreter, made a telephone call to Arkady Sobolev, the Soviet Union's delegate to the United Nations in New York. Apparently he told Sobolev what had happened so he could inform Moscow.

Mikoyan and the rest of the stranded passengers spent the night in the base officers' quarters, a 10-storey hotel-like building.

Another Scandinavian Airlines DC-7C was due here about noon to fly the passengers on to Copenhagen.

NEW YORK (AP) — A Scandinavian Airline spokesman today expressed doubt that a mishap last night that forced the plane carrying Russian Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan to land at Argentina, Nfld.

The spokesman said the plane had been closely guarded after it arrived here at Idlewild airport and that New York police had inspected it thoroughly before its departure.

The pilot, Capt. Carl Schultzberg, reported he detected a defective temperature gauge in engine while 108 miles from Gander, his scheduled stopping point.

"While trying to adjust this instrument, engine No. 4 also broke out in engine No. 1 which lasted five or six seconds," he said.

Argentia was the nearest alternate airport.

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev was announced today that the engines of the Scandinavian airliner in which Soviet deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan was flying across the Atlantic failed yesterday and he was brought here for "close technical investigation."

The four-engined DC-7 was forced to land at Argentia, Nfld., Newfoundland, after it developed trouble 400 miles from Gander, Trans-Canada Air Lines said.

The company statement said the plane developed engine trouble while 400 miles southeast of Gander as Capt. Arne Schultzberg "detected the failure of the supercharger of the outer-starboard engine. He immediately feathered (shut down) the engine and decided to return to Idlewild."

"Twenty minutes later, a fire warning was received from the outer-port engine. The captain decided to land at the nearest airport, the U.S. naval airport at Argentia, Newfoundland."

The flight to Argentia and the landing were normal, the company said, as a result of its capacity of maintaining height on two engines.

"The airline will seal all four engines and return them to Stockholm for detailed and scientific examination," the statement added.

The company has sent a replacement plane from Copenhagen with an estimated time of arrival at Argentia at 10:37 a.m. EST to pick up the passengers.

No Merger Of Brotherhoods Say Engineers

MONTREAL (CP) — The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers in a statement Tuesday disclaimed any intention of amalgamating with the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

The statement came because "recent press reports across Canada would indicate that discussions are at present being promoted by the Canadian Labor Congress which could result in a merger between the BLE and the BLFE in Canada."

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers "is of the consistent opinion that 1949 has consistently declined to advance, promote or effect any amalgamation, merger or consolidation with any other organization."

Neither the Canadian Labor Congress nor any other organization or group of organizations have any authority whatever to attempt to bring about an amalgamation between these two unions and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers does not contemplate entering into any such arrangement."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: The battle of warm air from the gulf and cold air from the Arctic reaches a standoff over Great Lakes region overnight. Snow gave way to steady rain throughout Ontario and further warming today will change the freezing rain to rain near the lower Great Lakes while the snow belt will shift farther into Northern Ontario this afternoon.

Cold air will return to Southern Ontario with snowflurries and blowing snow tonight. Thursday will be snow mere sunny and quite cold with moderate north winds and a few flurries south of the lakes.

Each Side Blames Other for Walkout

WINDSOR (CP) — Negotiations were resumed here at 10 a.m. today in an effort to reach an early settlement in the strike of 3,600 Chrysler of Canada workers which began Tuesday.

The Chrysler workers, members of Local 444 United Auto Workers Union (CLC), walked off the job when 3 p.m., the strike deadline they had set last Thursday, passed without a contract or conciliation board being reached.

Each side blamed the other for the strike. An official Chrysler statement released Tuesday night described the strike action as "completely unjustified" and added that there was "no reason" for the walkout.

The union reiled in a later statement that the reason for the strike was simply that collective bargaining hadn't resolved numerous issues.

The UAW statement criticized the company assertion that the strike could have been taken despite the fact union negotiators "indicated they were ready" to reply to the latest company offers by the time the strike deadline had passed.

The union said, "If the company had this in order of importance for armed forces re-equipping programs:

Air Defence of Canada Gets Top Priority for Spending

OTTAWA (CP)—A system of priorities for spending on weapons and equipment in the next decade has been sketched by the defence department.

Authorities say there is bound to be overlapping but that, in general, this is the order of importance for armed forces re-equipping programs:

2. Anti-submarine capability.

LIBERALS TEE OFF ON GOVT.'S WINTER PROGRAM

Say Promises of Election Ignored

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal Opposition teed off Tuesday at the federal government's winter works program with the government pays half the labor costs involved in certain types of municipal works undertaken in winter for the purpose of creating jobs.

Hubert Badanai (L—Fort William), for eight years mayor of the Lakehead city, said the government should do more for municipalities than its current program. Federal assistance had given work to only 120 men in Fort William, he said.

He proposed that the government make loans to municipalities at low interest rates. This would enable them to finance public works projects. Federal taxes on purchases of all vehicles by municipalities also should be removed.

Mr. Badanai also urged federal aid to keep open the Canadian Car and Foundry plant at Fort William. The company plans to move to Montreal.

SEES IMPROVEMENT

Labor Minister Starr said the winters works program will make "quite an improvement" on the unemployment picture, which in mid-December reached an estimated total of 440,000 jobless.

Oslus J. Godin (L—Nickel Belt) described the winter works program as a "relief" measure, saying the public does not want relief.

He likened the program to the relief policies of Conservative Prime Minister Bennett in the early 1930s when Mr. Godin said he was employed "digging ditches and clearing bush along roads."

"That's no solution," he said.

"Give us customary liberal prosperity and 85 per cent of our (Nickel Belt) problems will be solved."

Snow And Sleet Turn Highways Into Death Traps

Huge Storm Lashes Way Northeast Through U.S.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Heavy snow, followed by sleet and rain, turned Southern Ontario roads into danger strips overnight and by early-morning three traffic deaths had been attributed to the weather.

At Port Hope, 23 miles south of Peterborough, a car collided in near-blizzard conditions with a train at a level crossing. William Hunter, 71, and Harold Hugh 57, of Port Hope, were killed.

Another car went out of control on the Queen Elizabeth Way near Oakville during a snowstorm, hitting a truck and car. Clifton Pynn, 25-year-old honeymooner, was killed and his bride of 13 days critically injured.

She suffered two broken legs, a broken hip, internal injuries and a possible fractured skull. Pynn's car struck a truck driven by Earl Simms, 40, of Fort Erie, and a car driven by Constable Dick Lewis, who was off duty at the time. Neither Simms nor Lewis was injured.

HIGHWAY PATROL

The department of highways said early today that snow and sleet-covered roads were slushy over all of Southern Ontario, where highways were reported generally slushy, snowy and icy.

Highways in Northern Ontario were mostly bare or snowpacked.

Tuesday night's snow, two to three inches, swept an area from south and southwest of the Halifax-Yarmouth highway, reaching the night north of a Toronto-Windsor line, turning to freezing rain by morning.

The weatherman said more freezing rain was expected today pected.

And southern Michigan, still digging out of a heavy snow storm Tuesday, found itself more of the same, perhaps as much as six inches.

The weather bureau forecast continued heavy snow today from northeastern Kansas to Lake through Iowa and into the Great Lakes region.

CHICAGO (AP)—A giant storm today lashed the United States with snow, freezing rain and bitter cold as it crept across the mid-continent.

The storm area stretched from northern New Mexico to Cape Cod on the coast of New England and from the southern Great Lakes into the Mississippi Valley.

As it moved slowly northeastward today, it left in its farthest blows to the midwest—Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska and Illinois. Southern Michigan appeared next in line.

Eleven deaths have been attributed to the storm. All of the victims were killed in traffic accidents on four- or snow-covered roads. Three were killed in New Mexico. Montana, Pennsylvania and Iowa each reported two deaths, and Oklahoma and Kansas had one each.

The weather bureau said the storm took the form of snow, cold and high winds that kicked up blizzard conditions in Nebraska, Kansas and the Texas Panhandle.

Immediately ahead of the storm was a warm, wide band of freezing rain. And in the southern states thunderstorms accompanied spring-like temperatures.

The heaviest snowfall this morning was in eastern Kansas and northern Missouri. Kansas City was in the area.

Parts of New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming, Oklahoma, Nebraska and Iowa still were getting snow. The northern three-quarters of Illinois had six or more inches on the ground—with more expected.

Cold air was expected to return to Southern Ontario with snowflurries and blowing snow tonight. Thursday is expected to be sunny and cold.

Last Freighter Blocked by Ice Passes Quebec

QUEBEC (CP)—The freighter Aglecrest slipped down the bloodstained river past Quebec, her passage marked by the white victory of men and ships after a bitter battle against St. Lawrence ice.

Today ice 5,853-ton British ship moved into the broadening reaches of the river below Quebec. She faces an easy trip to the Atlantic through scattered ice-broken ice.

The Aglecrest was the last of 13 freighters, frozen solidly in Montreal harbor for a month, to make her way down the lower river. All owes their freedom to round-the-clock efforts by transport department icebreakers and canal workers, and some rain in January weather.

CORNWALL (CP)—Bob Bingley has resigned as playing coach of Cornwall Chevies in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A eastern series "for the good of the club."

Bingley will remain with the club as a player.

Cecil B. DeMille, Most Famous Director in Hollywood, Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Cecil B. DeMille, whose spectacular productions made him the movies' most famous and successful director, died today. He was 77.

A heart attack climaxed the man who was one of the founders of Hollywood. He died at his home at 5:30 a.m. after an illness of several days.

DeMille made more than 70 films, both silent and sound, during his long career. He spent money in amounts that awed even Hollywood's free-spending studio heads.

But it paid off. Films after picture set boxoffice records. Several of his films became screen classics.

He was amazingly active right up until he was taken ill. He was making plans for a film based about Lord Robert Baden-Powell, who founded the boy scouts.

Chatter of Firing-Squad Guns Curtain Raiser for Rally

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—The distant chatter of firing-squad guns was the curtain raiser for a Havana rally today in support of the revolutionary government's summary executions.

Rebel bullets cut down a dozen men of Fulgencio Batista's defeated armed forces in Pinar Del Rio, Cuba's westernmost province, and had been convicted of murder and other war crimes in a three-hour trial.

These plus 19 previously unreported executions — 11 at Cardenas in Matanzas province and eight at Jiguani in Oriente Province—increased the Cuban toll to 247.

Three others were reported under death sentence in Banah Del Rio and 38 in Oriente Province because.

Havana workers took the day off to participate in the rally.

Fidel Castro called for 500,000 persons to throng the park in front of the presidential palace in swift retribution for those convicted of military and political crimes against the people during Fulgencio Batista's dictatorship.

The first of a series of war crime trials in Havana was announced to begin Thursday at 8 p.m. in the city's 13,000-seat Sports Palace.

Castro said the rally in Havana would support justice and "demand that the United States return the war criminals." No formal requests for extradition of Batista followers who fled to the United States have been reported so far in Washington.

Castro did not let hoarseness deter him from plans to address the massed Cubans. He has been in bed with grippe.

Castro invited some 350 reporters of the Americas for the rally and trials and also asked several U.S. congressmen.

About 200 of the invited reporters were expected.

Castro has been particularly resentful of criticisms by U.S. congressmen and by some around the United States of furnishing bombs and guns to Batista.

The leader of the revolt has

Argentina Strike Seems Near End

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—A general strike against President Frondizi's austerity program today appeared to be about over with the end of a 24-hour period ahead with measures to maintain public order.

Security forces were directed to take control of all public utilities under wide decrees declaring martial law and ordering a mobilization plan. Argentina remained generally calm, however, with only a few isolated incidents reported.

Soldiers Tuesday night occupied the central telephone exchange of La Plata, capital of Buenos Aires province. Troops also took over installations there of the huge Argentine Electric Company, which is largely European owned.

The strike began Sunday as an attempt by Communists and followers of ousted dictator Juan E. Peron to wreck Frondizi's belt-tightening program and win an other round of wage increases. The strike is designed to halt the inflation and put this bankrupt country back on a sound economic basis.

'I Guess I Lost My Head For Minute' Witness Says Accused Told Him in Room

COBOURG — "What did you do Gus, stab Wulf?" asked Joe Bellamy.

"Yes, I guess I lost my head for a minute," answered Scarlett.

This was a portion of the testimony of Joe Bellamy given in court yesterday at the murder trial of Harold "Gus" Scarlett, who was charged with murder after the knife-slaying of his young estranged wife Jull-Ann Scarlett.

Mr. Bellamy told the court how he had visited the Scarlett house on John Street in Cobourg and going upstairs had seen the blood in the bathroom and going into a bedroom he had seen Gus Scarlett standing beside the bed trying to stop the three young sons, who were sleeping there. It was then he had asked Scarlett if he had slain his wife and received the answer.

Bellamy also told the court he had asked the accused many questions at the time but had received no answers. He said Scarlett had appeared to be in a dazed condition, or very much excited and that at no time was his interest seemed to lie in getting the children quiet.

Bellamy was then the 11 witness heard during the first day of the murder trial which is being held in the court room of the Northumberland and Durham Municipal Building.

The first witness to be called was Provincial Constable Harold Cal. William Bolluc of the Ontario Provincial Police, who told the court that he had visited the home and the house and rooms in the house. He identified a number of exhibits, which were admitted as exhibits. Diagrams of the house drawn by Provincial Constable Bolluc at the Station in Cobourg is stated that the latter called at the home and fied Scarlett and the Welbis to Cobourg had arrived 31 minutes after the day of the killing.

DELIVERED PASSENGERS

Murray Spry, R.R. 3 Cobourg, was called as the next witness and told the court he was a taxi driver and had been at the station on December 22 and had driven five passengers from the station to the address on John Street. He said there had been two men, a woman and two children, but that he had not had conversation with any of them and that he believed it was around 1.30 a.m. when he had driven the passengers.

Lillian Bingham of 172 Third Street in Cobourg told the court she had first become acquainted with Mrs. Scarlett about a week before Christmas in 1937 when she Mrs. Scarlett had come into the store to rent a room. The children had been with her and had also looked after them from March until September of 1937.

Under questions by Crown Attorney Daymon she told what she knew of the case.

"Who paid for the keep of the children?"

"Their father."

"How much did he pay you?"

"Ten dollars per week, per child."

"Did the father visit the children often when in your care?"

"Yes, about twice a month."

"Where was he living?"

"In Trenton."

"Where was their mother, Mrs. Scarlett, living?"

"In Peterborough."

"Did she come to see the children very often during the period?"

"No, only about two or three times."

Mrs. Bingham told the court she had known the couple were separated and that they had gone back to live with each other in Trenton during the early September and it had been then she (Mrs. Bingham) and her husband had taken the children back to their parents in Trenton. They had left the next day to house on Beechhead Street—and had returned to Cobourg shortly after, and the court that it was about five weeks later that she had been asked to take the children back in a car called from Mrs. Lovecers, in Trenton, the grandmother of the children.

CHILDREN CAME TO PLAY

She had the children only for a few days this time and then until Mrs. Scarlett, who had returned to Cobourg had a chance to get settled in her new apartment on John Street. She said she had saw the children on December 29 when they had come to her house during the afternoon to play.

Under question by the counsel for the defence, A. H. Richardson, she told the jury she had known of some trouble at her house and the police had been involved. She said she was a relative of Mrs. Scarlett and had not known the details. She admitted that a man named Ernie Farrow had called on Mrs. Scarlett at the time and had been mixed up in it somehow.

She said that Mr. Farrow and Mrs. Scarlett had moved to Peterborough just after that and previous to this Mr. Farrow had called at the house to see Mrs. Scarlett about twice a week.

Constable M. J. Kerr of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police was stationed at Ottawa was called. Constable Kerr informed the court he was a trained chemist and hair and blood expert and had several degrees and diplomas and had several years' experience in this type of work with the Mounties.

Asked to explain his findings he first described how it was that he had come to be given the work he had found the blood to be either from a human or higher ape. He was unable to determine the blood group because in the keeping in getting materials for the test.

He explained that the knife, it now appeared, was used actly the same as when he had examined it before and that all the blood had been removed for testing purposes. The bread knife he had been there when it was handed to him.

HEARD NO NOISES

Harry Loveless, the father of Mrs. Scarlett was called and testimony followed the same line as he gave in the preliminary hearing in Cobourg a week before. Mr. Loveless described how he had come to the house and to the slaying and shortly after.

Shown the picture of the kitchen in the house he identified the object and some broken crockery on the floor. He said he had heard upstairs and had not heard any loud or commotion downstairs.

"When you arrived at the house expected there was trouble?" asked Crown Attorney.

"When my daughter came running up the stairs, and stopped in the bedroom door I was in and shouted, 'Look out, dad, he's got a knife'."

"Did you hear anything just before that?"

"Yes, Scarlett was running up the stairs behind her and I heard him say, 'Where is the kids?'"

"What happened then?"

"He grabbed her and shoved her into the bedroom."

"Did you see any knife in his hand?"

"No. There was no light in the hall, just what was coming from the bedroom and I could not see any knife from where I was."

"What took place then?"

"I forced Scarlett to give up the struggle and then holler 'Dad, get me a knife'."

"What did you do?"

"I couldn't get in the bedroom because it was locked so I ran outside to the next house to use the telephone but was not at home so I started out for the police station and I met Welbis on the way."

Mr. Loveless told of telling Welbis what had happened and of how he had returned to the house after getting everything under control. He said he had looked around the block "to leave the way." He said when he went back to the house he had not seen Scarlett or his daughter.

He was questioned by Mr. Richardson, counsel for the defence, as to whether he had not seen Scarlett or his daughter.

He said that Mr. Parrow and Mrs. Scarlett had moved to Peterborough just after that and previous to this Mr. Farrow had called at the house to see Mrs. Scarlett about twice a week.

"One."

"Where did you find it."

"I found it in a box behind the kitchen door. It was a short one."

"No".

"Have you ever found the other one?"

"Do you recognize this one" (The witness was shown the one held in court).

"Yes. It's mine."

"How do you know?"

"I've had it for a long time."

"Where was it?"

"In the cupboard drawer the last time I saw it."

"Did it have this bend in it?"

"No".

"When you left the house to get the police how did you travel?"

"I walked".

The witness was questioned by the defence lawyer, A. H. Richardson: Following is in part.

"What type of person would you say Scarlett is?"

"He's a good fellow. Happy-go-lucky most the time."

"Did you get along with him alright?"

"Yes."

"Did you have anything against him?"

"No."

"Did he have anything against you?"

"Not that I know of."

"Was he the quarrelsome type when he is drinking?"

"He never is drinking".

"Did he ever get sleepy and go to sleep when he was drinking?"

"Yes, I've seen him do that."

"When you left the kitchen and went upstairs, did you leave alone in it, did you hear what there was going on?"

COULD HEAR VOICES

"I could hear their voices but couldn't make out the words. I did not hear anything like 'I'll get you' once."

"Why did you go upstairs?"

"Because Judy asked me to put the children to bed."

"When you leave upstairs did you go to sleep?"

"I did not."

"Do you mean to say that when you were upstairs and awake you didn't hear the kitchen table and the things in it being upset over?"

"I did not."

"Everything at the house was quiet and I wanted to leave it that way."

The next two witnesses, Arthur Long and Dean McKenzie, were both waiters at the hotel during the room and they testified they had served several glasses of beer to the accused Scarlett and a friend. Mr. Long told the court at one period Scarlett had got up from his table, gone over to another one where he had taken a drink from, and then returned to his table.

"Did you hear anything just before that?"

"Yes, Scarlett was running up the stairs behind her and I heard him say, 'Where is the kids?'"

"What happened then?"

"He grabbed her and shoved her into the bedroom."

"Did you see any knife in his hand?"

"What did you do?"

"I couldn't get in the bedroom because it was locked so I ran outside to the next house to use the telephone but was not at home so I started out for the police station and I met Welbis on the way."

Mr. Loveless told of telling Welbis what had happened and of how he had returned to the house after getting everything under control. He said he had looked around the block "to leave the way." He said when he went back to the house he had not seen Scarlett or his daughter.

He was questioned by Mr. Richardson, counsel for the defence, as to whether he had not seen Scarlett or his daughter.

"Where were they kept?"

POINTED OUT DRAWER

He answered: "He pointed out the drawer on the photograph of the kitchen.)

phone and as a result of the call they had rushed over to the John Street house again. When they arrived there was no one around and Mrs. Loveless had gone into the kitchen and he went out to the back porch. Seeing nothing he had come back in the house and went upstairs to where he had seen and talked to Scarlett, who was in the back room. After talking to the accused he had gone downstairs and a few minutes later the police came in. He sent the police upstairs and he stayed in the house until they had taken Scarlett out to the cruiser. Then he had gone to the front door and noticed the ambulance pull up and a lot of people at the house next door. He went over and saw Mrs. Loveless kneeling beside her daughter on the way lying on the floor of the porch. It was then the ambulance attendants came with a stretcher and took Mrs. Scarlett away.

Under questioning by Richardson:

"Do you remember when Mrs. Scarlett was living at 44 University Avenue?"

"Yes."

"Do you recall Mr. Scarlett coming to see you during that time?"

"Yes."

"Did he ask you anything?"

"He wanted to know who the man was Judy was going with."

"Did you tell him?"

"I did."

"Do you also recall telling him about the police coming there having and could be heard for a long distance?"

DID NOT REMEMBER

"It could be possible I did, but I don't recall doing so."

"Do you remember telling him anything the children had said to you?"

"No."

Mrs. Margaret Loveless, mother of Mrs. Jull-Ann Scarlett was called to the stand and told of the happenings previous to the slaying. She told she had known of her daughter's separation from the accused adding that he had looked after their eldest child, a girl, on several occasions. For this she testified, Scarlett had paid her $10 per week.

Mrs. Loveless told the court she had also known of them going back together and taking the children with them. She also had left again anyone she was living with and that Scarlett had left again saying she was coming back and would look after the child herself but that she had said she would.

It was shortly after that when she had gone to the apartment in Cobourg and moved into the John Street address.

Mrs. Loveless who broke into tears twice during her testimony, told the court much the same story as other witnesses had concerning the day of the slaying. She had left Scarlett at home from 110 John Street and had gone to the home of a friend in Mrs. Webb and she had returned immediately. On arriving at her home she broke into tears and then noticed the furniture and dishes broken in the dining room and the kitchen where the children were.

SAW NO ONE IN ROOM

She said she had talked to the boy Scarlett and had seen nothing else in the room because there was a door between the kitchen and the bathroom. She had then gone downstairs and to the back porch. She testified she had seen the floor of the porch. She said her daughter was still alive at that time and the ambulance came and took Mrs. Scarlett to hospital.

Under question by the defence counsel she told the court she thought Mrs. Scarlett was dead. She seemed to have a restless disposition and that at times he seemed to be quarrelsome when drinking.

Following Mrs. Loveless's testimony the court was adjourned until 10 a.m. this morning.

Members of the jury trying the case are: Thomas Ferguson, Herbert Elliston, Eston Wegg, Clinton Heath, John Archer, Lorne Aird, Dougie Cavanagh, Bridge, Maurice Harvey, Frank Bachman, Wayne Gunter, Kenneth McMullen, and Robert

UNITED APPEAL REPORTS

The financial report of the Belleville United Appeal, published in Monday's edition of The Ontario Intelligencer, makes interesting reading and is worthy of careful perusal by Belleville citizens generally. Great credit is due to all those who organized and put in much personal time for the welfare of the whole community.

At the annual meeting of the United Appeal, held last week, Mr. Archie Lewis, chairman, described the Appeal's first campaign as "a distinct success" and we think that the figures in the financial report prove this was an accurate appraisal of the results.

The fact that the total donations pledged, $72,076, fell 15 per cent short of the $85,000 objective should not be allowed to obscure the much more important fact that the participating agencies will receive not merely 85 per cent but 92 per cent of the amounts they requested. This happy result was achieved by a highly commendable method of keeping to a minimum the expenditures incurred in connection with the campaign. In past this was the result of contributions by those firms which supplied the United Appeal with necessary goods and services. However, it is noteworthy that the only wages paid were $1,031.95 for part-time stenographic help. All other work was done free of charge. The result was that the total expense of conducting the campaign was less than six per cent of the total pledged, a very creditable performance.

In the breakdown of donations, the most impressive figure is that for payroll deductions. This method of giving, while new here, has been tried and tested in other centres and has been proven not only effective, from the standpoint of the results obtained by the Appeal, but convenient, from the standpoint of those making donations. It was understandable, of course, that its initial use here should have met with some misunderstandings. There were a few who appeared to resent it as an effort to "tax" their pay envelopes, but the fact that over 40 per cent of the Appeal's total was made up from payroll deduction pledges is proof that the majority of the Belleville citizens regarded the plan in its proper light — as a means whereby they could shoulder their share of a community responsibility without undue financial inconvenience.

It is, perhaps, difficult to judge the returns from the residential canvass, because so many of the home owners approached by these canvassers had arranged to make their donations through other divisions of the appeal, notably the payroll deduction scheme. Nevertheless, we suspect that if an exhaustive analysis of the returns were possible it would be proven that the $6,329 obtained from the residential canvass represents a much less satisfactory return, in relation to ability to pay, than do the returns from the payroll section. This does not mean that the home owners were necessarily any less generous at heart than those who contributed through their places of employment, but merely provides additional proof of the advantages of the payroll deduction plan. As Belleville's United Appeal enters its second year of existence here, every effort should be made to expand the operation of this plan. That it involves additional work for accounting staffs is obvious but the returns, in the form of adequate financial support for essential community services, are heartwarming.

PATTERN FOR A BUDGET?

When it comes to budgets, coming events are not supposed to cast their shadows before. Nevertheless, at a time when interest is high in what type of budget Hon. Donald Fleming will present this spring, it is interesting to note that President Eisenhower has presented to the U.S. Congress a budget which would be balanced, for the first time in three years. He has stated that the budget aims at restraining inflationary forces, which are widely reported to be threatening the Canadian economy also. Difficulty in comparisons are almost certain to make it impossible for Mr. Fleming to duplicate President Eisenhower's recipe for fighting inflation. It would be impossible for him to make the first full budget of the Progressive Conservative administration a balanced one. He may, though, endeavor to approach as near as possible to this goal and if he does Canadians may discover that the budget contains the same essential ingredients as President Eisenhower's recipe, a reduction in expenditures without any cut in taxes.

If it does, it will be worthy of note that it makes little provision for either the Conservative or Liberal recipe for fighting the recession. The Progressive Conservatives have advocated public works, the Liberals lower taxes. President Eisenhower has said that his budget assumes a surge of prosperity. He evidently believes that the recession in the U.S. is beaten. Whether the same holds true in Canada it is difficult to say. Mr. Fleming will likely be in possession of additional evidence before the time arrives to present his budget to the House.

HISTORIC BELLEVILLE

THE ARRIVAL AT QUINTE

On October 2, 1668, two Sulpician fathers, Dollier de Casson and St. Lawrence River and established a religious mission to the Cayuga Indians on the north shore of Lake Ontario.

After seventy-six days of traveling, M. de Fenelon and M. Trouve reached their destination, but should have arrived at the village of Kentio (Quinte) the previous day, but for the fact that a party of Indians who, delighted to learn that they had come to stay at Kentio, presented them with half a moose at a banquet. The next day was spent hunting deer.

M. Trouve described their reception in this fashion: "On our arrival at Quinte we were feted as well as the savages of the place could manage. It is true that the feast consisted only of pumpkins fried with fat, and like sticks. We assure the Pumpkins are excellent is this country, and much more important ed with those of Europe, indeed one might say that it is unjust to call them pumpkins. They are of a great variety of shapes varying hardly any resemblance to those of France; there are even some so hard that they must be opened with axes when they are not cooked".

The Cayuga village of Kentio, which the French missionaries spelled "Kente" or "Quinte", had been established by Cayugas for only a short time. They had crossed from the south side of Lake Ontario in 1665, when they had been harassed by their Andaste enemies to the south.

The exact location of their fifth village remains a mystery. It probably was in the vicinity of the village of Consecon, perhaps on the hill at the archeological exploration being conducted by the Rev. Bowen P. Squire.

The location of this village is difficult to determine since written documents are few, and early maps disagree.

After resting a little at the village, M. de Fenelon and M. Trouve "took counsel together over the spiritual side" of their work, and sought the aid of the local chieftain, Rohario.

At first Rohario hesitated, since it was said that the "washing in water" (baptism) caused children to die. However, the Sulpicians finally overcame his objections by pointing out that Frenchmen were baptized and that this did not kill them.

Soon, the mission was being taught and in the first winter fifty children were baptized. The first of these was Rohario's daughter, who was given the first name of Helene, so that she thus placed our first fruits under the protection of the Blessed Virgin."

It should be noted that, as none of these first fifty baptized children died, there were no further objections to Holy Baptism.

The first winter of the Quinte Mission was encouraging to those participating in the work. Later ones were to prove difficult.

Should Spike Economic Gun

Christian Science Monitor

The Ottawa meeting of the Joint Canada-United States Committee on Trade and Economic Affairs has produced no news. Americans heard chiefly the Canadian side and concluded his attendance. Canadian officials of Cabinet rank from both countries held their talks in a few hours — with no public statement.

While apparently much day-to-day co-operation must be continuously worked out, the impression persists that top-level disposition to co-operate is lacking. Canada has recently placed obstacles in the way of American firms that put quotas on lead and zinc and has dumped wheat abroad to their disadvantage. The Canadian protest pools designed to control imports.

Canada strives to maintain its economic independence of a tremendously powerful and often thoughtless neighbor. But both countries are far more ready to talk co-operation than co-operation to others than to practice it themselves. Figures on economic unity in Europe and the development of the economic of 28 countries all to serve its free world defense. But how make a mighty tasty dish.

Got Riches Out of Poor

Windsor Star

A Cuban senator, one of the deposed Batista regime, has put in the United States from Cuba $15,000,000 He is but one of the mercenary rascals who fled from the successful rebels. There is a moral attached to this. That is, men rich with such ill-gotten gains seldom relish their ease among the poverty of the masses. Or, if they do, they are constantly called about it. Yet this money; in the main, would have been taken from the sweating hides of the poor. It really isn't any wonder there was a revolution in Cuba.

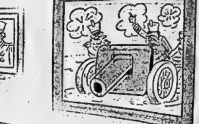
MEN

BY EDGAR A. GUEST



Men are willing to forget
All the failures you have made;
Men are always glad to let
You have time to pay a debt
If you only indicate
That the day you strike your gait.

You will see that it is paid;
That you're trying, show to them;
Then not one will you condemn.

Men will gladly overlook
Your mistakes of yesterday;
That the wrong road once you took They'll forget, and close the book
Of your past, if you but show
That you really want to go
On the right and proper way.
Men will only pass you by
When they see you will not try.

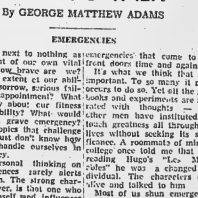
How to Beat Rock 'n' Roll

Milwaukee Journal

Science is advancing faster than most of us realize these days, it does. It has reached the point where it could put an end to rock 'n' roll.

The genius behind the idea is Dr. Arthur Jacobson, Dr. Sigurd Allen Hiller, assistant professor at the University of Illinois. Hiller — he was not in on the original mail-in — recently told the American Psychological Ass'n. for the Advancement of Science this:



Electronic computers could be put to work analyzing every possible combination of musical notes in the rock 'n' roll idiom. They could then use musical notes. They also could refuse to let anyone play them. Result: No more rock 'n' roll as far as the public is concerned.

Here's a scientist who deserves every honor the world can give him. He's not for out in space like he makes our space in the New Testament are, in the Gadarener. He was insane. He lived amid the tombs. He was fierce, clearly delineated symptoms of both of great truth. Here was a Christ was laid upon him. The living among the dead. He was the one he was insane.

He ought to apply the two conditions to Eve among soul dead in pleasure, sensuality, intemperance, materialism, profanity. Some people live in cities, and conversation. These among ideas which have been are the dead. God help them. Paul gave the antidote. Put on the garment! Cease are the persecutors ready quotations for every man to ask at all times to lunge at me himself! Who am I? Where do I fit? Is the clouds of those who could ad-live? Where am I going?

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

A NUMBER OF THINGS MAY CAUSE ASTHMA

"Dear Dr. Molner: My husband, in his 50's, has asthma so bad at times that he nearly frightens me.

"It isn't hereditary. The doctor believes it is psychological.

"My husband is convinced, since he has had asthma since childhood and tried many remedies which failed, that there is no hope of lessening his attacks.

"Would tranquilizers help? He had a test years ago which showed he was allergic to many things. However, his attacks do seem to come when he is worried or tense. — Mrs. W. C."

There is every reason to look for psychological factors in asthma cases.

Asthma, however, is a symptom, not a disease. When there is some condition which interferes with the flow of air to and from the lungs, you have "asthma." Swelling of the mucous membranes of the air passages is a typical response, although there are other conditions with the same result.

It has been observed frequently that there is more difficulty in exhaling than inhaling — but if you can't get enough air, you obviously it becomes impossible to draw enough fresh air into the partly-expelled lungs.

Anyway, remember that a number of things may cause asthma, and to get rid of it, you have to get rid of the cause.

LOOK FOR ALLERGY

Most frequent cause of all, however, is allergy. Whatever you eat, breathe or touch brings on a reaction in the body which may be swelling, itching, rash, or the like. Asthma isn't necessarily breathing; it's what it likely to be. Asthma is simply one of the many forms that allergy can take.

Frankly, we don't have a "cure" for asthma. Fortunately, the individual can be sufficiently desensitized against certain offending foods or materials so that the distress is eliminated for a time, at least, or until enough is it no longer is a problem.

In other cases, prompt use of the antihistamine drugs (and there are scores of types of them) makes the allergic reaction subside. This does not prevent a future attack, however.

Finally, learning what foods, or pollens, or dusts or fabrics irritate you particularly will enable allergy for some person who is overactive to it) and avoiding them is, really, the best solution of all.

We also know, however, that psychological factors are very important in asthma, and in other forms of allergy too, sometimes. Worry, tenseness, nervousness can bring on a severe attack of asthma. It isn't only the nerves, though; they become part of the problem.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

AMID THE DEAD

In two of the Gospels there is an account of our Lord's encounter with two men who lived in the tombs. These men were the ones who seek their place of dwelling among the dead. They had hid themselves among the graves and were the people who seek their pleasure among the drunken and lustful revelries. And Christ met them in the midst of their degradation. They are of distorted mind, and are lived in among the dead. They are oppressed with chains.

An insane man living among the tombs! Yet, like the man whom Jesus healed, he entered the synagogue in the Gadarener. He was insane. He lived amid the tombs. He was fierce, clearly delineated symptoms of both of great truth. Here was a Christ was laid upon him. The living among the dead. He was the one he was insane.

He ought to apply the two conditions to Eve among soul dead in pleasure, sensuality, intemperance, materialism, profanity. Some people live in cities, and conversation. These among ideas which have been are the dead. God help them. Paul gave the antidote. Put on the garment! Cease are the persecutors ready quotations for every man to ask at all times to lunge at me himself! Who am I? Where do I fit? Is the clouds of those who could ad-live? Where am I going?

Statements Provocative

Financial Times

Would not the world be passed between international disputants to be as provocative as they are if there was not a great deal to prove them? Would these statements be so numerous and provocations in turn pose another; are the marvellous facilities which the world has developed to relieve the tensions and worries, probably because space is inexpensive.

Where Space Is Cheap

The conquest of outer space is an enormous undertaking, these days apparently an infinite amount of it used in the make-up of the cosmic universe, probably because space is inexpensive.

Bancroft Reeve for 3 Years Elected Warden of County

Reeve of Picton Chosen Warden Of P.E. County

PICTON — Ernest Ward, Reeve of Picton, was unanimously chosen Warden of Prince Edward County for 1959 at the inaugural meeting of Council yesterday afternoon. While all members were nominated, all withdrew in favor of Mr. Ward. The new Warden succeeds Howard Gyde of South Marysburgh township, who has retired from municipal life.

Warden Ward was elected Reeve in December after serving two years as Deputy reeve and two years as councillor. He is a native of Picton and two years ago retired from the men's wear business. An only son, Jack, is engineer with the McFarland Construction Co.

Committees appointed were—roads, Gordon Demore, 3 years; Calvin Hughes, 2 years, chairman; Leland Doxsee, 1 year; County Home — A. C. Platt, chairman; Barney Hepburn, Arthur Moore. Fair Grounds — John Fox, Donald Bond, Harmon Montgomery. Supply — Kenneth Wood, Arthur Miller. Finance — Arthur Moore, chairman, Gordon Parks, Kenneth Wood. Agricultural Advisory Council — Gordon Striker, J. C. Dick, G. Flower, K. Perry, Herbert Kerr, War Memorial Committee — Major G. T. Walmsley, Lt. Col. W. A. Davern, Major R. Young, Clifford McCalpin. Board of Criminal Audit — Howard Gyde, B. C. Hepburn. Representatives to Children's Aid Society — H. Montgomery, H. Gyde. Representatives to Board of Health—A. Miller, D. Bood, Bruce Hyatt, Carman Scott. Representatives on Federation of Agriculture—G. Parks, A. C. Platt. Agricultural Council — Ken Wood, John Fox, Donald Bond.

Member of Hastings county council only for three years, Reeve Jack N. Brown of Bancroft was named warden of the county at the inaugural session of council held at Shire Hall Tuesday afternoon.

Reeve Brown, 47, succeeds Lloyd H. Price of Actinolite as county warden. During his term as warden, Mr. Price received acclamation as MLA for Hastings East.

Yesterday's battle for the county wardenship was a three-way affair, with Reeve Jim Kirklin of Hungerford township, and Reeve Earl Sager of Madoc township, also contesting the office. Warden Brown was named on the second ballot.

President of Bancroft Lumber Ltd., Warden Brown came to Bancroft from Lakefield 16 years ago. He was elected reeve of Bancroft in 1958 and last year served as chairman of the council finance committee. He is married with two married daughters and a son, Bill, still in high school.

Four ex-wardens of the county were in the audience as Reeves Kinlin and Sager escorted the newly-elected warden to the warden's chair as the session was officially opened.

"I must admit that I didn't share the optimism that some previous wardens showed prior to their election," admitted Warden Brown. "However, thank you for the office and will do my best."

NOT RUN BY WARDEN

Speaking to new members of council Warden Brown emphasized that county council was not run by the warden. "We do our work by the committee system and if committee members let the warden down he can do nothing."

He asked for the co-operation of council for the year ahead and referring to the past year stated the county had come out with a surplus although he did not have the figures at hand. He hoped the county would have the same success this year.

A new warden's gavel was presented to Warden Brown by Jos. White, insurance company representative.

New Hastings County warden, Reeve Jack N. Brown of Bancroft, is congratulated by Reeves James Kinlin of Hungerford and Earl Sager of Madoc townships, at inaugural session of council Tuesday. Reeve Brown defeated Reeves Kinlin and Sager for the wardenship in a three-way fight.

E. L. Kropa of the Battelle Memorial Institute, which engages in numerous defence research projects. In a report Dr. Kropa described laboratory experiments by a scientist named Hoffman involving a chemical that produces temporary madness. The chemical is known as LSD25 or lysergic acid.

Kropa said LSD25 "destroys the individual's will to think and communicate . . . the head seems to be severed from the body, and there is a feeling of floating in space."

And he added:

"They give you a little insight as to how active this material is, it has been estimated that less than a pound would cause all the inhabitants in New York City to take on a schizoid reaction—i.e., an emotional disturbance marked by such things as delusions and hallucinations."

Eight Councillors In County Council For First Time

Eight new county councillors and one member who two years ago represented his municipality on the county body, took their desks Tuesday as the 1959 inaugural session of Hastings county council got underway at Shire hall.

Also back in council for another term are two northern reeves, James H. Sprackett of Tudor and Cashel, and William J. Davis of McLure Wicklow and Bangor, both ex-wardens of the county. Reeves Sprackett and Davis are commencing their 28th terms in county council.

CROWDED ISLAND

Population density of the United Kingdom was about 540 persons per square mile in 1957, compared with 533 in 1951.

The shah of Iran asked the hand of Italian Princess Maria Gabriela of Savoy in marriage, the Italian weekly "Oggi" reported. Maria's mother, Italy's former Queen Maria Jose, was quoted as saying in Merlino, Switzerland, that "from the religious and Catholic viewpoint it looks impossible to me that this marriage could take place."

Conaltan, also dealt with unemployment.

He said more than 50 Progressive Conservative promises in last year's election had been ignored. The government could not carry out its promises "because it is enslaved to the moneyed interests of Canada."

WINTER COSTS HIGH

At the night sitting, Jean-Paul Racine (L—Beauce) said the federal assistance bill will not up for the higher costs of winter construction.

The federal government should concentrate on providing loans to municipalities at low interest rates—or even no charge at all—to finance projects.

M. Douglas Morton (PC—Toronto Davenport) said the Liberals expect the government to do in six months what the Liberals could not do in 22 years—solve the unemployment problem.

"Before they hurl abuse at us, they must look at their own record," he said.

Wedding

GENTILE — VAN DE VEN

PICTON — St. Gregory's Church, Picton, was the scene of an interesting and lovely wedding at ten o'clock Saturday morning, January 17, 1959, when Miss Josephine Antonia Van de Ven, became the bride of Mr. Sam Gentile. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Van de Ven of Kingston, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gentile, R.R. No. 1 Picton. The lovely church was further enhanced by arrangements of pink and white snapdragons on the candle-lighted altar while ferns were also used in the sanctuary. Guest pews were marked by white satin bows.

Some four hundred persons filled the nave of the church to do honor to the popular young businessman and his bride. The Nuptial Mass was celebrated by the Rev. J. G. Clancy, with Paul Finnegan and Frank Hegarty as altar boys.

Wedding music was played by Miss Joan Sedgwick, who began, while Miss Jean Seed sang, "On This Day" and "Ava Maria".

Given in marriage by her father, the charming bride was lovely in an imported gown of beautiful lace and nylon illusion. Seed pearls and sequins etched the portrait neckline and the long tapering sleeves ended with the minute waist and full collar. Her shoulder length veil of net was caught to a dainty cap of matching lace embroidered with seed pearls and sequins and she carried a shower bouquet of red roses with trailing white orchids and stephanotis and white satin streamers.

Miss Lidwien Van de Ven of Kingston, was her sister's bridesmaid. She was gowned in a waltz-length dress of pale pink brocaded satin, with a matching headdress studded with pearls and she carried a cascade of pale blue poms and stephanotis.

Little Miss Jane VanDusen, Picton, made a pretty flower girl. She wore a floor-length dress of blue nylon net over taffeta with matching headdress and veil, and carried a basket of pale pink poms.

Mr. Fred Angelotti, Picton, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was groomsman. The ushers were: Messrs. Len J. Foley, James McAlpine, Walter Bond, and Jerry Bond.

The reception followed at St. Gregory's Parish Hall which was brightened by white streamers and potted white chrysanthemums.

The bride's long table, covered with a white linen cloth, was centred with the three-tiered wedding cake, topped by pink roses and surrounded by fern and long-stemmed roses. On either side were silver candelabra with tall pink tapers.

The bride's mother had chosen a smart dress of black crepe, satin hat and black and pink Dior light roses. The bridegroom's mother chose a lovely ice blue silk with blue and white feather hat and corsage of pink Briarcliffe roses.

Among the many guests were: the bride's sisters, Misses Teresa and Hermelia Van de Ven; a sister-in-law, Mrs. Alphonse Von Erp; and a friend, Miss Elaine Kane, all of Kingston; the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Ben Rightmeyer, Toronto; Mrs. Fred Angelotti, Picton; Mrs. Sadie Thompson Napanee; Mrs. W. E. Robinson, Picton Heights; Miss Anne Louise Gentile, Toronto, and Charles G. Sharpe, Belleville.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Father Clancy with the bridegroom responding in his usual humorous way.

Extending the congratulations of the many friends of the couple were Mayor H. J. McFarland of Picton and Mayor Harry Sweetman, of Deseronto. Phil Dodds ably acted as master of ceremonies.

Before leaving the hall, the bride tossed her bouquet from the stage and it was caught by her sister, Miss Teresa Van de Ven, who will be a bride in May.

Leaving to change, the bride donned a blue mink stole, the gift of the bridegroom.

For a motor trip to Las Vegas, Nevada, and California, the bride wore an imported dress of French blue cashmere wool with molded bodice and a sheath skirt, over which was a Harem overskirt in the front, along with matching hat of blue straw and velvet designed by Cezanne. Her coat was a three-quarter length of natural grey lambswith mink trim, adorned by a corsage of pink Delight roses.

Guests were present from Toronto, Belleville, Cookville and Deseronto.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Gentile will at their new apartment on Elizabeth Street, Picton.

Ottawa Trainers Instruct Girl Guide Officers

On Saturday about 40 Guiders from Belleville and Madoc met at the Kiwanis Centre for a training day.

Miss Kay Cruickshank conducted the session for the Girl Guide Captains and Lieutenants. She gave suggestions for the opening of the meetings; for the planning the programs, and for teaching the new parts of the Tests.

A demonstration of the color ceremony was given so the new Girl Guide captains would know how it was carried out.

The Brown Owls and Tawny Owls were given instructions by Mrs. June Gillespie. They covered the work of a Brownie meeting such as the ceremonies, the work, games and songs. They held discussion groups in which different phases of the Brownie work were talked over.

District Commissioner, Mrs. H. Floyd, thanked the Ottawa trainers for coming to Belleville and giving their ideas and suggestions to the local Guiders.

The training day was closed with tea.

Going Shopping?

In weather like this, shopping takes on the urgency of survival. "Have we enough in the house for a day or two if the worst comes to the worst and the snow continues?" Yesterday, coming out of a market, a young woman said, "I am getting in a supply — you never can tell. I just fill my freezer, and there we are." With more and more housewives shopping only once a week or maybe once every two weeks, these weather situations are not so bad. Just a bit confining.

Many consumers are asking, "Are we going to get any of that Australian beef in this district?" As far as we can find out, nobody seems to know; or if they do, they are not telling. Until we do, it will be pork, chicken or lamb for most of us — and that is certainly nothing to complain about.

Here is an item of interest for the skaters, plain or fancy. Skate guards which keep blades sharp for fancy spins and jumps are now being made of polythene plastic instead of the traditional wood or rubber. The guards can safely be worn from dressing room to rink without fear of slipping and the light but tough plastic does not tear or rot.

A couple of new articles are about to come on the market for our future use. One is a new rainy day creation so that you won't have to worry about ruining your new hat or hair-do, when nature takes a nasty turn. It is a bloom-shedded plastic bonnet, which is designed to give a lift to dampened spirits. It consists of two layers of clear plastic between which are sprinkled spring flowers to suit the fancy of the individual. You may have roses, lilies-of-the-valley, violets or some other favorite flower, the leaf color is picked up in grosgrain streamers that tie under the chin or are adjusted in the back.

The other new invention is a revolutionary touch-and-close fastener made of nylon. A wide range of uses is predicted for it. The new type of closure will be available to the trade sometime in the spring. For men, it is used to fasten jackets and coats. Hunting clothes, sleeping bags were among the unusual uses. For children, in addition to clothes, there were creepers, shoes, school bags. The new waistband tab and closure on a woman's skirt allowed it to be reversible, with solid color on one side and a print on the other.

Did you ever think of painting a mural on the playroom or nursery wall? They tell us that anyone who can draw a line can adorn a wall this way.

First of all, choose a simple design in book or magazine, or maybe a map from a travel folder, and trace it onto a sheet of paper. Now mark off the drawing into squares. With a piece of chalk and a yardstick, square off the wall with the same arrangement of squares as on the paper. The wall squares will be large, of course. Now simply transfer the mural block by block onto the wall. More suggestions for the mural come from Donald Duck to a panoramic view of the Rocky Mountains. Buildings, groups of trees, rocks and streams are simply outlined, maybe with black paint on a bright background.

We seem to have wandered a bit and got away from shopping news, so we will leave it that way, to end off with something about a book. It is in its eleventh week on the best seller list in the general category, and stands fourth on that list at the present time. What makes it unusual and food for this column is that it is definitely a man's book, yet we have heard so many women comment on it. One woman said: "I had to read it in self defence; my husband was reading it to me in bits and pieces. I enjoyed every word of it."

She was speaking of The Memoirs of Field-Marshal Montgomery. Another woman, whose husband was an Army man, said that he was chuckling and chortling so much that she thought he must be reading something very funny. She was intrigued and started reading and chuckling too.

Still another said, "This book should have won the Nobel prize instead of Zhivago." We wager that no other war book written by a general has had such a feminine following. The amazing thing is that the author emerges, not the supreme egotist we had expected, but as a completely fearless man.

We found the feminine reactions most interesting!

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mrs. D. M. — We dont like his girl friend.

Ed M. — They're social snobs.

Mrs. D. — My husband and I are terribly upset about our 18-year-old son, Ed. For the past two years he has been going steady with a girl we don't like at all, and we are afraid that they'll elope or do something drastic.

We want Ed to go to college and to make something of himself before he gets involved. He says that he isn't planning to get married, but we feel that his girl friend will start putting the heat on and he won't be able to get out of it. She doesn't show any consideration for him. He works hard at his school work and has a part-time job, but she keeps him out until all hours on their dates. She thinks his time is at her disposal and sends him on errands for her.

We feel that she is a selfish girl, and she doesn't seem of a nice family. But we don't know how to make Ed see these things.

Ed. M. — I'm afraid my parents are social snobs. When I ask them what's wrong with Dora's family, they don't know what to say. They say that they're not in our class, that they're vulgar, etc . . . But I don't see anything wrong with them except that Dora's father is an ordinary working man and not very well off.

They have been very nice to me. Of course my parents think they are out to "catch" me, but Dora says they don't want her to marry me. They think I'm too young and they want her to go out with older men.

Anyway, it's all so silly talking about marriage because I don't intend to get married until I get through college, and Dora knows how I feel about that. She says she'll be willing to work while I go to school, but I wouldn't want that. What's everyone fussing about?

The Council: Arguing and nagging seldom convince anyone of anything. Teenagers are particularly sensitive to this kind of pressure.

The D. M.'s are making things still harder by stabbing wildly in all directions at once. They are pushing Ed against the wall and forcing him to fight them and to go to his girl friend and her family for refuge.

Most teenagers are fairly idealistic and resent any suggestion of snobbery. Ed is right to stand up for Dora's family since he has been treated kindly by them. His parents' innuendos may be way off base. They should not give their own insecurities the weight and dignity of facts.

The D. M.'s would do far better to ask questions and get Ed to do the talking and the thinking. He will have to live his own life, and it is far more important for him to learn to make accept his parents' plainTA his own judgments than to accept his parents' opinion wholesale.

If they ask the proper questions in the proper spirit, the D. M.'s may be able to help Ed realize that he is unwittingly digging himself into a pit. He claims to be disinterested in marriage at this time, but hastily brushes aside the obvious fact that while he and Dora are thoroughly engrossed in one another, they cannot make contacts with others. Both are losing their initiative and sense of adventure in social experimentation. They fear being left high and dry and are growing increasingly dependent upon one another.

If Ed can be brought to recognize these things by himself, there is some hope that he will take action to change the status quo. Otherwise the D. M.'s are probably fighting a losing battle.

Presbyterial WMS Annual Planned

Mrs. Clarence Holmes presided at the executive meeting of the Belleville Presbyterial of the Woman's Missionary Society held at Bridge St. United Church on January 15th. Mrs. Geo. Carlile, Stirling, conducted the opening devotional.

A report was given with regard to a petition of several hundred names asking a local radio station to present the program "When a Child Asks." The station management felt that it could not comply with this request at the present time.

Miss Ethel Horton gave a report of the nominating committee stating that there were only two changes to be made and that Mrs. H.E. Vannest of Enterprise has accepted the nomination for 5th vice-president (Napanee North), and Miss Hettie Unger, of Picton, will accept for the office of candidate secretary. No name has yet been secured to stand for 6th vice-president (Napanee South), left vacant by the removal of Mrs. John Renshaw to Toronto.

REPORTS PRESENTED

The secretarial reports were presented. The treasurer, Mrs. R. G. Coulter, stated that $28,540.85 had been raised by the societies which was over $1,000 above the allocation. Mrs. H. M. Davis followed by introducing the new projects planned by Gilmour Building Advance for 1959, to which the above $1,000 will be applied.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Stirling literature secretary, asked that the number of books read be sent in by all auxiliaries before Presbyterial as this is the last year that reading awards will be presented.

After brief reports by the other secretaries, the ladies adjourned to an appetizing buffet luncheon prepared by Bridge St. WMS.

Mrs. N. McKibbon, Picton, on behalf of the executive, thanked the group and Mrs. McArthur, accepted.

Mrs. Holmes reported her visits to all the rallies and the many auxiliaries during the past season, in opening the afternoon session. A great deal of discussion resulted in cancelling the plans for a third session (evening) to be held at the annual which is to be held in Picton, February 17th and 18th.

Instead, the previous night's program will include a talk by the Rev. Elizabeth N. Mewhort, B.A., B.D., Evangelistic Missionary from Ujjain, Central India. This will give the hostess group, Picton United, an opportunity to hear the missionary.

Mrs. J. H. McKinney, Brooklin president, Bay of Quinte Conference Branch is expected to be in attendance at the annual.

In her closing remarks, Mrs. Holmes quoted from the Bible "If any man be in Christ he is a new creature; old things are passed away; behold all things are become new". She asked that all set aside their problems, face the new year ahead with faith and reap the spiritual joys which working for God can bring.

GOOD MANNERS

— By Mrs. Beeckman —

RESTAURANT ETIQUETTE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My fiance and I disagree about a habit he has, and he insists it's being "too finicky" about it. When we enter a restaurant and the headwaiter or hostess—or whoever is in charge—happens to be busy at the moment seating another party, my fiance gets impatient, refuses to wait until the person in charge returns, and forges ahead to choose a table.

This always embarrasses me, and naturally doesn't please the person in charge of the seating, who certainly can't be in two places at the same time and who is trying his or her best to do the seating job.

What is your point of view about this habit of his?—Headwaiter.

I completely agree with you. This high-handed procedure by a man can be extremely embarrassing to the person with him, whether woman or man. And, as you say, extremely difficult for the person trying to do his or her job.

Choosing one's own table is cafeteria-procedure . . . it is definitely not proper in any restaurant where there is a person in charge of the seating. If somebody moved in on my house I'd be pretty, of course it's proper for him to ask for another table.

SHOULD SHE INVITE STRANGERS TO THE HOUSEWARMING?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have very recently moved to a new house we have bought in a community new to us. It is quite near the community where we have lived for several years and we have quite a few friends here. We are planning to give a housewarming soon. Besides inviting our relatives, our friends from our former neighborhood and our new neighborhood, would it be correct to invite neighbors who live closeby, but whom we have not yet met?

No. Since a housewarming is such a personal and intimate kind of party, you should invite only relatives and friends to help you get your new home. You might not find it all easy or graceful to combine people you don't know at all with your long-time friends.

WHICH HONOR ATTENDANT TO BE WITNESS?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

My married sister is to be my matron of honor, and a very close and long-time friend of mine is to be my maid of honor. I had taken it for granted that naturally my sister would act as my witness, but lately I have been told that, when there are two honor attendants, it is the maid of honor who is to be the official witness. To me this doesn't make sense. Please advise. — Bride-to-be.

To me also this doesn't make sense. Naturally your sister would want to have you give her the honor of being your official witness, and naturally you would want her to have this significant honor.

Smart And Small

By ALICE ALDEN

Clothes for little girls take on new charm and interest each season. Little dresses are big in fashion, but never for a moment do the designers lose sight of simplicity and youthful appeal that should be inherent in children's clothes. Celeste uses chocolate-brown silky cotton broadcloth for this model. The button-studded cut-outs on the bodice and sleeves are lined with striped satin-color in taffy and chocolate, which also petticoats the wide skirt. Other colors include wedgwood gray and a bright geranium red.

Secretary to Lt.-Governor Expert on Manners, Protocol

By EDNA USHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Madeleine Ferguson, secretary to Lieutenant-Governor J. Keiller Mackay is Ontario's mistress of manners and principal of protocol.

This blonde nurse who switched from social work to a job in society is an expert on the order of precedence for government officials, local dignitaries and officials of other governments. It is part of her work to know who should sit next to whom when distinguished visitors are guests of the lieutenant-governor.

"It is a job that can keep me busy all day and most of the evening, but it has compensations too," says Mrs. Ferguson.

LONG PREPARATION

When Princess Margaret visited Toronto this year we were working for months beforehand to see that her trip went off without a hitch—and one of the compensations was meeting the princess."

Another compensation, she says, is working in the lieutenant-governor's sumptuously furnished suite of rooms in the west wing of the Parliament Buildings in Toronto.

"But much of my work is routine. The lieutenant-governor sometimes entertains as many as 500 persons and every invitation must be hand-written—by me," she said.

Then Mr. Mackay receives many letters, all of which must be replied to. He has numerous speaking engagements and sometimes facts must be dug out for speech material."

HAS MANY CONTACTS

Being a lieutenant-governor is an art, she explained. Mr. Mackay tries to keep in touch with representative groups throughout the province, and this requires a wide circle of contacts. His secretary shares the responsibility of seeing that he distributes his appearances widely and wisely.

Mrs. Ferguson joined the lieutenant-governor's staff 10 years ago.

She studied nursing in Toronto, and social science at Columbia University, New York, and worked with the public health division in New York State until she married in the 1930s.

Her work frequently brings her in close contact with the public. "Whenever the guns fire for the Queen's birthday, or somebody wants to know some minutia of manners, they telephone my office," she said.

The black nightgown is always a feminine and flattering bit of apparel, and this one answers all specifications. The fabric is black tricot chiffon, one layer over another. The bodice is black lace, as is the hem. A pink or blue satin piping in a scalloped line adds charm to the gown and it matches a long, streamered bow of the same. Shoulder straps are narrow, self, gathers from the Empire waist form a skirt that falls in graceful folds.

Women's Activities

TRINITY UNITED W.A.

MADOC — Trinity United Women's Association held the January meeting at the home of Mrs. B. Tanner with an attendance of 24. Owing to the absence of the president, Mrs. R. C. Jackson, Presbyterial president, took charge of the meeting and read a poem, "My Daily Prayer."

Mrs. C. Whytock was in charge of the worship service and chose to read a poem, "Thoughts For A New Year," the theme for the new year was the First Commandment.

Mrs. F. Bennett read the lesson, partly from chapters in Deuteronomy and Mathew, while Mrs. Whytock gave the commentary, appropriate hymns were used.

The business period included the treasurer's report for the year, which was gratifying, and Mrs. Ken Gordon's report on sick and visiting. Several thank-you cards were read for gifts sent to sick and shut-ins at Christmas.

Mrs. Joe Haydon and Miss Alma Keene were in charge of the program. Miss Keene gave a reading on "Suggestions For the New Year"; Mrs. McCoy, a reading, "Jane Scott's Adventures with God"; a poem, "Be Friendly," by Mrs. Garrison; a humorous story, "How To Be Miserable," concluding with "A New Year Prayer" by Mrs. Haydon.

A social hour followed with the hostess and assistants serving afternoon tea.

You Know They Are Coming So Bake A Cake

by Mary Moore

Chiffon cakes are the delight of amateur cake makers. They always turn out right if rules are obeyed.

This one is no exception. It calls for all-purpose flour. You will have 7 or 8 egg yolks left over but you can use them in the scrambled eggs for breakfast tomorrow morning or make salad dressing.

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

WEDNESDAY

Beef Stew with Dumplings (see Tuesday); Beet and Celery Salad with Lemon-y Mayonnaise; Sliced Bananas with Milk or Cream; Coffee

I made it for a dessert cake and chilled it well before serving. Fact is when I make a cake and fill it and frost it I think it should be the whole dessert without me bothering with fruit and/or ice cream. This one was just that.

ORANGE COCOANUT CHIFFON CAKE:

One cup plus 2 tablespoons sifted all-purpose flour, 2 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 3-4 cup sugar, 1-4 cup salad oil, 2 egg yolks, unbeaten, 6 tablespoons water, 1 tablespoon grated orange rind, 1-2 cup fine cocoanut, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, 1-2 cup (4 to 5) egg whites, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon cream of tartar. Measure sifted flour into sifter, add baking powder and sugar. Measure into mixing bowl the oil, egg yolks, water, orange rind, cocoanut and vanilla. Sift in dry ingredients. Beat 1-2 minute at low speed of mixer, or 75 strokes by hand. Beat egg whites, salt, and cream of tartar with egg beater or at high speed of electric beater until mixture will stand in very stiff peaks — about 3 minutes. The egg whites should be beaten stiffer than for meringue or angel food. Do not underbeat. Fold egg yolk mixture thoroughly into egg whites with a large spoon, flat wire whip, or rubber scraper. Do not stir or beat. Pour batter into ungreased 8 x 8 x 2" pan. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 35 minutes. Cool cake in pan, upside down, for 1 hour, resting corners of pan on 2 other pans to keep cake loosen from sides of pan with knife and gently pull out cake. Split and fill and frost with

ORANGE WHIPPED CREAM FILLING:

One cup sugar, 3 tablespoons flour, dash of salt, 2 egg yolks or 1 egg beaten, 2-3 cup orange juice, 1-4 cup water, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, 2 teaspoons butter, 1 cup cream whipped. Combine sugar, flour, and salt in top of double boiler; mix well. Then combine egg yolks and water; stir into dry ingredients. Add orange juice and mix thoroughly. Place over boiling water and cook 10 minutes, stirring copiously. Remove from boiling water; add orange rind and butter. Cool. Fold in whipped cream.

If desired, sprinkle cocoanut over and arrange membranous sections from 2 oranges as a border around edge.

Preserves Old Skills

The art of building wooden ships is still very much alive in Nova Scotia. 74 yards throughout the province specialize in wooden ship construction and the crafts and skills which fashioned the incomparable Bluenose are steadfastly preserved. 1958 was a busy year, a wide variety of trim craft from deep sea fishing schooners (such as the two shown above) to custom built yachts and luxury cabin cruisers were turned out.

Canada's golden age of sail reached its peak during the first 75 years of the 19th century, when the nation ranked as the 4th greatest shipbuilding and shipowning nation of the world. During its heydey, salty thoroughbreds turned out by maritime shipyards set new standards and records. The schooner Bluenose, launched in 1921, flew before the wind, winning nearly every race she entered.

George Acker cuts mild steel bolts for ship fastenings. Abundant timber (mostly the soft woods tamarack, pine and spruce) at water's edge was responsible for the birth and growth of shipbuilding in Canada's maritime provinces.

Men Organize Fox Hunt At Anson

RAWDON—The fox epidemic is serious in the Anson community and on Sunday afternoon several men were out on a fox hunt. Two were seen that morning near the railroad tracks between Concession 1 and 2 of Rawdon Township.

Early after dinner a fox was shot in one of the gardens and there were several indications it might have had rabies.

On Friday a fox bit a couple of dogs and ran into a yard with a group of young cattle, it was shot that afternoon.

Several farmers are having their cattle and domestic pets inoculated.

Three or four fox dens have been located in this area. Dr. and Bruce Murray, local veterinarian, is quite sure there was a trace of the disease on Friday.

Penguin May Supply Lessons For Men Exposed to Cold For Long Time in Antarctica

MCMURDO SOUND, Antarctica (AP)—The penguin, it seems, carries a built-in thermostat that keeps him warm as a fresh muffin in zero weather. He may provide lessons for men exposed to cold for a long time.

A British doctor believes a little systematic exposure can make man's life here much more endurable, if still not quite a thing of splendor.

Dr. R. Goldsmith of the Medical Research Council in London has been studying human adaptability to cold in Antarctica. He has tested the formidable constitution of the continent's most dignified inhabitant, the emperor penguin.

Several emperors were captured and brought aboard the icebreaker Staten Island. One, a fuzzy youngster who had not yet started to grow its tuxedo, was trotted into a laboratory. The doctor let it stand there for a considerable time at 80-85 degrees, a temperature very few penguins will ever have to deal with.

SHIVERED A BIT

Then, suddenly, the doctor put the bird into a freezer where the temperature had been set at 55 below zero. A little space was left open so the penguin could breathe.

The penguin was in the freezer for a couple of hours, but its temperature remained almost constant—as it had at 85 above. "It did shiver a little after a time in the freezer," Goldsmith said, "and it panted at plus 85, something like a husky dog."

But it was obvious the penguin regarded the ordeal as a childishly simple trick.

In the wintertime, Goldsmith said, the male emperor has been known to sit on his wife's unhatched egg for six weeks running—at 40 below.

"During all this time," the doctor said, "the penguin doesn't eat a thing. This is a remarkable commentary on the metabolism of this bird."

GET USED TO IT

"We have been trying to find out whether people who live in Antarctic bases become acclimatized. I think we've got pretty good evidence that they become used to it."

A pilot scheme has been devised to measure man's adaptability to cold.

The subject attaches an exposure clock to his clothing. The clock beings working when the temperature falls below a certain level, and it tells how many hours a day the wearer has been exposed to cold below this level. One of Goldsmith's colleagues on the Staten Island has been wearing such a block.

After the routine has been followed for agiven period, the clock wearer undergoes tests to see how much good the exposure did him.

POINTED PROOF

"There are one or two good tests to tell whether he has become acclimatized at all," Goldsmith said. "For example, you get two people—one who has been exposed and one who has not—and have them sleep at 32 degrees with two blankets. Then, after two hours, you take the blankets away. You'll find the acclimatized person doesn't wake up. The other one does.

"We also have local tests, to measure the acclimatization of the hands. We can cool the hands in a wind tunnel and then press a pointed instrument against them. The acclimatized hand will respond much more quickly than the other.

"From all this, we might find, for example, that a man who has been out in the cold one-half hour a day is not acclimatized, while a man who has been out two hours is."

HOUSING BOOM IN AFRICA

New townships are rising on the outskirts of Johannesburg in South Africa in what is probably the world's largest single housing project. The scene is the same in many other African cities as new progress is made in improved housing for natives. Top picture shows a native housing project near Johannesburg. Bottom is a large luxury apartment building on Adderley Street at Cape Town. (CP Photo) (South African Embassy).

Govt. Expects to Have Full Housing for Three Million Africans in Urban Areas

Housing projects for Africans, started by the government of South Africa as one phase of its racial segregation policy, are described in the following story by Russell Elman, Former Canadian Press staff writer now touring the Commonwealth.

By RUSSELL ELMAN

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (CP)—New townships are rising on the bare veldt of Johannesburg's western outskirts to house several hundred thousand Africans working in the big South African city.

Row upon row of detached white houses, miles of tarred centres are being built in what perhaps is the world's largest single housing project.

In every South African city—today—Durban, Port Elizabeth, Capetown, East London, Germiston, Pietermaritzburg—this scene is being duplicated. Only a few sixty-shanty towns remain and by 1963 the government expects to have full housing for the 3,000,000 African and Coloured people.

In 1958, 25,650 housing units were being built by municipal and government authorities at an average cost of £150-₹200 (-$420-$560) for four-roomed houses in Johannesburg, where 30 houses a day are being completed. 250,000 Africans already have been settled in new houses.

Rents tend to be low and in the past were often subsidized by municipalities at sub-economic levels. The average monthly rental for a four-room house with a 30-year lease is between £2-50 shillings (-$6.75) and 60 shillings (-$8.15).

Certain cities such as Germiston, an industrial town of 150,000 near Johannesburg, encourage home ownership giving the African equal possession of the house but not the land on which it is built.

In East London a better class district has been reserved for professional and business men where 42,000 split-level homes with two-car garages have been erected.

CALLS FOR SPEEDUP

The government recently has been pressing municipalities to speed up their housing programs. Under the government also helped the Johannesburg City Council, which was losing £-$9,000 a year on African development schemes, to get its financial difficulties.

To ease the housing crush, caused by the continued influx of Africans to work in the expanding industries of the urban areas, a new plan called "Site and Service" has been started. The municipality puts up essential services and erects and offers prospective tenants to live in temporary shacks on their reserve 70-foot sites until they or the local authority build a permanent house.

There have been some complaints by Africans against the uniformity of mass - produced homes, higher rents, and inadequate and erratic commuter transportation to and from work.

Now the 12,000,000 - 20,000,000 Kwa Mashu Township being built outside Durban, 70 miles away, a printing assistant, said he now has to rise at three instead of six o'clock to catch his morning bus. The fare has increased from one shilling and threepence to two shillings a day.

The municipality had provided no outside flush toilet and shower but he wanted an inside bathroom, an expensive addition for himself to build. But he does not want to return to the tin shacks in the Cato Manor slum where he used to pay 30 shillings a month for one room, compared with 56 shillings for a four-room detached house in Kwa Mashu.

In most large cities new commuter train services with subsidized fares are being in-tailed to help township workers. Juvenile bus services—private or municipal—in general do not cope as efficiently as the railways.

The design and pattern of homes is being varied in the newer developments. Tenants are offered for the best garden.

Because there is no freehold tenure and leases are limited to 30 years in the new townships, some Africans feel insecure. Under the Group Areas Act, which zones land for occupation according to race, Africans have been removed from freehold sites in cities to new houses in African areas.

SEPARATION TROUBLE

In 1956 bitter controversy broke out when African were taken by truck with police guards from the Johannesburg suburb of Sophiatown, a low-class district bordering on Meadowlands Township, to the new officially the police were stationed to protect Africans from ruffian gangs who tried to terrorize them from moving. Critics say the police forced the removals prompted by a Nationalist MP's promise to rid Johannesburg of neighboring white area to remove the "black spot" in its midst.

Today Sophiatown, looking like a blitzed town, is quiet. Many of the wood dwellings, bought sometimes six families, have been pulled down and replaced by houses, including a few wall-built homes, are being sought out by the city council for the territory is converted into a white area for light industry.

In the townships, special hostels for house Africans, who keep their homes in the rural areas, but migrate temporarily to work in urban areas, are the hostels and the new homes, Africans are separated according to tribal ethnic groups and are encouraged to school sing primary education in their own tongues. In the vernacular but also labelled as a principal cause of the violence endemic in the townships.

In September 1957, more than 30 Africans were killed in bloody riots between Zulus and Basutos in the Dube hostel in Johannesburg's southwestern areas. A Johannesburg commission recommended that the ethnic grouping policy in the hostels be ended and that labor discouraged if further serious clashes were to be averted.

Because of the heavy influx of single men, largely through the migratory labor system, there are more than three African men for every African woman in Johannesburg. An estimated 60 per cent of the children born are illegitimate.

The pattern is followed in most African cities, where barefoot children in rags are compelled to hawk newspapers and beg in the streets, and Zulus from Natal province. Youths called Tsotsis like gangsters and live on crime because it pays better turning down the few unskilled jobs made available to them.

Today the murder rate on the "Witwatersrand"—the town that of Chicago. Rapes, stabbings and robberies are commonplace in the townships. At night few Africans venture out of their homes without a flashlight.

Devotees Scotland's Plowman Poet Get Ready to Celebrate 200th Anniversary of Birth

ALLOWAY, Scotland (Reuters) Federation will be proposed by Devotees throughout the world of the Earl of Selkirk, first lord Robert Burns, Scotland's plowman poet, are getting ready to celebrate the 200th anniversary of the admiralty. his birth in this Ayrshire hamlet.

As the bard himself sang, it so was "a blast o' Januar' wind" that on Jan. 25, 1759, ushered the short-lived Rabbie into the world to enrich his native country with a poetic genius such as it never had known.

In the two centuries that have passed, his muse and his memory have been the inspiration of countless Scottish sentiment than all the other topics in the world put together.

Understandably, the citizens of Alloway walk proudly and with grim heads held high these days as planned, including a public dinpass the cottage where Burns was born.

They are a little regretful that Alloway will not be the central focus of celebrations. These will be based at the nearby town of Kilmarnock, with a Burns Federation dinner (Jan. 24) as the main bicentennial function.

But Alloway will capture the spotlight on "the day," for the village post office will be opened specially from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. on Sunday, Jan. 25, to allow rat. Burns and philatelic enthusiasts to mail letters franked "Alloway" with the date of the bicentenary birthday of his birth.

Rabbie's fellow citizens had hoped for a special commemorative stamp to mark the occasion. But pressure brought to bear on the Sassach (southern) Parliament in London proved unavailing, and the concession of a special franking has to suffice.

To Burns enthusiasts, the irony lies in that the Soviet Union—where the poet has many admirers — already has outdone Britain by issuing a special Burns stamp, complete with a portrait of the poet, with a face value of 40 kopeks.

But in an over-all sense, Scotland intends to do Rabbie proud. Some of its most distinguished sons, ranging from Viscount Kilmuir, the lord chancellor, to Jimmy Robertson, Scottish film actor, will take part in the bicentennial tribute to the "heaven-taught ploughman," which is toasted annually.

The toast of the evening at the Kilmarnock function by the Burns a' that."

Coinciding with this dinner will be the Ayr Burns Club's supper to be televised. It will bark back into history when James Ferguson, keeper of the records of Scotland, proposes the toast his grandfather gave at the Burns centenary banquet a century ago, "Traditional Burns banquets will honorary post of lord rector of Edinburgh University, will propose the 'immortal memory.'"

At another dinner to be given by the Burns Federation Club Jan. 26, Sir Alan (A. P.) Herbert, poet, essayist, humorist and former member of Parliament, will be the principal speaker.

On Jan. 25, there will be a special service at St. Giles Cathedral, Edinburgh, when the lord provost and councillors will march in procession. Various Edinburgh landmarks, including the Burns monument and Edinburgh Castle, will be floodlighted.

The commemoration will extend almost into a Burns year, for on June 4 it is to stage a indoor pageant with 200 players under the title of I. Robert Burns.

About the same time, the Glasgow and District Burns Association will open 10 cottages at Mauchline, Ayrshire. Already occupied by elderly women, these cottages are in memory of Jean Armour, with whom the Burns had a entanglement.

Ten more cottages will be built as a cost of $42,000 when money is available.

Over all this, the shadow of Rabbie will brood understandingly though perhaps wondering whether he merited all this praise. For it was he who prized human dignity above all the world's goods.

U.S. Officials Doubt Prudence Of Placing Ban at Present Time

By GEORG EKITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The United States is experience-and-some obvious and unheeded possible second thoughts about the wisdom of retiring into an atomic self-ban agreement with the Soviet Union.

Less than a month ago, Washington was exhibiting high optimism that the Russians would be ready to strike a workable agreement with the U.S. and United Kingdom to halt Western atomic powers, and that it might be signed some time this year.

But now American officials, and some scientists are piqued by particular, are pestered by doubts about whether it would be prudent to go ahead with a ban at the present time.

It's likely that the doubts will not affect the decisions do not respond positively to a new concession by the Soviet Union Monday, the two Western countries dropped their insistence that duration of any test ban treaty be linked with progress in disarmament.

The change in mood developed after a panel of U.S. scientists reported to President Eisenhower new evidence indicating that underground a ban to be effective would be much harder to detect that was believed in summer when technical discussions between Russia and the Western countries agreed at Geneva that an adequate test detection system was feasible.

Eisenhower promptly placed the evidence before Eastern and Western delegates nine meeting in Geneva to see if they can work about an agreement based on the earlier conclusions.

The report added fuel to the long-standing controversy in U.S. scientific as to whether tests could hamper the development of weapons by the U.S.

And it gave weight to the arguments of those who maintain they oppose a ban on the grounds the Soviet, under their system of tightly-controlled technical security, would be more likely to violate an international prohibition than would the Western powers.

The panel, headed by Dr. Lloyd underground tests conducted in tions.

CBC Planning Steps to Restore Normal Service

MONTREAL (CP) — Striking Montreal CBC television producers have been warned that unless they substantially revise their stand by noon Thursday the corporation "will take other steps to restore normal service."

The warning was given Tuesday night as the CBC rejected a producers' proposal that the 34-day dispute be submitted to an arbitrator chosen from the industrial relations faculty of the University of Montreal, McGill University or Laval University.

The producers called an urgent meeting after the CBC reply was announced. They were still in session early today.

The producers went on strike Dec. 29 to back demands that their newly - formed Association des Realisateurs (CCCA) be recognized as bargaining agent. The CBC replied that the 74 producers were part of management under federal law, and as such could not affiliate with a labor body.

TWO-PAGE REPLY

The CBC's two-page reply was signed by Marcel Carter of Ottawa, special representative of Allan J. Alphonse Ouimet, CBC president.

There was no hint as to what steps were contemplated by the CBC.

The reply said the CBC was established by Parliament for the purpose of operating a national broadcasting service in Canada and is bound to observe industrial procedure established by Parliament.

From the beginning, the CBC has said that the producers have a right to form themselves into a professional association. The corporation reiterates, however, that the producers' status is that of management.

"If the producers disagree with this they are free to go to the CLRB and seek appropriate recognition."

Jack Brett Pleads Guilty At Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 28-year-old man who posed as an intern in a Vancouver hospital took part in the delivery of babies before his hoax was discovered, city prosecutor Stewart McMorran said Monday.

Jack Brett pleaded guilty to stealing a $5 prescription pad and was remanded until Friday for a pre-sentence report.

Mr. McMorran said Brett posed as an intern for four weeks at St. Paul's Hospital. He left out what Brett said was a magazine assignment.

The charge was substantiated.

Brett was at the hospital April 25, 1958 and was released after he could not produce the required qualification certificates.

Brett told his partner in a newspaper interview here and in Regina. He has been in custody since.

Parties to one of the deliveries at which he assisted, another doctor and a nurse. A nurse had to assist on another.

NEVER ALONE

Mr. McMorran said that in defence to Brett, he never alone. There was either a nurse or senior intern present or

The forgery involved an application for internship to the hospital which bore the forged signature of Dr. J. A. McFarlane, dean of the faculty of medicine at the University of Toronto.

Brett said the "prank" was part of his plan to expose a "lax state" in regard on the part of hospitals.

Cornwall Paper Purchased by Thomson Chain

CORNWALL (CP) — Sale of the Cornwall Standard-Freeholder to Thomson Newspapers Limited was announced Monday.

The newspaper, a daily since 1941, is successor to one of Ontario's oldest papers, the Cornwall Freeholder, founded in 1845. It has been under the control of the Hamilton family and associates of Owen Sound. The Owen Sound Sun-Times also is largely owned by the Fleming family, is not involved in the transaction.

K. R. Thomson, president of Thomson Newspapers, said there would be no change in the paper's political policy and it would remain under present management. John B. McKay is editor and publisher and P. S. Robertson is general manager.

TWENTY YEARS OF WORDS

Took Man 20 Years Defining 54,582 Words for Dictionary Of French Language in Can.

He worked 20 years defining 54,582 words for a dictionary of the French language in Canada, which recently earned him a merit medal from the Academie Francaise in Paris. And this was a spare-time labor of love he lifted in after his busy days as author, editor and printing plant owner.

The dictionary, published in 1957, is the 1,408-page Dictionnaire general de la langue francaise au Canada.

"Some like to play golf, I like to play with "words," says 56-year-old Bélisle, son of a St. Elzéar-de-Témiscouata farmer.

About 20,000 of his dictionaries have been sold in French-Canada since last November to individual purchasers of 26,000 at chain food stores.

While his dictionary does not include regional differences in Canadian French it has hundreds of French words peculiar to this country.

Through his many activities in French Canada, Mr. Bélisle had found that there was a lack of French-Canadian terms in business and technical fields. This was the basis for his lack of French-Canadian words.

Every night Mr. Bélisle works at re-editing a part of his dictionary. He plans a re-print in about two years.

He says it was the financial, technical and lexicographical needs of the French language in Canada that prompted him to compile his own printing plant and produce his numerous works.

His publishing company, La Semaine Commerciale, was established in 1894. Mr. Bélisle required it in 1936 and he has continued putting out the weekly financial review of the same name. He also publishes manuals for many technical skills and financial guide books, all in French. He sold 46,000 technical books in 1957.

Mr. Bélisle has been lumberjack, clerk, reporter and later financial editor of the Quebec City daily newspaper Le Soleil, business professor and translator.

His dictionary contains such words as: "erinquer", from the English to crank; locally formed words like "erabliere" the maple forest where maple syrup and sugar is produced; and old words that have been forgotten or have been corrupted in France.

In some of the areas where France has accepted English or American words in its spoken language, Bélisle gives such French Canadian words as "speaker" (radio announcer) current in France.

Mr. Bélisle's "living room" and "announcer" for the term "speaker" (radio announcer) current in France.

Fleming Sees Resurgence For the Canadian Economy

OTTAWA (CP)—A steady resurgence is in store for the Canadian economy this year, Finance Minister Fleming says, but a decisive balance must be kept between growth and stability.

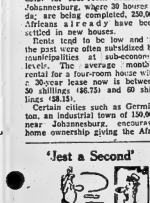
Mr. Fleming said Tuesday night that the best hope for sustained economic growth lies in maintaining a steady recovery from the recession of 1957 and early 1958 rather than in an inflation-producing boom.

The forecast was given in a wide speech to the Dominion Marine Association holding a joint annual meeting here with the Lake Carriers Association of the United States.

Mr. Fleming said the economic situation "gives promise of a steady and sustained recovery." But it must be strengthened and actively the economy. Unemployment this winter would be proportionately smaller at a problem than last winter.

The Great Lakes ship owners and operators, ending their business sessions, unanimously endorsed a resolution opposing tolls being imposed on the St. Lawrence Seaway this summer. The resolution urged preservation of the historic toll-free areas" of the Great Lakes.

In contrast to the spirited discussion on seaway tolls a year ago, there was almost none Tuesday.



Vice-Admiral Lyndon Spencer, president of the American group, warned it that so far as the U.S. is concerned, tolls would prevent increasing consideration on inland waters.

The U.S. is running up a tremendous public debt, he said, and government inquiries are under way to determine the economy and practicability of "user payments."

The resolution he proposed said seaway and Great Lakes tolls would be contrary to the expressed principles of both countries, as exemplified in various treaties dating to 1763.

John Mahoney, manager of the Dominion Marine Association, said that since it tolls are imposed, the two governments should leave room to withdraw them. A decision in the event that tolls proved a bad thing—as many shipowners believed they would. He said the association welcomed Transport Minister Sevaay's announcement in the Commons that a 27-foot channel will be available by June 1 in the seaway.

Heavy Slaughter Faces Caribou With Extinction

SASKATOON (CP) — Unless excessive killing is halted, there will be no caribou left in Canada's Far North.

This is the report of F. A. Gregg, writer - biologist with the Saskatchewan department of national resources, after an intensive biological survey of the caribou. The preliminary report of the survey, initiated by the Canadian wildlife service, said there is a pressing need to educate all northern residents to exercise more restraint.

Illustrated booklets in the Eskimo language emphasizing the folly of excessive slaughter and waste have resulted in some progress. Legal restrictions limiting the number of caribou that may be killed may have some beneficial effects, but they are extremely difficult to enforce.

In view of the seriousness of the problem, complete closure of caribou hunting in many areas may be the alternative to extinction.

Famous Paris Market Doomed

PARIS (AP) — The vast central market place known as Les Halles is doomed under plans of the de Gaulle government.

Millions of tourists have enjoyed 5 a.m. onion soup in this area. It has been called the belly of Paris.

It was started in this location in the 12th century and hasn't changed much in the last 100 years while Paris has grown lustily.

Located near the Seine and the Louvre, Les Halles has become an obstacle course to traffic. Its loading trucks block streets. Handcarts, never in a hurry in front of an impatient driver, contribute their bit to making the district a challenge to automobiles.

A de Gaulle decree calls for several specialized markets, located at various suburban points around the capital, to serve as a substitute for Les Halles. Modern installations will be constructed and rail and road facilities improved. The government hopes lower prices will result.

Monday, Hayes notified the Sinton Parent-Teachers Association he would be unable to fill a speaking engagement. He said that when he made the engagement several weeks ago he forgot the date was his wedding anniversary.

Buried alive for 18 months, this German shepherd dog is tended by a veterinary surgeon at the Infirmary for Sick Animals in Naples, Italy, after being rescued from a 100-foot well. Villagers at the nearby town of Afragola said the dog was one of three puppies thrown into the dry well by a local farmer who wanted to get rid of them. Surviving the fall which killed its two brothers, the dog lived on rain water and garbage dumped into the shaft by villagers who were unaware of the animal's existence until a passerby heard its faint cries.

Johnny Devlin New Presley In Staid Country of N. Zealand

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—New Zealand has an Elvis Presley brand success story on its hands. It is a complete novelty in this staid country and people here are thoroughly bewildered by it.

The New Zealand Elvis is 20-year-old Johnny Devlin, born and bred in Wanganui, a quietly prosperous little city on the west coast.

A year ago he was earning $900-a-year as a junior bank clerk. He quit only because he was behind in payments on a motor-cycle. So he took a job at twice the money in a wool store humping wool bales.

As a spare-time way of getting more money he sang with a rock 'n' roll band.

He was doing a stint at an all-rock dance hall in Auckland when another 20-year-old, Phillip Warren, made him a proposition to make records.

They went into business. Devlin made Lawdy Miss Clawdy, with the dance hall band, and Warren sold 25,000 copies. This outsold the Elvis Presley version of the same record 10 to 1 in the local stores.

He has completely submerged the other overseas favorites ever since the New Zealand esteem. Tea-agers flock to personal appearance tours in a way New Zealand has only read about until now.

Bobby soxers and rock 'ti' rollers have sighed and screamed about overseas favorites for years, but they have never before had a home-grown idol of their own who raised more than a faint flicker of interest.

Johnny Devlin is a new phenomenon here. He is likely to make at least £15,000 this year.

Adults shake their heads at the $500-a-week salary he is drawing on a personal appearance tour for major cinema chain. This is unheard-of pay for a 20-year-old in this country, and elders ask how youth can be kept in a steady job when such glittering prospects beckon.

That the Devlin boom is not just a local fad is shown by records elsewhere. His records now are getting into the Australian hit parades. And they are being issued by companies in Britain and the United States. Johnny Devlin fans predict that their idol will be a world figure by this time next year.

Sir Laurence Olivier Blames TV for Failure of Richard III

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Fifteen years ago, Sir Laurence Olivier began an ambitious long-range program of bringing the best of Shakespeare to the audiences of the world.

"I determined to bring them along gently," he remarks. "First I did Henry V which was a surefire story for the movies. Then came Hamlet, which was a little more difficult. But I made it easy for them, really, by simplifying things and attaching an introduction to it."

Then with Richard III I figured they were ready for a real story with wonderful characters.

KILLED BY TV

Henry V won a special Academy Award, Hamlet and Oscar for best picture and one for Olivier as best actor. Both made money. Richard III did not, and Olivier places the blame on TV.

It was released in England when the box office was taking a near-dive because of the rise of TV. "The Teddy Boys loved it," Olivier added, referring to the London rufflers who revelled in the film's violence.

The picture failed in the U.S. because of an unusual—and disastrous—circumstance: "It was released first as a TV spectacular. I pleaded with the backers not to do it," the producer-director-star said. "They claimed people would be stimulated by the showing to see it on a big screen and in color. The money was too tempting for them—$600,000. Because they had no distribution or advertising costs, that was the equivalent of $2,000,000 in theatre returns."

NO BACKING

Perhaps if the box office failure of Richard III, Olivier was unable to find backing for the fourth of his Shakespearian films, Macbeth.

"Pardon me, pal—there's two S's in massacre!"

AT THE BELLE — Juliette Greco has the romantic lead in "The Naked Earth", playing for the last times today at the Belleville theatre. Juliette made the excitement of Jean Paul Sartre's existentialism, who has hit the American popularity list. Richard Todd and Finlay Currie also star in "The Naked Earth".

TWIN TERROR THRILLER PACKS TERRIFIC WALLOP

And now it can be shown, the twin terror thriller that rocked the screen at the Park Theatre when this reviewer viewed the twin offering showing today and Thursday only for its first Belleville showings.

"Frankenstein's Daughter" and "Missile To The Moon" had the hairiest, most unbelievable plots with its unusual supernatural but could-be factual themes.

Both features held all viewers spellbound, or could it have been fear. Whatever it was, it was thrilling, to say the least, and it certainly was an experience not too easily forgotten. For those movie-goers who delight in being enraptured by adventure into the unknown, then this excellent offering is highly recommended.

Malice in Wonderland Was Hilarious Hour of Television

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—J. Persewood. Rather, it satirized human attitudes which are brought into sharper dramatic focus by the fact that—in the public imagination at least—life in the film capital seems to be out-size.

The most wonderful thing about Malice in Wonderland was that it had substance every minute of the hour. By the inverse method of humor, there was important commentary on important matters—not on trivia.

REFRESHING CHANCE

The second most wonderful thing about the show was that it appeared on television at all. In a medium normally frightened at offending anybody, it was refreshing to see a show that might have been construed as offending somebody with nearly every line.

This single program increased television's stature and showed what it can do.

A MILLION THRILLS IN ONE MIGHTY MOTION PICTURE!

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Next Monday night in arenas from the Maritimes to British Columbia, Canadian Amateur Hockey Association officials will pay tribute to the most actively supported minor hockey.

Provincial officials of the CAHA are scheduled to make the honorary farewell in scores of games that will officially open Minor Hockey Week in Canada. This is a public tribute to voluntary workers — managers, coaches, referees and others—who help out hundreds of peewee, bantam and juvenile teams throughout the country.

The night, however, could pack a much more solid wallop, with co - operation of the National Hockey League and the Canadian National Exhibition Hockey Hall of Fame in Toronto. These two organizations, with a little effort, could have made this wholesale faceoff one of the most dramatic in hockey history.

Officials of the minor hockey committee of the CAHA made overtures to the CNE Hall of Fame mouths ago for support. The idea was to have living members of the Hall of Fame go to arenas across the country to take part in the ceremonies—men such as Cyclone Taylor of Vancouver, Newsy Lalonde of Cornwall and Bill Cook of Kingston, Ont.—but the deal fell through.

A glorious chance to give the old-timers a chance to get out and become known to youngsters who have made them their idols was missed. These men receive publicity when elected to the hall but they are soon forgotten and many drop out of sight.

The word is that the Hockey Hall of Fame muffed it because of the cost involved — an estimated $2,000 to $3,000. Officials wanted someone else to pay the shot.

Incidentally, the $3,000 would just about cover the cost of the dinner the Canadian Football League gave to American coaches at Cincinnati a couple of weeks ago. Calgary Stampeder officials started it a year ago at the coaches convention and the CFL took it over this year.

Still on football, Ron Howell of Hamilton Tiger-Cats who was voted the outstanding Canadian football player in the country last November, hasn't much trouble keeping in shape.

A week after the Dec. 6 all-star Shrine game in Hamilton, he was en route to join Buffalo of the American Hockey League. He wound up with Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League and will play until April. Two months later the Tiger-Cat football camp opens.

Howell told Eric (Vancouver Province) Whitehead that he had no preference—football or hockey. "They're both great in their respective seasons," he said, adding that Ticats had offered him a year contract but he turned it down in favor of the "one-year-at-a-time kind."

A two-year contract would mean I couldn't play hockey during that period," he explained.

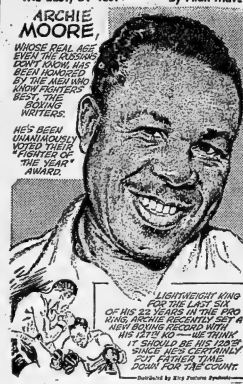
Teeps Defeat Baby Habs

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Old-timers at Hall Canadiens suffered their first loss in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A company here Tuesday night when they dropped a 5-3 exhibition hockey game to St. Catharines TeePees.

The OHA league leaders carried play over most of the slam-bang clash. Fred Hilts led TeePees with three goals while Stan Nikkila and Duke Harris added singles. Andre Drolet, Marcel Morrissette and Yves Sarrazin secured for Canadiens.

The win was St. Catharines' first in four tries against the old-timers this season.

Ryff Verdicts Angel Robinson



MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A bloody Frankie Ryff, trying for a comeback, pounded out a unanimous 10 round decision Tuesday night over Angel Robinson Garcia, Havana lightweight.

Ryff started out strongly but appeared to weaken in the middle rounds when Garcia staggered him with body punches and opened cuts on his scalp and eye.

However, Ryff came back in the closing rounds to score with combinations to the head. He weighed 137½ and Garcia 134½. A crowd of 2,106 was on hand.

Ryff, discouraged because of his tendency to suffer cuts in every bout, retired to drive a New York taxi last year despite his 28-6 record. He was persuaded to return to the ring by Barney Ross and trainer Whitey Brimston and now has won three of four since his decision to retire.

Braves Warned Not to Talk About Salaries

MILWAUKEE (AP) Four Milwaukee Braves who have voiced dissatisfaction with 1959 pay offers were told Tuesday night by Birdie Tebbetts they would gain nothing by public discussion of salary negotiations.

Asked to comment on the players' statements, Tebbetts, hired by the Braves as executive president last fall, said he never talked of such matters.

Known to be dickering for more money are outfielders Hank Aaron, Wes Covington and Bill Bruton and relief hurler Don McMahon.

SOX SIGN HARRIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Second baseman Dick Harris, son of General Manager Bucky Harris of Boston Red Sox, has signed his 1959 contract with Washington Senators. Bucky managed Senators to their only world championship, in 1924. His 25-year-old son joined Washington's system in 1954. Last year Dick batted .252 for Charlotte in the South Atlantic League.

Perkins Favored Over Algerian

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eddie Perkins of Chicago is a hairline favorite to outpoint Lahouari Golib of Algeria tonight in a 10-round lightweight bout that concludes a fanciful soiree at Capitol Arena.

The Perkins-Godih brawl is on the program after-hold your hats, men—a fashion show.

This mixture of fisticuffs and fashions was contrived by promoter Goldie Ahearn with a triple aim: To titillate the fight addict them know what they're wearing in California these winter days, and benefit the March of Dimes.

Twelve Washington models, garbed in bathing suits and the latest lowcut creations, will pass the hat for the anti-polio fund.

Television fight fans will miss the girls but can watch the pugilists over ABC starting at 10 p.m. EST.

BARBERS' OFFER

STEVENAGE, England (CP)—Two barbers in this Hertfordshire town, fed up with the performance of the nearby Hitchin soccer club, offer free haircuts for a year to any forward scoring three goals in a match, and to any goalie who scores a shutout.

Will Increase Athletic Funds

TORONTO (CP) — The University of Toronto Athletic Association says it may have to increase student membership fees to $15 from $10 to help offset the revenue it will lose at Varsity stadium this year.

The association's 27,000 - seat stadium is being abandoned by Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four football union in favor of a new field at the Canadian National Exhibition park which will seat 35,000.

It is also likely that the Grey Cup game will be moved from Varsity to the CNE stadium. Revenue loss will total $97,500.

KELLY BACK

DETROIT (AP) — Red Kelly, Detroit, Red Wing defenceman worked out with the National Hockey League club Tuesday and is expected to play against the Black Hawks in Chicago tonight. Kelly was removed from Kelly's bruised left foot shortly before he took the ice for the workout. He injured the foot a week ago and had missed three NHL games. Gump Sawchuk, Red Wing goalie out with a bruised shoulder, was described as 30 per cent improved but will miss tonight's game.

Marlies Seek Ted Kennedy As Coach

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Marlboros' of the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series are looking for their fourth coach of the season. Ted (Teeder) Kennedy has been mentioned.

Marlboro president Harold Ballard said Tuesday Ray Timgren has notified him that he cannot coach the team after this weekend.

It is reported the club will go after Kennedy, former National Hockey League great with Toronto Maple Leafs who successfully coached Peterborough Petes for two years before resigning. He now is in Jamaica on holiday.

Until a replacement can be found for Timgren, Alex Davidson will fill in.

Turk Broda started the season as coach. After 22 games he was laid low with colitis. Bob Davidson, Leafs chief scout, took over for 10 games before dropping out in favor of Timgran two weeks ago.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It is a long lane that has no turning.

It is not too many weeks ago that the hockey "experts" of the province were pointing the finger of doubt at the McFarlands then floundering around in the league with a record of four wins and nine defeats.

Hockey-wise playing coach Ike Hildebrand braced himself and took the barbs of criticism on his square-cut chin. Manager Drury Denyes, never the loquacious type, quietly concurred with Ike.

"I am not worried about the club," the doughty pint-sized coach told the reporter at that time. "The Whitby Dunlops were subjected to the same criticism a year ago, and look what happened to them. It seems Allan Cup winners are supposed to be supermen, and clean up everything in sight when they pull on their gear the following season."

"Mark this," said Hildebrand. "They can say what they like about this club, but by mid-January or thereabouts they will be just as strong if not better than the Dunnies were a year ago this time."

"We fully realize," Hildebrand said at the time, "that the club that won the Allan Cup will not be strong enough to compete in this world championship. Some players will be cut entirely. Positional changes will be made. Competent players will be added to the club."

He was right. Seven of the original Allan Cup team have been struck off strength. Every local hockey fan knows the consistency with which Hildebrand developed and re-arranged his forward lines. There was criticism about this, too, but Ike turned a deaf ear and went about his quest for front-line combinations that would come up to his expectations of driving offensive forces.

Meanwhile Manager Drury Denyes and later newly-appointed assistant general manager Billy Reay went quietly about the job of seeking and securing if possible the reinforcements they deemed necessary.

This was not a bed of roses job either. They discovered there is little sentiment in hockey, and whatever there is, did not show itself too prominently. Jean Paul Lamirande and Billy Graham, two veterans with European experience were secured. Claude Dutoy, a pro goalie, enjoyed a brief span of existence with the Macs. He is now with Cleveland and may remain there.

In the meantime the Macs were slowly but surely whipping themselves into shape. Driving hard along the back at times like Eastern Canada champs of other years, but never farther back than second, they hit their stride just as Hildebrand predicted. In a late-schedule surge they won four and lost four in their last 8 starts. At the moment they lead the league.

The Macs' triumphant drive around the last turn and into the home stretch caused a change of mind on the part of many early-season critics. One of the main reasons for this is the flattering comparison to the world champion Dunlops, a team they decisively defested and tied in their last two meetings.

Now the consensus of the heretofore critics and staunch all-season supporters is that with the addition of two or three players they will be ready for the big showdown.

Wren Blair, bitter "league enemy," but otherwise a warm friend of the McFarlands, frustrated Saturday night after the Macs had snatched a last-second tie out of what looked like certain defeat, said after the game: "They are ready as they will ever be. Just let them get the players they are after, and they will look after Canada in Europe."

Len Taylor, Kitchener Record sports 'editor, who has seen the Russians play in Norway, United States and Canada, says, "the Macs could whip the Belleville team to do it. Goalie Chuck Rayner was the most outstanding performer that season.

Backstrom would be the first Canadian to get the rookie award since Bernie Geoffrion took it in 1952.

Toronto Telegram sports editor George Dulmage wrote: "This is a big tough team the Macs have assembled. They play a long pass-up game that frequently sends a man into the clear with an open shot on goal . . . There is experience and more here. Connie Broden would help where they need help. Ditto Gosselin on left wing. But if Pete Conacher gets his release maybe Gosselin won't be required. He can hurt in left wing with the 'best of them. European hockey would be his dish. With these 'ifts, ands and buts' the Macs are about ready. They're not as fast as the Dunnies were, but they aren't that much behind that it matters."

Dunnies Back on Share Basis With 6-3 Win Over Kingston

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

North Bay Trappers started the game with only 11 players, finished up with 10 and still managed a 4-2 upset victory over Sudbury Wolves in OHA-NOHA Senior A action Tuesday night.

A crowd of 1,478 North Bay fans cheered a second - period comeback drive by Trappers which netted three goals and wiped out Sudbury's 2-0 first-period lead.

IN the OHA Eastern Senior A the powerful Whitby Dunlops moved back into a first-place tie with Belleville McFarlands by downing Kingston Merchants 6-3.

North Bay was without the services of injured defenceman Jim Mikol and centre Jerry Cranana. Early in the second period forward Ken Gribbons struck his head on the ice after a collision and had to be taken out of the game.

Sudbury's Pete Pilote and Hank Marczak connected for the opening goals and the third-place Wolves appeared headed for a decisive win over North Bay, the league's cellar club all season.

An aroused home crew exploded suddenly in the second period with Reno Pepin, Tony Poeta, and Chas Konecny, who has been a disappointment all season, supplying the scoring punch. George Gosselin put away the insurance marker in the third.

Whitby playing - coach Sid Smith scored three goals to pace his club's home-ice victory over Kingston and for most of the game there was little doubt about the outcome.

It was 5-0 for Whitby in the second before the fourth-place Kingston crew broke loose for their only three goals.

Mid-Season Award-Voting Notes Several Changes

Bathgate Tops Howe as MVP Tom Johnson Shades Harvey While Backstrom Leads Rooks

MONTREAL (CP)—It looks as if some new names may be inscribed on a couple of National Hockey League trophies come spring.

The results of mid-winter voting on four of the league's most prized awards were announced Tuesday and unless there are some definite reversals of form before the end of the schedule there will be some new stars in the NHL firmament.

In voting for the Hart Trophy—the most valuable player award—Andy Bathgate, 26-year-old New York right winger, piled up a 31-point lead over Gordie Howe, the Detroit Red Wing star who won the trophy the last two years and twice before that.

TOPS TEAMMATE

And in balloting for the Norris Memorial Trophy — awarded to the league's best defencemen—Tom Johnson collected 38 points, an eight-point lead over Doug Harvey, Montreal Canadiens defenceman who has won the trophy four years in succession but finished fourth in the voting this time.

The Calder trophy for the league's best rookie has a new winner each year of course and it will also be necessary for anyone to overcome the 50-point lead Montreal goalie Ralph Backstrom has amassed.

The Lady Byng Memorial Trophy is awarded to the player who best combines gentlemanly conduct with a high standard of play and at mid-season Detroit's Alex Delvecchio has a 54-35 margin over Boston's Vic Stasiuk. Only this little centre who won it last year.

LEADS IN GOALS

Bathgate, who has scored a league-leading 22 goals and collected 28 assists so far, won a total of 67 points while Howe, third in the scoring race, has 36 points. Howe's teammate Terry Sawchuk, considered on the mid-season all-star team, was third with 31.

For the Norris Trophy it was Johnson, 38; Marcel Pronovost, Detroit, 34; Bill Gadsby, 31; Harvey, 30.

After Backstrom for the Calder came Detroit's Jack Caffery and Burns with 23 votes—59 less than Backstrom—and Norm Johnson, Chicago, 18.

Delvecchio, who has been penalized only four minutes so far, gets his competition from three Rangers—two of them former winners of the Lady Byng.

In third behind Henry, who has been in the penalty box just once this season, is Andy Hebenton, winner two seasons ago who received 18 points, and tied with him is Bathgate. Hebenton has been given three minors while Bathgate has been in the box 18 minutes.

If Bathgate wins the Hart Trophy he'll be the first Ranger since the 1940-41 season to do it. Goalie Chuck Rayner was the most outstanding performer that season.

Backstrom would be the first Canadian to get the rookie award since Bernie Geoffrion took it in 1952.

BRANTFORD TOPS 'SPIEL

HAMILTON (CP) — Brantford Tuesday won the right to represent District 9 in the Ontario Intermediate playoffs by edging Hamilton Victorias 22-20 at the Thistle Club. Bill Forbes led his fourrome to a 10-7 decision over Hamilton's O. Dougherty moments after J. Gage of Hamilton came on with the last rock to score three on the final end and edge Lou Hughes, Brantford rink 13-12. Victorias gained the final win a 26-24 aggregate score over Dundas while Brantford was disposing of Burlington 26-12.

Gadsby Joins Bathgate for Florida Rest

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP)—Coach Phil Watson of New York Rangers isn't taking any chances on having his star right winger Andy Bathgate run out of gas before the National Hockey League season is over.

Bathgate, picked Tuesday by NHL writers and broadcasters as the league's most valuable player for the first half of the season, has been used on the rush for five days' rest away from the hockey wars.

With him went defenceman Bill Gadsby, the veteran mainstay of the Rangers' blueline, and their wives.

The players will rejoin the club in Montreal for Saturday night's game against Canadiens.

Watson said the rest should do the 26-year-old Bathgate a lot more good than team workouts. It will also let his right wrist, which has been bothering him for more than a month, have a chance to recover.

Andy's a good finisher, although he gets awfully tired near the end of every season," Watson explained.

"I figure this vacation will keep him going at full clip right through the playoffs."

Bathgate was named to the right wing spot on the all-star team on balloting at the season's halfway mark last week and a strong finish could clinch the spot for him, as it would the NHL trophy for most valuable player.

He also is a strong contender for league scoring honors. He now trails Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion of Montreal Canadiens by one point—33 to 56.

Bathgate's 22 goals to date are tops, and the flashy winger stands a chance of becoming the seventh player in NHL history to score 40 or more goals in a season.

"All he has to do to get 40 goals is match last year's finish," Watson said today about Bathgate's scoring record. "He has 25 now and we have 26 games to play. Last year in the last 26 games he scored 15 goals."

Richard Breaks Left Ankle May Presage End of Career

By BEN OLAN

MONTREAL (AP)—Maurice (Rocket) Richard, his left leg in a cast and his career in doubt, is the National Hockey League career scoring conclusion, says he will "not decide now" whether to continue in the game until I'm able to skate again."

The 37-year-old Montreal Canadiens star suffered a fracture of left ankle bone on night's game in Chicago. He will not be permitted to skate again for at least four weeks.

"I know I said earlier in the season that one injury might may be the end for me. But, I want to see what happens when they take the cast off", Richard said in an interview Tuesday.

This was the latest in a series of recent injuries for Richard, who has scored a record 606 goals in regular season and Stanley Cup competition.

A cut Achilles tendon kept him on the sidelines for about months last season. Earlier this year he missed one game because of a bad back and last week he hurt an elbow in a game at Boston.

Richard suffered his latest jolt in the first period against the Black Hawks.

"We were on the power play and he was trying to get back to my position on right wing," he said. "Then Bernie Geoffrion gave a hard one from the blue line. The puck hit me on the ankle but I continued to skate.

"I went behind the net and twisted my ankle there. But I'm sure it was not that bad then."

The Rocket does not think his absence will hurt Canadiens' chances of finishing on top in the league race. The Habs lead by 12 points.

TORONTO (CP) — Anita's son, Irish-bred colt owned by St. J. Boyle of Toronto, Tuesday was rated the best two-year old in Canada in 1958 by Anthony Simms, racing secretary and Ontario Jockey Club handicapper.

Simms released his first "experimental handicap" and has Anita's Son top weight of 122 pounds.

Simms considered the records of 100 juveniles in making out her his jurisdiction in 1958 and assigned weights to them for a hypothetical race at a distance of 1 1-16 miles.

Anita's Son started nine, won five and was second in two races in 1958 with earnings of $15,845.

Bull Vic, which won the Coronation Stakes and has earnings of $7,640 was given four less than assigned the second-highest weights.

Simms rated Le Grand Rouge and Willowdale Boy at 117 pounds. He assigned 116 pounds to New Providence and Right Service.

IBBOTSON FINED

LEEDS, England (AP)—Derek Ibbotson, England's 3:57.2 miler, has been fined $14 for travelling too fast. He collected the fine for driving his car more than 30 miles an hour in a restricted zone. "It is one of the few occasions when I'm regrets travelling too fast," Ibbotson's attorney, Leslie Gould, told the court.

Baseball Owners Stand Firm Against Players' Proposals

NEW YORK (CP) — Club owners and officials of the Triple-A International - Baseball League appear to be standing firm in opposition to a threat by their players to call a strike if they don't get a pension fund.

The owners say all eight IL clubs except Buffalo lost money last year and a players' pension fund would be "impractical."

"As we told the players in Washington," said Frank J. Horton, P r e s i d e n t of Rochester, "there is no way within the economic framework of the league to grant the request for a pension . . . to come up with $35,000 per club to finance a pension would be to accept an additional loss which would put us out of business."

ASK FOR $250,000

The players, in their demand for a pension, similar to that of the major leagues but on a smaller scale, are asking the clubs to contribute $250,000 toward the $293,000 it would take to foot the annual bill.

The league players' association Monday instructed its 180 members not to sign contracts and not to report to spring training unless the league grants a pension plan.

"We're not against them (the players) having a pension," said league president Frank Shaughnessy, "only we just don't have the money . . . the major league players get their money from the world series and all-star game television receipts. Our league lost money in the little world series last fall."

President John C. Stiglmeier of Ton-

Buffalo called the pension plan impractical.

"How can you expect clubs that are losing money to put $35,000 for a pension program?" he asked. "Where will we get the money?"

Harold Cooper, Columbus general manager, said his club already has signed 14 players, none of whom played in the league last year.

SUGGESTS AUDIT

In Toronto, owner Jack Kent Cooke of Toronto Maple Leafs called on the players to have club books audited.

Team general manager Rudy Pavelich said he'd go along with everything to gain and nothing to lose by striking.

Cooke said Tuesday he has talked all clubs and members of the minor leagues faced with the same problems to instruct league officials to ask the players to appoint auditors.

Boston's Number One Fan, 69 Bikes 7 Miles to Every Game

By GAVIN SCOTT

BOSTON (CP) — Whenever Maurice Richard and Montreal Canadiens invade Boston Garden to joust with the Bruins, no one watches the Rocket's every move with a colder eye than Jim Casserly.

The 69-year-old retired handyman, Casserly claims the title of No. 1 Bruins fan.

Now duties and obligations of such an exalted office involve an intense and vocal prejudice against Richard—or so Casserly figures it.

RUNS ROCKET

He clinched the title, he says, on the basis of his performance following a recent National Hockey League game.

His daughter's heart seething with fraternal loyalty, Casserly posted himself outside the visiting team's dressing room. When Richard emerged, Casserly accosted the Canadiens star and called him a "lousy bum."

Casserly says he and a legion of Boston fans became particularly disenchanted with the likes of Richard after they read his much - quoted assertion that American hockey fans don't know much about the game.

DISTINCTIVE FIGURE

"I figure he's sorry now—he's over said American fans are ignorant. We're all human. We all make mistakes. But he didn't have to say that," says Casserly.

Casserly is a distinctive figure in the Bruins hockey mob. Clad in his traditional garden attire of black-and-gold beanie and Bruins-type sweater that he bought for $10 in a war surplus store, he crowns himself a rooter at every home game.

Casserly hasn't missed a Bruins home game this season or during any other season that he cares to remember. When the weather is not too cold, he rides his bicycle seven miles to the Garden from his home in suburban Melrose.

"I can make it in 30 minutes. I can do 16 miles an hour, you see, I lock my bike in the foyer. Nobody cares."

ELICITS AUTOGRAPHS

Casserly was born in Liverpool, England and in 1905 came to his aunt's farm in Melrose. Not long after his arrival he worked in a wild west show that played in Boston.

"They offered me a chance to go across the country with them, but I couldn't leave my aunt. She would have died. The farm is now a golf course."

A bachelor, Casserly lives in a rooming house and takes most of his meals in a cafeteria. His hockey tickets are one of his few luxuries.

An ardent collector of autographs, he has acquired the scrawls of all the players on the Bruins roster. He also has a sample of the handwriting of Gump Worsley, New York Rangers goalie.

"I'll always be a Bruins fan, win or lose," Casserly says. "We're loyal to our boys in Boston and Richard ought to know that."

REACT LIKE HUMANS

Monkeys are valuable to space rocket research because of their many similarities, physical and emotional, to humans.

HE BAITS THE ROCKET

City Fathers Won't Give; Settle for Draw

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP) — City council Tuesday opposed using taxpayers' funds to help Penticton Vs represented Canada in the 1959 world hockey championships in Czechoslovakia, but recently joined as individuals in a public fund-raising drive.

The Penticton council sent council a tall tumbler, inscribed in gold with players' autographs, suggesting each municipality in the country send one tenth of one cent per person of population to help raise $50,000. Penticton's contribution would have been $12.

Alderman P. E. Pauls and C. P. Bird recalled that when the Penticton Vs represented Canada in world hockey, fund raising was confined to British Columbia and suggested the Belleville public might confine its efforts to Ontario.

However, when City Clerk H. G. Andrew asked permission to raise funds for Belleville by raffling the tumbler, council members were quite quick to agree. Several of them at once put their names down for tickets.

WILLIE MAYS SIGNS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Star centre fielder Willie Mays Tuesday night agreed to his 1959 contract with San Francisco Giants for an estimated $80,000. Agreement came in a telephone conversation between Willie in New York and to club president Horace Stoneham. It represents a $5,000 boost over last season. In 1958, Willie collected 208 hits and 29 homers. He drove in 96 runs and scored 121.

Canadians May Play Basketball In Argentina

SANTIAGO, Chile (CP)—Canada's basketball team, reduced to the consolation series in the world tournament on the 19th, has invited to play in Argentina following the tournament.

Meanwhile, the U.S. will meet Bulgaria and Russia will play Puerto Rico tonight in their first game in the final round-robin of the championship.

A spokesman for the Canadian team said Tuesday night he has written Canada for approval of the Argentina trip and felt sure the invitation will be accepted. The games would be in Buenos Aires but no dates were mentioned.

The Canadians were eliminated Sunday in major competition and now enter a consolation round along with the Philippines and the United Arab Republic.

The Canadian team, which won two games and lost one, will meet the U.A.R. which lost three straight, in a Thursday game and Friday will meet the Philippines which won one and lost two.

The draw for the championship round pairings tonight, Nationalist China will play Chile.

The draw for the pairings made after Russia and Bulgaria disrupted the draw by refusing to play Nationalist China for political reasons. Both Iron Curtain countries said they could not compete against a country "that did not exist."

After announcing the three pairings for the championships, which get under way in Santiago's 25,000-seat National Stadium, the tournament officials will tack into conference in hopes of finding a way out of the Russia-Bulgaria problem.

Brazil is the other entry in the seven-team final round.

Schaffer Heard Nothing of Chicago Job

TORONTO (CP) Rudy Schaffer, general manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs International baseball club, said Tuesday he has heard nothing of a proposal to give him an executive job with the Chicago White Sox of the American League.

A New York report said it was likely Schaffer would join the White Sox. Schaffer has previously been with three major league clubs.

He would certainly be interested in returning to the major leagues", Schaffer said, adding that a job with Chicago White Sox would be as much as he earns with Leafs.

The report said the job for Schaffer depends upon whether or not Bill Veeck becomes owner of the White Sox.

Marauders Win Over Waterloo

HAMILTON (CP) — McMaster Marauders won their second straight game in the Ontario Intercollegiate Basketball Conference Tuesday night with a 89-44 win over Waterloo College.

Th Waterloo Mules trailed 39-19 at the half.

Six-four, four-inch Doug Marshall led McMaster with 21 Terry Harwood tied 18 points in a losing cause while Bob Thompson and Alf Strickenieks picked up eight apiece.

In a preliminary exhibition game McMaster Buccaneers dropped a 73-58 decision to Kitchener- Waterloo Kingsmen. Thompson Halpern paced the losers with 14 points.

Quebec Hockey

MONTREAL (CP) — Playing Coach Floyd Curry of Montreal Jets leads practices of the Quebec Hockey League, is seeking help for his injury-hit squad. Royals are down to 11 men—eight forwards and three defencemen.

Curry and Manager Frank Carlin are hopeful of getting some help from the Quebec senior Canadians and that reinforcements will arrive before the next two games at Montreal Forum.

"We need help desperately," said Curry. "We can't possibly continue playing with only 11 men."

Salary Cut For Yankees Ford, Berra

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees' formid- star battery of lefthander Whitey Ford and catcher Yogi Berra were among the world champions rumored today to have received salary cuts this year.

Both had off-years in 1958 and a world championship wasn't expected to overshadow that fact as the players began receiving their contracts in the mail.

Ford had a 14-7 record, being plagued throughout the season with a bad elbow, and was not the effective stopper of other years. Berra batted .226, well below his usual .290-plus.

George Weiss, Yankee general manager, said some Yankees received pay cuts.

The big question mark was Mickey Mantle, who finished with a .304 average and led the American League with 42 home runs. This is 7% poor performance, but as Weiss pointed out, his batting average dropped 60 points from 1957

Mantle is expected to ask for $130,000 or more value to $85,000 from last year.

"We've never had any trouble with Mantle," Weiss said, "and I see no reason for any now."

Tunney Will Try for Moore Fight

TORONTO (CP) — Frank Tunney, Toronto boxing and wrestling promoter, says he may try to get the return match between the world light-heavyweight champion Archie Moore and Canada's Yvon Durelle for Toronto if he can't be staged in Montreal.

"If Eddie Quinn Montreal promoter can't get it for Montreal, I'm going to try and get it here," he said on Tuesday. "I understand that while Quinn has some kind of verbal agreement with the principals, it's still open to a higher bidder."

Tunney would be a big draw in Toronto, indoors or outdoors, he said. "This fight would fill Maple Leaf Gardens 17,000. Or if it is signed for the summer, then it could go in the new Canadian National Exhibition stadium 33,000."

It was reported last week that Boston promoters wanted to get the return bout in the first bout last month at Montreal Moore rallied from four knockdowns in the first three rounds, to flatten the New Brunswick fisherman in the 11th, retaining the world title.

Tunney said he expected to talk with Durelle's manager, Chris Shaban, when they come here next month for the Canadian Sports Writers' and Sportscasters' sport celebrities dinner.

Title Fight Almost in Bag Says Promoter

NEW YORK (AP) — Promoter Bob Rosenkoh said Tuesday he is very close to making a heavyweight title fight between heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson and Sweden's Ingemar Johansson in the United States in June.

"I hope to have the contracts signed by the end of the week," he said. "Johansson will come over to settle the deal."

"I would say the fight is 99 per cent made now," said Rosenkoh.

Rosenkoh is the young promoter who put on the Patterson-Eddie Harris title fight in Los Angeles last Aug. 18.

Savoie Loses To Gesham

DETROIT (AP) — Promising Detroit lightweight Gene Gesham pounded out a unanimous 10-round decision over veteran Armand Savoie of Montreal Tuesday night and remained unbeaten as a professional with 20 straight victories.

Savoie, former Canadian lightweight champion, kept in there most of the way and never was off his feet though badly outpointed.

Gesham weighed 140 and Savoie 137 3-4.

Flyers Crush Biltmores 9-4

GUELPH (CP)—Pierre Gagne looks set to carry Barrie Flyers on his back to an OHA Junior A play-off berth.

The fiery forward was in peak form again Tuesday night, firing three goals to lead Barrie to a crushing 9-4 victory over Guelph Biltmores and marching his seventh goal in two straight games.

Guelph, riding on a seven-game winning streak, appeared to have taped Barrie as they grabbed a 2-1 edge in the first period, but Flyers exploded into a several-goal offensive without reply.

Barrie's win, their first this season on Guelph ice, put them into another fifth-place tie with Toronto Marlboros. Guelphs retain fourth place.

Hendy McGregor and Rod Gilbert took Guelph to a first-period lead with Bob Ertel and George Ustiado adding singles in the second.

The other Barrie marksmen were Ray Dupis, Dale Rolfe, Barry Ashbee, Brad Graham, Randall Miller and Larry Jones, who also missed a penalty shot in the third after Danny Edwards was pulled down from behind.

Sudbury Arena Had Deficit Of $29,000

SUDBURY (CP) — Sudbury Arena ended 1958 with a deficit of $29,000, it was announced Tuesday.

Part of the deficit includes $10,000 paid as a subsidy to Sudbury Wolves of the Ontario Hockey Association senior A series to carry the club through last year.

In past year the arena has made a profit. Major reason for the 1958 deficit was a drop in attendance this season because of the three - month International Nickel Company strike.

Sudbury Wolves President Ted Hill said the team has instituted a strict money-saving program and the 1959 budget, first estimated at $35,000 now will total only about $73,000.

Attendance has averaged 1,827 paid per game. Average last season was about 3,600 a game.

Red Union May Represent India On World Body

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — The Indian government is checking the claim of the Communist-controlled All - India Trades Union Convocer to the largest union membership in India.

The claim is in the statutory returns of union membership for the year 1957-58. For the first time, the congress has claimed the allegiance of more workers than the Indian National Trade Union Congress.

If the figures are officially accepted, the Communist group will have the right to represent Indian labor at the International Labor Organization in place of the Congress group, which is linked with the Socialist party led by Prime Minister Nehru.

Rabies Outbreak Affecting Cattle Shipments to States

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's rabies outbreak appears to be affecting cattle shipments to the United States.

Veterinarians have been too busy coping with the outbreak to eliminate brucellosis in cattle as required by United States import restrictions that went into effect Nov. 15.

A $10,000,000-a-year market is at stake.

Ontario Livestock Commissioner W. P. Watson said Monday the province's weekly export average of 800 cattle was reduced to about 420 between Nov. 15 to Dec. 31. It was difficult to say on the basis of a six-week period whether the decrease was entirely due to the new restrictions.

Award Medals To Children Who Rescued Animals

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Veterinary Association will present medallions for bravery and kindness to animals to three children at the annual convention here Jan. 30.

Sharon Martin, 11, of Hamilton will be congratulated for saving the life of a kitten which he found trapped in a tree and never heeds from the cold.

Brian Vancerburg, 12, of Cayuga will get his award for rescuing a sheep which he found dying of exposure in a snowbank on his father's farm. He massaged the stricken animal and breathed into its mouth to revive it. It later recovered.

Robert King, 13, of Toronto, rescued two terrified chariots from a blazing barn on his grandmother's farm in Vaughan township north of Toronto.

HER HOUSE DOES D ISAPPEARING ACT

Mrs. Blanche Hill points to a vacant lot where once stood a house she owned. She excitedly phoned the Detroit Housing Commission and was told that wreckers on an expressway demolition project went one house too far and cleared the house and its contents from the site with a bulldozer. No one was in the house at the time. The wrecking company president said: "This is awful, we'll make it right." Mrs. Hill valued the wrecked house at $11,000. (AP Wirephoto).

contended that police and the military under Batista were responsible for 20,000 deaths.

One anticipated "showcase" aspect of the trials starting Thursday apparently will not develop. It had been reported that Castro, a lawyer by profession, would take part in the prosecution. But it has been indicated the revolutionary chief's health will prevent this exertion.

BISHOP BACKTRACKS

The auxiliary Romakn Catholic bishop of Havana's meanwhile backtracked on his statement Sunday that he believed capital punishment was justified in this situation. Bishop Alfredo Muller issued a statement saying he personally is against executions and the Catholic Church is always inclined to pardon, but he realizes there is under heavy pressure to keep the firing squads at work.

The government of provisional president Manuel Urrutia reported progress in its hunt for money Batista and his followers hid during the dictatorship.

Announcements said (1) A safe deposit box of Batista's secretary, Andres Domingo Morales Castillo, had yielded $6,000,000 in stocks and $125,000 in cash; (2) $5,000,000 in stocks had been found in the names of Batista's five sons; (3) $1,375,000 sent to Switzerland for weapons had been recovered, and (4) $6,000,000 more deposited in western Europe for arms is being sought.

USE ELECTRICITY FOR HOME FURNACES

This is a Thermapac, a chimneyless furnace heated by electricity and designed to be competitive in operating costs with coal, oil and gas. This model is cut in sections to show how the electricity, operating only during the night when there is a surplus of current, heats a pile of heat-storing materials which release their heat during the day into the duct system of the now-common hot air furnace. The Thermapac will be manufactured in Oakville, Ont., this year.

½ AWAKE NIGHTS ½ ASLEEP DAYS

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They toss and turn in bed—and then are dull and listless throughout the day. All of which may be due to a temporary toxic condition which calls for the use of Doan's Kidney Pills.

Healthy kidneys filter poisons and excess acids from the blood. If they slow down and impurities stay in the system, disturbed rest, tired feeling and backache often follow. If you don't rest well at night—if you haven't that sprightly step of health in the daytime—use Doan's Kidney Pills. You can depend on Doan's.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this new, prescriptive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In case hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months.

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) — the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H. Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

COLD AIR WON SKY BATTLE FOR CONTROL OF CANADA

High in the sky above the polar regions, a belt of fast-moving frigid air won a battle with warm air from the south and invaded most of Canada and the U.S. So, for the next three weeks, Canadians from Mohiteal to the B.C. border will be shivering. The Maritimes will escape the wintry air mass, says the U.S. weather bureau.

Devise System For Teaching Music to Blind

BOSTON (AP)—Her name was Bede Best and when she sang with Joe Rines' orchestra at the St. Regis Hotel in New York 25 years ago, young men would stop, look, listen and sigh.

Her favorites were I Only Have Eyes for You and With My Eyes Wide Open. But those times belied the tragedy in her heart. For in 1924 Bede Best was going blind. One eye was sightless, the other had 40 per cent vision.

Bede began learning Braille, the system of raised dots on paper which enables the blind to read by touch. As she mastered the system she discovered how cumbersome it was for the sightless and how difficult it must be for those who wanted to compose or play popular music.

She appealed to Lawrence Berk, who had played piano with the Rines group, and now is director of the Berklee School of Music. The two decided to work on a method of simplifying the teaching of popular music and jazz to the blind.

They developed new symbols which they say can easily be absorbed by anyone who has mastered Braille.

Their system will become part of the curriculum at Berklee next September.

Airline Giants' Battle Settled By Federal Govt.

Each Gets Something Stakes Winner Tossup

OTTAWA (CP) — A multi-million-dollar battle between Canada's two airline giants has been settled by the federal government with each winning something.

Canadian Pacific Airlines cracks the long-line monopoly of publicly-owned Trans-Canada Air Lines on domestic transcontinental service, but the privately-owned company does not get all of what it sought.

CTA still holds most of its monopoly.

It's a tossup as to who wins in the big stakes game.

But in any case PA will be allowed a limited amount of competition on some runs now held exclusively by the government company, as a result of the announcement made in the Commons Wednesday by Transport Minister Hees.

CPA GETS START

Canadian Pacific got its foot in the door on the lucrative transcontinental business when the objections of the government airline that has been free of such competition since 1935.

Mr. Hees announced he considers that the flight of the air transport board that PA, a subsidiary of Canadian Pacific Railway, should have a scheduled service between Vancouver-Winnipeg-Montreal-Toronto is acceptable with PA's existing international operations. Domestic services to Montreal and Toronto could be started.

PA will operate on a one-flight-a-day basis until the arrangement would be reviewed in two years. A decision means PA will be able to carry passengers, say, between Vancouver and Montreal to hook up with PA overseas flights between Madrid and Tokyo or down into Mexico, Africa or the South Pacific.

It could carry them also between Montreal and Toronto to link up with PA'S Toronto-Mexico city run.

And on runs such as these it could carry domestic passengers.

This would mean that on a scheduled run, say, from Montreal to Vancouver, a passenger on a flight heading for the Orient, passengers could be switched between Montreal and Vancouver.

NO MARITIMES SERVICE

CPA has made it clear that it has not intended to try to move into the Atlantic Provinces, now the operating ground of TCA and private operators.

On the money side of the government action, there was no immediate estimate of what it

ALUMINUM ORDER REJECTED DUE TO U.S. PRESSURE

Company Wants To Retain Customers

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian company has been turned down a $1,000,000 order for aluminum from Communist China, apparently because of indirect pressure from the United States.

Aluminum Company of Canada says it turned down the order so as not to lose other customers who might be disposed to Communist China."

Alcan said the decision to refuse the order was made at its Montreal head office and not elsewhere. Alcan is owned by Aluminike Limited, a Canadian company in the majority of whose shares are held in the U.S.

The U.S. bans trade with the Chinese mainland, but the Canadian government does not object to such a sale.

The Alcan explanation seemed to be borne out in a statement by a U.S. state department spokesman in Washington that the department in no way acted to discourage the shipment.

HOUSE QUESTIONS

The question was raised Wednesday by Opposition Leader Pearson and Harold Winch (CCF —Vancouver East) who asked Prime Minister Diefenbaker in the Commons for assurance U.S. pressure through the "back door" did not bear on Alcan. Mr. Churchill promised an investigation.

The situation reflected a similar controversy a year ago when Canada refused to sell Communist China 1,000 cars.

The Canadian government at the time argued this was an in-

Wants Revival Of Wartime Trade Agreement

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Lionel Chevrier suggested in the Commons Wednesday that Canada and Britain negotiate a new wartime Hyde Park trade agreement, or devise some similar co-operative arrangement.

Mr. Chevrier said the agreement, or a special deal between the two countries would ensure that Canadian industries were given "every chance to bid for defence production contracts in the U.S.

The minister for External Lauriat, continued the Liberal Opposition's attack on government policies to deal with unemployment.

He also hit back at Prime Minister Diefenbaker for an earlier attack on Opposition Leader Pearson.

Mr. Chevrier said Mr. Diefenbaker's remarks about Mr. Pearson were made in a manner that was "not in keeping with his responsibilities as a prime minister."

He said, too, that the government should act immediately to mediate the dispute between the CBC and its 74 striking Montreal technicians and announcers.

He criticized Labor Minister Starr for not doing so.

Labor Requests Concessions For Industries Which Provide Jobs During Winter Months

OTTAWA (CP)—Proposals for reducing unemployment were placed before the federal cabinet today by the 1,130,000-member Canadian Labor Congress.

In its annual legislative submission to the government, the congress said mass winter unemployment should not be accepted as "an inevitable feature of the Canadian economy."

Top CLC officers went before Prime Minister Diefenbaker and other ministers two days after government figures indicated mid-December unemployment at 440,000, a post-war high for the period.

"We cannot and will not accept the doctrine that governments are helpless in the face of unemployment," the congress brief said.

We believe that the government and the Parliament of Canada possess ample powers and enough knowledge, if not to forestall, at least to remedy, the result of any decrease in economic activity."

The 11,500-word brief called for these measures to end unemployment:

1. Introduction of special incentives — such as concessions on taxes, interest rates and depreciation allowances — to stimulate winter work.

2. Increases in unemployment insurance and government-paid pensions to boost purchasing power.

3. Federal initiative in promoting subsidized low-rental housing projects.

4. Compilation of more information to increase the effectiveness of measures to combat unemployment.

Another proposal was an "immediate public investigation" into the wage-profit relationship in the auto, steel, farm implement and other basic industries.

"We cite these industries because we believe their pricing policies are a decisive influence in the Canadian economy", the congress said.

It also proposed a "world economic conference of free nations" — one to which Canada's government take the initiative in calling such a conference.

The congress took issue with claims that labor's rising wages have contributed to inflation.

"The facts do not support the charge," the brief said.

"Real wage rates since the war have just about kept pace with increases in productivity. We are

Most of East Canada Awash As Bitter Cold Grips West

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Most of Eastern Canada was awash Wednesday in a January thaw, the latest quirk in winter's weather. It was bitterly cold in the West.

The country east of Ontario had just shovelled itself out from under heavy snow when the mercury soared and everything melted.

At Liverpool, N.S., 1.02 inches of rain — the equivalent of 10 inches of snow — fell as heavy flights from Halifax were cancelled Wednesday. Power lines were coated with ice but only a few service interruptions were reported.

The Halifax temperature was 54 last night and on the way up. Rain was the rule.

At Montreal the mercury hovered around 40 and provided an unexpected boost to the public works department meeting the cost of the snow-removal budget. For the first time this winter streets are completely bare.

Ottawa's thaw was in its second day with Wednesday night's temperature reaching 35 degrees. The eastward march of a cold wave was indicated by Sydney's 16-degree reading shortly after midnight and the 43 degrees at North Bay, 70 miles to the east.

Fog, freezing rain and snow hit southern Ontario. Fog-bound winds swept in, reaching between 40 and 60 miles an hour during the night.

The weather office forecast some snow and much lower temperatures for Southern and Central Ontario today.

Heavy snow and drifting, with temperatures near zero, were reported in Northern Ontario areas.

PLAN MAIL VOTE OF WORKERS ON HYDRO CONTRACT

Retroactive Increase In Wages Provided

TORONTO (CP)—A mail vote by 10,500 Ontario Hydro workers is expected to approve terms of a new two-year contract providing wage increases for both seasonal and salaried workers.

The proposed settlement, drawn up Tuesday by Hydro and negotiators for the employee union, was endorsed Wednesday by Hydro management and the union's executive.

The union officials said they have recommended that the membership ratify the contract terms in the mail vote made in order to take two weeks.

The agreement offers 5,500 hourly-rated workers a 11½-per-cent increase retroactive to April 1, 1958, equal to 2.3 cents an hour on the $2.16-an - hour average wage, with an additional two per cent (4.6 cents) Jan. 1 of this year. It also provides for an increase of one-half per cent to go into effect next Aug. 1.

SET UP FUND

Hydro's 5,000 salaried workers would receive the 11½-per-cent increase retroactive to April 1, 1958, with further increases of two per cent from Jan. 1, 1959, three per cent on April 1 and one-half per cent Aug. 1 being held in a fund by Hydro while it implements a new job evaluation scheme.

The settlement says this must take place before Oct. 1 or the fund will be applied as a general wage increase to salaried employees.

Union spokesman said ballots outlining these terms will be mailed to members.

Special Surgery For Cancer Said Successful

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — An operation which empties the pelvic area of almost all its vital organs has become a successful means of saving the lives of women with advanced cancer of the cervix, a New York surgeon reported here.

Despite the mutilation involved, several hundred American women are alive, well and happy because of the operation, said Dr. Alexander Brunschwig of Cornell University's medical college.

Dr. Brunschwig addressed a seminar sponsored by the Arizona Division of the American Cancer Society. He said some of the women who have been considered "lost cases" have lived 10 years or more after the surgery.

The technique is useful in attacking cancer that has spread from the cervix, or neck of the womb, to other parts of the pelvic basin, he added.

Floods, Storms Deal Misery To Millions In U.S.

Thousands Homeless In Eastern Central States

CHICAGO (AP)—Floods, snow storms and cold today dealt misery to millions across the eastern half of the United States.

Thousands were homeless in floods in Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana and Pennsylvania. Scores of rivers and streams, fed by heavy rains and snow, overflowed.

States of emergency were declared in many Ohio cities. At Mount Vernon, in central Ohio, an estimated one-third of the city's 15,000 residents were taken from their homes after the Kokosing River flooded, smashing through dikes in the downtown district.

Most of the 500 families in New Miami, in southwestern Ohio, were driven from their homes by the flooding Great Miami River and Four Mile Creek.

Martial law was in effect in Madison, Ind., where 100 families were evacuated by overflows from the Ohio River.

DEATH COUNT RISING

Deaths related to the violent weather and flooding mounted. The latest count was 42.

A blockbuster snowstorm, which swept out of the great plains and dumped up to a foot of snow across the Midwest, curtailed normal activities in hundreds of communities.

In Pennsylvania, six communities in the western section reported flooding and ice-jammed and swollen creeks. They were Sharon, Oil City, Kane, Greenville, Meadville and Kennard. Some families were located in shelters as the Red Cross continued to rise.

Rivers also were rising steadily in Pittsburgh and fears of flooding mounted at cities along the Allegheny River.

In areas not hit by the cold front, temperatures ranged from 50s in Florida to New York City's 59, near the record high for the date.

Heaviest snow during the night was in lower Michigan and the northwest tip of Indiana. Falls in lower Michigan, mostly in western sections, were three to five inches.

Northern Mayor Cannot Hold Town Franchise

HAILEYBURY (CP) — Mayor Earl Rowe of Cobalt withdrew Wednesday an application to town council for a franchise to operate a community television antenna.

The mayor's partner, David McLaughlin, will seek the franchise for the $25,000 project.

Mayor Rowe's action followed criticism by Deputy Municipal Affairs Minister Dana Porter, who said the Ontario Municipal Act forbids members of council accepting franchises from their councils.

Mr. Carter said council's award of the franchise to Mayor Cooke Monday night was null and void. Mayor Cooke could be disqualified from office if a ratepayer took legal action.

The proposed antenna would provide the Haileybury area with five television channels and eventually, color television.

One-Time Star of 'Our Gang' Films Killed in Fight Over $150 Debt

SAN FERNANDO, Calif. (AP) — Robert (Allalfa) Switzer, 23-year-old freckle-faced, wide-eyed movie star as a boy—was shot to death Wednesday night. Police said the shooting occurred during an argument with another man over money.

Switzer was a favorite of movie fans in the 1930s when he appeared in Our Gang and Reginald Owen's comedies. He became known again with reissue of the films to television under the title The Little Rascals.

But in recent years his movie parts had been minor and he worked as a bartender and hunting guide when not acting. He starred in television roles as one of the old films.

Police said Switzer went to the home of a friend, M. S. Siltz, 38, Wednesday night in an effort to collect $150 debt.

Detectives Louis Bell and Ernest Johnson said Siltz told them he was shooting an intruder.

An argument developed and Siltz left the house and returned with a clock. Siltz got a gun and fired harmlessly while they struggled. Switzer drew a knife. Siltz shot him in the abdomen.

The shooting was witnessed by Jack Pioti, 37, who accompanied Switzer to Siltz's home, and Mrs. Rita Jane Corrigan and her three children, who were there when Switzer and Pioti arrived.

Siltz was held for questioning.

Switzer began his movie career at the age of three. He said his career went into eclipse. Jackie Cooper was one member of the gang who went on to success as an actor.

Tells Public to Pull Up Socks; Finds He Needs Garters Himself

LONDON (CP) — British television commentator and newspaper columnist Cliff Fleetmore suggested that his fellow countrymen pull up their general knowledge.

But, alas, it became apparent Wednesday the suave commentator for the BBC's Tuesday program is badly in need of a pair of garters himself.

Tonight presented a report Tuesday in which panelists on a Chelsea Street were asked what they knew about India. Today, in his role of columnist for The Daily Star, Mitheelmore expresses shock at the result.

"One though Lord Reading was the president," he said. "A second could only mention Curzy. The thing that astonished me most was that almost no one had any idea of the enormous problem of over-population in India. And this at a time when the birth control question has been highlighted in press, radio and television."

Then he suggests his readers answer a list of questions about India "before you start to congratulate ourselves we would have done better."

There are no congratulations for Mitheelmore.

One question asks: "What are the names of the four Great Lakes?" From the list of answers helpfully supplied it appears Mitheelmore has never heard of Lake Nipissing or Lake Ontario.

The next question about "Canada" asks: On which of these lakes is Chicago?

Today's Chuckle

"Blind my eye," the driver answered, "I hit you, didn't I?"

While snowflurries will be light in most regions a few heavy snow squalls and considerable drifting must be expected near the eastern and northeastern shores of the Great Lakes and the valley of the Ottawa River and again Friday afternoon.

But a dozen men turned out for the course in barbershop harmony.

Weather Was Something to Crow About

CHICAGO (AP)—Marvin E. Tench opened the door in his suburban Park Ridge home Wednesday when he thought a lost waif was calling. He had heard cries, "It's cold out here."

H.S. Inspector Asks Committee To Study Wants

Setting up of a consultative committee to study the long range secondary school educational requirements in North Hastings was recommended yesterday to Hastings county council by Dr. W. S. Turner, district high school inspector.

With the view of the rapid increase in secondary school enrolment in the North Hastings area Dr. Turner said that study should be given to whether it would be best to continue to concentrate high school activity at Bancroft, or possibly build another school, maybe at Maynooth.

He noted that high school enrolment at Bancroft was currently 600 with a second addition to the school planned. The high school enrolment by 1963 would be over 1,000, it was estimated.

Dr. Turner noted that a consultative committee could study the problem from all angles, including the cost of transportation. He said that a consultative committee was merely a way of finding body and their recommendations were not binding.

Membership of the committee would be the school principal, an appointee from the Ontario Department of Education and three members appointed by county council. The county would authorize setting up of the committee.

No action was taken at yesterday's meeting, the matter being left over until northern reeves could decide on who the appointee from the committee might be.

County council is now being asked to issue debentures for the North Hastings High School area sum of $160,000 to provide for the new high school addition.

Council Approves Tariffs For Protection of Growers

Hastings county council yesterday concurred in a Northumberland and Durham county resolution which asked for protective tariffs to be set up to protect Ontario growers of canning factory produce against American competition.

The resolution also noted that large American canning concerns were buying up Canadian plants which were being consolidated, resulting in less buying of farm tracts in many areas. Canning factories were also being developed in the United States in competition with locally grown products.

Carl Whittemore, reeve of Deseronto, noted that purchasers of Canadian canning plants by American firms was quite prevalent in Ontario. Plants were being consolidated with new technological methods introduced with the view of decreasing costs.

Competition was unfortunately meant loss of growing contracts in certain areas where plants were closed down, with loss of jobs. Mr. Whittemore said consolidation was a "trend of the times."

He didn't like the practice, now far requests for high import duties should go in that these tendencies to reduce costs and help the country in a less favorable position for export.

"It is a matter of decision which can be easily reserved," he said.

OTHER SPEAKERS

Other speakers on the question included Reeve Henry Allen of Frankford and Ex Reeve Byron Harder of Sidney township, and Sid MacDonald, county agricultural representative.

All agreed that it was a complex problem. Reeve Henry Wellmott Rose of Frankford said he did not feel the resolution almost embracing too much. The two canning factories at Foxboro and at Frankford were still going strong, he said.

He agreed that the picture was different in other sections of the province, mainly in Price Edward and in Northumberland where canning plants had been closed.

On the other hand Reeve Elmer Wilson of Huntingdon and Reeve Harleigh Hamilton of Sidney, felt the matter did affect Hastings.

"What affects one affects us all," he maintained.

Warns Children Of Danger of Hitching Rides

City Police Inspector J. Clair Hayes today asked parents to warn their children of the dangers of hitching rides on the rear of trucks and cars.

He noted that several reports of boys clinging to the backs of trucks or cars and sliding along the snow behind the vehicles. This practice is extremely dangerous and could easily result in "a loss of life or a serious accident," he warned.

Shannonville Families Forced To Flee Flames

Two Shannonville families were forced from their homes last night when fire started in the home of E. A. Pletcher, causing approximately $2,000 damage to the building.

Household furnishings owned by the Pletcher family and also those of Clifford Lake, living next door, were carried to safety.

Two fire trucks from Belleville and one truck from Point Anne answered the call and managed to bring the flames under control. The fire is believed to be a large section of a rear wall and got into the attic before it was extinguished.

Only slight smoke and water damage was caused to the Bonang house.

The fire was believed to have started under the kitchen defective wiring or from an unsafe chimney. Both houses were covered by insurance.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance noted that intense cold and wind assisted firemen in controlling the fire.

"If the fire had started an hour or so later after the wind got up we would have had difficulty in saving the houses," stated the chief.

Threat of Rabies Can Effect The Farmer's Pocket Book

Threat of rabies can have far reaching effects for farmers with large herds of cattle.

This was indicated Wednesday afternoon at Hastings county council when members learned that from the point of physical danger, the threat of rabies can also affect a farmer's pocket book.

One instance of this was given by the case of the Mina's dog was bitten by a fox. The dog in turn bit one of the farmer's cows which could mean the loss of the entire herd of 50 milk cows had to be inoculated at $3. each.

And that's not all. The farmer sent his milk to a Toronto dairy which cancelled milk purchases until the matter was remedied.

In another instance, Murray township farmer's dog was bitten by a fox. The dog in turn bit one of the farmer's cows and also the pet cat. The cat in turn bit one of the farmer's children and the entire family has to be inoculated.

And bringing the matter of rabies closer to home, Reeve Ali Wickett of Thurlow township said he could not stress too strongly the necessity of keeping dogs tied up.

Dogs running at large seemed to congregate in school areas and Reeve Wickett quoted a veterinarian who stated that rabies can be carried on the fur of animals and the disease could be communicated without the animal actually biting.

He said one township father had told him that babies dogs were tied up and kept away from schools his children would be taken from school classes.

Nearly all rural municipalities in Hastings have passed a 10c bounty law, it was learned, and is indicated at the county session.

County council also concurred in a resolution asking that the right of municipalities to recover hospital costs from indigent patients be restored. Council was told that the right of recovery had been discontinued when the hospital insurance scheme went into effect.

Council Concurs In Gas Meter Resolution

The frequency of natural gas explosions throughout Ontario with resultant loss of life and property has caused county councils to demand action to lessen the danger.

Yesterday Hastings county councillors concurred in a Wentworth county resolution asking that gas meter readers be equipped with a testing device by which they could determine whether there was any gas escape or leaks at premises where they visited.

Reeve Irwin McCoy of Marmora and Lake reported on concurrence in the resolution, noting that plans were underway for distribution of natural gas in parts of this county.

Mikoyan Plans Speech to Danes On Way Home

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan will speak on his air stopover trip home from the United States. He scheduled a public address in Copenhagen's city hall sponsored by the Danish-Soviet Friendship Society.

There was no indication when he would fly to Moscow. A Soviet jet airliner arrived at Copenhagen's Kastrup airport Wednesday, January 21st, 1959 to pick him up.

Some 50 Soviet diplomats, as many reporters and two Communist members of the Danish parliament surrounded the Scandinavian Airlines relief plane which brought Mikoyan and the other passengers in at 4 a.m. A dozen police stood by.

Mikoyan and his fellow passengers spent 12½ hours at the Kastrup airport. They had a snack after two engines on their airliner from New York went out here on Atlantic Tuesday night. A relief DC8c was sent to Arlanda airport, Stockholm.

The Argentia stop gave Mikoyan an unexpected but refreshing look at the top-secret United States naval base.

As he was leaving, he invited personnel of the security-conscious base to "look me up if you're ever in Moscow."

Jury Fails To Agree in Fourth Trial

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The fourth trial of Louis Rainone of Windsor on a charge of armed robbery ended Wednesday the same way as the first — with a hung jury. The foreman and the jury couldn't agree on a verdict.

The case will now go before a judge and jury for a fifth time.

Rainone, 34, is accused of helping a juvenile rob a cigar store of $199 in March, 1956.

His first trial resulted like the fourth—in a hung jury. At the second trial Rainone was acquitted. The Crown appealed, and at the third trial Rainone was found guilty. Rainone's lawyers then appealed and a fourth trial was ordered.

Mr. Justice R. W. Treleven presided at the fourth trial and after the verdict Wednesday said that he would not allow the case until the next assizes.

IN MEMORIAM

BENEDICT. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Jane Benedict, who passed away January 22nd, 1958.

Sweet was your smile, sweet your love,
For life chooses only the best;
So we picked you, dear mother one,
When He called you. Mother, rest.

We Miss You so much,
Your Daughter Mary Ann.

BENEDICT. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Jane Benedict, who passed away on January 22nd, 1958.

Oh happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still;
But death has left a loneliness,
A wound no time can heal.

Ever remembered by Ethel Jack and children.

BENEDICT. — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mary Jane Benedict, who passed away January 22nd, 1958.

God gave us a mother, a rare one and true,
We shall never grow old;
So cherished and dear, full of sunshine,
He rewarded her heart of pure gold.
He needed a new star in heaven,
A beautiful little to add;
So out of this old world of sorrow,
He took our mother home to God.

Sadly missed and remembered by Teresa and Pat, husbands and families.

Scarlett Said 'I Love You' To Wife After He Plunged Knife Into Back, Court Told

COBOURG — "When I first saw Judy", testified Mrs. Leonard Webb of Trenton, "she was coming down the stairs with my husband right behind her. When she got to the bottom of the stairs she went to the door leading outside and leaned against it. She was standing like that when Scarlett came down the stairs and stabbed her in the back".

Mrs. Webb testified yesterday during the second day of the murder trial of Harold "Gus" Scarlett, Queensway factory worker from Trenton. The trial is being held in the court rooms of the Northumberland-Durham Municipal Building, about one mile west of Cobourg on the main highway. Scarlett is facing a charge of murder in the slaying of his estranged wife, Judy Julia "Judy" Scarlett, on December 28th of last year.

"When Scarlett said this, "Mrs. Webb continued, "Judy fell forward and rested her head in front of the house. My husband fought with Gus to get the knife away from him and it fell to the ground. I saw it and kicked it into the room so he couldn't get it. Then Gus went over and kneeling by his wife said, 'Julie, I didn't mean to do it. I love you.'

"When", Mrs. Webb continued, "Judy mumbled something which I couldn't make out and Gus got up, kicked off his shoes and said, 'You and Ernie Barrow!' and went back into the house."

TELLS OF HIS ARRIVAL

Mrs. Webb's testimony also told of the happenings during the day concerning the testified to before they had left Trenton to come to Cobourg she and Scarlett had been visited by other persons drink three full bottles of wine. Mrs. Webb stated that Scarlett had drunk beer on the train and in Cobourg and had not had anything to eat all day. She also said the first drink she had seen him take was at about 10.30 a.m. and the last she saw was at about 6.30 p.m. She also stated that Scarlett appeared alright and that he always went to sleep when he had too much to drink.

"I did not see him asleep when we were at John Street", she said.

DESCRIBES IS WOUNDS

Dr. F. L. Lawson, pathologist from the city of Toronto's office who had performed the autopsy on the body, told the court that he had found and described the 15 wounds he had found penetrating the body of the victim.

Asked by the crown prosecutor whether these was the one which caused death, he replied that he felt it was the deepest one which entered from the back, passed through the liver and punctured a lung.

Dr. Lawson will be the last witness for the crown and concluded his testimony about 4.30 p.m. yesterday.

During the morning sitting, the crown attorney, Harry Deyman, filed as an exhibit the original separation papers between Scarlett and his wife. He asked to do so without having the lawyer, R. G. Butler of Trenton, who had drawn up the agreement, appear. This was accepted by the bench and defence. The separation papers had been drawn up on October 15, 1958.

NEIGHBOR TESTIFIES

The first witness called by the crown was George Bedham, who resides in the house next to the home of Mrs. Scarlett, where she had been carried following the stabbing.

"They were home on the night in question?" asked the crown. "Yes."

"What were you doing?"

"Watching TV."

"Can you hear things that happen in 310 John Street?"

"I can hear rumblings, but nothing distinctive."

"Did you hear any noise on the night in question?"

"Loud voices."

"What time was that?"

"Around a quarter to nine."

"Where did the noise come from?"

"It seemed to come from the stairway part of the house."

"On what nature was the voices?"

"It seemed like quick footsteps going up the stairs."

SAW MRS. SCARLETT

Mr. Bedham continued to tell the court that he had not heard anything unusual after that and came at the back door of the house. Mrs. Webb told him that she was a stranger to him then.

He then told the court that:

"I saw Mrs. Scarlett lying on the floor of the shed."

"How was she clothed?"

"She had on a bra, a skirt and stockings."

"What did you do?"

"I went into the shed and looked at the lady."

"Was she living then?"

"Yes."

"Then what did you do?"

"I got a blanket and covered her over."

After that he told the court that the police and ambulance from the Cobourg police force was taken to the hospital.

Under questions by the defence lawyer, A. H. Richardson, Mr. Bedham stated he had no recollection of Mrs. Lovelessknocking on the front door and that he had not heard a shot and that the door was made of aluminum.

ON ARREST

Const. R. H. Caldwell of the Cobourg police told of being called to the scene by Sgt. Butler and described the scene as he had seen it. He also told of the arrest of Scarlett, who had upstairs bedroom, of taking him down to the living room where he "frisked" the accused before leaving for a weapon, handcuffing him and placing him in the cruiser and the police station. He had also made arrangements for the car to be taken indoors.

He also told of the evidence he had been given by Mrs. Webb and the samples of blood he had taken from the front yard and the bathroom. He said Scarlett had smelled strongly of alcohol but that he had appeared quite fairly normal when taken to the cell. He said the accused had not told him of the incident between Scarlett's face, hands and clothing and spoken to him with what appeared to be blood.

TOOK WOMAN TO HOSPITAL

Constable Paul Pearce, also of the Cobourg police force, told the court he was not on duty the night of the stabbing but that he was at home when he received a call from Sgt. Butler. He explained that the man off duty is in charge of the town-owned ambulance. He stated he went to the police station and drove the ambulance and proceeded to 310 John Street. On arriving there he found a woman lying on the floor of the back shed and that he took her to the station and taken her to the hospital. He said the woman was alive when he took her to the station.

He then returned to the police station and went immediately to the cell block, as he had been instructed by Sgt. Butler, and who had told him to watch the prisoner so no harm would come to him.

He told the court he had made notes of a conversation with the accused while in the cell block. At this point Mr. Deyman asked that the jury be excused from the court room while the bench decided whether the evidence should be given should be heard by them.

It was decided in the affirmative and the jury was brought back.

RELATES CONVERSATION

Constable Pearce then told of the questions he had been asked by the accused:

Scarlett: "How is my wife? How is she girl? I stabbed her. How is she?"

Constable: "She'll be alright."

Scarlett: "When is court?"

Constable: "Tuesday."

Scarlett: "What time?"

Constable: "Ten a.m."

Scarlett: "Good. Do they hang me? I'll get 10 years, then she'll be happy. Where will they send me? Kingston?"

Scarlett "Is she going to live?"

Constable: "I guess she'll be alright."

The constable told the court that up until that time he had not been notified that Mrs. Scarlett had died.

He said that Scarlett had then talked about his mother and when the constable had asked him what his name was Scarlett had replied: "I have no name." He later said his name was Gus Scarlett.

Representing counsel for the defence, Constable Pearce said he was in the cell block with the cell block with Scarlett and that he had told the accused he had a police report and another inmate.

SUFFERED FROM SHOCK

Dr. F. N. Blackwell who was called to the scene at 308 John Street, and is a family physician to the town told of treating the woman lying on the floor and bleeding from the abdomen where she had been turned over by a surgeon. She was suffering badly from shock and several wounds.

He told the defence counsel that when he went to the cell block to look at the cut on Scarlett's eye he had no difficulty in receiving the cell, his instructions being to examine the man arresting Scarlett, finding the knife and the investigation was subsequently followed.

TOLD OF DEATH

He said that on return to the police station he was informed by Sgt. Butler and described the accused as he had seen it. He also told the court that Scarlett appeared to be under the influence of alcohol in and that he went when told his wife had died.

Dr. H. J. Funk, a biologist with the Attorney-General's office in Toronto, testified that he tested the blood stains on the knife and clothing which had been by the police as evidence. As the blood in all cases was human and of the same blood group.

Mrs. Marjorie Drmorest, a sister of the dead woman, said she lived at the same house on John Street where the stabbing had been at work when the police arrived. She also testified that Scarlett came about once a week to see the children. Under questioning by Mr. Richardson, she told the court she had been in the house at the same time and that her father, Mr. Loveless, was aware of it.

DETAILS OF TREATMENT

Dr. J. E. Gendron told of taking over the examination of Mrs. Scarlett when she was brought

Fire Destroys Lindsay Factory

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — An early-morning fire wiped out a prosperous antenna industry in this town 18 miles west of Peterborough today, causing losses estimated at $500,000.

The fire, fanned by 40-mile-an-hour winds, swept through the two-storey Lindsay Antenna and Specialty Products Limited factory, which employed 50 men and women.

Fire Chief Arnold Watson said damage would be in excess of $300,000. The building was burned to the ground.

Owner John Thomas, 36, started the business in a backyard shed six years ago and built it into a thriving $1,000,000-a-year operation.

The fire started from an oil furnace explosion at 3:20 a.m., Fire Chief Watson said.

Firemen confined the blaze from spreading to a new $140,000 United Church of Canada church and a nearby apartment. They had to play water on the church which suffered water damage and the red-brick exterior was blackened by smoke.

World Champion Race Driver Killed in Quiet Road Crash

By STERLING SLAPPEY

GUILDFORD, England (AP) — Mike Hawthorne, world champion automobile racing driver who announced his retirement from racing last month after facing death a thousand times, was killed today in a car crash on a quiet English road.

Hawthorn's Jaguar sports car skidded for 100 yards on the wet highway, struck the back of a truck, overturned and crashed into a tree.

Hawthorn's father was killed in a motor crash in 1953.

The death of the 29-year-old Hawthorn reduced the great racing triumvirate of England to one. Peter Collins was killed in the German grand prix last August. The only remaining member of the trio is Stirling Moss.

WON GRAND TITLE

Hawthorn was Britain's first winner of the grand prix world racing championship a year after he won the title last season and became the successor to the great Juan Manuel Fangio of Argentina, Hawthorn said:

"I have been racing motorists for eight years. I got to the top, I became world champion. I have decided now is the time to stop".

There were reports in London recently that the six-foot driver, who in recent months had tossed down considerably from his daredevil-it-the-wheel days, was to retire. But he often was seen escorting was a London model, 21-year-old Jean Howarth.

The death of Hawthorn on a high-speed London by pass road southwest of the city threw a pall over British and world racing. He was to have gone next year to the United States, where he had announced his retirement from racing last month after facing death a thousand times, was killed today in a car crash on a quiet English road.

Snow-Blower Kills Child

LISTOWEL (CP)—The three-year-old son of a Maryborough Township farmer was killed Wednesday when struck by the revolving blade of a snow flower outside his home.

James Hutchinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clare Hutchinson, was struck on the head by the whirling blade.

The youngster slipped and fell as he walked past the machine, which had been left idling. Sutton drew his head into the blade.

Stop Train In Time

TORONTO (CP)—A speeding CNR train was flagged down in time to avert a threatened wreck after a panel truck plunged through the side of a bridge and dropped 40 feet to the railway tracks, trapping the driver.

Gerard Lemay, 34, was freed from the wreckage and taken to hospital in suburban Scarborough suffering what was reported suffering head injuries.

Police and firemen used flares to stop the train. The accident was blamed on fog and slush-covered roads.

'Space' Food Was Too Much For Bessie

OKEMAN, Okla. (AP)—A government experiment may cost an additional $210 because of what it did to a curious cow.

Farmer A. L. Starkey sent a bill for that amount to weather bureau officials who, he says, fattened up the heifer's wardrobe.

The weathermen sent a balloon to the earth's outer atmosphere. It burst and then settled back to earth—in a pasture occupied by Bessie.

She munched on the equipment and despite efforts of a veterinarian, ate it, too.

"You can call Bessie a victim of the space age if you want to," said Starkey. "But she was worth $210—maybe more."

BRITAIN EXPECTS ELECTION

A general election is awaited in Britain. Parliament reassembled Tuesday for what is expected to be its final session before Prime Minister Macmillan goes to the people to seek a new mandate — one which will say his third mandate since he assumed office some time after the last election, on the retirement of Sir Anthony Eden. This will also be the first test of the polls of the leadership of Hugh Gaitskell of the Labor Party. In Canada, and in many other lands, this election might be interpreted as an interesting test of the personal popularity of two new leaders. In Britain it is doubtful whether personalities will play much part in the result of the voting. No Briton in modern times has achieved the personal popularity of Sir Winston Churchill, but that did not save his party from defeat at the hands of the Laborites led by Clement Attlee, whose personality could not match Churchill's.

The results of the election will almost certainly be decided by what the voters believe are the best interests of the country. There are many who, on principle, would never vote for the socialist policies of the Labor Party, and others who, on principle, would always cast their ballots for such policies. There was a time when there was some doubt as to whether a country which had embarked on the road to socialism could reverse its Laborites set in Clement Attlee, whose personality could not match Churchill's.

The results of the election will almost certainly be decided by what the voters believe are the best interests of the country. There are many who, on principle, would never vote for the socialist policies of the Labor Party, and others who, on principle, would always cast their ballots for such policies. There was a time when there was some doubt as to whether a country which had embarked on the road to socialism could reverse its path and return to the path of free enterprise, but that doubt would seem to have been removed by the manner in which the Conservatives have governed the country after the post-war Labor Government.

The manner in which British electors first installed the Labor Party in office and then ousted it is sufficient proof, if any were needed, that in Britain as in Canada and other lands there are a large number of electors whose votes are not irrevocably pledged to any party but who make their individual decisions at every election on the basis of the issues as they understand them. It is these voters who will decide the results of the next general election in Britain and it would appear that the Conservatives are in a happier position now than they were a year or so ago. Their policies have at last borne fruit and a resurgence of Britain's economic strength has enabled the government to end a lengthy credit squeeze. However, offsetting this, at least partially, is a rise in unemployment.

It is frequently stated that Britons are nowhere as reluctant as Canadians to change the government and give the opposition a turn in handling the reins of power. This may be pretty thoroughly true but we would hardly put to support it by reference to the fortunes of Britain's political parties during the past three decades. The Labor Government of Ramsay MacDonald, which was in power at the beginning of the third decade of the century, did not exactly have power wrested from it — it surrendered it by the formation of a National Government in the face of grave economic crisis. The National Government evolved into the all-party government of the war years and it was as an aftermath of five world-shaking years that the Labor Party came to power. Thus the only change in government in three decades came to power under extraordinary stresses was the return of the Conservatives to power following Attlee's rule. This record hardly seems to present the necessary proof that Britons change political allegiance easily. More evidence is required. The coming election could provide it.

It may provide, too, the answer to one of the most intriguing political questions of the age — can a party "come back from the dead?" To all intents and purposes the Liberal Party in Britain has been defunct since the early thirties, when it, like the Labor Party, split over the question of co-operating in a so-called "National Government" at a time of financial crisis. Recently, however, there has been a surprising resurgence of support for candidates carrying the Liberal banner.

There were suggestions that this was the method by which opponents of socialism chose to register a protest against the policies of the government. The reasons for discontent with the government's record having largely subsided with the removal of brakes on domestic spending, the general election should reveal whether this was a true interpretation of the increase in support for the Liberals, or whether this party has some chance for survival and of making contests in the British political arena three-way affairs. At one time it was held that such a development would inevitably result in victories for Labor. With that party's partial retreat from the policy of nationalization, however, it may be questioned whether this is any longer certain. The Liberals might draw support from disillusioned Laborites, as well as from dissident Conservatives.

He swore that he'd be true to her
If she would only marry him;
That as his wife, throughout his life,
She'd never know a moment grim.

He vowed that he would toil for her,
That she should wear the latest things,
He'd robe in fure that form of hers
And deck her hands with diamond rings.

He promised her a motor car,
And maids to answer her commands;
In short, he'd buy with dish and pot,
He swore she'd never dip her hands.

Oh, fine the promises he made!
Oh, vows by which her heart did sing!
And since that time, he's been a slave
And seek her hand with nothing.

Highly Possessive Speech

By T. Norman Smith in the Ottawa Journal

My humble compliments to the Governor General, what an oldish dog of a new trick he is! disrespect is meant when I say that I listened to the full broadcast of his Speech from the Throne Thursday night while lolling in a hot bath.

And certainly no disrespect is directed at the Governor General if I add that I'm architecture of the speech seemed to come out of the middle ages, in fact it reminded me of Mark Sharp at that when Parliament became supreme over the sovereign.

Surely, I though as my toes twiddled with the plug chain, Parliament is the most regally possessive Throne Speech I've heard. My government this, My government that, My Prime Minister the other thing.

All these highly possessive touches made Parliament and the people sound like trained seals. Yet, you know, I in the last analysis we also know — for it is in opening any pretended secret — that the Throne Speech is not written by the Governor General, but by some civil scribe to him by the Prime Minister.

Yet you know, I in the idolent warmth of the tub where leisure encourages second thoughts, when this style of dictated insistence upon the pretension that the Governor General wrote the Speech show?

The sober thoughts of the light of day on Friday, and a reading of the text of the Throne Speech, quite restored to proper element. Let's look at it.

Why, the Speech refers to "my Prime Minister"; it times does it speak of "my government" and at times it refers to "my Ministers".

My Ministers are concerned, my government is considered, my Prime Minister has visited, etc.

Now I think one can be all for the Queen and for her Government, Speech, and yet object that it is good either for the Governor General or the Governor General to hammer so insistently at a political myth. Canadians are for the Queen, not for politics. We will subscribe to the monarchial system as we have it. But it is not for Canadians to subscribe to it 22 times in the same speech methinks it protesteth too much.

Having read the text I then decided to check my impression that 1930 was rather a fare than usual. At random from the Hansard shelves I pulled out the Speech from the Throne.

In 1896 the Earl of Aberdeen opening new parliament for government four times and did not once possess the prime minister of "my government."

In 1901 His Excellency Earl Minto used "my government" twice, "my ministers" once.

In 1905 His Excellency Earl Grey referred to "my government" and not at all to "my" prime minister or ministers.

In 1907 His Excellency Earl Grey referred to "my government" and once to "my ministers" but not once to "my prime minister."

In 1935 the Governor General once used the phrase "my prime minister" and once "my ministers" but did not use "my government."

Thus in baseball parlance the batting order is that in five Throne Speeches of the past the possessive "my" was thrice, twice, once, once, while in this year's version it was used 22 times.

The latest Speech was slightly longer than some of its predecessors, but not enough to account for the difference in style.

Perhaps I should explain the possessive pronoun.

This year Mr. Massey is made responsible for various actions or attitudes of the government by saying that "my ministers" are gratified at the house opinion or want to increase foreign aid; "my government" will amend trade practices and tax values; "my prime minister is continuing with 1930.

In other years the Governor General used the symbolic "my" to blow dog or low to preserve a political secrecy by hint through the remainder of his speech. He was content to say that "the government" proposes this or "our nation" has experienced that or "Canada" or "The Dominion," or merely "it" will be submitted — etc.

It seems clear that this year's style is that favored by the present Prime Minister or Governor, Lord Bessborough, by the former Prime Minister.

One can but ask what does it all matter. It probably won't change the level of either the St. Lawrence Waterway or the income tax, but I submit nevertheless that we should have a care to be fair to the styles of our art of government.

The Governor General is not given many parliamentary speeches to deliver; it should be the matter of concern to see that all his formal speeches are prepared with immaculate devotion as to style, particularly as he use they make of symbol.

I don't think I'm stretching things too far to say that if the Governor General were made to make his speech, a constitutional issue would be raised.

I don't suggest Mr. Diefenbaker has any such idea in mind; I'm sure he has not. My impressions tend to take on unwanted solidity when I'm bathing. Besides, it simply isn't natural for a man like Mr. Massey to talk like that, and it isn't natural for the people of Canada to respect a Governor General who would want to talk like that. So why oblige him to talk like that?

Coffee Free. Dime to Park.

Hamilton Spectator

Every dime spent in excise of coffee is the lowest it has been in forty-seven years of economic union in Brazil:—we cannot fairly join in any clamor for lowering the price to a Canadian public of restaurants. This may be poor economic opportunism but we are sure that the cost of the coffee is only an insignificant part of the expenditure of one of us every time we go to a customer.

He pays certain import taxes and municipal taxes; it costs him money for equipment and fuel to boil the coffee and to keep and serve it in when the old ones are broken, to detergents to wash teh cups that drink break, for the wages of the girls who serve them and for the overhead and stand many of these pretty charmers certainly aren't overpaid. And for the cream, the sugar and sugar which, in some instances are needed to make the brew palatable.

We remember when nickel-a-cup coffee was available in Hamilton. When our favorite policeman had a beat in the restaurants there was a flood of resignations from the mid-morning breakfast club. Some went up to a dime, many who had remained at the counter doubled their stools. But this was only temporary; most have received wage increases since and have clamoured back on to the padded pedestals.

Even at ten cents (we kept telling ourselves) a cup of coffee is one of the best available value today. Often it's worth a dime just to get the bowl of cold and sit down, and its cheaper than a bus ride. We try to look at it this way: the ten cents is really just a nominal offstreet parking fee for pedestrians, with the coffee thrown in free.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

It was with the greatest pleasure that I heard that a middle-aged friend of mine, an actuary in an insurance company, had been left an apartment house, two up-town stores and seven houses by a shrewd old maid aunt of his who recently passed away. She was, in a sense, his mother. She had brought him up from his fourteenth year, had financed him through the university where he had proved an honor graduate in mathematics, and had excited and encouraged him all through the years.

It is true she interfered to a considerable measure in his life. She had strongly realized two things concerning him. One was that his younger years. Indeed, he remained a bachelor, living with his aunt. And she lived on, and on, for her eighties.

But she encouraged him. She spurred him on. Even in his fifties, she wanted her him to stand up straight and be a man, to walk with his head held high along, to take life with zest, just as she had when he was a youth and she was a young girl paying the bills.

But she died. And left him around $14,000 a year, income.

I met him looking in a fishing tackle window yesterday.

"What I like," he said after we had strolled over his fortune, "is that I don't have to work any more."

"Say, slowly, we went into the tackle shop.

"No thanks, I'm all right for brushes"

An automobile sleigh appeared on the streets in Belleville yesterday and attracted much attention. As the name implies the vehicle moves on runners with motive power supplied by a driving wheel. Mr. Fred Allen of Belleville city holds the patent rights for many parts of the machine which was manufactured here by Greenleaf and Sons. The first exhibition was at their factory. There is a possibility, we are informed, that these sleighs of this type may be manufactured here and it is believed that they would find ready sale.

Mickey Finn For Pigeons

Watertown Times

The health commissioner of the city of St. Louis, Mo., has a plan to take care of the pigeon plague there that should be good for nothing else the biggest municipal controversy of the year.

He wants to feed the birds some spiked grain and bread. It is to be such a dose that the pigeons will all pass out. Then health department crews will move in, and in two years — on public intoxication charges, we suppose — will exert them all to the gas chamber at the dog pound.

This should bring humane societies, the bird clubs, every otherwise meek little old lady in the land down on the temperance union into the venerable municipal pigeon wars. The commissioner will learn shortly that, if there is anything that makes people more than too many pigeons, it is anyone to get rid of pigeons. And any corrupting them by sneaking Mickey Finns into their feed and then considered an absolutely heinous crime.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

MENTAL UNEMPLOYMENT

I recently came across a but if we are to be happy we quotation from Confucius which seems to me to take care that we never interest me. Confucius said: "Look magazine that set me in our out of mental unemployment. Look magazine that set me thinking. He said: "The whole secret of happiness and of escaping mental unemployment." The can be traced to an idle and vacant mind, that is like a vacant house — and this thought applies to this world too — vacant minds, idle minds, minds filled with evil thoughts. People grow wrong when they come in contact. Great thoughts come from people with empty minds. They are the ones who help to prevent thoughts. People possessing great thoughts take pride in their work, and find satisfaction in it. Idleness whatever new thoughts appear to spread around.

What a blessing it is to be happy and to drink in the joy of living during the time in the vast garden of this earth it is wonderful thing to accept our lot in life and to bravely battle our way from day to day, as God wills that we should!

Canadian Legion officers participating in last night's mortgage burning ceremonies of Belleville Branch No. 99 held at the Canara Club, were: Bill Heasman, past president of Branch No. 99; Dr. D. C. McVicker, deputy zone commander; Bill Bailey, zone commander; Dave Burgess, dominion president; Lou Knack, district commander; Len Taylor, chairman of the public relations committee of the Ontario Provincial Command of the Legion, and George Olsen, president of Branch 99.

Dr. J. Russell Scott Again Named Head of Fair Board, Surplus of $140 Reported

Dr. J. Russell Scott was re-elected president of the Belleville Fair at the society's annual meeting held Wednesday night at city hall.

The meeting saw all of last year's executive returned for another year with Harry Rollins as past president; Carl Thompson and Jack Bush as vice-presidents; Ben Bleecker as secretary and Robert Phillips as treasurer.

Despite additions and other construction expenses during the year, the Belleville Fair had a surplus of approximately $140, it was noted by the financial report.

Total income for the year, including $12,905 in gate admissions, $4,459 from the grandstand, $5,154 from the midway and $6,043 from rental, was $35,513.84 with expenses amounting to $30,782.15, showing a surplus over expenses of $5,031. Additions and repairs to exhibition property during the year cost $4,859, leaving about $140 on the year's operation.

RECORD PRIZE LIST

Big item on the expenditure side was $8,678 paid out in prizes, said by fair president Dr. Scott to be the biggest in the fair's history. Junior fair prizes amounted to $800.31, races cost $1,486.90 and the Hamid grandstand show $5,663.

Possibility of the new RCMP Exhibition Ride coming to the Belleville fair as a major attraction was seen by President Dr. Scott who read a letter from Lee Grills, M.P. for Hastings South. The Exhibition Ride is replacing the famed Musical Ride, which is being disbanded by the RCMP.

Looking toward possible future expansion of the fair, Dr. Scott noted that negotiations were underway for the purchase of additional land to be used for grounds expansion. He noted that nearly all available space was now used for buildings.

Committee reports from the various committee chairmen were heard together with suggestions and criticism on the year's activities.

Possibility of portable bleachers being purchased for the cattle show was voiced, while Dr. Scott said that greater emphasis should be placed on cattle, sheep and swine, as well as agricultural classes, to take advantage of all grants available and present a more balanced program.

He noted that the pony show at the fair had grown so fast that there was danger of the Belleville Fair becoming a horse show.

PLOWING MATCH PLANS

Harry Pound, chairman of the Hastings county council agricultural committee, reported on plans for the International Plowing Match to be held in Belleville in 1961.

He said he would need co-operation from everyone if the big match was to be a success. He noted that areas for the tent city and for the parking lot at the plowing match had already been levelled. There was not much to be done this year but there was still much to be done before the plowing match in 1961.

Mr. Pound is being slated as a possible member of the Ontario Plowman's Association.

NAME DELEGATES

Delegates named to the Ontario Agricultural Societies convention to be held in Toronto on Jan. 23 and 24 are the fair president, secretary and first vice-president with a lady delegate to be named by the ladies' division.

Delegates to the Central Fairs' Association convention to be held at Kiwanis Centre on Feb. 6th are W. D. Reid, Ben Bleecker and Fred Denyes.

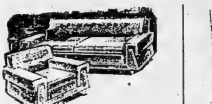
Harvey Homan, one of last year's junior directors, withdrew from the fair board for this year owing to his forthcoming trip to the British Isles.

Bancroft Hospital Had 1958 Surplus



Bancroft Red Cross Hospital completed its 1958 operation with a surplus and will approach county council for a grant this year.

This was noted by County Warden Reeve J. N. Brown of Bancroft at yesterday's council session. He said the hospital ended up with a $3,200 surplus last year.

A letter from the Bancroft Red Cross Society indicated to council that its current financial position was the result of it being relieved of certain financial responsibilities through setting up of the Ontario Hospital scheme.

Says Blasts From Quarry Ruined Cake

WELLAND (CP) — Richard Owen Thomas of nearby Humberstone Township told Mr. Justice J. L. McLennan that his wife "got mad" when blasts from a local quarry damaged a cake which had "reached the critical size in its cooking cycle."

A witness in an Ontario Supreme Court action asking an injunction restraining Niagara Limited, quarry operations, Mr. Thomas said Wednesday "the cake collapsed in the centre. It was like a saucer."

Asked by Judge McLennan if he was not prejudiced, Mr. Thomas remarked: "I had to eat it, my lord."

It was the third day of the action in which Peter Lewis, who lives near the quarry, is alleging nuisance and damage.

Bertal Peterson produced two rocks weighing 27 and 4½ pounds which he said were typical of many blasted on to his farm. The smaller rock had struck an outhouse approximately 340 feet from his common boundary with the quarry.

Flames consume the mortgage once held on the Legion building on Pinnacle Street. Joining in the ceremony are: Bill Heasman, president during the three years that the mortgage was paid off, holding the tray; Dave Burgess, Dominion President of the Canadian Legion, who put the match to the paper, and Len Taylor, chairman of the ceremonies.

Gales Batter British Coast

LONDON (Reuters) — Gales battered England's south coast today and flooding was reported in many inland areas.

The American liner United States, scheduled to leave Southampton Wednesday night for Bremerhaven, Germany, still was planned in her berth this morning.

The River Thames, swollen by 24 hours of rain, reached its highest level in five years and still was rising, spilling over its banks in many places above London.

While temperatures remained higher than the season averaged in England, the storms brought Arctic weather to Scotland where heavy snow and sleet was reported.

In Bedfordshire, where the River Great Ouse covered large tracts of countryside, a river board spokesman said conditions were the worst in 11 years.

Legion's Community Service Outlook Today Emphasized As Hall Mortgage Burned

"Doing something for others", has been the Legion's guiding thought stated David L. Burgess, D.S.O., E.D., M.C., Dominion President of the Canadian Legion, at last night's mortgage burning ceremonies for the Belleville Branch 99. This thought has been applied to helping veterans and their dependents during the past years but has assumed a new modern outlook just recently as more and more Legion branches across Canada and the United States are engaging in community projects and youth work.

"Community good will", advised the former Royal Flying Corps captain, "must be earned constantly". He urged the local branch members to continue to turn their energy to community affairs in Belleville.

Commending on recent work which the Legion has achieved throughout Canada Mr. Burgess made mention of several projects. One of the major ones was the opening in Fort Erie, run by Legion Branch No. 6 of a housing project for 51 senior citizens in need of low-cost living accommodation whether they were veterans or not.

DISPLAYED FAITH

Commenting on the completion of the local Legion's payment for their present quarters, the recently retired supply officer for the Department of Agriculture congratulated the local members for their faith in the Legion, its future, and its work. The willingness to contract for the debt on the acquisition of their Pinnacle Street building in 1955 was excellent indication of their faith. Mr. Burgess expressed his delight that their faith had been so amply rewarded.

The Dominion President, also has been engaged in veterans' work ever since the finish of the Great War, was introduced by Len Taylor, chairman of the meeting.

Congratulations were given to the members and Ladies' Auxiliary of Branch 99 by District Commander Lou Knack, who also conducted the opening ceremonies and by Zone Commander Bill Bailey. Past President Bill Heasman, who has been president from the time the mortgage was assumed in 1955 until the completion of its retirement last December, extended his thanks to the individual members for their work and efforts in paying off this debt. New president George Olsen also complimented the members.

TRIBUTE TO OLDTIMERS

Colonel Angus Duffy gave congratulations to the branch, especially to the oldtimers who kept the branch alive over its more difficult years. He also thanked the Legion for the support which it gives the Armed services. Mrs. W. O. Bauer spoke on behalf of the members of the Women's Auxiliary, indicating their pleasure at being present and expressed their hope for the future of the branch.

Several distinctions were made to two of the branch members. George Ellarby who has been branch service officer for many years, was presented with a life membership, the first awarded in the ranks of Branch No. 99. Retiring president Bill Heasman was awarded the Past President's Medal. Both presentations were made by Dominion President Dave Burgess.

Alderman Jack Ireland brought greetings from the City of Belleville and congratulated the members on the burning of their mortgage.

The meeting was closed by Deputy Zone Commander D.C. McVicker, M.D., who also expressed his delight at the progress of the Belleville Branch. Following the ceremonies a dance and social gathering were held.

Kinette Club Inducts Eight New Members

The Kinette Club last week held its tenth birthday anniversary at the St. Thomas' Parish House. Kinette Jackie Stewart reported on the golf and ward-robe for the Kinette Easter Seals. This will be on display at the end of this month. President Norma discussed the district six Kinsmen convention and the preparations that are being made by members.

Kinette Norma McIntosh introduced her guest, Ruth Beird, a former Belleville Kinette, now living in Lethbridge, Alberta.

The induction ceremony began by president Norma calling on the following Kinettes — Bud Hamill, Mickey Jones, Mary Akinson, Barb Whalen and Nell Wilson — to inform the incoming members on the history and charter of the Kinsmen and Kinettes. Kinettes Jackie Stewart and guest, Alice Wood lit the ceremonial candles around the beautiful birthday cake, made by Kinette Nell Farrow.

The initiation of eight new comers were inducted into the club as Rosemarie Selkirk; A.L. Sheila Gerrow; Helen Hilder; Hardy; Betty Duby; Freda Hemberry; Thelma Brown and Lorna Sennett.

A social hour followed the business meeting.

Two Italian Designers Show Styles

By JENNY NICHOLSON

FLORENCE, Italy (Reuters)—Two high fashion designers, Simonetta and Fabiani, Wednesday night presented their versions of the new Italian line for spring and summer.

Both Simonetta's and Fabiani's skirts were short—sometimes only to mid-knee.

Simonetta first presented the "pregnant" look four seasons ago and since has been the mother of many others that have been adopted or endorsed by Paris, London and Rome with an annual silhouette this season.

The backs of coats, dresses and skirts flowed gently from the yoke, the cloak principle and are flat from shoulder to front. Narrow sleeves emerge through the fullness as if through the side vents.

SQUARE BACK

Fabiani also adopted the cloak cut, but his had square elbows of oval at the back.

Shoulders stopped, necklines were bare, skirts belled slightly with loosely-folded pleats.

Simonetta did not suit a three-tier look in putting short cape overskirts and tunics worn over narrow or belling skirts.

The Fabiani cape collar reached down to elbows and often was fringed.

Both Fabiani and Simonetta agreed that pale pink and green, beige and white are next season's colors. But both used clear, boldly-printed faille and silk for cocktail and evening dresses.

Women's Hospital Auxiliary Has Outstanding Year of Progress

Following the annual luncheon held last evening in Hotel Quinte, the Women's Hospital Auxiliary met to hear in detail one of the most successful years since its inception.

The various reports given included the secretarial, by Mrs. L. G. Irvine; the treasurer's, by Mrs. R. J. Fuke; the Opportunity Shop by Mrs. F. A. Besley; the Coffee Shop by Mrs. N. A detailed account of the operating statement appears elsewhere in this issue.

The head table guests were introduced by the chairman, Mrs. R. J. Fuke, and Mrs. Mervin A. Burley, incoming president; Mayor Gerald Hyde; Mr. K. Box, hospital administrator; the Reverend R. D. MacLean, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, who gave the invocation; Mr. Frank Domenico, chairman of the hospital board; Mr. J. N. Brown, warden of Hastings County; Mrs. Wm. Vaughan, provincial Hospital Auxiliary president, guest speaker; Mrs. J. Lloyd Jones, special guest; Mrs. L. G. Irvine, Mrs. F. A. Besley, Mrs. Ivy Dickens, Mrs. R. H. Tanner, Mrs. H. J. Forrester, Mrs. J. Marshall, Miss Ivy Dickens, Mrs. H. Hamilton, Mrs. J. L. Smith, past president; Mrs. E. H. Hall, Mrs. H. R. Park, Mrs. A. W. Simpson and Dr. Empson, vice-president, of the medical staff.

Mrs. W. H. Finkle extended a gracious welcome to all, and a special welcome to Mrs. J. E. Marshall, and Mrs. G. L. Tripp, conveners of the deli-cious luncheon and the lovely head table arrangement of yellow chrysanthemums, daffodils, white pom-pom 'mums and British Columbia huckleberry sprays.

GREETINGS

Following this, brief speeches, bringing greetings and congratulations were given by Mrs. Wm. Vaughan Mayor Gerald Hyde; Mr. Frank Domenico, Mrs. J. Lloyd Jones; Mr. Ken Box; Mr. Ken Box; Dr. Empson; Mrs. Parks, of Trenton, regional representative, and Mrs. Marshall, their pleasure at being present on this special occasion, and gratitude for the many years the Auxiliary was accomplishing.

MEMBERSHIP

Mrs. W. C. Vaughan, provincial hospital auxiliary president, then was introduced by Mrs. John Buchan, stated that she hardly knew what helpful suggestion to make since every department and branch had been so thoroughly administered as pointed by the various reports and that she had high commendation for the tremendous amount of work accomplished during the year She was much impressed with the beautiful chart which she had visited, its organ, and every-auxiliary has a shop Opportunity Shop, which she was unable to visit as it was closed on Wednesday afternoon, and with the Coffee Shop in the hospital. She considered it is pool workers a valuable asset In short, Belleville General Hospital was a very fine institution.

Mrs. Vaughan continued by saying, "as Auxiliary, is a necessary component part of every hospital. Never underestimate the power of service, the giving of oneself. A woman who tries to lighten the load for some one is definitely serving."

She also mentioned some of the projects other Auxiliaries were doing in the province; of how one had installed an electric blanket where blankets were always kept warm for the patient. Of another auxiliary which had raised the funds to purchase a bronchoscope which had saved the life of a lad with a peanut lodged in his throat. An auxiliary also cares for the nurses; sees that they are given every comfort, that life is made brighter by tickets to hockey matches; tennis, music recitals, and other entertainments, as these tend to make better nurses, who by them are more able to do better nursing, and thus save the lives of many who are ill. Bursaries are other methods of assisting the deserving nurses.

Another field of service mentioned by the speaker, was official volunteers. In cases of accidents they could help in many ways. Also teen-agers might be included who would be eager and willing to do little duties after school or on Sundays, thus forming a junior auxiliary, learning to serve, bearing out the adage, that "he who serves others serves himself best".

OTHER INTEREST

It is also good to have some other interest; a good church-woman usually makes a good worker. In her case, Mrs. Vaughan told of how she manages her own home and attends the manifold meetings of her work. She prepares the vegetables, sets the table and does other duties before she leaves for a meeting. But, sometimes, things do get a bit complicated as the time she has later than usual returning home. She dashes madly, arranging into her house dress, and is just ready to be collected when Mr. Vaughan returned. He asked where she was, and when he came into the kitchen remarked, with a twinkle in his eye, that apparently she had just recently arrived, and that she must still had her hat on!

Mrs. Vaughan closed her talk by an injunction to the Auxiliary: always work with the hospital administrator; never go against him; remember the words of the healing of the lepers fortunate; be willing to forget what you have done, and remember what others have done for you.

Mrs. Vaughan was thanked by a past president, Mrs. J. Lloyd Smith, to which Mrs. Finkle added her appreciation.

Following the installation of the executive officers by Mrs. Vaughan, with a past president's pin, and introduced as president, Mrs. B. E. Burley.

The 1959 executive is as follows: honorary president, Mrs. W. C. Mikel; president, Mrs. B. E. Burley; 1st vice president, Mrs. M. F. L. Jones; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. F. A. Besley; recording secretary, Mrs. L. G. Irvine; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. A. Wallbridge and treasurer, Mrs. H. J. Fuke.

PRESIDENT'S ACCEPTANCE SPEECH

Mrs. Burley, in her acceptance speech, stated that she was most appreciative of the honor the auxiliary had conferred upon her in naming her as president, that she was fully cognizant of its duties and responsibilities and that, while at present she held a higher office in a different field of endeavor, from which she would retire in the late spring, the activities of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary would be the same, and would receive close attention, were it her only concern. The nominating committee was to be congratulated and thanked for its choice of capable and efficient officers to support a new president, and that she looked forward to working with them.

Mrs. Burley, on behalf of the outgoing executive and all the members, wished to pay tribute to the retiring president, Mrs. Finkle, with whom she had had two years of most pleasant harmonious association, for her outstanding leadership, her gentle firm guidance through a most successful interval, and to whom sincere gratitude was extended. Mrs. Burley also solicited, on behalf of the executive, the continued loyalty and support of all the members.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORTS

Concluding her speech, Mrs. Burley announced the appointment of the conveners for the standing committees as follow: membership, Mrs. M.P.L. Jones; organization, Mrs. F. A. Besley; Coffee Shop Miss Nell Mercy and Miss Ivy Dickens; Opportunity Shop, Mrs. Wesbery; holiday treats, Mrs. N. C. Mac-Donald, Mrs. C. L. Tripp; bulletin editor, Mrs. R. H. Tanner; bulletin secretary, Mrs. H.P.M. Carey; nursery, Mrs. W. H. Finkle; special events convener, Mrs. Ben Sale and Mrs. S. A. Kvarda; Puppet, Mrs. E. R. Hall; director of hospital volunteers and public relations, Mrs. J. E. Buchan.

Conveners of special committees will be appointed as the need arises.

BARNSTAPLE, England (CP) Mrs. Mary Tucker of this Devon town paid 10 shillings for an old print and a dozen cups from a stall at a rummage sale. Now she owns rare pieces of 18th century workmanship, and a jeweller has offered £30 for the set.

Art Appreciation Studies Made of Noted Paintings

The Belleville Art Association's December and January classes in art appreciation were held at the homes of Mrs. H. Murray and Mrs. H. S. Robbins.

"Expressionism" was the subject of the portfolio covered at the December meeting. Expressionism was defined as "The distortion of form and color for emotional interpretation", the distortion going beyond the point where one can accept the possibility of objects existing as the painter has represented them.

The first painting studied was by Van Gogh, whose personal emotionalism became so fused with technical procedure that they became identical. In painting "The Starry Night", which swirls with a fierce, surging energy, far removed from our ordinary associations with a starry night, Van Gogh probably experienced a personal and emotional release.

Two pictures of El Greco were examined" Christ in Gethsemane" and "The Burial of the Count of Orgaz". In both the artist accurately portrays the stories, but treats them in an emotional, rather than naturalistic manner. In contrast to the emotional release of Van Gogh's work, El Greco apparently developed his style objectively, collaborating in the movement and making the most of it as a professional artist rather than as an emotional human being.

"Two Nudes", by Georges Rouault, a powerful, impressionist image of two grotesquely ugly, dehumanized creatures, yet because the picture so aptly expresses the artist's feeling, it is an excellent example of expressionism.

The Singer Building" by John Marin is an expressionistic study than a description. It is a cheerful, vibrant interpretation and typically American, contrasting with Kirchner's "Two Ladies in the Street", which is a study in morbid introspection and mental ancholy brooding.

SOME DISTORTION USED

In "The Annunciation" by Simone Martini a great deal of the distortion is a convention, familiar and popular during the artist painted, yet some distortion is for the purpose of emotional interpretation.

Three paintings of the Crucifixion were studied. Rubens' "Christ On the Cross" shows no distortion whatsoever, but is dramatized by extreme naturalism. El Greco endeavors to make of mystery and miracle inherent in his version of the Crucifixion. The intention of the unknown master of the middle Ages who painted the "Painted Cross" was to achieve an impression of the mystery of the Crucifixion, and he does so through his own particular type of interpretation.

In Ryder's "Moonlight Marine" we understand and feel the artist's sense of man's journey through the world where he they be as small in the elements, but so threatened by the elements, but for a while in secure as he keeps his boat on course over the water beneath the clouds, by the light of the moon.

Paris Styles for Spring Expected to Be 'Rational'

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters) — As the Paris couture houses prepare for the spring and summer fashion showings beginning Jan. 26, the general prediction is that the new styles will be rational.

It is expected that waistlines will descend from under-bust to empire height to a normal line. The décolleté line may join the sacks on the sidelines.

Although an illusion of easy fitting may be retained in some instances, the pendulum seems to be swinging towards clothes cut in closer alignment to the body. Other predictions include a return of wide belts and a subtle lengthening of the hemline, especially in narrow-skirted silhouettes.

TRICKY BUSINESS

Peering into the crystal ball to take a look at fashion of the future is a tricky business, for the element of uncertainty is what draws the buyers, many of whom might stay at home if they were convinced that Paris would evolve one specific trend.

Fashion usually moves in a cycle, Dudley, the last five years, we have been treated to low waistlines, no waistlines, and lately the high empire effect. The next logical move, according to one intensely young couturier, Michel Goma, is a return of the waistline to its natural place.

STILL SUPPLE

Pierre Cardin says: "Clothes are getting closer to the figure, although fashions will remain supple and easy to wear."

The top Paris designers recently have classified themselves unofficially into two distinct and separate schools of thought: The neo-classic approach versus the revolutionist.

St. Laurent of Dior, Balenciaga, Givenchy, Cardin and Laroche are known to favor high styling, while Chanel, Lanvin - Castillo, Balmain, Desses, Heim, Patou and others make up the more conservative group.

Internationalism also has come to fashion. A good style knows no geographical boundaries. And couturiers circle the globe in search of inspiration and a change of atmosphere. A Paris may originate from the Orient, pass through the scientific laboratory of the Paris couture, and come up within a few weeks at a mass-produced style in the United States.

In Wilden Mann Zu Soest For Dinner

by Mary Moore

Im Wilden Mann is an historic restaurant in Soest. Alice and Don Paisley are friends of Marianne's and Herbie's and invited us to be their guests for New Year's dinner at this famous "gaststatte".

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

THURSDAY

Homemade Scotch Broth (see Monday); Macaroni and Cheese with Meat Balls; Lettuce Salad with Tomato Mayonnaise; Lemon Cake-Pie; Coffee.

SUNDAY
(Guests)

Pineapple Juice; Standing Rib Roast; Horseradish Cream; Pan Roasted Jacket Potatoes; Julienne of Carrots and Green Pepper; Orange Coconut Chiffon Cake (see Wednesday); Coffee.

Three hundred years ago it was built with oak beams and carved spiral colonnades. The panelled ceiling is hand decorated. The immense fireplace is built of oak and hand decorated blue and white tiles, with insets of Soest's key-to-the-city crest.

All one needs to go back centuries in time, is a coach-and-four in which to drive up to the ages-old oaken door with wrought iron hinges and handle —instead of a Hillman Minx.

The waiters were in long tail-coats and, thank goodness, spoke some English. It is quite possible to spoil your order, I was warned by one army wife. She had here what she got, after many gestured warnings and head shakings by her waiter, was scraped raw beef on top of which reposed a raw egg!! Evens though she had insisted on this they were gracious enough to replace it with something more familiar to her Canadian palate.

So being cautioned, we ordered carefully, and were served what we had expected. For an appetizer of smoked eel on toast. Delicious. Smoked pork loin with sauerkraut and white asparagus with drawn butter. Bibb lettuce (woudoor grown in Soest) with sour cream dressing and hot apple fritters for dessert. All was tops.

Marianne had superbly cooked breaded veal cutlet (which I tried to copy with fair success next day) and Hale overcooked by our standards but good. Alice and Don and Herbie had been there before and knew about their steaks so ordered filets mignons with mushrooms and tiny buttered carrots. Their dessert was a most unusual fruit cup of green gage plums, white cherries, mandarin oranges in thick brandy syrup, heavily. The coffee was very strong but oh so very good.

One feature of the service was the repeat offerings of all of the meats and vegetables and dessert items. We would think we had our share and, complete order when the waiters would come around with each boiling hot dish again and serve us more and more.

There were no other Canadians dining there that we recognized. All of the other New Year's Eve guests were Germans all highly polished, rosy-cheeked and rotund — and no winder!

To return to home ground Herbie and Gary love home-made ice cream, so with 35 per cent Danish cream available at the MLS store I made:

WINTER STRAWBERRY ICE CREAM

Poor old you in Canada will have to make do with 32 per cent cream.

One cup rich milk scalded, ½ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon all-purpose flour, 1 cup heavy whipping cream, 10 or 12-oz. can or package fresh frozen strawberries, sweetened Mix together the sugar, salt and flour well and stir into them until thick, over low heat, the scalded milk. Cool. Add the strawberries and freeze to a mush in freezing tray. Turn out into a cold bowl and beat with hand rotary beater until smooth and berries are broken up. Whip the heavy cream until stiff and fold berry mixture into it. Return to the freezing tray and freeze until hard. This amount serves 8 adequately and is very easy to make and delicious.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

TODAY'S HINT ABOUT GOOD MANNERS

The essential quality of good manners is consideration for others. The golden rule in thoughtful action.

WHEN YOU MUST LEAVE A PARTY EARLY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman.

My husband and I love to go to parties, but the difficulty is that we have to leave early because we both have to get up very early in the morning to arrive at our respective places of business at eight-thirty. Our close friends all understand this, and accept our early leave-taking. But, with some we don't know so well, we often feel self-conscious about having to leave before the other guests.

At two or three parties during the past holidays, we both happened to notice that a guest, or perhaps two guests, apparently having to leave early, simply rose, said good-bye to the guests they'd been talking to, then said good-by to the hostess and host, and quietly departed. Would this be considered proper? We had always taken it for granted that we are supposed to say good-by to all the guests before we leave a party. What about this procedure, Mrs. Beeckman? — "Mr. and Mrs."

The problem of having to leave a party early is a very frequent and perplexing one today, when so many people are so busy and have so many obligations. Most hostesses and hosts have a gracious and practical understanding about this leaving early, take the necessity for granted in circumstances like yours. They try to be as casual as possible about the situation, just as they take for granted that any guest who must leave will leave as inconspicuously as possible. You and your husband have been entirely wrong in thinking you must go around the pt in saying good-by to everyone . . . this attention-calling procedure certainly tends to "break up the party."

SHE WANTS NAME OF BOOK ABOUT PROCEDURE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have recently become a member of a Women's Club, and since this is my first experience, and since I'm naturally a want-to-how person, I'd like to know about the procedure of meetings, responsibilities of officers and members, and so forth is there some special book about all these things, which I might be able to get at our public library? Thank you for your help. — M.B.

Salutations to you for your enthusiasm and for your intellectual curiosity." The Club is fortunate to have you as such an alertly-interested member. Yes, there is a "special book" for you to read! It's standard book on parliamentary procedure is the famous Robert's Rules of Order, and I am quite sure you will find this book in your public library

BRACELETS AND RINGS OVER GLOVES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please settle our discussion. Is it proper to wear bracelets over gloves? Also, is it proper to wear rings over gloves? — D. and S.

Bracelets may be worn over gloves, especially in the evening . . . but never should wear rings over gloves.

SHOULD HE SAY "MY WIFE" OR "MRS. ——"?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please settle a discussion we are having? A says that when a man is speaking of his wife to a social acquaintance of his (not a friend), it is correct for him to refer to her as "my wife." B says that to a social acquaintance he should refer to his wife as "Mrs.——" Which is right? — A and B.

A is right.

Mother's Helper

SHOULD it be necessary for you to be in a hospital, your children at home will feel safe to secure if they have some daily contact with you. Arrange for daily cards—or telephone calls if possible. An occasional small gift will help, too, sent home via Daddy or a friend.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Marilyn L. — My parents say I should come home.

Michael L. — My son stays here.

Marilyn L. — My husband and I have been married two years and have a one-year-old son. I am a European, and I met my husband in my native city when he visited there on leave from his post in the navy.

We didn't have much time for our romance, and I guess we didn't get to know one another too well. We corresponded for several months before Mike proposed and I accepted.

Mike kept telling me how wonderful everything was going to be when I got here, but I found that nothing was the way he described. He took me to live in a back room of his parent's store and didn't get a decent apartment for us until the baby was born. I haven't gotten a new dress since I came here. I wrote to my parents about all this and they say I should come home but Mike says he's not going to let me take the baby.

Michael L. — I never lied to Marilyn about how things would be here. I may have put a good light on a lot of things, but I never said I was going to take her to live in a house or anything like that. I have a pretty fair job and a lot of young fellows like me are raising families on my income, but their wives don't complain all the time.

Marilyn complains all the time that I don't love her and maybe I don't, but I do know one thing —I love my son and I'm not going to let him be brought up in Europe. It is not America's citizen and he's going to stay here no matter what I have to do to make him stay.

My folks told me from the first that I was making a big mistake to marry a foreign girl because they expect all kinds of things. They certainly were right about Marilyn.

The Council: Marilyn and Michael have made a difficult and dangerous sort of marriage, but perhaps all isn't as lost and hopeless as they feel it is.

Michael should have understood that Marilyn's ideas about what she would find in America would be wrapped in illusions. Most girls have quite a lot of illusions about what their married lives will be like and are jolted when they confront the reality. If the girl is also lonely for her home, it is natural for her to wrap the past in some of those discarded illusions.

Marilyn should recognize that the "home" she visualizes in Europe no longer exists as it did in the past. She would return in a new status, a rather uncomfortable one. She would not be able to easily accept the idea of being a child again in her parents' home.

It is very likely that Marilyn's complaints and unhappiness have led Michael to become cold and bitter and this in turn created even more misery in his wife's heart. The only way out of this vicious cycle is for both to recognize the fact that they can still create the most important things they hoped for in marriage — love and loyalty — if they shove the unimportant things out of the way.

We gather that beneath the surface both Marilyn and Michael crave words and gestures of affection, yet they give one another nothing but cruel stabs. They must try to follow the dictates of their deeper feelings.

Phil Walker, noted film lecturer, who will be the narrator on "Mexico" at the World Travel and Adventure Series, to be held tonight in the Collegiate auditorium, grew up in Carmel-by-the-Sea in northern California. His family tree dates back to John Robinson, organizer of the Mayflower expedition and owes his existence to his great, great, great - grandmother, who befriended the Indians and saved her family from massacre.

Before adventuring into travel films, he sailed a 75 foot boat from Sydney, Australia, to the Philippines, and explored in his six months' voyage almost every native village and island outpost in the 6,000 mile trip.

Colorful Mexico is a country of variations in weather, mountains and green. The film will show the modern Mexico City with its avenues of trees and beautiful fountains; Guadalajara, the second city of the republic, noted for its lovely Guadalajara cathedral, and small plazas; Acapulco, with its boy divers, the ruins of Mitla and the uncovered city of Monte Alban.

ESKIMO EVACUATION

The Indian affairs department of the federal government has sponsored a move to evacuate 70 Eskimos from their homes around the barren shores of Baker Lake in the Northwest Territories 450 miles south of Churchill and take them to new homes at Rankin Inlet on the western shore of Hudson Bay.

The Eskimo are faced with famine because of diminishing caribou on which they depend for food and clothing.

A camp has been set up for the evacuees at Rankin Inlet, 160 miles east of Baker Lake, where preparations have been made to teach the Eskimos new fishing and other methods of hunting and earning a living.

The Eskimos, together with their possessions, sleds and dogs, are being carried in an RCAF transport.

Last year 18 Eskimos at Garry Lake, 150 miles northwest of Baker Lake, starved to death after fire destroyed their food store and they were unable to get new supplies. (CP Newsmap).

FREE LUNCH SERVED TO WILD BIRDS

This device, which looks like a lampost, is aptly called an automat for wild birds. Food is stored in the glass container and it dribbles out as birds come to dine. In all, 35 species of birds can find menus to their liking in the heated food. Charles Saurlol and Marcien Morrisset, members of the Metropolitan Toronto and Region Conservation Authority, are inspecting the device, which is installed at the Authority's Boyd Park. If it proves popular with the feathered residents of the park, more will be installed elsewhere. The funnel-like ridge on the post prevents squirrels from raiding the birds' larder.

Dug by a machine called a "Peter Snow Miller," the trench is topped by an arched snow roof erected by blowing processed snow over a temporary frame. U.S. Subs in Mock Attacks Have Proved Deadly Germs Can Be Spread Over Cities

WASHINGTON (AP) — An enemy submarine, masked by day or darkness a few miles offshore, could blanket almost any American coastal city with deadly germs spreading over thousands of square miles.

Fantastic? It already has been done—by U.S. Navy ships using harmless materials.

Dr. Leroy D. Fothergill, scientific adviser at the U.S. Army's Germ Warfare Research Centre at Ft. Detrick, Md., recently said a U.S. Navy ship, cruising a few miles offshore, disseminated 450 pounds of an inert substance along a 156-mile course. The wind - borne substance was detected 450 miles inland. It simulated a region covering 34,000 square miles.

SECRET DEFENCE

What is being done to cope with the possibility of such an enemy attack, using live germs or the deadly chemical gas? The defence department, with its policy of secrecy on the subject of germ warfare, is wary about answering such questions.

This much is known:

The army announced several years ago that it developed an aerosolscope to give instant warning of a germ warfare attack. The device can count germs, dust and moisture particles as small as a microscopic forty-millionth of an inch—1,000 times faster than a microscope.

And the army chemical corps has developed an infrared device —known as "Locate" (long-range infrared)—which flashes a warning light and sounds a horn upon detecting even a tiny amount of colorless, invisible contamination in the air. Primarily intended for combat troops, it has a range of a quarter mile.

The office of civil and defence mobilization says that by 1967 it expects 50,000 more authorities trained to defend against chemical, biological and radiological warfare. The last involves deadly fallout from nuclear explosions.

NERVE GAS

In addition, 3,471 public health service employees and 3,045 others have been trained to defend against animal and crop contamination.

The agency says that in the event of a nerve-gas attack, there should be a supply of "at least four anti-gas atropine syrettes on hand for each individual."

Although atropine is the recognized treatment for nerve - gas victims, Dr. William H. Stewart, Surgeon General of the public health service, has pooh-poohed one less sobering flaw in its use. Creasy told a congressional committee:

"If you get there fast enough you can save the man's life (with atropine) if he doesn't wait too much of a massive overdose. It is a matter of getting there sufficiently fast, though."

How fast?

"Thirty seconds," said Creasy.

11 TAKE TO 'CHUTES

OLATHE, Kan. (AP)—Eleven U.S. Navy men leaped from a burning patrol bomber in snow-storm and made safely Tuesday. Less than two hours after they took to their parachutes, the plane accounted for, None suffered severe injury.

LONDON (Reuters) — British scientists today were reported by the Liberal News Chronicle to have developed "germs which can wipe out the world's population — a weapon described as "much worse than the dirty H-bomb."

The News Chronicle's science correspondent said similar work is "also going on in the United States, Canada, Russia and several European countries."

"A few specks of these germs are enough to kill more than a million people. A pound of them is enough to unpeople the world and destroy all animal life," he said in a front-page story.

He said the process perfected in five years at Britain's microbiological warfare centre and the chemical defence experimental establishment "can be mass-produced cheaply by the smallest billions."

The germ is known as botulinus toxin, a small, sausage-shaped killer which can be spread in food and water and even survive fire and ice. It is formed when meat or vegetables are improperly canned.

MANY PROJECTS

British scientists are also working on 40 or more other plague germs, the paper reported, including nerve-gases, cholera and typhus germs, he said.

The report follows a hint of the existence of the killer substance in parliament because Tory Watson-Watt in a speech in Montreal.

He was quoted as saying in a transatlantic phone interview that: "Responsible people in scientific sources can easily make enough of it to blackmail the whole world." He added:

"The germ is quite safe for the aggressor to use because the lethal effects vanish within 12 hours. By then, all people and animals have been wiped out."

4 Men Rescued From Arctic Ice Are Just Tired

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP)—Four men were rescued by plane Wednesday after spending three days in 20-below-zero weather on an Arctic ice floe when their aircraft crashed in a storm.

Their only complaint as they were flown to safety was that they were tired.

The men picked up by a single-engined RCMP Otter piloted by Cpl. Gordon Carter were: pilot Sam Bonfarrett of Churchill; Man.; Maurice Veillette, 53, of Montreal; Gilbert Gagnon, 45, of Jonquiere, Que., and Raymond St. Armand, 48, of St. Johns, Que. Bonfarrett is an employee of TransAir Limited of Winnipeg, owners of the single - engined Norseman which went down at the mouth of Hudson Bay during a storm. The others are radio mechanics of the federal transport department.

COULD SEE NOTHING

"There was wind of 40 to 50 miles an hour and a lot of snow," said Veillette. "We could see nothing. The storm started about half an hour after we left."

Bonfarrett said visibility was almost zero.

"It turned and flew away from open water. I flew along it for a while and then I turned into the winds and dropped in."

The four men were rarely apart as they were very lucky in where we landed. The crew stayed in a hummock and that's what damaged the plane. No one was hurt.

The plane's emergency radio signal was heard by the Coral Harbor station 65 miles southwest of the plane, and an RCAF Dakota from Churchill dropped food, a radio and flares. The Dakota also was to guide a Otter 20 miles offshore, the men slept in sleeping bags in the Otter. They had a week's supply of food.

Does Not Think Cattle Exports To Be Hard Hit

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Harkness said Wednesday he doesn't think present Britain regulations covering the cattle disease brucellosis would cause much trouble to Canadian beef exports.

These exceeded 600,000 head last year.

Mr. Harkness was replying in the commons to Progressive Conservative Grey-Bruce Ralph Campney has been expressed that Ontario cattle exported to the U.S. now will be restricted to shipments through quarantine facilities at Prince Edward.

The minister said the U.S. regulations went into effect Nov. 8. There were 5,000 Canadian cattle in certified brucellosis-free areas. Three more Ontario counties would qualify at such shipping and 14 Ire all-exporting the bulk of the beef cattle areas in Ontario—should qualify this year.

Law Governs Where African May Live, Eat, Work, Travel And Denies Him Right to Vote

Russell Eltman, former Canadian trade commissioner now touring the Commonwealth, in the following story reports on South Africa's apartheid legislation which restricts the African's political and social life.

By RUSSELL ELTMAN

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (CP)—As the African's economic position improves, his progress in securing political equality with the European in South the country, Africa has been checked by restrictive legislation.

The law today governs where persons of the single - engined may live, eat, work, travel and marry, and has the right to vote. Segregation, in the broad sense, is the rule. Discrimination, now is legalized by dozens of acts of Parliament.

An African professor at Fort Hare University College for non-Europeans described the dilemma in which, he said, educated Africans find themselves:

"The segregation laws are intended mainly for the mass of the African population. But educated Africans are affected by many of these laws.

"These people, often uneducated and with little training, are receiving comparatively low pay for their work and with no great desire for a higher standard of living, are not really affected by laws which prohibit or forbid them from attending a European theatre drinking in a European hotel or buying a home in a white residential suburb. They wouldn't want to mix and they couldn't afford it anyway."

HITS EDUCATED TOO

"But segregation also applies to educated Africans who are educated, who earn more money and who would like the free Africans at present enjoyed by the Europeans. Thus the educated African is affected by the colour bar. Thus the educated African is the only really affected—only a tiny minority."

Consequently it was the best educated Africans who were the most vigorous opponents from peaceful frustration with no redress, who left Africa and the direct African voice in the government [illegible] Among these were ex-chief Albert J. Luthuli, president-general of the African National Congress, who was deposed by the government, and Prof. Z. K. Matthews, vice-principal of Fort Hare. However, no African leader has emerged to take [illegible] Prime Minister Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, Julius Nyere in Tanganyika or Tom Mboya in Kenya.

The African today is represented in Parliament by three Europeans, who usually speak for him with sincerity and sympathy but with little hope of influencing government policy. He used to vote on the same roll as the white, with limited powers of local self-government, are being developed in keeping with government policy which seeks to maintain tribal tradition and custom. Africans live in the cities, or as has happened, degrees or withholds recognition. Not a whisper has been heard of allowing the African a share in the central government.

NO SOLUTION

Moderate African admit the immediate granting of the franchise on the basis of "one man, one vote" could result in rule of African nationalists elsewhere on the continent—would be no solution. Even more than the European depended on African labor, the African would have to learn heavily on the European to run the country. Relatively few Africans have been checked by repressive legislation.

Congress leaders advocate peaceful methods to achieve their ends, using the economic weapon of boycott, stay-at-home protests and a general slowdown at work. But a suppressed protest has been effective enough to impair [illegible] economy and force the government to give concessions [illegible]

African [illegible] were set back by the treason trial in Pretoria which has already lasted for two years. Ninety-one prominent African and European members [illegible] were charged with treasonable activities and kept under detention through the 1958 election campaign. Before the case was fully around the indictment was withdrawn but one-third of the accused will be tried on a charge of a new indictment.

With no say in the government, the African has been powerless to halt the growing number of apartheid laws. Many of these statutes were enacted long before the Nationalists came to power in 1948, some are rarely enforced, but all could be used at any time.

HAS WIDE IMPACT

Among the laws with the greatest impact are the Group Areas Act of 1950, which zones all land for occupation by one race only, and the Native Act is now being implemented and often involves removal from [illegible] existing homes and loss of freehold rights. For Africans, it is technically illegal for a husband working in one to have a separate job in town to live or spend his wife if she is employed in home and sleeps on the premises, she is domestic in a European home.

The Population Registration Act classifies all South Africans according to race and provides that a public population register be kept in every magistrate's district. Africans must carry green passport-type reference books, in which their employments and employment history are recorded.

Passes have to be obtained by Africans from European employers to be away from the jobs or homes for any length of time. Passbooks have to be produced on demand by police. The most common crime in South Africa today is infringement of the pass laws.

Entry into many areas is forbidden without a permit in another's home. Strict influx control is maintained in large towns, protecting the stable urban population against the creation of slum conditions but perpetuating the migratory labor system.

MAY BE RANISHED

The Native Urban Areas Consolidation Act permits an urban native to be banished from any area by the authority to banish any African out

Must Go North Or Americans Will Do Job

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Arthur M. Pearson says unless young Canadians are prepared to go north Canada faces the prospect of his rich resources being developed by Americans.

The Saskatchewan Progressive Conservative told the Senate Wednesday that a "great spirit of adventure" is needed to inspire young men and women to show a greater zeal in spreading to the north.

Canada must take a bold and constructive hold of her resources and develop them. Or, shall we leave all this development in the hands of North Americans?"

He moved the traditional address in reply to the speech from the throne.

Senator Lionel Choquette (PC—Ontario), who seconded the address, said Canadians must look forward to 1959 with cautious optimism.

"There are sure signs that we are moving out of the recent recession and that we may receive our high hopes for the continued long-term advancement of the Canadian economy."

DEFENCE

Senator Choquette, whose presence is considered "detrimental to the maintenance of order" on the Liberal benches "idle" although it may be his permanent place.

The Natives Prohibition of Intoxicants Act 1956 refuses an African even a glass of beer. A tentative removal or eviction order prior access to the courts to obtain restraint on such action.

A controversial "church clause" in the Native Laws Amendment Act 1957, which so far has not been implemented, enables Africans to be prohibited from attending church in an urban area and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Diefenbaker Gives Blessing To Minor Hockey

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker has given his blessing to minor hockey west in Canada. The week starts Saturday.

"We must, of course, look to amateur hockey to retain the supply of material that will ensure that Canadians will retain their place in international competition," he said in a statement.

"But much more important in my mind is the training of young Canada to be keen, to work hard, to play hard, to play fairly and to work together.

"My hope is that those who form hockey teams will always find an abundance of youngsters who are keenly interested in the game, in order that this truly national sport will remain as it is today: Good training, for the body and a school for character-building."

Quebec Hockey

QUEBEC (CP)—Playing coach Joe Crozier of Quebec Aces said he would protest the officiating in the Quebec Hockey League contest Wednesday night in which his club dropped a 6-4 decision to Chicoutimi Saguenéens.

"That was the worst officiating I've seen in my career," Crozier said after the game. He planned to send an official protest to league president Byron Higgins on in Montreal today.

Referee Howie Harvey called 10 minor penalties against Saguenéens and three minors, a major and a misconduct penalty against Aces.

Crozier's main complaint was over a call in the second period. Aces' Ian Anderson drew a major and misconduct when he and Chicoutimi defenceman Howie Young tangled. Young, who suffered a cut head, was given two minors.

Alex Olmedo In Semi-Finals

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)—Alex Olmedo of the United States, heavily taped around his stomach, rallied from near-defeat today to enter the semi-finals of the Australian national tennis championships.

Olmedo, forced to withdraw from the doubles Wednesday because of a strained stomach muscle beat Ulf Schmidt of Sweden 6-4, 9-7, 3-6, 3-6, 7-5.

Also entering the round of four were top-seeded Neale Fraser who beat his fellow Australian, Don Candy, 6-2, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4, and Australian Bob Mark, who upset Spain's Andres Gimeno 6-4, 3-6, 7-5, 6-4.

The other scheduled quarter-final between Barry MacKay of the U.S. and Australia's Roy Emerson was postponed until Friday.

U.S. CAN DESTROY FOE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has forces ready "to destroy any nation attacking our country," Defence Secretary Neil McElroy Tuesday told reporters after a three-hour secret conference with the Senate armed services committee at which he presented comparisons of U.S.-Soviet military strength. McElroy added he is confident there will not be a general war because of U.S. ability to "destroy anyone starting it."

"Those aren't snowmen! They're the men in the white coats coming to get you!"

Marlene Tied For Runner-Up

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Mrs. Marlene Stewart Streit, formerly of Fonthill, Ont., tied for the runner-up spot Wednesday in qualifying for the Helen Lee Doherty golf tournament with 39-38—77.

Mrs. Streit, who has held the British, U.S. and Canadian amateur golf championships, lost out in the finals of last year's tournament to Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore, who qualified automatically for this year's tournament. Miss Downey shot a 78 Wednesday.

Leading the qualifiers were Marge Burns of Greensboro, N.C., and Barbara McIntire of Lake Park, Fla., with 76s.

Roma Neunderf of Toronto also qualified with 83.

U.S.A., Russia Favored for Basketball Title

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—The United States and Russia still were favored to battle it out for the world amateur basketball championship today after clashing up opening-round victories in this round - robin tournament matching teams from seven countries.

The U.S. edged previously-unbeaten Bulgaria 63-58 Wednesday night for its fourth straight victory. Russia, after a shaky start, downed Puerto Rico 86-53.

Tonight's games send Brazil against Nationalist China and Chile against Puerto Rico.

Canada was eliminited in the preliminaries and has entered a consolation division.

Sherm Lollar Highest Paid Sox Catcher

CHICAGO (AP) — A pay increase for Sherm Lollar has made him the highest paid catcher in Chicago White Sox history.

Chuck Comiskey, White Sox vice-president, said Wednesday the 33-year-old Lollar had agreed to 1959 terms and his salary will show "almost a 20-per-cent increase." Lollar probably will be paid about $32,000.

The raise brings him into the upper bracket with pitchers Billy Pierce and Early Wynn and second baseman Nellie Fox, all of whom have been asked to take a pay cut.

Lollar in 1958 hit 20 homers, drove in 84 runs and batted .272.

Novice Sues For Million

CHICAGO (AP) — A novice boxer has filed suit for $1,000,000 against boxing promoters Jim Norris and Arthur M. Wirtz and five others for injury in a training bout.

Lawrence Stewart, 28, Chicago, asserted in the circuit court suit Wednesday he became partially paralyzed in a bout last Jan. 23 in Chicago's Midwest Hotel gymnasium.

Stewart, weighing 155 at the time said he was hurt boxing with a 190-pound trainer and former professional boxer, Rudolph Davis.

Norris and Wirtz, operators of the now dissolved International Boxing Club, were charged by Stewart with being in active control of the gym.

Sir Laurence Olivier Says Television Is Here to Stay

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—At 51 and at the top of the acting profession, Sir Laurence Olivier still is willing to learn.

He has won every conceivable honor on the stage and screen. Now he's dipping into television.

"You can't deny it: Television is here to stay," he comments. "If you want to stay in the acting profession, you have to change with the times."

Before leaving England, he did Ibsen's John Gabriel Borkman for TV. Upon arriving in New York, he went into the grind of turning out a 90-minute version of Maugham's The Moon and Sixpence on color tape. After the long rehearsals, he went into the job of doing the show in three successive nights, one act a night.

AT THE PARK — Sinating sensation Maria Callas, Stephen Boyd with Elsa Martinelli in "Legend of Love" production, "Bernardine", opening Friday at the Park Theatre. On the screen Princess Gregory Peck with Yul Brynner in "The Journey" and "The Brothers Karamazov" also in Cinemascope and Technicolor.

LONG GRIND

The first act required 15 hours of steady work, the second 17 hours. When he finished the third act, he had been awake for 24 hours. Then he boarded a plane and arrived here to begin work for Spartacus.

"Television is fascinating," he said, "but it really isn't an actor's medium. You get two or three weeks' rehearsal, the equivalent of playing stock in the provinces. You don't have the time to perfect, and you do in the theatre. It's all you can do to conquer the mechanical aspects of your performance such as finding your marks and remembering your lines."

Last season on Broadway, many eyebrows were raised when Olivier appeared in a play called The Entertainer. It was a bitter story about a small-time music-hall performer written by John Osborne, one of England's so-called angry young men.

NOT SO ANGRY

"Actually the title doesn't fit Osborne, who is anything but angry," said Olivier. "The only trouble with him is that when he is interviewed, he becomes a different man and says the most outrageous things. His press interviews are more catastrophic than mine."

"It was because of him that we got bad reviews in New York. Unknown to any of us, the program publisher got permission to include John's introduction to the printed version. It began: 'This is my greatest play. Of course, all critics are cretins and won't admit it.' Naturally, the critics rebelled."

Audiences did, too.

"About 40 per cent of the people hated it," Olivier said. "We didn't get many walkouts, but the mail was indignant."

AT THE PARK — Gregory Peck with Yul Brynner, Claire Bloom, Richard Basehart and Albert Salmi in 20th Century's Brothers Karamazov" in Cinemascope and Technicolor opens Friday at the Park Theatre. Also on the screen Princess Gregory Peck with Stephen Boyd in "The Bravados" starting Sat Boone with Terry Moore and Janet Gaynor.

Don Jordan Fights Tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — World welterweight champion Don Jordan, 23, tonight makes his first ring appearance since dethroning Virgil Akins last month.

He meets Alvaro Gutierrez of Mexico City, a brawling, bruising young man who has figured in several sensational bouts here is unranked in the welterweight division.

If Gutierrez comes in at 147 pounds or under, Jordan's title could be at stake, regardless of terms of the contract. But Jordan's manager says he is certain Gutierrez will weigh 149 pounds or more.

G-E College Bowl Thoroughly Enjoyable TV Quiz Show

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Although I never thought it would happen, I've found myself thoroughly enjoying a television quiz show.

It is G-E College Bowl (CBS-TV, Sundays, 5 p.m. EST) in which teams of students from two colleges compete against each other in the area of information and knowledge.

Panel moderator Allen Ludden runs a forthright show. Each week's winning team receives a $1,500 scholarship for its school from the sponsor—and goes on to compete against another college the next week. The losing team gets a $500 scholarship for its school.

Ludden told me the other day that he prefers a variety of questions—involving not only specific recall but relating information to reasoning powers. The questions are made up by a New York researcher, Nancy Fobes.

GREAT ZEAL

Enthusiasm for the program among colleges and universities is tremendous, Ludden says. As far as he knows the only college which has declined to participate is Harvard. He does not know why it refused.

The program tries to maintain a balance among colleges, geographically, and in the varieties of private and state and religious schools.

The competitive spirit among students over the program runs football a close second, Ludden says. As an example, when a Washington and Lee team defeated a Princeton team, the Washington and Lee student paper announced the victory in 180-point front page headlines: W and L Beats Princeton."

DISAPPOINTING SHOW

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Tommy Lee, the world's leading Derby hope of 1959, launched his three-year-old career on a disappointing note Wednesday as he ran second to Ole Folx in the $22,800 San Vicente Handicap at Santa Anita Park. Ole Folx, coupled with Pinnegan in the betting, returned $6.20, $2.10 and $2.10. Finnegan was third.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Seems there's Hull to pay down in Sammy Pollock's ballwick across the-river from Bytown.

Master Samuel is mighty put out over the recent los sades of his Hull-Ottawa Canadiens, third-placers in the Eastern Ontario senior "A" loop.

It seems the youthful redskins who can sizzle the ice going both ways if they want to step on the gas, have been more or less loafing, so to speak.

They hadn't been doing too well lately anyway but when Kingston Merchants stepped into Hull and scored seven unanswered goals before the Hullians clicked for one of three, it was the signal for Samivel to flip his fedora.

Which he did right neatly and only as a Sammy Pollock can. There's no mincing words with Sammy. They come out in chunks and generally hit the nail on the head.

In fact Samivel did more than talk. He reached out and hit his hockey proteges where it hurts the most. Plumb in the wallet. The Ottawa story did not mention the amount, stating only the players, every man jack of them, were heavily fined."

In his blast at the players Pollock said they showed an "indifferent attitude" in the game against Kingston. And he added, after plastering the fines, that more fines would be forthcoming if the play did not improve — and likely some heads will roll.

Sammy did not pull his punches and named the players he said were playing indifferently. He was partially displeased with the work of Guy Beck at centre, wingers Dick Dumouchel and Bob Ellett and defenceman Jean Gauthier.

All had up to last night to show improvement or they would be released, Pollock is reported to have said. The Hull-Ottawans entertained Cornwall last night, but at this writing the result was not known.

The Hull defence has been a sore spot all season, according to Pollock, and it was responsible for a large share of the losses to Kingston 7-3 defeat. Apparently the defence, particularly Gauthier, were given as one of the main reasons for last Thursday's defeat at the hands of Cornwall.

John Annable, Ellett and Black formed the Habs most potent line earlier in the season but their goal production has fallen off in the past few weeks. Black was on the carpet for indifferent playing during a recent road trip and he, with Ellett, must improve, says Sammy, or out they go.

Dumouchel, he claimed, has had difficulty being untracked this season and while he has shown some sign of improvement over the past week, Pollock grouped him with the other duds and he must step up the pace if he wants to remain with the club.

With the Belleville McFarlands leaving for overseas shortly, the Habs, who have had sole possession of third place nearly all season, can move up into the second spot, if they improve their play. To do that, some of the Sammy must have help, and he is on the prowl for a defenceman and two forwards, more if some of the current crop do not improve.

Claude Richard is slowly recovering from a knee operation but it will be at least two weeks before the young forward takes to the icelanes.

If Pollock cannot get help from other sources he will fall back on his junior "A" club for reinforcements. Bob Rousseau still has three games left as a senior while Jean Claude Tardiff, Andre Tardiff and Andre Drolet still may be used.

The Macs have always found the Hull-Ottawans tough nuts to crack on their home ice and it is likely next Sunday will see quite a battle in the Quebec city when the Allan Cup champions pay their final visit.

THAT WHITBY GAME

The Macs Booster Club has acquired 75 tickets for the battle of champions in Whitby Saturday night when the Allan Cuppers take on the world champs in the final struggle of the year. It has also arranged for a bus which will leave Memorial Arena at six o'clock. Round trip fare plus ticket is $5.25. Or separately bus fare will be two bucks and the ticket $1.25. You can contact Joan Gander at Reitmans for your needs.

Queen Elizabeth May Attend Running of Queen's Plate

TORONTO (CP)—The Queen will probably attend June 20 the 100th running of the Queen's Plate for three-year - olds, the country's richest thoroughbred race event of the year.

If she does, it will be only the second time that a reigning monarch has been in the stands for the gallop over a mile and a quarter. King George VI watched Archworth win in 1939 during the royal visit to Canada that year.

E. P. Taylor, president of the Ontario Jockey Club, announced Wednesday night the plate race, last run by Conn Smythe's Caledon Beau, would be run this year at New Woodbine June 20, the day the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh will be at Toronto. Elizabeth is coming to Canada primarily for ceremonies formally opening the St. Lawrence seaway.

GOOD POSSIBILITY

At Ottawa, a royal tour official said, "it is quite probable the Queen will" attend this running of North America's oldest annual horse race "although plans are not complete and it is not definitely decided yet."

But he confirmed that an invitation has been sent to the Queen. It would be up to the Toronto committee handling her visit here to include the track visit in the itinerary which has to be approved by Ottawa and Buckingham Palace.

Col. Frank F. McEachren of Toronto, - secretary to the royal visit to Ontario, said the New Woodbine excursion "is on our program."

The Queen, if she attends, probably will be asked to present the traditional $6 plaques to the winning owner. The money comes annually from the Queen's privy purse, a custom dating back to Queen Victoria.

Leafs Were Sensational, But Were Second Rate Wings

Fine Effort Whips Habs 3-1 But Detroit Shades Hawks To Snatch Back Fifth Spot

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

It may take an act of Parliament to get Toronto Maple Leafs out of last place in the National Hockey League.

Leafs came up with a magnificent team effort and an outstanding individual display by goaltender Ed Chadwick Wednesday night to defeat league - leading Montreal Canadiens 3-1, and end a few hours they were in fifth place.

But then down in Chicago, Detroit Red Wings, who hadn't won in 10 games and were playing with a substitute netminder, beat the Red-hot Black Hawks 3-2 and took back fifth place by a single point.

Chadwick, who has been alternating with Johnny Bower in goal this season, came up with one of his best NHL efforts before 14,107 Toronto fans.

STOPS 31

He stopped 33 shots, many of them from the sticks of the NHL's most feared marksmen and was only beaten when Leafs were two men short in the third period. Defenceman Bert Olmstead banged one in on the Montreal powerplay.

Leafs got away winging as centre Billy Harris scored his 17th goal of the season at 2:17 of the first period on passes from left winger Dick Duff and Bob Baun.

In the second they upped the 2-0 as former defenceman Bert Olmstead banged one in at 8:45.

Johnson powered a shot at the third to cut it to 2-1 but at 13:43 Canadiens' Jean-Guy Talbot was given a slashing penalty and 17 seconds later Duff flicked his own rebound past keepers Plante.

LOSE GOYETTE

To add to their chagrin Canadiens, who already have rookie star Ralph Backstrom and Maurice Richard off with injuries, lost centre Phil Goyette for two weeks when he collided with Toronto defenceman Allan Stanley in the first and suffered torn rib cartileges.

At Chicago, Wings scored twice on power plays, at 7:50 of the third to cut it to 2-1 but at 13:43 Canadiens' Jean-Guy Talbot was given a slashing penalty and 17 seconds later Duff flicked his own rebound past keepers Plante.

The biggest factor in the win may have been goalie Bobby Perepeono, in any great weekend, brought up from Hershey Bears of the American League to play his first NHL game as a replacement for injured Terry Sawchuk. What a game Chicago only 23 shots at the newcomer, but some of them were difficult ones from close-in.

Western Hockey

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gord Fashoway, 32-year - old veteran of minor-league ranks, scored twice and ran his professional goal-scoring record to 401 Wednesday night as he led New Westminster Royals to an 8-2 victory over Edmonton Flyers in a Western Hockey League game.

Fashoway, who once played for Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, has been in pro hockey 17 years.

Calgary Stampeders took over first place in the prairie division with a 4-2 win over Winnipeg Warriors. Victoria Cougars picked up a 5-1 win over Saskatoon Quakers.

Western Hockey Loop Brass Eyes Major League Status

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SEATTLE, Wash. — Western Hockey League may go further south soon in a step that could lead eventually to major league status.

This is the opinion of several informed hockey sources, including WHL president Al Leader, expressed in after-game talks.

"People won't support minor sports to any great extent nowadays," Leader said. "I think it's got to come to the place where we'll have to establish ourselves as a major league."

He said six to eight league directors from the nine clubs in Canada and the northwestern United States will decide the circuit's future.

MAY EXPAND QUICKLY

The general feeling is that expansion is possible for next season. Major league status would be three to five years away.

"Los Angeles will have a new arena open by the end of June," Leader said. "It will seat 16,000 for hockey.

"Portland is letting the contract soon for a new building seating 12,000 for hockey and it is to be ready by Nov. 1, 1960.

"San Francisco can seat 18,000 to 20,000 for hockey in the Cow Palace and all they need there is an ice plant. Our crying need is for a new building in Vancouver." Vancouver Forum seats 5,000.

Edmonton expects to build a new arena within the next four or five years and Calgary and Winnipeg now have new plants considered adequate.

Size alone is not enough to support a major league franchise.

MUCH OPTIMISM

Keith Allen, manager-coach of Seattle Totems, does not think Seattle will be ready to support major league hockey within the next three or four years."

Bud Poile, Edmonton Flyer manager, and Frank Boucher, manager of Saskatoon Quakers, also said the idea has possibilities. But Boucher said Saskatoon could not hope to be a major league entry. Poile said: "We've only got a population of 80,000," Boucher said.

Poile said: "I don't say we'll be in the National League, but with the right facilities, enough people and the right support for hockey, we might be able to become a western division of the NHL and eventually work up to where we could challenge successfully for the Stanley Cup."

Ted Williams Talks Contract With Red Sox

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP)—"I wouldn't be signing it I didn't think I could play enough. That bench drives me bananas."

That means words, 40-year-old Ted Williams today prepared to continue contract talks with Boston Red Sox. His salary was about $100,000 last year.

The great lefthanded slugger, honored at a baseball dinner here, will visit Bucky Harris, newly - appointed Sox general manager, Friday.

"I am better right now than I was last year at this time," Williams said. "A year ago my ankle really hurt me. I thought for a while I might have to call it quits."

Williams rounded into form to beat out teammate Pete Runnels for the American League batting championship on the final day of the season. It was Ted's sixth hitting crown.

"Remember I'm 40. I'm not shooting at any records. After all, how many 40-year-old ball players do you recall who did too much?"

Algerian Wins Over Perkins

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lahouari Godih of Algeria streamed left jabs on Eddie Perkins' jaw Wednesday night and gained a split decision over the young Chicagoan in a 10-round lightweight bout.

Perkins fought fitfully and on occasion drew jeers from the capacity crowd of 4,200 in Uline Arena.

Judge Harry Volkman gave Godih a 96-94 edge while judge Joe Bunsa rated the Algerian by way of Paris 97-93. Referee Charley Reynolds had Perkins ahead 95-93.

The defeat dropped a five-fight winning streak for Perkins and set back his bid for national ranking.

McFarlands Turn To Piggy-Back Lead

Take Over Top From Dunlops With 6-4 Win Over Kingston; Smrke Leads Pack With Pair

BY GARRY ALEXANDER

KINGSTON — The McFarlands regained possession of top spot in the OHA Eastern Senior "A" league here last night as they marched their 11th game without a setback in downing the Kingston Merchants 6-4.

The Macs paid for the victory in blood with no less than four players contributing in the rough and rugged affair. Sparking the victory were Lou Smrke, who snapped a scoring slump with his third and 33rd goals of the campaign, and Gordie Bell, who kicked out 33 shots, 17 of them in the first period.

Kingston opened the scoring but Belleville took a 3-1 lead by the end of the period and never looked back. They led 3-2 entering the third, least when the Merchants outscored them 2-1 for the final 6-4 score.

Keith MacDonald, coach Ike Hildebrand, Moe Benoit and Floyd Crawford came out of the game wearing battle scars. MacDonald crashed into the Kingston goalpost late in the first period and took ten stitches to close a gash over his eye. Hildebrand missed most of the first period when he was cut around the eye during a scramble in the Belleville goal crease. The eye was black and badly swollen after the game. Benoit came out with streaks the bridge of the nose and he had to be led off the ice after a head on crash with Frank Chiarelli. Earlier Moe had been hoisted clear over the side boards and deposited in the runway when heavily checked by Red Olsen. Crawford also was cut across the nose during the night's play. All of the players returned to the game after quick repairs.

Kingston got away to a flying start with Frank Chiarelli leading the rush on the line, with Bellringer and Linesman on the wings, tested Bell in the crease in the first minute. Nobby Clark gave the Merchants a brief lead at 3.40 when he cut up the left boards and broke across in front to blink the light, just 17 seconds after the faceoff. Moe joined the 20-goal club by deflecting Lamirande's blue line drive past Lynn Davis.

Hildebrand's injury came at the six minute mark and at 9.25 Crawford and Gagnon went off together for an elbowing duel. Crawford got a concert lesson in the mixup and play was halted for a search by players and officials.

Bart Bradley put the Macs ahead at 16.48, tipping in Brown's shot, on a play with McLellan. Meanwhile the homesters were testing Bell time and again and try to find the veteran at his best.

Dave Jones closed the period scoring at 15.34 when he took Al Dewsbury's pass and skated around Gagnon with ease to tuck the rubber in an upper corner of the net. Belleville's grande was setting out his first penalty of the season when Lou Smrke got his first goal at 5.43 of the second. Paul Payette, killing the penalty with Smrke, fed his mate for the set-up. Moe Benoit and Lou waltzed around Toppazzini and beat Davis. Crawford received an assist on the goal but none was credited to Payette.

Smrke, Crawford and Payette hooked up to help to make it 5-2. Lou doing the honors at 14.02. Kingston cut the margin at 18.31 when Ike Olsen used Chiarelli to close on a nice pass play, the latter making no mistake.

Benoit and Smrke drew minor penalties at 18.53 and 19.41 but the Merchants failed to score the rest of the period or before both men were back in the third.

Hildebrand posted the final Belleville goal, his 24th of the season, on the Macs a comfortable 6-3 lead at 4.27. Dewsbury and Benoit drew assists on the play while Partridge was serving a tripping penalty.

Kingston kept battling however'and, with Lamirande again in the penalty box at 7.59, Roy Partridge came out from behind the Belleville net and slipped the puck into the far corner. Smrke had a great chance to register his third goal of the game when he and Lamirande broke away from a Kingston ganging attack. Smrke skated in 40 feet in front of the pack but fired into Davis' pads.

Nobby Clark renewed Kingston hopes at 11.09 when he sunk a backhand shot from in close on a three-play with Colvin and Toppazzini. Gordie Bell closed the door at this point and the Merchants failed to register another.

Joining Smrke in the two-point column were "Wiener" Brown and Ike Hildebrand, with a goal and assist each. Al Dewsbury and Floyd Crawford with two assists apiece. Bradley and Jones scored while Lamirande, McLellan Payette and Benoit had single assists.

Nobby Clark with two goals and Frank Chiarelli with one goal and one assist were the pick of the Merchants. Roy Partridge had one and one with Olsen, Bellringer, Raglan, Colvin and Toppazzini drew assists.

Belleville drew eight of the games penalties, twice the number served by the Kingston club. All were minors.

Prior to the game the Belleville City Council's ten-day broomball series with the Kingston council by tying 3-1. Mayor Hyde's team won the first game here last week over Kingston's Mayor Hilly Mills and his aldermen 1-0, thus taking the series 2-1. Scorers last night were Morley Loveless, school board member for Belleville, and Max Jackson, ex-alderman, for Kingston.

Kingston fans wished the Macs success in the world tournament with a big banner over the Belleville entrance. A collection was taken also and presented to Mayor Hyde and coach Hildebrand at Kingston coach Bus Gagnon.

Toronto Board Defers Action On Macs' Grant

TORONTO (CP) — Board of control has approved a motion asking the mayors and reeves association to petition the federal government to set up a federal fund to assist groups to participate in the Canada 70 world events and the Olympics.

The motion Wednesday followed the board's deferring action on a request by Belleville McFarlands, Canada's representative in the world hockey championships at Prague, Czechoslovakia, in March, for a grant to help it meet the $50,000 needed to participate in the tournament.

Controller Jean Newman said the federal government should see that teams selected for international competition are able to go.

Controller Donald Summerville, suggested Toronto Maple Leafs or Montreal Canadiens or the National Hockey League should represent Canada in world tournaments.

Board of control also approved a motion that the Ontario Athletic Commission, which supervises many sports, be brought into and collects part of the gate receipts for boxing and wrestling shows, be asked where the distribution is making to the team.

Big Money Brings Willie New Friends

NEW YORK (AP)—Now that Willie Mays is the richest man on 20th Street he can't live in peace. People keep calling him up at 3 a.m. (when he is just getting 11 a.m.), asking to talk and take pictures.

"There's all that dough!" a visitor asked of the man who signed the $150,000 baseball contract for a reported $80,000 salary. "I thought you'd have the floor covered with bills."

Willie smiled. "Uncle Sam gets most of that stuff. He "it's all right as long as you can keep a little."

Mays owns a four-storey apartment house on Broadway, a block off the subway.

Queen's Plate Run June 30

TORONTO (CP)—The 100th annual running of the Queen's Plate will be held at Woodbine Racetrack June 30, E. P. Taylor, president of Canadian Thoroughbreds Plus has announced.

He made the announcement Wednesday night in a long distance call to OJC officials from Kingston where he is vacationing. The date coincides with the Toronto visit of Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh who will tour Canada in June and July.

George C. Hendrie, managing director of the OJC, said he could not expand on Taylor's statement which made no reference to whether the Queen will attend the race.

Juveniles Edge Trenton 4-3 In Exhibition

Belleville Juveniles took a hard-fought 4-3 victory over Trenton Juveniles here last night in an exhibition tilt.

The local club, working hard in preparation for the OMHA playdowns, scored two goals in the third period to overcome Trenton's 3-2 lead.

The teams traded first period goals, W. Waite scoring from D. Moxam for Belleville, with T. Simmons replying for Trenton. In the middle heat Trenton took the lead with R. Kinney potting one from G. Long and R. Hastings the latter from Simmons. Wayne Waite potted his second goal for Belleville with Doug Moxam again drawing the assist.

Finally in the third period, Belleville scored the only goals to register the victory. Paul Keller gunned home the tying goal on a play with D. Moore and D. Clapp, Jr. Pulmer scored the deciding goal on a solo effort.

Trenton picked up eight penalties including a misconduct to R. Hass. Belleville drew six sentences with Doug Keller collecting a ten-minute misconduct.

Peewee Game To Prelude Minor Week

MONTREAL (CP)—Managing director Frank Selke of Montreal Canadiens says plans are under way for the all-star hockey game—a prelude to Saturday's National Hockey League game—as a benefit for the active support of Minor Hockey Week.

City parks director Phil Wimmer has agreed to provide the teams. One probably will represent the east end of the city and the other the west end.

The youngsters will do their stuff at 7:30 p.m., playing a 15-minute, one-period game. The NHL game between New York Rangers and Canadiens goes on at 8:15 p.m.

Stars Last Night

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ed Chadwick, Toronto Maple Leafs rookie goalie, who made 31 saves as Leafs turned back league - leading Montreal Canadiens 3-1 in Toronto.

Charlie Burns, rookie forward, who scored the third-period goal that gave Detroit Red Wings a 2-2 win over Chicago Black Hawks—their first win in 13 games.

Hockey Suit To Re-Open

WINNIPEG (CP)—A $125,000 damage action against Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League by Winnipeg Warriors of the Western League will be reopened here Jan. 30.

Mr. Justice A. M. Monnin of the Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench ruled Wednesday that evidence to be presented must be limited to that dealing with four players.

The Warriors sought damages on the grounds that the two NHL clubs did not keep an agreement to provide Winnipeg with players of WHL calibre during the 1956-57 season.

Mr. Justice Monnin ruled against Winnipeg last fall but said at a hearing Wednesday that misleading information given at that time had been brought to his attention and this led him to withdraw his written reasons for judgment delivered last Nov. 6.

He said that in NHL and WHL press releases and in evidence by John Perrin, vice-president and general manager of the Warriors, four players were listed as playing more than 60 games. This indicated that the players had been with the club from the start of the 70-game schedule.

However, only Earl Ingarfield played the full season for Winnipeg, Murray Wilkie played 51 games, Gordon Redahl 44 and George Ford 34.

Mr. Justice Monnin said the new facts were brought to his attention Nov. 12 or 13 by A. E. Johnston, lawyer for the Warriors.

Durelle May Quit Boxing In the Fall

OTTAWA (CP) — Journal sports editor Bill Westwick quotes Yvon Durelle, British Empire light-heavyweight champion, as saying he plans to quit boxing next fall.

"I'm sick of fighting," the Bale Ste. Anne, fisherman said. "I'm tired and fed up."

Durelle said that he will fight world light - heavyweight champion Archie Moore again this fall. "If I don't win I'm through. If I win I will fight once more. Either way I'm through next fall.

Durelle, who lost to Moore after having him on the canvas three times in the first round of their title fight in Montreal Dec. 9, was in Ottawa to referee a wrestling match.

Pro Grid Players Discuss Pension Plan With Owners

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — National football league owners and representatives of the players association meet today on the warmest issue between the two groups—pensions.

The players, led by Bill Howton of Green Bay Packers, have said that if the association accomplishes nothing else it will fight for a pension for professional football players.

Commission Bert Bell of the NFLF says a pension plan isn't feasible. He says the slightly over four-year career of an average pro football player is too short to warrant a pension.

Bell has said the clubs can't pay for it, noting that in 1958, the best year for attendance in NFL history, one team lost money and two others were on the borderline.

The meeting was set for 11 a.m. Bell said all 12 owners signified their intention to be present and he could be a showdown on the subject.

DRAFT COMPLETED

The NFL wrapped up its annual 30-round draft Wednesday, and coaches and general managers found the pickings slim.

After the 21st round, Bell asked for a motion to end the draft at 25 rounds. He got the motion and it was seconded, but coach Paul Brown of Cleveland Browns vetoed no. It takes a unanimous vote to pass such a motion.

Most of the top U.S. talent was drafted by the pros at their Dec. 1 meeting. What was left of the better-than - average performers went in the early rounds Wednesday.

Ten Notre Dame players were drafted.

Boo Weixelo, 238-pound end, was made the first choice of the day by Washington Redskins, using a choice acquired in a trade.

The Redskins also quickly lost coach Joe Kuharich to the Irish, picked three other Notre Dame players — tackle Don Lawrence, fullback Dan Toth and halfback Norm Odynes.

REDSKINS GRAB KAPP

Some late - round choices included California quarterback Joe Kapp, taken by Washington; Jack Snow, Notre Dame end, by Commons, named by Chicago Cardinals; Hafer Johnson of UCLA, Olympic decathlon record holder and Olympic champion, chosen by Los Angeles Rams, and Duke track ace Dave Sime, selected by Detroit Lions.

Standouts taken in the day's first round included Maurice Schlehser, Penn State end, by the Cardinals; tackle Nick Mumley, by Philadelphia Eagles; John Wooten, Mississippi end, by Cleveland; Andy Cvercko, Northwestern guard, by Green Bay; Frank Gerimia, Notre Dame guard, by San Francisco 49ers; and Ted Hendricks, Miami State tackle, by the Cardinals.

Moore, Cooper May Fight In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says there is a 50-50 chance Toronto will be the site of a boxing match between Archie Moore and British heavyweight champion Henry Cooper.

It quotes promoter Nick Trollo as saying in a telephone interview from Philadelphia that he and Moore will fly to London shortly to complete plans for the Cooper match. Neither boxer's title would be at stake.

Trollo would prefer not to have the bout held in London.

"Toronto is a terrific fight town," he said.

Moore fought here July 25, 1956, stopping Canadian heavyweight champion James J. Parker in the ninth round of a bout that drew a record Canadian boxing crowd of 19,832 with a $168,500 gate.

Mickey Wants More Money

DALLAS Tex. (AP) — Mickey Mantle, New York Yankee slugger, says he thinks he's due a contract unsigned because "I feel like I'm headed for as good a year as I've had, and I've had some good ones."

Mantle denied that he was offered a one cut, but said he wanted more than he was offered. He made $100,000 last year and is reported asking for $10,000 more.

Mantle finished with a .304 batting average and hit 54 homers in 80 points from 1957, but led the American League with 42 home runs.

STOPS ARGUMENT

OLDS, Alta. (CP) — Howard Fulcher, provincial agricultural representative here, says good father-son relationships in farming are more likely to develop when there is a written agreement. This condition for such an agreement, he said, is that there should be sufficient income from the farm to support both.

Had Indigestion, Heartburn, Gas - - - After Every Meal

Suffered Long Time. Nerves All On Edge, Felt Rundown. Tells of Relief by Taking Synfona.

Thousands have used Synfona Herbal Compound and found it to be just what they needed to get relief from Faulty Digestion, Minor Kidney Irregularities, Constipation, Nervousness, or Rheumatic Aches and Pains. Recently Mrs. Tripe Meier, 21 Paddington Avenue, London, Ontario, told of her experience with Synfona, as follows:

Delighted With Results

"I suffered with indigestion, gas, heartburn and sour acid risings for a number of years and I suffered so bad at with the day Synfona was brought to me. Frequently my nerves were on edge and I felt irritable, fatigued and discouraged. I am like a new person since I started taking my meals without all that trouble and I recommend Synfona wherever I can.

"I have taken a lot of medicines in the past few years, but nothing ever helped me like Synfona."

Why not let this great Herbal Compound help you as it has so many others? It is pleasant to take and the results are quickly felt.

fulfillment of Canada's sovereignty. But the matter seemed to be ironed out when it was agreed in effect there would be no U.S. interference with sales to Iron Curtain countries by Canadian subsidiaries of American companies.

DIRECT PRESSURE

But though there was no direct pressure from the U.S. government to turn down the power sale — in fact a Washington spokesman said Aluminum Limited was told when it inquired that U.S. approval was likely — there was indirect pressure.

This was in the fear Alcan had of aggravating its American customers and the American shareholders in its parent company.

Former Liberal Trade Minister C. D. Howe, a director of Aluminum, said in Montreal Wednesday night, "I know nothing about it." Another director is Field Marshal Earl Alexander of Tunis, former Canadian governor-general.

Donald Campbell, public relations chief for Aluminum, said some directors were consulted in the decision.

He said it was "a Canadian decision in the interests of a Canadian company."

HAD EXPORT PERMIT

Trade Minister Churchill confirmed that Vancouver exporter William S. Comer held a government permit for a long time for tons of aluminum to the Chinese.

In Vancouver Wednesday, he tried for six months to negotiate with Alcan, but that the company refused to give him a quotation.

Meanwhile, surpluses have shown up on world markets and Alcan has curtailed production to 85 per cent of capacity. It is in the process of laying off 650 workers at smelters in Arvida and Isle Maligne, Que.

Urge Labor Help Provide Jobs, Do Not Say How

MONTREAL (CP) — Labor is asked to make "contributions" to wider employment in a resolution passed by the Canadian Construction Association.

The nature of these "contributions" wasn't spelled out, despite a long discussion on the closing session Wednesday of the association's annual meeting.

Some delegates suggested that wage rate might be modified and others said that is unrealistic. But most seemed to think some concessions might be made in regard to working rules.

In a statement of policy on labor the association said "it recognizes in principle labor agreements which make membership in a trade union a condition of employment or of continuing employment." The statement also said:

"The maintenance and improvement of the high standard of living in Canada depend on productive efficiency. Increased productivity on job sites and in plants will continue to require the maximum possible co-operation between management, labor and government."

AIRLINE GIANTS'

might mean to either of the big companies involved.

Neither President Grant McConachie of CPA nor President Gordon McGregor of TCA was available for comment.

CPA originally applied to the air transport board in November, 1957, for a licence to operate one flight a day on these five routes: Vancouver - Calgary-Saskatoon - Ottawa - Montreal; Vancouver-Edmonton - Montreal; Vancouver - Winnipeg - Toronto-Montreal; Edmonton - Regina - Toronto; Winnipeg - Ottawa-Montreal.

Late last year, after TCA had started Calgary - Saskatoon and Edmonton-Toronto services which CPA had proposed to operate, Canadian Pacific suggested to the board that the government line be ordered to discontinue these runs.

ALTERNATIVE BID

As an alternative to this proposal, CPA asked that it be allowed a changed route pattern for the purpose of "intercontinental" service, to operate these runs: Vancouver - Winnipeg - Toronto-Montreal; Vancouver - Edmonton - Ottawa - Montreal; Vancouver - Calgary - Winnipeg - Ottawa - Montreal.

The transport minister and the air board also agreed on two other findings resulting from complex legal hashing last year:

1. Where "limited controlled" competition would result in improving the position of principal air carriers, this should be sanctioned.

2. An "intensive" investigation of the position of regional air carriers in this connection should be conducted.

LABOR REQUEST

much more concerned about the slowness of recovery . . . and the persistence of unemployment than about the current rate of inflation.

"We are not impressed by (government) exhortations to 'hold the line.' In our opinion, there is no line to be held.

"We believe that increased wage-earner purchasing power is essential to lift us out of the recession. . . . It is better to court some risk of inflation than to let the economy stagnate for lack of action."

Many of the other LC recommendations to the cabinet were largely a reiteration of resolutions passed at the last Congress convention in 1958.

On taxation, the congress repeated previous requests that there should be reductions in personal income taxation. Also, all medical, dental, optical and hospital expenses should be fully deductible from income for the computation of taxes.

Dealing with the preservation of Canadian industry, the congress said that the government should take action on "necessary measures to protect national interests, so that it will not be caught without the trained manpower, the capital resources and the machinery and other equipment that might be required on short notice" in the event of an international crisis.

It referred specifically to the aircraft industry, machine goods, shipbuilding and electronics.

Rev. W.H.V. Walker Leaves Church After 20 Years of Faithful Service

IVANHOE — On December 28 the Rev. W. H. V. Walker preached his farewell sermon terminating 20 years of faithful ministry to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, West Huntingdon. On the following Sunday the Rev. D. C. McLelland, interim moderator, of Trenton, declared the pulpit vacant.

On Saturday evening, members of the congregation gathered in the church to honor Mr. and Mrs. Walker prior to their departure to their new home in Bellville.

Mr. Barton Haggerty acted as chairman for the following program: "Blest Be The Tie That Binds," followed by prayer, led by Mr. Walker; chairman's remarks; installation of St. Andrew's Club officers conducted by Mr. Walker, reading, "The Salt of the Earth" — Miss Margaret Wright; piano solo — Mrs. Lindsay Sills; Jr. choir — "If You Follow Me"; reading, "An Ode to Man" — Mrs. Russell Sills; solo — "May The Good Lord Bless and Keep You" — Miss Beverly McInroy.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker were seated to left seats of honor and an address was read by Bessie M. Fleming.

The presentation of a purse of money was made by Mrs. Harold Thompson.

Following thanks and appreciation expressed by Mr. and Mrs. Walker, Mr. S. J. Donnan spoke on behalf of the session and Mr. Harry Thompson on behalf of the Board.

The chairman also paid tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Walker saying in part "it has been good to have a minister and his wife of whom we were always proud." The program closed by all joining in the hymn "The Lord Shall Watch Twixt Me and Thee," by Mrs. William Donnan, followed by the Mizpah benediction.

Mr. Walker in his Christian continues, has often been referred to as a "walking sermon," and Mrs. Walker possesses a charming personality, as a perfect helpmate. That they remained 20 years with Stirling and West Huntingdon congregations is outstanding and lasting friendships have been formed.

We wish for their health and happiness and pray that God's richest blessing may rest upon them in the years that lie ahead.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Acker of Belleville, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Spencer. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Reid of Springbrook, called at the same home in the afternoon.

A number of neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Nicol and Betty and Mr. and Mrs. Hilton Storey, who are residing in Belleville, gathered in the Orange Hall to present them with gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Storey were presented with a tri-light, Mr. and Mrs. Nicol a telephone table and chair, and Betty with a pair of bedroom lamps. Steel Demand Picking up More Momentum

NEW YORK (AP)—Steel demand is picking up still more momentum, according to Iron Age, the national metalworking magazine.

Backlogs of orders are mounting as many mills are unable to turn out steel fast enough to keep pace with requests, the magazine reports. The mills thus fear they may have bundles of undelivered orders on hand when—and—and a possible steel strike deadline—rolls around.

Auto makers, Iron Age says, have stepped up their demand somewhat more than any other industry. Two of the big three car companies, it is understood, are hoping to stash away enough steel and parts by June to weather a lengthy steel strike.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Friday, January 23, 1959

You can achieve an abundance today by co-operating nicely with all those you consider associates and setting up financial plans that will work suggestfully. Also, be sure to iron out any problems that exist between you and others.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Serious discussion with associates now will enable you to put regular affairs and tasks in far smoother working order. Ask for their advice, ideas and this will please them. Financial returns will soar soon, also.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Have you decided to see if you are spending more than you can comfortably afford? Go over your bookkeeping records carefully, and make all adjustments you can for increasing assets and decreasing liabilities. Others will soon respect you more.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Don't be afraid to go to most influential persons today with love and friendliness in your heart and discuss honestly what your ambitions are and you will get that promotion you so want, reach your goals much more easily. P.M. have fun socially.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Have a confidential chitchat with higher up if you want to smooth out your difficulties satisfactorily. But take care you do not divulge the information and ideas proffered to everyone, or you will incur his or her ire and dissatisfaction with you.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Don't try to go it alone. Team up with trusted friends or kind relatives so that you can reach some cherished goal more easily, for they are worthy of your sharing with them, too. Show your confidence by admiring their worthwhile ideas.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Any good contacts you can make with higher ups are fine right now, whether in business, artistic or personal life. Follow your intuitions as much as possible. Get credit higher, also.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — There are many excellent opportunities awaiting your acceptance today if you get right on the beam. And you will find a more efficient way of operating than in the past. Go to charming spot with associate for a business meeting.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Deviate from the usual direct approach today and be cognizant of purposes of others for better results in your career. Unfortunately, there is nothing that looks exactly like what it is, so today's angling is tomorrow's gain.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — This is one of those days when greater understanding can be reached with rather gloomy but brilliant associate by discussing matters at some amusement that is mutually enjoyable. Good day for any civic work, too, and being with pals for fun.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Fine day to rid yourself of all important chores quickly. Help others with their depressing fundamental affairs, too. This brings big returns in the future and staunch loyalty. See that your health problems are taken care of.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — One of the nicest days so far to enjoy yourself. Do your morning exercises, then contact jolly pals and have fun throughout day and evening, restoring energies and increasing brotherly or sisterly love among fellow humans.

If your child is born today—The lovely child born today will simply love to be of service to others, and while there is a penchant for using highfalutin language at times, most of the time the mind is concerned with practical and fine gestures along philosophical and intelligent lines. Excellent chart for big business and outstanding where a need for the artistic and ideological niceties is fast becoming an absolute requisite.

SQUIRREL AT HOME

HAMILTON (CP) — A squirrel may become a non - paying boarder at the home of Mrs. Scott McFarlane in nearby Fruitland. The squirrel popped in through an open door, began feasting on paper-wrapped sweets and then settled on top of the drapes for a nap.

Company Refuses Aluminum Sale To Red China

MONTREAL (CP) — The Aluminum Company of Canada said Tuesday it refused to sell $1,000,000 worth of aluminum to Kilmat, B.C., to Communist China because it was "not prepared to hazard relations with its legal" customers just to make an immediate sale."

In a statement, the company said it was "most anxious to sell to any legitimate market on a continuing basis."

The statement was issued after a Vancouver exporter said the aluminum company had refused to sell 2,000 long tons of the metal to the Communist country.

"We would be derelict in our duty if we followed a short-sighted policy for immediate gain if it work to the eventual disadvantage of our business and to the advantage of Canada as a whole."

The statement stressed that Alcan has no parent company in the United States.

CROWDING SEASONS

Urge RCAF Transport Work Be Given Commercial Contracts

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCAF now battling for its transport planes, is faced with the prospect of a big reduction in its transport aircraft.

Two days after Prime Minister Diefenbaker had again indicated his government is unlikely to purchase the Arrow jet interceptor for the RCAF, the all-transport board Wednesday "very strongly" urged the government to divert to Canadian commercial air carriers "a much greater portion" of transport work now being done by the air force.

Transport Minister Hees told Commons this particular recommendation will require further careful examination and he will consult Defence Minister Pearkes about it.

On the surface at least, the RCAF Thursday appeared unperturbed about the board's recommendation. Senior officers said they haven't yet had an opportunity to study its implications.

However, one officer said that in wartime the RCAF would be expected to carry out a full transport role. It could not quickly do this unless it had been trained thoroughly and continuously in this field.

The air transport board said it has been alleged that in many cases commercial carriers could perform RCAF transport duties "at less cost than it would to establish the amount of work which could be diverted to commercial carriers but said "it is satisfied that it would be later considered to permit a judgment

ICY WATER POURS INTO COAL MINE, TRAPPING 12 MEN

Try to Block Flow So Search Can Begin

PITTSTON, Pa. (AP)—Crews tried today to stem the rain-swollen Susquehanna River from pouring its freezing waters into a nearby anthracite mine where 12 miners were either trapped or drowned.

Thirty-three other miners escaped when the rushing river suddenly ate a hole into the Knox Coal Company tunnel at nearby Port Griffith just before noon Thursday.

"We never heard the water come in at all," one miner said. "It was just there."

Seven men, some aided by a map of the miles of ancient coal tunnels, got outboy climbing an air shaft several hundred feet upstream from the hole.

The seven others wandered through the maze of tunnels in waist-deep water for seven hours before a rescue team found and brought them to safety up the air shaft.

A little diesel engine kept pushing coal cars into the whirlpool of water and ice chunks that marks the hole made by the river.

But the cars, and the tons of bailed hay also used to plug the hole, vanished in the rushing waters.

Deserted relatives and townspeople watched quietly from the edge of a nearby cliff as the rescue workers fought to close and stop the flow of water.

Until it is safe, said mine superintendent Robert Groves, rescue crews won't be able to begin pumping out the water in the mine, he said, will have to be circulated by rescue search teams for the 12 missing men.

MAY COST JOBS

After years of working in anthracite, the area is a honeycombed with interconnecting tunnels. Some of the coal that other mines down the Wyoming Valley might have to be mined, leaving hundreds of miners out of work.

Mike Mihalko, 35, a mine surveyor, was with some of the seven men who escaped right after the water broke through.

"I had a map of the mine in my hand when the water came through," he said. "I and some others followed the map to reach the air shaft."

Debunking of Bug Tale Doesn't Ease Germ War Fears

TORONTO (CP) — Sir Robert Watson-Watt said Thursday night it doesn't make him feel any better to know that mankind probably would survive germ warfare employing a bug previously described as a tick-killer.

Britain's London News-Chronicle reported Thursday that United Kingdom scientists have developed a germ known as tabinus tosh which, the story added "can wipe out the world's population."

Sir Robert, the inventor of radar, was quoted in the same issue as being sure that the Atlantic alone can't that "instead of the power of the big boys" deterrents, we now are faced with the power of the poor man's poison" with the advent of tabinus which allegedly brought world annihilation within reach of a small power possessed of enough ambition.

However, British medical circles later differed with reports of the bug's capabilities for general havoc.

1. There is no contagion factor —you can't catch it.

2. The insect supply would be necessary to contaminate the water-supply possible vehicle of a country.

3. It wouldn't kill nearly everybody—only between 18 and 40 per cent of those infected would die. Others would be incapacitated by extremely effective against botulism.

At Least 88 Die In U.S. Storms, Cold Moves East

Gales, Cold Wave, Thaw Give Canada Mixed Woes

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The mercury kept on the hop today across Canada, tracing the mood of a mixed January weather pattern that saw a 40-degree temperature drop at Ottawa in 24 hours and batted central Novak Scotia in a summery day.

Most of the Maritimes were awash Thursday from an east-ward - spreading thaw. Violent gales ripped through Ontario and Quebec, breaking windows and twisting television aerials. In the west it was bitter cold—the highest reading all day in the southern prairies was five below zero.

A brief chinook boosted the mercury in southwestern Alberta to the freezing mark Thursday but the cold soon settled in again.

In British Columbia fog hung on the coast, snow fell in the interior, and rain soaked Vancouver.

FLOODS IN N.S.

Floods appeared in Nova Scotia. A 20-foot section of Nova Scotia south shore highway was washed out. The road at near Bridgewater was flooded and one bridge was forced from its home by the menace. Ice piled ashore.

Greenwood, site of an RCAF air-area repair centre in the Annapolis Valley, had a balmy 48 degrees. Moncton had 55 and it was 51 in Halifax. Rain covered a wide area of the three Atlantic provinces.

At Ottawa, the mercury stood at 48 Thursday morning, ith was above at 2 a.m. today. Toronto got an inch of rain from the thaw.

Strong winds persisted over Quebec until late Thursday night and it was a mild one again.

PLENTY OF VARIETY

Hamilton in the space of a few hours got five inches of snow, wind, fog, heavy rain and floods.

At Toronto, the rain Monday cleared the streets of snow and slushes, gusting to 60 miles an hour, drivers learned.

At over the southern part of the Prairies there were reports of wind damage and flooding.

Although the coldest spot in the country was Snag, a point in the Yukon which had 60 below at 8 a.m. today, Fort Nelson in B.C. was sub-zero cold spread across Northern Ontario.

Govt. Will Soon Outline New Policy on Housing

Base Budget On Forecasts of Rising Revenues

OTTAWA (CP) — The budget Finance Minister Fleming will place before Parliament in a few months will be based on forecasts of rising federal revenue, arising from a sharp upswing in Canada's national production, informants say.

They say the indications now are that the Gross National Product—value of all goods and services produced—will climb by four or five per cent this year to a new high of some $33,700,000,000.

Most of that 1959 rise would result from higher production, though some continuing rise in prices also is anticipated. National production rose by two per cent last year, all of it caused by higher prices.

Thus, without taking in the possibility of higher taxes, federal budgetary revenues for 1959-60 may run to about $5,000,000,000 compared with $4,100,000,000 for the current year.

SPENDING GOING UP

However, budgetary spending —not including outlays for old age pensions—could run to some 8 per cent more, possibly $5,500,000,000 which likely will be the total for the present year ending March 31.

On the basis of those estimates informants say, the budgetary deficit for the current year could reach up to $600,000,000 and could still be a relatively high $600,000,000 for the next fiscal year.

A deficit of that magnitude would make it difficult for the government to help the unemployed first exhaustion of the country's money supply, Parliament Hill Mr. Fleming told a Toronto audience "it would be unwise desirable to encourage or tolerate a substantial degree of monetary expansion in the near future."

The question of how to be handled to be under active consideration, it seems apparent there is conviction the economy must still move to a new high-output employment level soon.

ABUSE OF POWER BY LABOR UNIONS RAPPED IN HOUSE

Safeguards Needed Says PC Member

OTTAWA (CP)—A government supporter says safeguards are needed against abuse power by labor unions.

Williams H. A. Thomas (PC—Middlesex West) said during the Commons throne speech debate Thursday night that people also have an incentive to economical stability would be to restore control of unions to the rank and file and to curb "the ever-increasing power of labor bosses."

His remarks were made shortly after Prime Minister Diefenbaker and several cabinet ministers heard top officials of the Canadian Labor Congress advocate greater trade, higher wages and more social security in the latest CLC submission to the cabinet.

Unemployment figured largely in the continuing throne speech debate. The government was accused by Paul Martin (L—Essex East) of inactivity in the face of the worst unemployment picture in 20 years.

But Labor Minister Starr argued that Canada is well on the way out of the recession.

SAYS BIG-LAW IS POWER

Mr. Thomas said union and non-union people are disturbed over the "encroachment of labor bosses "and their ability to paralyze our economy with strikes.

The public was protected by law from exploitation by big business "and many believe the time has come when serious consideration should be given to the imposition of safeguards against unscrupulous abuses of power by big labor."

He said the ability of big labor to "dictate" ever higher wages

Second Vote Of Truckers Now Planned

TORONTO (CP)—A committee appointed by members of teamsters' union Local 938 said Thursday night it intends to conduct a second vote on an agreement with Ontario's trucking industry, despite the plan of a majority of the members.

Members of the local charged during a heated meeting Jan. 11 that there were irregularities in the voting which ratified the agreement with the motor transport industrial relations bureau.

One member, Ross Ellis has charged local President Kenneth McDougall of Detroit with irregularities in the conduct of the vote. A meeting of the executive board of the teamster joint council for Toronto Hamilton will then be held to look into the charges Monday.

A spokesman for the union committee said today the second vote will be taken early next week. Incumbent officers have promised that complaints of members first will be submitted to international President James Hoffa.

The agreement with the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau, which bargains for 63 Ontario transport firms, was ratified by locals in Windsor and Hamilton.

The bureau maintains it has signed a memorandum of the agreement and a supplementary which it considers binding on the parties involved.

The settlement provided for a 21-cent-an-hour package increase for drivers over three years. It would affect 7,000 Ontario truck drivers represented by the union.

Free Elections Still Regarded As Main Hope

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States has made still regards free elections as the "normal and agreed formula" for achieving German reunification.

Nothing in the latest round of speculation that welled up in Bonn and other western capitals Thursday even when State Secretary Dulles told a press conference here he would not say a free election was "the only method by which we hope reunification will be achieved."

Yesterday, state department press officer Lincoln White summed up the department's position in these words:

"Our position with respect to Germany is well known. Responsibility for achieving reunification of Germany in freedom, namely through the free election process remains unchanged."

NOTHING NEW

White said Dulles had nothing "specific" in mind when he made the press conference statement in response to a reporter's question as to whether the U.S. position was now that free elections as the method of reuniting East and West Germany.

Dulles was merely making it clear, White went on, that he didn't want to be understood as to sign itself to being indefinitely committed to East Germany if the Soviets reject free elections.

The Dulles declaration, coming in the middle of the visit to the U.S. of Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan, touched off speculation that Dulles was about to open alarm in the West German capital, which has held steadily to the reunification formula, and prompted Mikoyan to ask the state department for a clarification of new formula in mind.

Meantime, the department disclosed that the broad range of Allied policy on the whole German question is being reviewed by the U.S., Britain, France and West Germany.

Britons Urge Reform School For Bad Dogs

LONDON (AP) — Britain's National Canine Defence League today suggested dogproof reform schools should be set up to reform school.

The league wants Parliament to accept a new dog's charter ending the power of British magistrates to sentence bad dogs to death.

Instead of dog killing the maximum would do time in a special training school until it proved its behavior. The aim is to reform dogs, not to kill them.

Pakistan, Iran Want Stronger Defence Pledges

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has run into difficulties with Pakistan and Iran in negotiating special defence agreements aimed at bolstering them against outside attack.

Both countries are reported insisting on stronger guarantees than Washington is willing to give.

Pakistan, Turkey, however, is expected to initial tomorrow in the draft of an agreement proposed in talks in Ankara.

Secretary of State Dulles said there now seems little chance the agreements will be signed at the Baghdad Pact meeting beginning Monday in Karachi, Pakistan.

The United States is negotiating the agreements within the Baghdad Pact framework to which Britain belongs. Under Secretary Dulles made in London last July 28. The pact, following internal revolt in Iraq, one of the original members of the pact.

Jury Believes Man Murdered

MINDEN, Ont. (CP)—A coroner's jury ruled Thursday night that Earl Mills, 38, a year-old Oshawa car dealer found dead on a highway last April 3, was murdered. The killer is still unknown.

Mills' battered body was found by two campers a short distance behind his car parked on Highway 121 between here and Kinmount, about 50 miles northwest of Peterborough.

Dr. John Whiteside, a Peterborough pathologist, said Mills died from "severe cerebral concussion" rules to the face and cuts on the nose and head. He had been located in his own blood while lying beside the highway.

Police said Mills' wallet was missing. He was believed to have had $200 when he left King-mount earlier that day.

Sent on Wild-Goose Hunt for Home, Woman Returns to Find Baby Stolen

NEW YORK (AP)—Police today had one concrete clue—a woman's handwriting — in the kidnapping of an infant, 23-day-old child Thursday. It was the city's second baby abduction this year.

A specimen of the kidnapper's handwriting was in the form of a note written at the mother's request before the latter left on a 2-hour errand to a department Bronx apartment.

The note, left by the woman kidnapper—said to be pregnant—wrote what she represented to be her name, address and telephone number.

Police and the FBI teamed up in an all-night search of the area around 158 W. 84th St., from which Mrs. Dorothy Lampkin left with a woman his mother had met just two days ago.

The grief-stricken father broadcast a radio and TV appeal.

Authorities described the woman as "obviously pregnant." They said she probably is not.

Two other Tavarez children, Joe Jaime, 5, and Dorie, 3, also left in the care of the strange woman, were found in the apartment of a neighbor. They had been found earlier walking the streets.

The mother, Mrs. Doralita Tavarez, 31, said she met the woman Wednesday at Metropolitan Hospital, where she took the baby for treatment of a cold. The woman gave her address and said

17,000 Jeer Batista Army Officer As Public Trial Lasts Eight Hours

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—The defendant in Havana's first showcase war crimes trial was convicted just before dawn today and sentenced to death.

A three-man tribunal of Fidel Castro's revolutionary officers found Pedro Pilgueno Blanco, 31-year-old career army officer, guilty on five counts of murder, homicide, robbery, looting and damage.

The verdict was returned after a trial of almost eight hours and more than four hours of deliberation by the three judges.

A crowd of 17,000 shouting, jeering Cubans who had jammed the sports stadium for the start of the trial had gone home hours before. Only about 300 reporters and armed, bearded guards from Castro's forces heard the verdict.

Sosa Blanco's counsel, Capt. Aristides Dacosta had said he would appeal a conviction to a special Supreme Court provided under the new legal code put in force after Fulgencio Batista's overthrow Jan. 1. The higher court has not yet been named.

Dacosta had challenged the legality of trials under that code, contending that all crimes charged in Sosa Blanco were allegedly committed before Jan. 1 and the death penalty did not exist then.

The Cuban constitution of 1940 was modified by decree Jan. 1 to permit executions for war crimes. Dacosta's argument also applies

Hopes Are High Chrysler Strike Will Soon End

WINDSOR (CP)—The strike of 3,600 United Auto Workers Union (CLC) members against Chrysler of Canada enters its fourth day today with hopes still high for an early settlement.

Hope that a settlement was imminent was strengthened Thursday by a report from an unofficial union source that Chrysler has made a new offer.

The union source said the new offer was made shortly after 10 a.m. Thursday when the union negotiating committee within the union delegates met among themselves.

Shortly after the talks were resumed at 3 p.m. Thursday there was another short adjournment, once again for the union bargaining committee.

Bargaining then resumed and went on through another break until after 11 p.m., when a halt was called until 10 o'clock this morning.

Both sides declined to comment on any progress.

Can't Remember Happenings 'Gus' Scarlett Tells Court in Testifying in Own Defence

COBOURG—"I can't remember what happened," Harold "Gus" Scarlett told the court Thursday when he took the witness stand during his murder trial in the court room of the Municipal Building here.

It was the third and final day of evidence being given in the trial, before a jury of 12 and Mr. Justice Gale, which following the luncheon recess Thursday Mrs. Julia "Judy" Scarlett on December 29 at 310 John Street, Cobourg.

Scarlett said he had only brief recollections of memory between the time he got on the train on the fatal day and when he woke up in a cell in the Cobourg lock-up.

He told the court, "I can remember getting on the train that afternoon and the next thing I remember is seeing my mother-in-law's face smiling and the white hat she wore. After that I recollect faintly seeing my wife lying on the floor with something under her head." He remember seeing the ambulance, I think it was an ambulance, and then I can recall the police men telling me my wife was dead. I remember taking my daughter Judy and Jack and someone telling me there were some questions the police wanted to ask. And, oh yes, I remember someone taking my picture. Other than that I have no memory and her nothing until I awoke the next morning."

Referring to the witness stand by defence counsel, A. H. Richardson, Scarlett answered the questions clearly and his voice broke into sobs only once when he told how he got up in a cell to come back and live with him. "How old are you?" asked Mr. Richardson.

"32."

"Where were you born?"

"In Belleville."

"How long have you lived in Trenton?"

"31 years."

"How far did you go in school?"

"Two years in high school."

"Were you in the Navy?"

"Yes."

JOINS NAVY

"How old were you when you joined?"

"17½."

"When did you get out of the Navy?"

"In 1945."

"What did you do then?"

"I applied for a job on the Canadian Pacific Railway."

"And you got it?"

"Yes."

"What was your job when you started?"

"I started as a yard helper."

"What were you when this happened?"

"Acting yardmaster."

"When did you start drinking?"

"When I was in the Navy."

"Have you ever lost any time on your job because of it?"

"No."

"When did you get married?"

"In the summer of 1950."

"How long had you known your wife before you were married?"

"About six months."

"How old was she?"

"19."

"Where was she from?"

"Brighton."

"When was the first time you and your wife started to have trouble?"

"In 1933."

"What caused it."

"My wife was running around."

"Do you know who she was running around with?"

"Yes."

"What was his name?"

"An airman by the name of John."

SAID OUT WITH GIRLS

"Did you approach her about it?"

"Yes."

"What did she say?"

"She said she was out with the girls having a few drinks."

"What happened that made you first notice it?"

"She started coming home about 3 or 4 a.m."

"How many times did that happen?"

"Two or three times."

"What did you do?"

"I told her to get out."

"Did she?"

"Yes. The next day I went to work and when I came home she had gone and taken the children with her."

"Did you look for her?"

"Yes. I found her about five days later living at another home in Trenton."

The witness continued to tell of the difficulties he and his family had lived in Trenton and that his wife at one time had worked at a factory but that she was not required to use the money she earned to maintain the home and he believed she had bought herself clothes with it. He said she did not work often but just off and on.

Scarlett also told of the time his wife had hurt her back and he had sent her to the Kingston hospital on a Tuesday. He had phoned Wednesday to find out how she was and the hospital official had told him she had come in Tuesday afternoon but had only stayed a few hours and was discharged. She had not returned home until the next Sunday. It was then the first he had heard of her in that period of time.

He said he asked his wife for an explanation and she told him she had met a man in one of the hotel beverage rooms in Brighton and they had gone to her to stay with them for a week.

Asked why his wife decided to go to Cobourg the accused replied, "She said she just wanted to go there because no one knew her there and she could get away from mother."

VISITED OFTEN

"Did you visit her often?"

"Yes. On my days off every week."

"Do you recall anything that happened on these visits?"

"Yes. Once when I went down and walked in my wife was just coming out of the bedroom and looked at me in a funny way and said, 'What are you doing here?' I said, 'I came down to see you.' I pushed the bedroom she put her arms across the door and said, 'You can't go in there'."

"Did you?"

"No."

"And what did you find?"

"Ernie Fraser in his shorts."

He told the court he had then taken the children back to Trenton with him and had asked Mr. Fraser to live with her mother. He said she had refused to do so and told him she had made arrangements to have the children stay at a Mrs. Bingham's and that she was going to Toronto.

After the came back from Toronto he had taken her back again and tried to make a "go of it." It was then, he said, she broke into sobs and it was a few minutes before he regained control of himself.

"But I never knew what she was doing, as she was out most all hours of the night and I never knew if she was even coming back or not."

He said it was around this time they had joined two separation papers and his wife had stayed on Williams Street before moving.

On the 29th of December he said he remembered going downtown with Mrs. Webb about 10 a.m., picking up the children and buying some liquor at the store which Mrs. Webb had paid him. They went to a home on Front Street where they had a few drinks with three other people and then he had gone to see his mother-in-law. He did not recall buying any more wine or drinking any more after three o'clock that day. He said he did not recall drinking in the home of Mrs. Webb.

Under question by the Crown, Harry Dennan, he insisted he could not recall any of the happenings of that night.

SAID MIND BLANK

He told the crown he did not remember talking to Bellamy or Webb on the night of the stabbing. He answered simply "I only know what they said when I was sitting in the witness box (in the witness box). My mind is a blank."

Evidence by the accused taking the witness stand several character witnesses were called to the defence. They were: Rev. K. F. Blachford, minister of the Anglican Church in Trenton; Mrs. Rita MacBrown of 91 West Street, who had rented an apartment to the Scarletts; E. Ray Robertson, yardmaster at the C.P.R. in Trenton. He told the court he had known the accused for 14 years. He said Scarlett had been most cooperative and the best man he had trained in his 30 years of service with the railway. He said that this summer and fall Scarlett had worked 25 extra eight-hour shifts; Harold A. Gregory of Sidney Auto Wreckers was also called as a character witness.

John D. Armstrong, a psychiatrist and on the teaching staff at the University of Toronto, and also a specialist in alcoholism, was next called to the court to that in examining Scarlett he had found him to be a man of average intelligence but had no significant mental disorder. He said through talking with the accused he has tended to believe the accused has been under an emotional strain for the past two years. During the past years he has been a moderate heavy drinker of beer but that his consumption during the past two years has increased considerably.

DOCTOR QUESTIONED

Under question the doctor said the testimony of the accused is consistent with that of the psychiatrist's observations according to evidence.

He said, "It is commonly an individual will be able to recall more of the period when he is drinking." (He referred to blackouts).

"Alcoholism amnesia," he said, "can be at its height for about an hour and then begins to taper off slowly over a period of several hours."

Under question by the crown the doctor explained the difference between alcoholic amnesia and the type of amnesia which sometimes follows when a person sees or does a horrible thing. He said in the latter case the mind is dividing line between when the deed or sight occurs and before and after.

It is a period when the mind shuns a certain thing and that the deed and forces one to forget it and it is a period which is a completely blank and there are no "islands of remembering."

Business Women Hear Address By Eric Naylor

TRENTON — At its regular meeting in the Hotel Gilbert Thursday night, the Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club had as their guest speaker Mr. Eric C. Naylor of Belleville, who introduced the speaker. In 1942 he joined the Royal Canadian Navy as a Gunner and in 1950 was made an inspector in the legal branch of inspection of ammunition and is now with the Unemployment Insurance Commission. Over a period of years Mr. Naylor has taken an active interest in youth projects and is a past club captain and has been very active in all sports, both participating in and officiating. He has written many musical compositions that have been published and has also been active as an actor, part in dramatic work and has appeared in the leading lines of the Royal Canadian Society, London, England. Mr. Naylor is outstanding in the field of geography. It is to be noted that there are only two in Canada and one of these is associated with this Society. In 1942, 1943, 1944 and 1945 he was a life member of Royal Astatic Society of Great Britain and Ireland. During the past 5 years he has travelled extensively in many parts of the world and is now engaged in writing two volumes on travel and geography.

TELLS OF TRIP

Mr. Naylor gave a brief sketch of the origin and work of the Royal Geographical Society, stating that it was formed in 1457 under the name "Holaby Society." In order that geography might be advanced at that time since it was not a name. Its facilities are used by large nationally sponsored expeditions as well as by any group of men as well as by individuals planning private trips.

One of Mr. Naylor's great interests at the present time is the Island of Tahiti, which is a 2,500 miles west of Tahiti, which he has been given great study for many years. On this island have been found stone tablets, the writing on which no one has yet been able to decipher. It is Mr. Naylor's intention to visit Easter Island before the end of this year.

VISITS ARCTIC

Mr. Naylor said that he had also given extensive thought to, the Arctic and Antarctic. In the Everest expeditions and had a great deal of information on the Royal Canadian Himalaya Expedition and the British North Greenland Expedition. He visited the Arctic last year for three weeks and in Greenland and is also said to have gathered a good deal of information.

Mr. Naylor said he had brought with him a number of pictures of Bermuda which he took while in Bermuda. He is a member of the club. With Wednesday's drizzling rain and high banks of snow in Trenton, it was a treat to see Bermuda's sunshine and beautiful flowers. Of particular interest were the palm gardens and the Chinese Moon Gate, the Botanical Gardens and the Cathedral of profusion, beautiful churches which according to Mr. Naylor are well attended, and charming pink houses with white roofs. The roads of the islands are hedge along which the water runs, emptying into a cistern, and this rainwater is used for drinking water. Other points of interest included the Underwater Cave Caverns dug out in 1620, at which time they were used for hiding purposes. Bermuda cedars have now been turned into a tourist attraction. Mr. Naylor spoke at the Devil's Hole all kinds of fish may be seen and also mentioned the fishing village from a small bridge with pieces of fish on a line in the hope that they will bark and bite each other. The all-coral Cathedral Rock and the sunken graveyards of the Spanish, 18 inches wide, just wide enough for a sail, are important points of interest.

NO UNEMPLOYMENT

The only government bureau on the island is the employment bureau. There is no unemployment, possibly due to the rigid immigration laws. Bermuda has the lowest death rate in any part of the world, serving 40,000 people, and boasts two broadcasting gardens.

The beautiful vegetation is attributed to the fact that the soil is coral is porous. Mr. Naylor stated that a "cranium thrown on the ground would take root."

A short business meeting followed in which plans for the attendance of a large number of club members at the Provincial Conference in Toronto on February 28, were formulated. F. Jeffrey Turney brought to the club information on UNESCO work in other countries and pointed out that due to the financial situation in Canada it would be impossible for a Japanese delegate to finance her attendance at the International Conference. Professional Women's Clubs are being asked to help in this way this year. Miss Farley, who went to Japan with the Red Cross, West Bengal, India, took a keen interest in the newly formed Japanese Federation, also pointing out the astounding ability of these girls, urged that the club contribute to the financing of a delegate from Japan. The Trenton club agreed to join with other clubs in this assistance.

After a report from Marion Baker, conference convener, on progress to date on the arrangements for the Regional Meeting to be held in Trenton May 2nd and 3rd, the meeting adjourned.

Barrie Flyers May Be Moved To North Bay

BARRIE (CP) Coach Hap Emms of Barrie Flyers says he is "seriously considering" moving his Ontario Hockey Association Junior A franchise to one of two centres that now support senior teams.

North Bay, home of the OHA-NOHA North Bay Trappers, was mentioned as the best bet, the name of the other community was not disclosed.

Emms, after his dwindling attendance at Barrie, said he has "discussed the matter with two towns and North Bay appears to offer the most."

"They have a good arena seating at least 5,500 and with a big playing senior club are averaging 1,500 fans per game," he said.

900 THURSDAY NIGHT

Barrie's all-time average crowd of 900 turned out Thursday night to watch the Flyers whip Guelph Biltmores 4-0, but Emms said afterwards:

"We've had only one good crowd—New Year's Day—and we can't carry players' salaries with the crowds we're getting.

"I don't know why the fans are playing such poor hockey. It's not taken for granted here.

"I guess they are just sick of hockey. When the playoffs begin they'll probably clamor to get in but I can't finance a team—any playoffs."

Thursday night's win sets the third in a row for the Flyers, now in fifth place in the seven-team junior loop.

ASKS FANS WHY

But the attendance situation has become a big issue in this city of some 19,000 that the Barrie Examiner frequently devotes space to write the newspaper and tell why they are staying away. Some have been quite articulate.

Emms said he doesn't want to take the Flyers out of Barrie and would give up his coaching job if that would help.

"I'll gladly get out and just be the owner of the club if it's me," he said. Gang (assistant coach) can handle the team".

The team has operated at a loss for three seasons. Operation of the club costs about $40,000 a year.

A shift to North Bay would have to be sanctioned by the OHA and couldn't be done before the approval of the Junior A council. The senior North Bay Trappers are reported likely to fold at the end of this season.

Emms said: "They can't make money, their payroll is too high. A junior team could operate successfully."

Barrie Arena has a 4,200 capacity but is still used by only up to 6 of the 26 home games.

Mayor Wilbert Kenzie, who watched Thursday night's game, said the hockey is not as good as it used to be.

He suggested raising the age limit for juniors.

Murrow Refuses To Disclose News Sources

NEW YORK (AP)—Edward R. Murrow has refused to disclose to police the sources of his radio broadcast linking ex-big business to the FBI.

Police Commissioner James H. Leary said Murrow has less than 10 minutes with Murrow Wednesday in the latter's CBS office.

Murrow said after his Monday night CBS show The Business of Life that he thought the use and disruption of good relations was worth a probe.

Reeve Carl Whittemore of Deloro felt the mine office building was as much a part of the mine as was the machinery and so should be exempt from assessment.

And Reeve Earl Sager of Marmora suggested the whole matter be left in abeyance pending clarification of the law by the department in Toronto.

An on the other hand Reeve Alf Wickett of Thurlow felt it might be a good thing to go ahead with the court case and get a decision. Then everybody else the county would be on solid ground.

"We've had appeals against assessments in our municipality," he said. "They've won a few and have lost a few, but I don't feel there were any hard feelings."

Hastings county lost over $4,-000,000 in assessment to the city of Belleville when it annexed the east annexation, members were told by the county assessor.

The county of Prince Edward Thurlow lost $3,332,984 in assessment to Sidney $756,804. These amounts were reconstructed and struck from the equalized county assessment of the respective townships.

And the village of Bancroft lost $1,000,000 in assessment to equalized assessment, but for a different reason, it was learned according to the village reeve and the new county warden, Jack N. Mahaffy, was a "bad adding machine."

County's Share of Mining Grants for Municipalities Fully Discussed by Council

Discussion on the county's share of mining grants provided under legislation pertaining to the Assessment Act, took up the major part of the forenoon session of Hastings county council.

The County's share of municipal mining grants and the basis on which they were figured had been discussed in council for a year and yesterday a representative of the county auditor's office was on hand with county assessor Cecil Geen to give councillors an interpretation of the act.

But in the main, councillors were still not satisfied and reeves of municipalities where mining grants are received claimed the system was unfair.

According to the assessment act the amount of the mining grant received by a municipality is used as a basis and with application of a certain formula is converted into assessment on which the municipality pays a share of the grant to the county and to school boards.

"If I get you right," said Reeve Faraday will have to pay $2,000 more than he received," protested Reeve John Horsepool, whose municipality is the biggest recipient of mining grants within the county.

Other reeves protesting against the assessment ruling were Irwin McCoy of Marmora and Lake township and Reeve Ivan Shannon of Marmora village.

Most agreed, however, that the county was entitled to some share of the mining grants.

Here's how the formula for the mining grants were established to assist municipalities where there was three mines or more and were a carry-over from Northern Ontario, when mining was concentrated in unorganized municipalities.

LAID REFUSE GRANTS

Both he and Reeve McCoy said that in view of payments to the county and the fact that the mining county municipalities receiving the grants would be losing very little if they abolished the grant and reverted to the former system.

Warden Lewars, county auditor's representative, noted there was provision in the act to increase the share of mining grants which a municipality might have to pay to a school board.

Councillors were told that a grant case was going up to decide whether local assessment on a mining property office building at Bethlehem in Northumberland was legal under the assessment act.

County Assessor Cecil Geen said his interpretation of the assessment act was that the office building was assessable. He said the act specified mine property owners' assessment and office buildings were not in the list.

The mining company has appealed the assessment and was slated proceed to go to the Supreme Court to get a decision. Council was told that the case is expected to take up to four days.

Reeve Shannon of Marmora said the threat of the court case to have local mines good local relations with the mining firm. He argued that only $300 or $400 in tax was involved and even though he did not wish it felt he was "selling out" to a big company, he was afraid the disruption of good relations was worth a court case.

Reeve Carl Whittemore of Deloro felt the mine office building was as much a part of the mine as was the machinery and so should be exempt from assessment.

And Reeve Earl Sager of Marmora suggested the whole matter be left in abeyance pending clarification of the law by the department in Toronto.

An on the other hand Reeve Alf Wickett of Thurlow felt it might be a good thing to go ahead with the court case and get a decision. Then everybody else the county would be on solid ground.

"We've had appeals against assessments in our municipality," he said. "They've won a few and have lost a few, but I don't feel there were any hard feelings."

The matter here was left over until Friday at which time advice from the county solicitor would be sought.

County Council Members Guests of Hospital Board

The backlog of persons waiting for admission to Belleville General Hospital has reached the 200 mark, members of Hastings county council were told Thursday by Hospital Administrator Kenneth Box.

Council members were luncheon guests of the hospital board in the hospital staff dining room, by invitation being primarily extended to councillors to afford them to receive first hand information on the operation of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission program and how indigent patients could be covered.

For the protection of their municipalities, reeves and deputy reeves were advised to enroll possible indigents in the hospital plan.

As chairman of the luncheon get-together, Mr. Frank Domenico, chairman of the hospital board of governors officially welcomed the county council members, at the same time assuring the invitation was "not to put the heat on them" but to give them the opportunity of having the hospital insurance explained.

Mr. Box noted that the problem of mental illness today has been one of biggest financial headaches at the hospital, this despite the fact the county was paying the hospital 75c per day per patient, county indigent rate of $5.25 per day.

Actual operating costs were much above the $6.00 per day for a public ward room with reference to patients often "put stuck" for the difference.

Mr. Box said in past years hospital boards had to literally write off anywhere from $50,-000 to $60,000 per year on indigent patients.

GET "KICKBACK"

Under the new hospital insurance plan, the commission has made up the difference between the statutory indigent rate of $5.25 per day and actual costs. The county would still be required to pay the statutory rate, however, and there would get a "kickback" of 40 per cent of their statutory payments based on the three years.

Actually this meant the county cost for indigent would be negligible, amounting to only about 30 per cent of the statutory rate.

He noted that the city of Belleville has already provided liberal hospital insurance for possible indigents and welfare recipients, it being expected by council that this would save the city money in hospital bills.

Insurance for possible county indigents would help the hospital and would not in any way indirectly benefit the county. County costs for indigent patients would be less, while the money "the hospital saved in indirect financing charges would be used to purchase additional equipment and thus further benefit the county.

To a question from one of the council members Mr. Box noted that there would be a number of heavier demand for hospital beds when the new plan goes into effect on January 1st. He said the waiting list had now jumped to 200 and that he felt a Percentage of these were "holdovers" from the Provincial Hospitals Service Commission program and how indigent patients could be covered.

Kcenly interested in communities and their future, Mr. Box is active on the local planning, traffic and Civil Defence boards and has a lively interest in the conservation of natural resources, including forests, wildland, river valley development, and regional planning amongst other things.

He has edited several books including Canadian Counties, Canadian Atlas and the McGraw-Hill Canadian Geography Series. He has also compiled several special research studies, including those of the Seaway and the Regional Economy, Water Resources Problems of South Western Ontario and Urban Land Use Concepts in Regional Planning.

At Monday evening's dinner meeting Dr. Plewa's subject will be "The Future of Southern Ontario"—(The boundary recognized for the subject is the Midland-Kingston line, edge of the Canadian Shield).

The dinner-meeting will be held in the Hotel Quinte on Monday evening.

Dr. E.G. Pleva Will Be C of C Dinner Speaker

Guest speaker at the 94th Annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce this Monday will be Dr. E. G. Pleva, Professor and head of the Department of Geography, of the University of Western Ontario. The speaker born in Minnesota, U.S.A., came to the University of Western Ontario in 1938 to establish the faculty of geography. He established the University of Minnesota and Syracuse University for his formal education. During the Second World War he was a member of the Office of Strategic Services under the joint Chiefs of Staffs.

Tuberculin Test Successful in County Schools

A meeting was held recently of the management committee of the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association, with president A. N. Hallam conducting the meeting. The Association is pleased to report that a very successful tuberculin testing was completed during the last quarter of the year. Tests in Grade 8 and 12 of the Secondary Schools in Hastings County. It was the decision of the Committee that this was a very worthwhile project and that it will be repeated on a yearly basis.

This testing was done by Dr. Turpel, Director and Medical Officer of Health, Prince Edward County Health Unit. He expressed his appreciation of the excellent co-operation received by him at all the schools and wished to thank those who had any part in this event.

A total of 2,115 pupils were tested, with 6 positive reactors making a percentage of 0.3 of the test. These figures bring out the fact that tuberculosis among the students in these grades in Hastings County are well within the normal range established throughout Ontario. All the positive reactors were seen, also given a chest x-ray examination and no active cases of tuberculosis were found. This was a most gratifying result of the testing, and one which it is hoped will be maintained in future tests.

Lower Gas Rates Predicted by Fuel Board Head

TORONTO (CP)—Lower natural gas rates within the next few years were forecast for many Ontario areas Wednesday by R. Crozier, chairman of the Ontario Fuel Board.

He said in an interview the reductions would come through higher load density and increases in profits permitted natural gas companies.

Speaking before higher rates was touched off last week when Mr. Crozier told the legislature committee on government organization that perhaps higher profits should be given to gas companies.

It was difficult to predict which areas would be in line for rate reductions, But Mr. Crozier indicated that they might be given to Central, Eastern and Northern Ontario.

Council Supports in Principle Deseronto Bridge-Causeway

Hastings County Council has given its support to a request for the construction of a new bridge-causeway over the Bay of Quinte at Deseronto to eliminate the mode of transportation which has existed for over half a century.

The motion was placed before council at its Thursday afternoon session by Deseronto Reeve Henry Alford who said the Deseronto inhabitants across the bay had been operating for the past 55 years and the same ferry for 35 years.

He said the causeway would give many job opportunities for the area and would attract industry and tourist traffic.

His motion passed by members asked that council "agree in principle" to support a request for the causeway at Deseronto.

Following introduction of the motion a discussion on the causeway took place. Councillors were told that this had been discussed as far back as 40 the cost.

He felt, however, that all three neighboring counties could be expected to share in

$330,000 Expenditure Will Be Approved by the Council For Roads, Bridges in County

A county roads and bridges by-law calling for an expenditure of $330,000 for roads exclusive of the 1959 will be approved by Hastings county council in their inaugural session this week.

Thursday, council approved of the by-law after considering the report read by chairman Reeve Alfred Wickett of Thurlow and the by-law will be given above figure.

The amount is $4,000 less than the $334,000 approved by the Ontario Department of Highways for expenditure in 1958.

Of the total an amount of $53,750 would be for suburban roads and $275,250 for expenditures on county roads and bridges, overhead, machinery purchases and other items. The total amount would include $80,000 for bridge construction on county and suburban roads.

However, if any worthwhile amount of construction was to be done during the year, Mr. Wickett felt that a supplementary by-law for construction would be necessary, and stated that council would felt this course should be taken.

LOSE THREE MILES

One of the highlights of the year was the result of the annexation approximately three miles of suburban road has been taken over by the city of Belleville.

Subsequently the suburban roads commission had assumed an additional 11.4 miles of suburban roads, which is 3 percent mileage to 14.5 miles, or over double the previous mileage.

Mr. Wickett noted that suburban roads are primarily arteries to bring rural traffic into the city and return and consequently the increased mileage of suburban road was more in line with what was fair.

Additional county road taken on by the suburban commission is along Dundas east to the intersection of Sidney; six-tenths of a mile on Road No. 6 between Highways 14 and 37 on Canniffton, and the portion of the new extension of Bell Boulevard and Tyendinaga extending eastward from Corbyville to Shannonville alderoad.

Labor Proposals Put On Jobless Get' Mixed Reception

By JOHN LeBLANC

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor proposals for curing unemployment have met with a mixed reception from the federal government.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker suggested Thursday that labor might have to pull down its wage increases if it wants the Canadian economy to grow enough to provide more jobs.

To suggestions from the Canadian Labor Congress for increased trade, increased wages, increased government spending and security, he replied:

"We can't have it both ways. That's impossible."

He was talking to a delegation of the 1,150,000-member congress which presented a number of legislative proposals to the cabinet.

He told the group that he would like to—but is not able to—provide "cheap money" for projects such as for salaries and pensions and at the same time reduce taxes."

The Russians are putting on a terrifying drive for supremacy against the western countries, the prime minister said. The Russian drive move was aimed at undermining the economies of the free countries. The challenge of Communist trade must be met. It would be foolish for the free countries to stand against it.

On a proposal of the congress that the government call a meeting for a world economic conference to "solve the economic and tremendous difficulties" would be involved in bringing together even the representatives of all the free countries. But this would be studied by the government.

Neither the prime minister nor Labor Minister Starr commented on the CLC proposals for federal action to ease the effects of winter unemployment.

The congress proposals include special government incentives on the part of municipal governments to keep on employees; increases in unemployment insurance benefits and insurance, and federal initiative in promoting low-rental housing projects.

TWO NEW WARDENS

Congratulations are in order for Reeve Jack N. Brown of Bancroft and Reeve Ernest Ward of Picton, on their elections to the wardenships of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties respectively.

It is interesting to note that both men come to their high offices after comparatively brief careers as County Council members. Warden Brown is commencing his fourth term as reeve of Bancroft, while Warden Ward's elevation is even more unusual in that this is his first year as reeve of Picton, although he had been a member of the County Council for the past two years in his capacity as Deputy Reeve and before that had served Picton for two years as councillor.

It is obvious that anything which the two wardens may lack in experience must be more than made up in ability to earn them the confidence of their fellow County Council members after these comparatively brief careers.

WRONG PLACE TO FLY THE ENSIGN

The Association of Tourists Resorts of Ontario, at its annual meeting, passed a resolution that the Red Ensign be flown over all Ontario tourist resorts, until Canada decides on its own distinctive flag.

We think that the action of Premier Leslie Frost in flying a Red Ensign at Queen's Park has had an influence here. Before he placed his stamp of approval on the Red Ensign, we suspect it would have been difficult to get Ontario tourist operators to reach an agreement on the choice of a flag.

Whatever may be said for the use of the Red Ensign, though, we doubt whether tourist resorts are the type of establishments which should participate in a campaign to increase its popularity. Many of those resorts stop at these resorts will be U.S. citizens. There is already sufficient misunderstanding among them about Canada's status without burdening them with the confusion of the flag question. The blue and white flags in Quebec, with the fleur-de-lis, must already arouse some bewilderment and it would be no kindness, and no contribution to international understanding, to add to the Quebec flag and the Union Jack the spectacle of Red Ensigns flying everywhere in Ontario. The deduction that most of them would make would be that the Red Ensign is the Ontario equivalent of Quebec's blue and white banner — the provincial flag.

ADMIRABLE FORESIGHT

The Ontario Department of Lands and Forests is to be commended for its action in setting aside areas of Crown land, in the Kawartha - Haliburton district; as wilderness areas.

The Department is said to have no immediate plans for the development of these areas. They will merely be reserved for use as public parks "as the need arises." This fact, far from diminishing our approval of the Department's decision, enhances it. It is welcome proof that the government officials have learned a lesson from the amazingly rapid development of resort areas since the end of the war and are taking the necessary steps to assure that this development will not continue in such a haphazard manner that future generations of Ontario residents are deprived of their rightful heritage.

Many Canadians, as well as many of their cousins to the south, have a love for solitude. This leads them to seek retreats in areas still unInvaded by cottagers. With this desire for a nook "far from the madding crowd" we have every sympathy, but unless the sale of Crown lands is properly controlled we might soon face the day when there are no large areas of unoccupied land available for the development of public parks.

The Department has now taken the necessary action to assure such playgrounds for tomorrow's Ontario residents. Good. It is to be hoped that the policy is consistently followed so that, no matter how rapid may be the growth in population, we remain a province with wide open spaces within a few hours' travel from our largest cities.

WHAT VALUE PERMANENCE?

It took the English craftsmen of the 15th century seventeen years to build the Tower of Magdalen College at Oxford University. To date the tower has stood for 467 years and shows little sign of going out of use in the near future. With the rapid progress of modern construction methods we see gigantic projects erected in the short space of a few months or several years. We cannot help but wonder if their use or architectural merit will be admired and taken advantage of by our descendants 467 years from now.

But then does anyone make something to last these days?

A REAL LOSS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

I still can sing and whistle
When I'm short of dollar bills,
I don't have to have a nickel
To forget my little ills.
I can tread along life's highway
And a ray of sunshine reap,
But (excuse my fit of yawning)
I'm a dead one in the morning
If I'm short of sleep.

Not for me the bright lights glaring,
Not for me the many dance,
Not for me those all night sessions
At that famous game of chance.
It may be that I am aging
And the pace I cannot keep,
But (excuse me now for yawning)
I'm a dead one in the morning
If I'm short of sleep.

Queen Needs Rescuing

Montreal Gazette

Yesterday the itinerary for the Queen's visit to Canada this summer was made public. And astonishing it is. Astonishing it is. The Queen is to be taken right across Canada, visiting community after community.

It is only natural, of course, that as many communities as possible wish to see the Queen, and to make known their loyalty. But it becomes a very serious question whether the Queen should be subjected to such an ordeal of rapid and crowded travel as this itinerary demands.

In the course of about six weeks here are the places she is to visit (and when names are mentioned more than once it is because she is scheduled to return to those places in the course of her tours):

St. John's, Stephenville, Cornerbrook, Stephenville, Knob Lake Airport, Schefferville, Seven Islands, Baie Comeau, Alfred, Arvida, Port Alfred (Quebec City, Three Rivers, Montreal, the Ot. Lawrence Seaway ceremonies, details of which are not yet completed interview at this point), Brockville, Kingston, Toronto, Ottawa, Hamilton, Brantford, Galt, Kitchener, Stratford, London, Chatham, Windsor, Port Arthur, McNichol, Orillia and Muskoka area, Chicago, Grand Sie. Marie, Port Arthur, Fort William, Winnipeg, Regina, Judian Head, Broadview, Swift Current, Medley, Davidson, Craik, Pendlater, Regina, Judian Head, Broadview, Swift Current, Medley, Davidson, Craik, Pendlater, Regina, Judian Head, Broadview, Swift Current, Portage la Prairie, Winnipeg, Sudbury, Chapleau, Port Arthur, Fort Frederickton, Saint John, Moncton Shediac, Charlottetown, Inverness, Sydney, Glace Bay, National Park, Ingonish, Sydney, Shearwater Airport, Halifax.

This insistent and gruelling schedule will be maintained by the Queen's own means of transport to another now by air, now by automobile, now by train. Only by air travel will be "by night. And to what end the "doing in person" will consist of three days' out of these six weeks.

Of course it has to be said that this itinerary was worked out in close consultation with the Queen, and that she agreed to it. But it scarcely seems that this is a reason for accepting it as it is, entirely justifies the impression that such an itinerary upon her.

Experience ought to have taught the lesson before now. When the Queen visited Australia in 1954 it was on a similar itinerary, such as this. When some expressed concern that she was being overtaxed, the Government of Australia, in a statement issued by the Governor-General, said that the Queen expects—and is willing—to have a more strenuous time in Australia than she would normally have in Britain because of the interest of a monarch's visit to Australia."

But the tour did prove more than flesh and blood could bear. Her condition after a trip through Sydney, the Queen was so worn out when she reached Government House in Hobart that she many instances, when she went away under the charge of the matron to the other side of the tour had to be curtailed.

But it is not only the experience of the Australian tour that should be a guide to what Canada saw the Queen's ex-Elizabeth, the Queen Mother, a skelter tour as long ago as 1951. She was then visiting Canada. The Queen Mother's dispatch from Reuters said: "Correspondents who followed the Royal Couple . . . are freely predicting no human being could go through 45 days of such hectic ex-skelter pace without suffering, at least, a nervous breakdown." The Queen Mother visited places during the day, she entered Toronto in the evening. The Can-adian Press reported: "Some observers thought she looked tired but she quickly "pulled herself together' with the help of hartshorn entered the royal limousine for the 18 mile drive into the city."

In Montreal, after a quick-paced round of visits, she entered the Windsor Hotel to prepare for the banquet in the evening. the Gazette described her in these words:

"She walked down the carpeted hall on the main floor and started glassy eyed . . She kept waving and smiling but those motions seemed mechanical. Like anyone finishing a long, hard day, the Queen was tired . . . And there was more to come . . .

Surely such experience ought, by now, to have taught the inconsiderateness of schedules of this kind. It is true that in the Commonwealth the Queen should be seen as much as possible. But more frequent, and more informal visits, with smaller itineraries for each of them would seem preferable to an exhausting thoroughness in our sight-seeing tour.

It is a wonderful thing that Canadians are so eager to demonstrate their loyalty from coast to coast. But loyalty to a Queen, as to any other person, expresses itself best by a courteous consideration. The Queen of this Queen may agree to undergo such exhaustion is no reason why she should be called upon to suffer it.

Hong Kong Just Leased

Brantford Expositor

The argument is sometimes used that Britain should take over Communist China as it took Red China as the U.S. does because the British colony of Hong Kong is under a similar red menace than is Formosa. The argument has no real merits.

Certainly Hong Kong is much nearer Red China than Formosa is. Actually most of the colony is on the mainland and becomes Communist territory 50 years. Chinese Communists wanted to seize Hong Kong there is little to stop them. Then why haven't they done it any time these last 10 years? There is a simple reason. The mainland section of the Hong Kong colony, 355 of its 392 square miles, including its entire water supply system and the airport, was leased to China anyway under a lease that has only 39 years to run.

Peiping can afford to wait, just as Hitler has said it can wait for other things to happen such as the death of Chiang. Peiping has already been negotiating matters on hand without borrowing trouble by grabbing for a piece of real estate held by a few Chinese and, moreover, of which they do not present status to Red China as well as British.

There are other good reasons why Peiping should want to keep things as they are. Hong Kong in British control, the Chinese have the use of banking, shipping, insurance and trading arrangements far more valuable than they have been able to arrange directly for themselves. It is also their only peephole into the free world as they were to seize Hong Kong any time before 1951 as the independent Nasser grabbed the Suez Canal ten years before it was to become due. Even if recently, they might find only a few millions of people there who they cannot want. One day, possibly by agreement before the lease ends, they would present no back to China. It is not now an issue and need never be.

The Rev. Charles G. Smith, former pastor of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church here, now of Montreal, is the guest of Mr. W. H. Ellis, Victoria Street East.

Mr. Matthews Summers, ward foreman at the G.T.R. left yesterday to spend some time at Detroit, Mich.

The Rev. Harris Wallace, pastor of the Bridge Street Baptist Church, is attending the Baptist Convention in Toronto. He will deliver the "In Memoriam" sermon.

Mr. William McIntosh, who has met the famous Harry Lauder often, invited him to visit Belleville during his Canadian tour. It will be impossible for Mr. Lauder to do so however according to the reply received today by Mr. McIntosh.

Stress Cause Of Headaches

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

North America's headache sufferers spent more than $200 million for headache advertisements in 1958. But this ailment, mankind's most common complaint, remains a medical enigma — one which doctors and drug makers still are seeking to understand better in order to treat it more effectively.

Possibly because of its link with an area where such complaints might be expected — great numbers, the Wall Street Journal has conducted a survey and has learned that medical researchers attribute 90 per cent of headaches to emotional stresses.

This most common variety, in the opinion of some medical men, comes when neck muscles tighten in response to stress. A preventive for most headaches then would be for their sufferers to avoid emotional upsets — if they can.

Doctors and drug makers, who in many instances have contributed shares to research into headaches, have no available lead — evidence that there is any one-pattern ailment that varies in individuals and that each person is the point at which a person feels pain. If researchers can isolate it and learn its characteristics it is hoped it can be neutralized or its formation prevented.

That to date appears to carry the best hope of relief, one that might make the faces of sufferers as free from the stress of the girls are now divorced. This is extreme, but the extreme examples throughout the country are astounding.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

ALARMING SITUATION

The divorce situation in the United States is becoming appalling. The rate of divorce in the United States is three times as great today as it was in the year 1900. There are one-fourth as many divorces in our country every year as there are marriages.

As we view this situation historically, we may well be alarmed. As every past civilization has begun to decay and disintegrate, its divorce rate has increased. Recently our attention was called to a case of sixteen girls who had been graduated from a secondary school within the past decade. Eleven of the girls are now divorced. This is the effect of divorce upon children, but the extreme examples throughout the country are astounding.

Problem children who become juvenile delinquents and a liability of cases children of broken homes. Juvenile delinquency is almost always associated with broken home.

Jesus Christ during His ministry spoke with great frankness about the matter of divorce. He lived in an age and among a people for whom divorce was commonplace. Some of the great rabbis of His day were very liberal regarding divorce.

But Jesus was severe and explicit. Read the following New Testament passages and see what conclusions you arrive at with reference to divorce under the Christian system: Matthew 5:31-32; Matthew 19:3 Mark 10: 11-12; Luke 16:18; I Corinthians 7:10-15.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

I FIND A TREASURE

Some years ago Prof. Herbert West, the only English teacher at Dartmouth College, and I sat talking about books at my Nova Scotia island retreat. My friend was interested in the work Louis Hemon wrote what may be the outstanding Canadian novel. It was called "Maria Chapdelai" a story of the early rugged days of a family of pioneers in Quebec.

I got the book, read it, and was charmed by the courage and outlook of those simple French people and women.

then knew I would thrill at discovering a first edition (published in France in French). I walled for many years before I unexpectedly heard of this treasure and sent to England for it.

I then, of course, wished to discover the first English edition, the one published by Macmillan. Only this week an English publisher secured for me the edition I longed for. It was published in 1921. The French first printing came out in 1916.

"Maria Chapdelaine" is a remarkable book, full of power, freshness and rare beauty. I read where it was described as "a perfect little cameo." You have never read the book? You may be affected as I was by the simple reading — but the characters live today as vividly as when they were alive in the author's mind and heart. With such a dearth of great books being written and published it is joy and entertainment to read this never-dying classic.

Already the story has been sold to thousands — and deeply appreciated — but it cannot have too many readers. By great book can. Read this book and you will be better human being. You will carry its love story in your heart!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The top brass of the labor movement have lately been concerning themselves with scholarly reflection on the question of leisure. With four and a half day week it soon to become the three day week, and so on, what is the people going to do with their spare time.

It is no laughing matter.

Our conception of leisure is largely formed by the lovely color pictures in the ads in the magazines and on travel posters showing vast throngs of happy people and wealthy people disporting themselves on ocean beaches in the sun-drenched sunny south. Another form of leisure is portrayed in the figure of a happy man operating a buzz saw in his cellar while his wife sits admiring by. Fishing or whizzing about in a pink boat with a blue outboard motor, camping amid stately mountains with a tent, a portable refrezer, a portable TV and a portable propane stove; playing an organ which you can learn in six easy lessons or just reclining, with a fat smile, in a hammock.

But I happen to be related to one or four members of the leboring class who have visited the four and a half day week and they are not happy.

And do you know what they do with their leisure?

They get moonlighting jobs.

Over 400 mothers will participate in the Mothers' March of Dimes house to house canvass to be held in Belleville and district on the evening of Feb. 2nd. Shown packing canvassers' kits in readiness for the march on polio are: (seated) Mrs. James Sisler, chief marching mother; Mrs. F. Lang, Mrs. Jack Clarke, Mrs. Bill Fraser and Mrs. Bob Miller. Standing are Mrs. Harry Rollins, Mrs. Newt Wilbur, Mrs. Al Smith and Mrs. Kenneth Smith.

Mothers' 'March of Dimes' Campaign Ready to Roll

Plans for Belleville's Mothers' March of Dimes campaign are going well, according to Mrs. James Sisler, Chief Marching Mother. "By February 2nd, the stage should be set for one of the most successful drives in Belleville. But that will remain will be for the people of our community to turn on their porch lights, dig deep in their pockets and contribute generously."

The women of Belleville and Hastings County are carrying the ball in this annual campaign to raise funds for rehabilitating the disabled. Sponsored locally by the Quinteile Group, it depends of the services of volunteers, who act as canvassers during the one-hour blitz of Belleville homes.

On the subject of volunteers, Mrs. Sisler indicated that the response so far has been most gratifying.

"Already many have signed up as Marching Mothers, but more are needed. I would urge every woman who possibly can, to offer 60 minutes of her time to this worthwhile project."

Proceeds from the March of Dimes appeal will go towards financing the widespread activities of the Rehabilitation Foundation for Poliomyelitis and the Orthopaedically Disabled. While no specific amount is set for the Belleville area, the overall objective for Ontario is $850,000. This is nearly a third more than last year's goal and represents an all time high for the Foundation's appeals in this province.

"I know the launching of Keep the Rehabilitation Centre Wagon greeted as a major community event. And no wonder. Not only does it provide a wide variety of professional services and treatment equipment but it also acts as a focal point through which services of existing rehabilitation agencies can be integrated and complemented. In short, it meets the prime requirements of any good rehabilitation program today — professional teamwork on a continuing basis supported by adequate physical equipment. And the same holds true for other Centres supported by the March of Dimes. On February 2nd, we in Belleville will have an opportunity to give it that support.

"This year the need for money is greater than ever before. More of us will have to give more if this community is to contribute its full share of Ontario's higher objective. Let's keep this in mind when the Marching Mother calls at our home. Let's help turn the 1959 March of Dimes into an avalanche of Dollars for the Disabled."

Babies Were 'Taxes' Enough Said Tax Men

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—The internal revenue service told a Dallas woman she would have to pay an extra assessment if she couldn't come up with a "reasonable cause" for filing a late income tax return. She replied:

"At the time I should have filed I was having a baby and it was next to impossible to fill out the return and get it in on time.

"Besides, my 19-month-old baby was also giving me some trouble."

The tax men dropped the extra assessment.

SEND GRAIN TO LEBANON

Landing Strip At Deseronto Being Maintained

Air services at the Deseronto landing strip are being maintained by the Mohawk Indians it was announced at last evening's dinner meeting of local members of the Lake Ontario Development Association. Representatives from Belleville, Deseronto, Frankford and Thurlow township were told that hangar services were being maintained with a very nominal landing fee and low overnight storage charges for visiting aircraft, which may land at any time.

It was announced that the association would attend three sportsmen's shows this year. These are shows in Toronto, Cleveland and Syracuse. A booth will be set up at each. A report was made on a survey conducted amongst the 18,000 who signed in at the booths placed in four sportsmen's shows over the past two years. Approximately 4,000 of this group came to Ontario on vacation and the other 12,000 came directly into this area, staying for as long as two weeks, with some reports of return visits since then. Approximately half a million dollars was spent by those tourists coming to this area.

The possibility of a Deseronto-Prince Edward causeway was also discussed with the Belleville Industrial Commission inviting those interested to attend a future meeting at which representation to the proper government authorities could be discussed. The construction of a causeway could lead to the development of a local "Golden Mile" of Seaway development. It was reported that one prospective industry had located in Morrisburg because it could not wait on the possibility of a causeway being established.

The development of Highway 33 from Trenton to Frankford as a scenic route by the Department of Highways has already progressed with the establishment of one roadside park with about twenty-five picnic tables. This park was in use the latter part of last season.

Add Jack Ireland will take over as interim secretary when Bob Hamilton leaves.

Crippled Children's Centre-- Its Purpose and Operation

By DR. V. BERKELEY

Medical Director
Physical Medicine Department,
The Canadian Red Cross Society
Windsor

This is the third of a series of four articles written by leading medical specialists on behalf of the Ontario Crippled Children's Centre Building Fund, 62 King St. East, Toronto 1.

To those of us who are concerned with the professional care of crippled children, the plan to build a centre in Toronto for their benefit comes as welcome news. We look forward to having a consultation service for difficult problems, and we foresee much needed research being done on many unsolved problems.

Here in Windsor, where there is a centre for treatment, training and other needs of crippled children, we have developed a program which has benefited children from all part of Essex County and even beyond. It has been made possible by the united efforts of several organizations. The Crippled Children's Centre was established by the Red Cross Society, and works in close co-operation with the Cerebral Palsy Parents' Association, the service clubs of the area that are associated with the Ontario Society for Crippled Children and similar bodies.

The extent of the work seems little known to the public, judging from the reaction of parents who first experienced its services. Let us assume, for instance, that a young couple is in a doctor's office in Essex County. They are unaware of the condition of their seemingly healthy baby — just one of the commonest of the many crippling disorders that the centre treats, cerebral palsy.

EXPLANATION GIVEN

The earnest young people concerned; their child, nearly two years old has not attempted to walk. As gently as possible, the doctor explains what his examinations have disclosed, that little Johnny suffered some form of brain damage during or before birth, and that it is important to know the extent of that damage. The doctor then refers them to the Centre. When they are puzzled that only at the Centre will this be ascertained, the doctor explains further:

Johnny must actively participate in the study of himself because the tests will include muscle strength, joint flexibility, hand function, intelligence, emotional reaction, behavior, speech, hearing and a multitude of similar things, all conducted by skilled and specially-trained persons who get to know him and put him at his ease over a period of time. It may take four to twelve weeks, with several visits each week. Then the knowledge gained from the tests must be assessed by physicians who are specialists and who see many cases like Johnny's. At the centre, too, the doctor explains, the specialists who perform the tests and assess them are able to meet as a group in the discussion of their findings, and then in turn they can work with Johnny's doctor in planning his treatment. In addition, however, to the treatment, there will be no problems in special training for the little boy as he progresses, requiring such things as physical therapy, speech and hearing therapy, occupational therapy and even special school facilities for teaching children like him.

Thus the parents begin to realize what has been evolved over the years, through joint professional and voluntary organization efforts, to aid children who have been crippled either by congenital or other afflictions or by accidents. They learn about the team of four specialists who study the case finally, conferring with the family doctor, specialists in orthopaedics, pediatrics, psychology and physical medicine. And when, with Johnny, they visit the centre, they meet the trained therapists and nurses, and they see the great amount of special equipment needed to provide the attentions Johnny will require.

BASIC REQUIREMENTS

In effect, the doctor explains to the young parents, there are three basic requirements for the successful treatment, training and development of a crippled child. These are:

1. Total evaluation of the child.

2. Parents' education of the exact nature of the child's condition and problems, and the role they must play for the full benefit of their child.

3. An evaluation and treatment centre for crippled children especially designed and staffed, and administered so as to work complementary to, and in liaison with the family doctor and the family.

Parent groups, such as the Cerebral Palsy Parents' Association, find in such a centre a common bond, and willingly join the old others by providing transportation for those who require it, and so on. Also, the district nurses and therapists of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, who travel into areas where attention can be given children more remote from such a centre, can obtain advice and instructions, and can report progress of their charges.

In a very brief form, this describes such a centre as that of the Red Cross in Windsor. But here we are aware of the need for a major unit, a place where research on the many unsolved, and even mysterious, causes of children's crippling can be studied and where still unknown methods of treating these conditions can be developed. Such a place would fill an enormous need.

ABUSE OF POWER

in industries under its control creates unrest throughout society and is a principal contributor to inflation.

Labor wasn't wholly to blame for economic instability but "what makes big labor show up so badly in this mad race is that they have the inside track and are taking full advantage of it."

The unemployment exchange between Mr. Starr and Mr. Martin centred on figures of registrations for jobs at National Employment Service offices, totalling 749,886 at Jan. 8 against 796,701 a year earlier and 514,229 in mid-December.

Mr. Starr emphasized the 4.3-per-cent decline in the NES figure from the level a year earlier.

SAYS FIGURE TOO LOW

Mr. Martin said the Jan. 8 NES figure was too low by possibly 50,000 who didn't register for jobs because their claim to unemployment insurance benefits had been exhausted. He added there also were another 50,000 fishermen not included in the list.

Mr. Martin said the government "is not giving any evidence of an ability or capacity really to do something about this very serious problem."

Mr. Starr likened Opposition Leader Pearson's criticisms earlier in the debate to "an old maid screaming about a man under the bed . . . while they have been screaming, this government has been taking action continually."

SENATE TOPIC TOO

Unemployment also came up in the Senate where Opposition Leader W. Ross Macdonald said Canada wouldn't be faced with serious unemployment and inflation if the government had followed the financial policies of the previous Liberal administration.

Mayo Marsh (CCF—Timmins) said attempts to fix the blame between Liberals and Conservatives for the country's problems are getting "rather stale."

A crash program of public works wasn't the solution and the government ought to seek others.

Wedding

KOTCHAPAW — COULTER

Avenue Road Christian and Missionary Alliance Church, Toronto, was the scene of an interesting wedding at two o'clock, Saturday, December 27, 1958, when Doreen Mae Coulter became the bride of Colin James Kotchapaw. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson Coulter, 15 Regenburg Drive, Scarborough, Ontario, while the bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Kotchapaw, R. R. 2 Picton.

The Rev. Donald Simpson conducted the ceremony in a lovely setting of baskets of white blooms and candelabra of two large Christmas wreaths with lights and candles.

Traditional wedding music was played by Miss Selma Sarl, of Toronto. The soloist was Jon. Carnegie of Kingston, rendered "Because," "The Lord's Prayer" and "The Wedding Prayer" (Handel).

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in a full-length gown of satin embrassed with seed pearls, featuring a skirt with draped panels and bustle at the back with slight train. Empire waistline, low, square neckline and short sleeves. The fit-ter-tip veil of French illusion fell with the bride's train and was held by a halo headband of French illusion tulle appliqued with satin rosettes and seed pearls. She wore elbow-length kid gloves and carried a cluster of five large red roses surrounded by stephanotis and lilies-of-the-chevalley.

Mrs. Donald Kotchapaw, R. R. 2 Picton, was matron of honour, while Miss Ruth Spence and Miss Edalyne Brandi, both of Toronto, were bridesmaids. They were gowned alike in strait-length dresses of red velvet made on Princess line with V neckline front and back and three-quarter length sleeves. They wore short white gloves and white accessories. They wore halo effect headdresses in three shades of red roses. They bouquets were of whit. carnations.

Flower girl was Miss Marilyn Kotchapaw, R. R. 2 Picton and Miss Janice Ruggles of Montreal. They were pretty in street-length dresses of green velvet with short puff sleeves and bows at the back. They had white gloves and black patent leather shoes and carried small bosegays of three shades of red roses.

Mr. Donald Kotchapaw, R. 2 Picton, was groomsman while ushers were Mr. Robert Wylie of Otawa and Wilson Coulter of Toronto.

The reception was held at Prince Arthur House, Toronto. The bride's mother chose a floor-length green suit with matching hat trimmed with mink, black purse and gloves, gold scarf and gloves and corsage of gold roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a peacock blue suit with matching jacket and black accessories with corsage of three shades of red roses.

The bride's table was centred with the three-tier wedding cake in white decorated with clusters of pink and white rosettes flanked by miniature Christmas trees and tall tapers.

For travelling to Niagara Falls and Rochester, the bride donned a teal blue dress-under suit with muskrat shortie jacket, hat of blue-velvet leaves, black accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Married Girl Can Remain On Police Force

TORONTO (CP)—The Metropolitan Toronto Police Commission has decided that a policewomen may remain on the force after her marriage but must leave when motherhood approaches.

Police Chief James Mackey had told the board that there was no hard and fast rule.

He asked that policewomen get permission to remain on the force after they marry as a safeguard against the possibility of their resigning "on undesirable" man.

Magistrate C. O. Bick said lack of supervision of children was a cause of juvenile crime and for this reason policewomen should continue to look after their children rather than remain on the force.

Women Seek Right to Vote In Bahamas

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Doris Johnson is back at work in the office of the University of Toronto after lecturing politicians and governors in the Bahamas on the right of women in her native Bahamas.

Mrs. Johnson, studying for her master of education degree here, said Tuesday night she returned here after two weeks of "completely the exemple of Emmeline Pankhurst." Mrs. World War suffragette leader whose followers chained themselves to railings.

Mrs. Johnson, a widow and former elementary school teacher, said the Bahamas women are displeased with recommendations of Alan Lennox-Boyd, British secretary of state for colonial affairs, for a universal franchise for men.

Under the recommendation 54,000 women would be without the vote.

The women also want representation in juries, government boards and commissions and women appointed as justices of the peace.

FEMALE RATIO

Women now comprise more than 7,750,000 women workers in Britain in 1958, about 48,000 were 70 years old, or older.

Sunny Mexico' Viewed by Fine Audience at B.C.I. Auditorium

To be whisked from icy pavements and winter's piercing winds by the magic carpet of a master narrator, photographer, Phil Walker, to the lovely terrain of sunny Mexico was the happy experience, last evening, of the fine assembly of adventure lovers at the Collegiate auditorium.

After two years of strenuous work over mountains and river plateaus, Mr. Walker has produced one of the finest color films in the Adventure Series, which the Kiwanis Club has provided for Belleville citizens, and neighboring districts that of colorful Mexico.

Introduced by the Kiwanis secretary, Mr. C. Wishart, the speaker began his film tour by showing a map with the 'heart of Mexico' outlined and including Mexico City, the capital; Guadalajara; Oaxaca; Taxco; Acapulco, and other fascinating cities, countrysides, and villages with their exotic costumes and fiestas, beautiful scenery, and industries.

LAN'D OF TOMORROW

"Mexico does not run on schedule, but is the land of 'tomorrow,' where life is on a leisurely basis," he said, and there as some suppose, but a land of lofty mountains, sheltered valleys, and fertile plateaus. The climate is a mixture of, tropical and temperate, most of it gentially lovely flowers, where on-hibs and fragrant gardenias be grown in the open air, and after field covered with yellow flowers. It has many waterfalls, leisurely moving rivers, and miles of sandy beaches.

In the city streets balloon vendors meander up and down between the flower markets, and in the streets shoe-shiners polish shoes for one peso. Churches and lofty cathedrals dot the landscapes with their magnificence, and the ancient Aztec leaf interiors. Brass bands are foun. in every city playing for Sunday concerts and ball fights.

DELIGHTFUL POTTERY

In Pueblo, backed by lofty volcanic mountains and about 1½ 000 feet, the natives work at pottery, which is famous the world in Mexico. The vases are beautifully molded and exceedingly delightful in design and color. It is a town of churches, and has a population of from 10,- 000 to 12,000. Tiles in mosaic design are also manufactured.

FIESTA DANCES

Fiesta dances are almost a daily occurrence where the natives in costume enjoy themselves in non-professional folk dances. Music is furnished by the bands and marimbas.

Each town has its own industry, and each family its own special yeark. Bread and buns are delivered by a baker boy carrying the buns in a large basket on his head and nonchalantly darting in and out among the traffic on a speeding bicycle. Textiles are of many colors, and types, even a VW was shown, also a little reddish brown bug scampering in and out.

One of the peculiar ceremonies noted was the feasting with the dead, known as the "All Souls Night." They meet in cemeteries at night with lighted candles, and a setting of flowers.

Mexico City has a population of four and one-half million, is most modern, with tall skyscrapers and tree-lined avenues, and busy streets. The buildings are marble, among which is the lovely Palace of Beaux Arts Administration Building. The Pyramid of the Sun, built about 31 B.C., and the place of human sacrifice, the serpent temple, were also shown.

Taxco is a place of perfect climate, a farming community, and also some silver mines. This city is a national monument, and is today as it was when founded. It has silver shops and handmade jewellery, almost priceless; an artist's town.

Acapulco, the city of flowers, known as the Riviera of Mexico, is a beautiful bay haven, and main industry, which is provided by its lovely sunny beaches, is deep sea fishing. Fishing is enjoyed here for sport, with a tall fish a good fighter.

In the plateaus, farming consists of corn and sugar cane, with the work being done by oxen, and one outstanding handicraft is the making of palm leaf hats; while yet another one shown during the narration-film was the gold and silver jewellery, many designs and types, consisting of flowers, plants, and drinking glasses.

A most delightful showing, each one seemingly better than its predecessor.

Work of C.C.S. Told to Soroptimists

The monthly dinner meeting of the Soroptimist Club of Belleville was held at Lattimer's Town Room.

President Georgia Smith conducted a short business meeting. Letters were read from indigent persons thanking the club for their help at Christmas time.

The Soroptimist Club gives aid to ten different persons each Christmas.

Georgia Smith read a letter from the Sister Club in Bath, England, extending an invitation to visit their club at the next conference which will be held in London, England.

A successful financial report was given by the treasurer, Tilde Mazer.

Mrs. Lee Gulls gave a short resume of the meeting of the parliament at Ottawa. All wives of the members and daughters over 18 years of age were guests at the opening and at the various teas, finishing, concluding with a tea given by Mrs. Diefenbaker.

Helen Colton, a member of the Soroptimist club, and supervisor for the Society for Crippled Children in the Belleville area, gave an interesting talk on the work in this society. She stated there were only ten clubs in all the province of Ontario and by 1958 there were 200 service clubs.

The Society for Crippled Children has hospital facilities for the handicapped children in Toronto where they also supply all sorts of appliances, wheel chairs, braces, crutches, to enable the children to sit, walk and in many instances become valuable members of society.

This Society also has a camp on the Muskoka Lakes for the benefit of the children. The Belleville area covered by Miss Helen Colton are Hastings, Prince Edward and Lennox and Addington counties; taking care of children from infancy to the age of 21 with any crippling conditions.

Clinic facilities for children are held in Belleville on the 2nd and 4th Wednesday in the month and in 1958 over 600 children were treated at this clinic.

The Society for Crippled Children operates a Treasure Chest School in Toronto for boys from 16 to 18 where they are trained in business administration, office practice and watch repairs. Girls are trained for the Variety club. To date there have been 149 graduates who are gainfully employed.

The funds to carry on the work of the Society for Crippled Children are obtained from the sale of Easter Seals which will be conducted in February.

A vote of thanks was extended to Miss Colton for this interesting talk, by Dorothy Mitchener.

Wall St. Place Where Age Of Woman Is Advantage

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK (AP) — If you're a woman, preferably over 40, possibly a widow and interested in love's ensnarls, you have a chance to make good in Wall Street.

Previous business experience is not necessary.

"Wall Street is one place where age is an advantage instead of a liability," says Mrs. Margaret Kennedy, widow of a partner in a stock exchange firm which recently added her name to its list.

"There are many women who have gone into the brokerage business after middle age and are making great successes."

TAKES TURNIPS

"Often they are widows suddenly faced with the responsibility of investing their own money. They start by asking advice of friends, and often end up by giving advice to these same friends.

"People are likely to have confidence in someone with experience. A woman who has invested her own money wisely can give sound advice to others. On the other hand, an investor might be charmed by some cute young thing just out of college, but he wouldn't take her financial advice very seriously."

STARTED YOUNG

Mrs. Kennedy, however, is an exception to her own rule. She began her career at the age of 18, and since then has started her own business since the age of 8, she announcedly, explaining:

"My father was a St. Louis lawyer who suddenly got interested in turnips and thought we ought to make a stock chart for him to follow. I was the only one home to New York and started publishing The Wall Street Analyst. I was the only one at the age of 15, and later became editor."

Mrs. Kennedy married at age 16 and widowed at 20, at which time she started her Wall Street newsletter service. She is now on one daughter and two grandchildren, lives in a Manhattan apartment and spends most of her waking hours studying the market.

HAS DRAWBACKS

More and more women are getting into the brokerage business, says Mrs. Kennedy, but she does not advise it as a career for a girl just out of college. She explains:

"Wall Street isn't set up to give long-term training programs and offer pensions and security like big business. It's too competitive. There are quite a lot of young women who get in as research and analyst departments of stock exchange firms, but they usually quit to get married.

"Women who study economics and English. But most of those who stay in the field are older and then quit to get married.

The most successful women in Wall Street are those who broke age hoses around the country. They usually got there through the necessity of having to invest their own money—usually a husband's insurance money—and then by the necessity of having to invest their own money—usually a husband's insurance money—and then through the necessity of having to invest their own money—usually a husband's insurance money—and then by the necessity of having to invest their own money—usually a husband's insurance money—and then by the necessity of having to invest their own money—usually a husband's insurance money—and then by TORONTO (CP) — Ballet is growing in Canada, and with it grows the need for backstage workers, says Kay Ambrose, artistic director of the National Ballet Company of Toronto.

Not everybody interested in ballet can become a ballerina, but there are plenty of rewarding careers behind the scenes for those who are prepared to work, she said.

They can be costume designers, specialists in branches of costuming such as matching colors and painting cloth, or they can design and build sets. She says there is unlimited scope for electricians and special-effects men.

LOWLY START

But anyone who wants to get into backstage ballet may have to start at the bottom, and that's how Miss Ambrose started.

English by birth, she was brought up in France, and then studied art at Reading University, England. She had learned something of ballet in a French boarding school. At Reading she played centre on a boys' ice hockey team.

Her first job after graduation was as cook, for a pair of vegetarians. She also worked for a plumber, and did newspaper illustrations of sports and drama, which included interviews and sketches of ballerinas.

ALL LENGTHS

"I've never done anything in my life which has not been useful backstage at some time," said Miss Ambrose. "Even the plumbing."

In 1942, she wrote the first of eight books on ballet, and in 1946 she toured India and Europe with Ram Gopal, an Indian dancer.

"I wanted to study dancing in India and Ceylon, because it is supposed to be the birthplace of dancing as we know it," she said.

She has worked with the Sadler's Wells ballet in England, and with the British ballet, and now is supervisor of costumes and sets for the Toronto company.

"There are jobs for all talents in ballet," she emphasized.

SUGGESTION FOR RECEIVING LINE AT GOLDEN WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I are planning to celebrate our Golden Wedding Anniversary soon. Because our reception is small, we would like to have a big celebration for our fiftieth anniversary. We want to have friends out from 3-to-5 or 5-to-7 on Sunday to serve at a fashionable club here. We plan to invite about 300 guests. We have a son, a daughter, a son and daughter-in-law, and three grandchildren. Please tell me, Mrs. Beeckman, how many of these important people should be in the receiving-line, and in what order they should stand.

I would like to have them all receive with us, but have been told that is "not done." If this is true, what important place may I ask them to take at the celebration? Thank you so much for your kind help.—M. F.

There is no rule as to who is to be in the receiving-line of the Wedding Anniversary celebration. It depends on your preference. However, I do think that you have been wisely advised against having too many in the receiving-line.

I'd like to urge that only You Two receive together at this so-important and so-glorious occasion. You, the "bride," standing at the right of your husband, the "groom." No one else to share the spotlight. No one to share the glory of the Golden Hour of your Golden Wedding. You might ask your son and his wife to stand together at the entrance of the room where you are to receive, to greet and welcome the guests. You and your husband alone. Then your son to take over the honor and responsibility of making the first and most important toast to "The Bride and Bridegroom," and ask a friend to sing the "The Bride Cuts the Cake;" as supported by the birthplace of dancing as we know it." she said.

Your daughter could have a most important role in mingling with the British ballet, and now is supervisor of costumes and sets for the Toronto company.

"There are jobs for all talents in ballet," she emphasized.

Lydia D. — Mother has been belting.

Mrs. M. F. — There's no moral law against fun.

Lydia D. — I am all upset about my mother, a 70-year-old widow who seems to have suddenly gone off her track, or should I say on the track?

Mother has always been a strait - laced, religious woman. Recently she met a man her own age, who has spent most of his life gambling and betting on the horses. For some reason he and Mother took a liking to one another and they go off to watch the races nearly every day. Mother has been betting and claims she has been winning so far, but what'll happen when she doesn't win? Her income is very small.

Mostly I'm concerned about everyone knowing all about this. It's terrible embarrassing to me when I see my friends watching her go off with this man. She should at least have consideration for me and the children.

* * *

Mrs. M. F. — In the three months I've been at this, I've made quite a bit of money. Maybe I've had beginner's luck, but my boy friend says I'm really terrific, and I've brought him luck too. I've got no system — just intuition. I've always had a lot of intuition.

As for my always having been strait - laced and religious — well, maybe I've been a little too strait-laced. Anyway I'm still religious. I can't see what that has to do with it. There's no moral law against fun.

Lydia D. — I really care what my daughter and her nosy, gossipy friends say about me, but it does hurt. And so any other reason why young women can't find anything better to do than observe and gossip on the conduct of a 70-year-old woman.

Carefree, admires stimulated by success. Mrs. M. F. goes off every day to enjoy herself, leaving behind a lot of bored, shallow, cantankerous females. Probably Lydia and her friends are disgusted by the narrowness of their own horizons and project their resentment on the only female they happen to know who is not like them.

The fact that Lydia has no recognition of her own good fortune in having an elderly mother who is healthy, happy, resourceful and independent indicates that she does not allow the smallest beam of common sense to enter the small, dark chamber of her mind. Because of this, her sour disposition will probably never gain fuller and fuller sway over her as time goes on. We hate to imagine her at 70.

Mrs. M. F. should realize, however, that her present gambling success cannot go on indefinitely. Lydia is right to caution her on that score.

In the long run the gambler can't possibly win and we would suggest that Mrs. M. F. set herself a very small allowance from her small income for the purpose of having an afternoon of fun — not for the purpose of making extra money.

My thanks to you Renie for going to so much trouble, and my congratulations to a fine cook.

However, I manage to save enough on my everyday meals to have something special about once a week, which is a big treat for my family of six. I have been most interested in your column regarding wheat germ, whole wheat, etc. Am enclosing some recipes that you and your Readers might like to add to your fabulous collection. My favorite cooking includes roast dishes, salads, soups and more Oeuvres. I bet many are particularly a good cake or pastry cook, but keep on trying and hoping for the best. If you have any bulletins on the above types of cooking I would greatly appreciate receiving them. You sent me your bulletin on Fish & budget food list, and I have followed the plan faithfully to great advantage. Perhaps someone else will be helped by my own findings . . . enclosed . . . many thanks from Renie M.

Explorers Study History Of St. John's United Church

Thomasburg

THOMASBURG — Her many friends are glad to know that Miss Emma Porter, who has been a patient in Belleville Hospital for some time, following a fall in her home, when she suffered a fractured arm and shoulder, has returned to her home again, much improved.

Miss Linda Vance had the misfortune to fracture her right leg in two places while tobogganing recently. The fracture was reduced by Dr. Empson and Hartt of Roslin the next morning in Belleville hospital, and she was able to return home but will be confined to the house until some time in February.

Mr. and Mrs. Royal Hermon of Trenton, were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Walker.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Don Spencer on the birth of a son, James Donald, at Belleville Hospital.

The annual congregational meeting of Thomasburg United Church took place on Monday evening, the meeting preceded by a pot luck supper provided by the ladies. Various reports were read and the officers for the new year appointed.

The ladies sponsored by the Thurlow Junior Farmers in the IOOF Hall on Wednesday, were quite well attended. Music was provided by the Music Makers Orchestra of Madoc.

Measles and whooping cough are still very prevalent among the children and teenagers of the district, although no serious cases have been reported.

A film and Bible quiz presented by the Huntingdon Township Sunday School Association in the United Church on Friday evening, was well attended.

A number of local men are employed at the road building project on the property owned by the Moira River Conservation, east of Schwager's Bridge. The road will provide access to the east side of the area, locally known as "The Flat Rock".

Carmel

CARMEL — Quite a number attended the Sunday School on Sunday morning. Roads were fine with a good supply of snow cleared off them.

Master Murray Whitmore, who has been ill with 'flu and cold, returned to school again. Several children are ill with whooping cough or measles.

Pleased to report Mr. Frank Howes, who has been ill with shingles, is much improved.

Quite a number of ladies attended the WMS meeting on Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. Percy Reynolds. There was a good program. Preparations were made for the World Day of Prayer, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Charlie Britnell on the evening of February 13.

Congregation meeting of Carmel will be held with a pot-luck supper on Monday evening in the church hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Seldon Homan and Miss S. Dafoe called on Mr. and Mrs. Frank Howes Thursday evening. They also visited the home of Mrs. Carl Thompson the same evening.

Sorry to hear Mrs. Clare Horton's mother, Mrs. C. Ketcheson, Cedar Street, had the misfortune to fall on her dining room floor and fracture her hip. All hope she will soon be around again.

ZSA ZSA TO WED

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actress Zsa Zsa Gabor has set the approximate date for her marriage to wealthy contractor Hal B. Hayes. "We will be married in about three months," she said Wednesday night as they arrived by plane from Albuquerque, where she had accompanied Hayes on a business trip.

TWEED — A group of young girls of about 10 years of age meet each week on Mondays at the home of their leader, Mrs. C. R. Perritt, Colborne St.

These are "The Explorers," and their meetings are called expeditions.

They are a link between the very young children and the older girls of the C.G.I.T.

HOLD 10TH EXPEDITION

On Monday evening, January 19th, the girls were present for their tenth expedition of the year.

Opening with prayer and the singing of the Explorers' hymn "This Is My Father's World," the girls then repeated the Explorers' motto.

Chief Explorer (president) Lynda Parks, Keeper of the Log (secretary) Margaret Belch, and Keeper of the Treasury (treasurer) Lynda Gunning were in charge of the business proceedings and the roll call.

A worship service was conducted, followed by games, the closing ceremony, hymn and prayer.

In other Explorer activities the girls do handicraft — make dolls and other articles. At Christmas time they made and sold decorated gift boxes and place cards.

STUDY CHURCH HISTORY

At the tenth expedition, the Explorers continued their study of the origin and growth of their church, St. John's, as it is today.

A good deal of hunting through past history brought to light many interesting things in the story of St. John's.

The girls had their share in the "corn roast" trails. They given the task of contacting persons who were familiar with the life and growth of this charge, and who could give them information.

Their memories of the church went back years.

From all the material gathered, an interesting history of their own church was brought to the knowledge of these young people, who underwent a new learning of some of the old-fashioned customs. These including proof of a "long" pew for $3, a "short" one for $2, and a "corner pew" for $1.50.

FIRST CHURCH

The first church gatherings were under the aegis of "The Hungerford Mission."

In 1857 a frame church was built and 10 years later this was replaced by a limestone building in 1867. This church served down to 1891.

The beautiful large new church built of limestone in 1892, stands now in the place of the old ones and is a tribute to those earlier worshippers whose faith endured forsees and provide for an ever increasing congregation.

The dedication service was conducted by the Rev. William Johns, grandfather of Mr. Carmen Alton.

INSCRIBE WINDOW

A beautiful window, inscribed with the names of the Trustees of the Board who had some of the original responsibility at the time of the building of this church is a memorial to all those early worshippers.

Mrs. Perritt is an able and interested counsellor for the girls. She has been connected with the life of the church since childhood. With her family background of a grandfather, mother and aunts who gave their services to the musical needs of the church, as choir soloists and organists, she is, in her role of Chief Counsellor, handing on this heritage of a love and knowledge of the history of their own church to the young people in her charge.

She is being repaid by the real interest the Explorers are showing in the subject.

LONG TERMS

Normal term of office of a councillor elected to any form of local government in Britain is three years.

Fire Destroys Garage, Valuable Tools Lost

DESERONTO — A fire alarm, received about eleven o'clock on Monday night took the fire department to the home of Thomas Jordon on Stanley Avenue. From causes unknown the garage at the rear of the Jordon home had burst into flames and when noticed the flames were shooting 20 feet in the air through the roof.

The building was a total loss before the alarm was turned in but the firemen doused the flames to prevent any danger of sparks flying.

A large quantity of tools and electrical supplies owned by E. Moon were stored in the building and were a total loss as well as a new bicycle. The loss is partially covered by insurance but the loss to Mr. Moon will be heavy.

Kinettes Plan Year's Program At Jan. Meet

TWEED — The Kinettes of Tweed held their monthly meeting Monday evening at the Hotel Tweedsmuir.

The business meeting was preceded by dinner at the hotel, but probably due to the bad weather the turnout of members was rather disappointing.

During the business session a general discussion on some proposed projects for the year's program of activities was the main feature.

President Mary Bancroft welcomed back into the organization a former member, Pat Halpenny.

It was an interesting meeting and in spite of the small attendance a feeling of enthusiasm for their coming activities was felt by those present.

SHELL'S OILPRINT ENGINE TEST!

Developed by Shell Research...proved in Canadian commercial motor fleets! Shell's Oilprint Engine Test is now being brought to the public. Another exclusive service offered by your Shell Dealer. And it costs you nothing.

LOOK WHAT ONE DROP OF OIL CAN TELL ABOUT YOUR CAR!

Is your cooling system leaking? The Shell Oilprint Engine Test will indicate the presence of water or anti-freeze in your oil. This is important because even a few miles of driving with anti-freeze in the engine oil can cause sticky valve lifters or engine seizure.

Are you wasting fuel? Oil from a car engine that's burning too rich a mixture, either from improper carburetor setting or too much choking, quickly becomes over-loaded with carbon. A Shell analyst can detect this condition upon examination of your Shell Oilprint Engine Test Card. Once you correct this condition you'll enjoy better mileage and more power.

Shell's Oilprint Engine Test takes the guesswork out of oil drain periods. A single Oilprint Test tells whether or not your oil needs changing at the time of the test. Tests at regular intervals will help tell you how many miles your car can be run between oil changes.

TAKES LESS OF YOUR TIME THAN AN OIL LEVEL CHECK.

Your Shell station attendant can take an Oilprint Test at the same time he checks your oil level. He simply lets one drop of oil from your car's dipstick fall on a specially prepared card. The card with your oil sample is then sent in for analysis. The results will be ready for you in five days.

REMEMBER, YOUR OILPRINT ENGINE TEST IS FREE!

Sunday School Lesson

Prostituting Holy Things

By ROY L. SMITH

Dig down into the New Testament even a little way and you soon come upon some situation that is very human and very modern. The lesson designed for study in our Sunday schools this week is one of those instances. It deals with the question of prostituting holy things.

EXCEPTIONALLY RELIGIOUS

Modern Christians are apt to forget that the Jews of Jesus' day were the most religious, and likewise the most moral, of all the peoples of the ancient East. It sometimes happens that we read our New Testament as if they were the enemies of all things fine and splendid, but that is to do them a serious injustice.

It is true, however, that some of their religious leaders exploited them outrageously. An ancient law required that every citizen should present himself at the Temple with a sacrifice on certain festal occasions. But the hierarchy in charge of the Temple took advantage of the situation and monopolized the business of supplying the animals designed for the sacrifices. In this way they made for themselves an enormous revenue, and at the same time exploited the people.

It was against this sort of thing that Jesus protested when He cleansed the Temple, and it may be supposed that He would do something of the same thing today wherever He found greedy and unscrupulous people taking advantage of the religious interest and instincts, and enriching themselves in the process.

CHURCH AS COMPETITOR

This writer has no desire to find fault with those who propose to raise funds for some religious cause by means of a commercial enterprise. But it should be said that in the event any such scheme is used it should be inspected with care to make sure that the Church is not represented as an unfair competitor.

> The Uniform Sunday School lesson for January 25: "Jesus Reveals His Authority". Matt. 21:1-27.

In a certain Minnesota town there were two splendid women, active in their local church and loyal to all good causes, who operated the one gift shop of the city. By good management, and careful merchandising, they were able to support their two families and make rather generous contributions to their church. Then one day an organization in one of those churches planned a systematic sale of Christmas greetings. The result was that several hundreds of dollars worth of business was taken away from these two good women. "It is a little difficult, and somewhat embarrassing", one of them said, "to find yourself in competition with your church". It would have been so much more dignified, and religious, if the organization had made outright gifts to the church and bought their cards from the women.

There are many ways in which the Church is under a sacred obligation to inspect its record as a competitor.

Every person lives under some authority. There are those authorities from which we can escape and there are those others from which we cannot escape. There are those we choose, and those that are forced upon us.

The habits we choose, the attitudes we select, and the mental moods we encourage can be as tyrannical as any of those that are forced upon us.

When Jesus was asked to show His authority, He refused for the very good reason that He was not responsible to the Temple hierarchy. Instead, He was responsible directly to God, and no one had any right to call Him to an account.

Whenever any of us declare our beliefs in Jesus, we are deliberately submitting to His authority. That is the reason He once assured us that His burden was light, and that His yoke was easy. And those who have tried the religious way have found it vastly easier to live under the will of God than under the demands of evil.

The youth who rebels against the authority of his parents has not thereby freed himself from authority. The reckless action may, and probably will, subject him to another authority more binding and more embarrassing.

The love of God to which Jesus submitted Himself is the kindest and most generous authority in the world.

But each of us makes his own choice. After that we have to accept the consequences.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

You wouldn't know it, as we didn't, but Yvon Durelle, once a couple of seconds off the world light heavyweight championship, is sick of the fight game, and all that goes with it.

The other night in Ottawa, the French - Canadian told the Ottawa Journal's Bill Westwick that "I'm tired and fed up with it all. I'll fight Moore. If I beat him I'll fight one more fight. If I don't I'm through. Either way I'll quit boxing next fall and go home, or stay home with my kids and be my business of fishing."

He said "It's 14 years I'm fighting now. I'll fight Moore again. I'll go wherever there is the most money but don't kid yourself about all you hear. That fight will be in Montreal in my book. I can't say where it will be but for all the talk about other places don't bet that it won't be in Montreal."

Durelle told Westwick that one of the worst things he hates about boxing life is that he has to go away. He gets lonesome and his children mean everything to him. "When I'm away I tell you truthfully I get so lonesome I go into a hotel room and cry."

"I got two things in my mind about my kids. One is that I'll never go away from home and train again without letting them with me. I want them here. So when I' train. I don't mind training at home, but away is no good. If I train at Moncton I can jump in my car and go home three times a week and nobody can get in my way. They better not or I'd run them down. I'll fight or work for my kids. There isn't anything I wouldn't do that way. and I'd steal for them if I had to.

"I got two little boys, and you can bet anything they'll never be fighters. If one or the two of them ever decide later to be fighters, they got to fight me. And they better be real good because they won't fight when I'm alive. They'll get school, all of them and get good educations. That's what I want for them."

According to Durelle there big purses in the fight game are vastly over-rated. They are not nearly as big as they look.

"My gross cut out of the fight with Archie Moore was $37,000. I got home with $13,400. Three years ago I decided to give my wife half my purses. After the Moore fight I gave her $19,000. I started out some debts and ' wound up myself with $900." he said.

He said he had a good fishing business and pays h . men good money for their work. "I got a beautiful house. It's worth $35,000, and I get four boats for fishing and that's what I want to be."

His boxing money, however, has helped him. "Before that Moore fight I'm keeping nine men. Look at it yourself. You pay $10 a round for sparring partners and eight rounds a day totals $80 for that day alone. There's lots of this."

He said his manager, Chuck Shahan is "a good manager and a straight guy. No man would want a better. But I'm going to get the best trainer in the world for the fight with Moore. It will be either Willie Pep's old trainer or Charley Goldman who trained Rocky Marciano. The man I want is Goldman who knows everything and can train you and tell you what you need to know to beat Moore."

"Moore's good and easy and hard to hit. He hits very hard. He knows how to punch and he hurts you with every punch," said Durelle.

He admits that over and again he has thought of how he missed out on the great opportunity presented at Montreal to take Moore's crown. "Sure I do." he told Westwick. "I'm sick of thinking about it. I'm sick of everything I did wrong was after almost having him in the first round. I started standing off and fiving lefts and losing him in the second. I wanted the chance in the second. That was the round."

The light heavyweight said he doesn't mind training if he is near or at home. But away it is different. "I get sick of not being able to be yourself and with no privacy. All the time they tell you what to eat, what to wear, what to do, how to sleep. I get sick of being childed . . . all the time eat this, chew that, do this, do that . . .

Meanwhile he says he is making more money at banquets and refereeing than he makes out of a fight. But he is getting out to stay with it. He cannot wait until he is through. "Even there I have to meet a lot of people but I can always get in a boat and go out in the Atlantic with nobody to tell me to do this, do that, do this."

Whitey Ford's Broker Study Interrupted by Salary Cut

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Whitey been taking the course since last Ford is looking ahead to the time when he won't have to worry about such small annoyances as world series defeats and lean salary cuts.

The New York Yankees' ace pitcher is a practical young man, fully aware that he can't pile up the victories forever. Consequently he is learning the brokerage business during the off-season and hopes soon to become a full-fledged stock broker.

The dapper little southpaw looked for all the world like a broker when he was interviewed and viewed at his desk in the offices of a brokerage firm on Lower Broadway.

"Everything about this business fascinates me," he said. "I've but it is known he was asked to Dec. 1."

Paul Fitzgerald, comptroller of the firm, who was assigned the task of teaching Whitey the basics, described him as the most apt pupil he's ever had.

"Whitey's exam is due about the first week in February. That's about the time he will sit down with Roy Haney, assistant general manager of the Yankees, to discuss what he regards as his "unfair" salary cut the Yankees have asked him to take.

"I'll will take me that long to recover from the shock," Whitey explained. "I received my contract in the mail the other day and I couldn't believe what I saw."

Ford didn't disclose the figures take an $8,000 slice from his 1958 contract calling for $33,000.

WANTS RAISE?

"I had intended to ask for a raise if I wasn't going to hold them up," he said. "They've always been generous to me in the past. But this is something I just can't understand."

Whitey won 14 and lost seven last year. His 2.01 earned-run average was the best in the league. So were his seven shutouts. His only demerits came in the second month when he failed to finish either of his two starts against Baltimore.

"I'm just not going to accept any kind of a cut," he said. "In fact, I think I deserve a raise."

Is Broken Ankle Prelude To Rocket's Retirement?

Decision to Continue Play Won't Be Made Until Winger Able to Put on Skates Again

By MARVEN MOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Can a 37-year-old athlete, bone-weary from 17 seasons of competition make another comeback after suffering another crippling injury?

That's a top question in the hockey world as the six National Hockey League clubs prepare to swing back into action Saturday following a two-day break in the schedule.

Burly browned Maurice (Rocket) Richard, Montreal Canadiens' right winger and hockey's greatest all-time scoring star, suffered a fractured left ankle when the high-flying Habs fought to a 1-1 saw-off with the resurgent Black Hawks in Chicago last Saturday night.

Resting in his north-end Montreal home, his leg in a cast, he won't be permitted to don skates again for at least four weeks.

And then? Richard himself is uncertain.

"I want to see what happens when they take the cast off," he told reporters. "I will not decide whether to continue in the game until I'm able to skate again."

STILL FEARED

Although in the twilight of his brilliant career, the Rocket was still one of the most feared forwards in the league by opposing defencemen. And many recently he added more laurels to his mantle.

He was named the top Canadian athlete for 1958 in a poll by The Canadian Press and also received a "big brother" award as the Canadian who provided the greatest inspiration to youth.

Montreal coach Toe Blake and the team's fans are optimistic when discussing his chances of recovery.

They know the injury won't mend as quickly as it would have when Richard was a strong-legged rookie in 1942. But they also know of the Rocket's determination, which has carried him past many a crisis.

Since his rookie year of 1942-43 Richard has played all of Montreal's scheduled games during seven seasons. He was shelved for less than 10 games of his schedule in another six of his 18 completed seasons with the club.

MANY INJURIES

Close-checking—and often illegal tactics—of opponents have brought Richard an assortment of hurts. But he has been particularly prone to leg injuries.

A broken ankle in his first NHL season almost nipped his career in the bud, but he bounced back the near year to pot 22 goals.

Last year in a almost-perfect Achilles tendon knocked him from action for three months after he had pushed in 33 goals, his highest - scoring starts in seven years.

Again he returned with all his natural fluir for the dramatic, firing two goals in his first game back from the sidelines. Then he went on to accumulate 15 tallies for a 28-game season and lead the playoff snipers with 11 goals.

Before he left this year the fans in Chicago Sunday night—and left something short of applause he banged 17 goals in the current season, running his NHL total to 502 including playoffs.

HOWE SUCCESSOR?

Howe, a slope-shouldered 30-year-old right winger, has been in Chicago Sunday night—and left something short of applause he banged 17 goals in the current season, running his NHL total to 502 including playoffs.

HOWE SUCCESSOR?

Howe, a slope-shouldered 30-year-old right winger, has been in the league 12 years and is closing in on the 500 goal mark.

Saturday, Gordie leads his teammates against Chicago in Detroit in an afternoon game while the Canadiens, with Richard's younger brother Henri in the lineup, are at home to New York Rangers in a night game.

Flyers Blank Biltmores 4-0; Marlies Beaten

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It took a long time but it appears Barrie Flyers of the OHA Junior A series are again in high gear.

Barrie roared to a 4-0 victory over Guelph Biltmores Thursday night to record its third straight win and the second in a row over Biltmores.

Flyers, who opened strongly at the start of the season and were rarely out of the first three, have posted 20 goals in their past three games and have moved from a sixth-place slump into undisputed fifth place.

PETES AND MAJORS WIN

Peterborough Petes tightened their second-place hold in other action last night, defeating Toronto Marlboros 6-3. Third-place Toronto Majors moved more from behind to edge the hapless Hamilton Cubs 3-2.

Norman Jacques was Barrie's star as he banned in a sensational game to register his first shutout of the season. Marcel Tessier fired two Barrie markers and Henry Lalonde and Barry Magee added singles.

Little more than a 1,000 were present for an exciting finish as Guelph pulled their goaltender in an effort to break the shutout.

In Peterborough the Petes went ahead 4-0 in the first period, survived a Marlboro rally which took the score to 3-3 in the second and then put unanswered goals in the final session.

Wayne Hillman and Wynner Connelly each got a pair. Chuck Hamilton and Gary Darling contributed the other Peterborough nine of 16 penalties. Jack Martin, Jim Wilcox and Tommy Osborne got the visitors' goals.

FINAL-PERIOD DECISION

In Toronto Marlboro Majors led 1-0 at the end of the first on a goal by Mike Kwon. Lyle Porter and Lloyd Haddon took Cubs ahead with two quick second-period markers but Barry Sly and Jack Costello each scored for Majors to tie the game at 2-2 midsegment in the opening minutes of the final session.

Dave Creighton's visitors 22-27 with both reminders, Denny Jordan for Hamilton and Cesare Maniago for St. Michael's turning in outstanding displays.

Grid Players'

Pension Chances Are Those Of Soft Snowball in--Well

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—There were two schools of thought at the National Football League's annual winter meeting today, to wit:

1. The players association is making progress toward a pension for pro football players.

2. The players association is being taken for the proverbial ride and has as much chance of getting a pension as a snowball has of freezing in you know where.

The viewpoint depends on where you sit.

Bill Howell, Green Bay end who doubles as president of the association, and his committee of six feel they have made progress.

Commissioner Bert Bell of the NFL gives the impression of a patient father who is willing to listen, almost, but will investigate and then give a reluctant "no." The owners he directs apparently are of a like mind.

NEED MAGIC FORMULA

Neutral observers believe the pension doesn't have a chance unless some magic formula not now in sight is evolved to produce $213,000 in league - contributed money to finance the plan.

Bullet Bill Dudley, the former Washington star who now is an insurance expert, took several hours Thursday to explain in detail the pension plan he recommended for the players.

Dudley, a pitchfull, it involves a contribution of $213,000 from league sources and $125,000 from the players. The plan would give the players at age 65, $100 a month if they played five years in the league. The benefits go up $10 a month for each year of service over five.

Commissioner Bell, who recently got flabby and with more than a small degree of firmness, that he thought a pension plan for pro football was unrealistic and unfeasible, reversed his field Thursday, at least outwardly.

Said Bell, after hearing Dudley expound at length, today:

"I now have an open mind on the subject. I want to study the plan, listen to some other insurance experts, investigate this thing thoroughly. Maybe it is feasible."

NO WISH TO OFFEND

Why the sudden public change of heart? Bell and the owners don't want to offend anybody. The commissioner recognized the association before a congressional committee and apparently desires to give all the appearances of encouraging the plan. But he hasn't.

The odds seem to be against establishing a pension fund. The best reaction one can get from an owner on the subject is that Dudley "made a fine presentation."

Promoter Has No Authority For Letter, Declares Denyes

BELLEVILLE (CP)—An official of the Belleville McFarlands Hockey Club said Thursday night a letter from a promoter in London, Ont., has no authority for a current letter campaign seeking donations to help send the club to the world championships at Prague.

Jerry Denyes, team general manager, was commenting on a statement by the Amateur Hockey Supplies Limited of London was claiming half of donations it collected.

He said the Belleville Hockey Booster Club some time ago authorized Paul Lawson of London to manufacture glasses bearing facsimile signatures of Belleville players.

Lawson, he said, is a salesman for Fraternal Supplies.

EXPLAINS DEAL

The deal, he said, was that Lawson would offer the glasses for sale at the rink. They would be sent out to selected persons with letters asking the recipient to sign the enclosed cheque for $15. Persons not wishing to contribute would be told to keep the glasses anyway.

Profits from sale of the glasses were to be split 50-50 with the hockey fund.

Mr. Denyes said Lawson has sent out 1,000 letters, each with only one glass. He said the letters use the name of the hockey club, although this was not authorized and asked for a straight donation.

"We are very embarrassed by the whole thing," he said.

The booster club and a Belleville service club have also been campaigning to raise $50,000 for the team's trip. About $18,000 has been collected, he said.

SENT ALL OVER

"We have asked for donations and have gone out only to firms which do business in Belleville and the immediate area," he added. "Apparently Lawson is going all over the place, even to the other letter."

Mr. Denyes, also Belleville city treasurer, said the glass and letter had been received by firms and municipal councils as far away as Penticton, B.C.

At London Mr. Lawson said the contract is between the Belleville booster club "definitely authorizes me to raise funds for the team."

He said all donations had been deposited in a London bank and do the name of the hockey fund and I have no authority to draw on that money."

Mr. Lawson declined to say what percentage of the money he would be entitled to under his contract. "I don't feel free to tell you," he said.

Hawthorne Skid Branded Driver Careless

LONDON (AP) — World auto racing champion Mike Hawthorn was killed in the kind of car crash he said should never happen to a good driver.

The hard-locked wheels of his racing car left a long skidded mark, a quiet, seemingly harmless English road. The car hurtled into a truck, careened into a tree.

The car was wrecked. Hawthorn was killed outright.

A few weeks ago at the pinnacle of his fame, the handsome 29-year-old Hawthorn declared confidently that a skid was the "absolutely final brand of a careless driver."

"But it happens and you must learn what to do," conceded Hawthorn. It happened Thursday on a carefree drive through the countryside.

It happened to the man who had risked death on the world's most dangerous courses and who thought he had put the death crash behind him forever.

RETIRED MONTH AGO

Only one month ago Hawthorn decided to give up the title he had won in the world's most dangerous sport. He took over from Argentina's Juan Manuel Fangio, five times world champion, who retired at the end of the 1957 season.

Hawthorn was depressed by one nagging thought—the deaths of three of his friends and rivals in the terrible path to glory.

These names haunted him: Fermmando Luigi Musso of Italy and Peter Collins of Britain, both Ferrari drivers, who raced with Hawthorn among the best in the world:

Stuart Lewis-Evans of Britain, driver of the championship Vanwall—the car that won the World Grand Prix.

Fangio has retired. Moss still is chasing the coveted world title.

Canada, Russia, Sweden Seeded Top of Three Groups

MUNICH, Germany (AP)—Canada, Russia and Sweden have been seeded at the top of three groups that will play tournaments for the world hockey championships in Czechoslovakia March 5-15.

This was the result of drawings held by the International Ice Hockey Federation at its regular meeting here.

The drawings put Canada, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Switzerland in group A. Czechoslovakia is seeded second in that group.

Group B is headed by the Russian European champions, with the United States seeded second. Norway and East Germany make up the rest of group B.

Sweden heads group C. Finland and West Germany are seeded next with Italy the fourth team in that group.

The federation ruled that groups A matches will be played in Bratislava, group B in Brno and group C in Moravska-Ostrava.

Maroons Will Oppose Move For Round-Robin

CHATHAM (CP) — Chatham Maroons of the OHA-NOHA Senior A series will propose say moves to include all six member clubs in a round-robin playoff.

The Chatham decision to oppose the idea was announced by club Vice-President Manny Shaver.

"We'll take our chances in the regular playoffs, not round-robin," said Hanna. He claimed it would be unfair to the fans in member cities to change a rule in playoff arrangements at this point.

"The fans have supported senior A hockey all year long in anticipation of a close race for the four playoff positions. The race is exceptionally close with three clubs, Sudbury, Sault and Windsor battling for the two final playoff positions."

North Bay Trappers and Windsor Bulldogs are believed to favor the round-robin system.

Chatham is currently in first place, one point ahead of Kitchener.

The established system calls for a playoff involving the first four finishers. Opposition to the round-robin system is mounting, which would involve everybody, probably stems from the fact that teams near the top don't relish jeopardize their standing by meeting a team near the bottom which might engineer an upset.

There was a time when Gordie Howe's critics claimed the only right winger of Detroit Red Wings didn't earn his reputation as one of the National Hockey League's greatest players. He was hoisted by a all-star fame by two linemates, they said.

Today, however, Howe has created such impact there might have been about his greatness. He has done it without those two linemates—Ted Lindsay, now with Chicago Black Hawks, and Sid Abel, coach of Wings.

A few years ago Howe, Lindsay and Abel formed Detroit's great Production Line that created havoc around the league.

RIGHT-HAND MAN

Now it can be that Howe is raving Abel from the firing squad NHL coaches usually face when their teams run aground.

Howe's effectiveness as a great right winger, one of the best penalty-killers in the league and a dynamic force on Wings' power play is being put to use by Abel more than ever before. And the more time Howe spends on the ice the bigger the headaches get for rival coaches.

In last Saturday's game against Maple Leafs at Toronto, Howe added another chapter to his illustrious career. He was used as a defenceman—in addition to his other duties.

The move to defence wasn't an experiment dreamed up by Abel —Detroit officials have said before that when Howe shows signs of slowing up as a right winger they would move him back to defence to lengthen his career.

"He hasn't slowed up yet," Abel said. "But he needed him at that position because Red Kelly was injured and Gus Mortson had been claimed by New York Rangers on waivers a few hours earlier."

WINGS IN TROUBLE

Red Wings, once the powerhouse of the league, have been having trouble all season. They're finding it tough to keep up with the rest of the league and stay in contention for a playoff berth, something they haven't missed for 17 years.

But Howe is keeping Detroit alive. With the big native of Floral, Sask., Wings are still considered a threat by the rest of the league.

To illustrate how the other five teams worry about Howe, look what Leaf coach George (Punch) Imlach did in last Saturday's game. He used two defencemen every time Leafs had a manadvantage because of Detroit power plays. Usually, a coach will use only one defenceman and three forwards on a manadvantage.

"We were killing Gordie Howe," Imlach said. "If you're doing what you're accomplishing something, even if you're not getting goals off your power play."

Howe's value to Wings increase in every game. Lately it's been ease of Howe against the rest of the league. It seems that when Howe speeds up, Wings win; if Howe is held scoreless, Wings lose.

He's that important to Detroit.

Will Discuss Macs' Chances On Television

The World Hockey Tournament will be the subject of an intermission discussion when Terry Kielty of radio station CFRA in Ottawa talks to Billy Reay, assistant manager of the Belleville McFarlands and Lynn Patrick, general manager of the Boston Bruins, on the Imperial Esso hockey telecast from Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens next Saturday night (January 24). The much coveted World Hockey Trophy will be on display during the broadcast.

Billy Reay, who is recruiting additional players to bolster the strength of the Belleville McFarlands before they travel to Europe on February 1 to represent Canada in the World Hockey Tournament, will talk about his team's chances.

Lynn Patrick, who attended the 1958 World Hockey Tournament in Oslo, will discuss the tournament, generally, and will also comment on the playing strength of the Belleville team as compared to that of the Whitby Dunlops whom he saw win the world championship last year.

Commies May Forfeit Games In Basketball

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—Another victory by host Chile and official threats of forfeiture to balky Russia and Bulgaria left the world amateur basketball championships in a scramble today.

Chile, which sat out preliminary play as the host nation, raced to its second straight victory in the final seven-team round robin competition Thursday night, 83-71 over Puerto Rico and Brazil had won its opening game, 97-76, over Nationalist China.

The Chilean also figured in the Russian-Bulgarian situation. The Communist pair, having reaffirmed a decision not to play Nationalist China because "they do not represent a nation," now faces forfeiture of all victories.

If Russia refuses to play China Jan. 30 and Bulgaria does not go through with its scheduled game Jan. 31, then International Basketball Federation officials, the teams would not only forfeit those games but would have all those victories in the tournament taken away from them. Each team plays the other in the round-robin windup.

Russia has a 1-0 record in the finals, having beaten Puerto Rico 84-53 Wednesday. Bulgaria lost its opener after three preliminary victories, 63-58 to the United States.

The undefeated U.S. team meets Puerto Rico and Bulgaria faces Brazil tonight.

Moore Would 'Kill' Robinson Says Basilio

CHICAGO (AP) — Former middleweight champion Carmen Basilio asserted Thursday 160-pound Sugar Ray Robinson would "get killed" if he tried for the light heavyweight crown of Archie Moore.

Basilio, here for a testimonial luncheon, said he doubted there'd be any credence to reports Robinson will fight Moore before he defends his middleweight title.

"Moore would break Robinson in half and Robinson wouldn't be able to walk, much less dance," joked Basilio.

Basilio said he had made no commitments, but heard a third meeting with Robinson was in the bag for Chicago Stadium sometime in April.

Trappers Tie Greyhounds 6-6

NORTH BAY (CP) — North Bay Trappers, struggling through their worst season in more than 10 years of senior A hockey, came up with a starting display Thursday night and Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds to a 6-6 overtime tie in thrilling OHA-NOHA action.

Trappers have lost 28 of their 39 games so far this season and are deep in the league cellar 15 points behind the fifth place Windsor Bulldogs. The tie moved the Soo to within a point of Sudbury Wolves and Windsor.

North Bay had a 4-2 lead going into the third when a hard-driving Soo comeback produced the tying goals. Both clubs scored twice in the exciting 10-minute overtime session.

Trappers' Bronson and Reno Pepin sparked North Bay with two goals each, Morrison is the overtime perfect. Ken Gribbons and Chas Konkezny fired the others. Don MacLean scored twice for the Soo with John Lumley, John Offidani, Jim Farelli and Ivan Tennant picking up the rest.

It was North Bay's third straight game without a loss, coming on top of victories over Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen and Sudbury Wolves.

MATCH PASTRANO

LONDON (AP) — Willie Pastrano of New Orleans, fifth-ranked challenger for Floyd Patterson's world heavyweight title, Thursday was matched against former British champion Joe Erskine in a 10-rounder at London's Wembley Stadium Feb. 24. It will be Erskine's first bic fight since he lost his British title to Brian London in June. London, in turn, lost the title to Henry Cooper 15 days ago.

Swede Hopeful For Fight With Patterson

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP)—Sweden's Ingemar Johansson left by plane for New York Thursday night confident that he would get a contract for a title fight with world champion Floyd Patterson and confident, too, that he would win the crown.

Before he boarded the plane, the undefeated European champion told an interviewer he was sure his trip would end successfully with a contract.

"And the next time I come here, I'm there to fight," he said "I'm sure I will win—otherwise I would prefer to sign none on the paper. If you don't believe in yourself you cannot be a boxer."

Johansson, a handsome, 26-year-old six-footer, said he was sad to end the contract he was set for signing but said he was prepared to stay in New York as long as necessary to iron out the details.

In New York, promoter Bill Rosenshop said, "It's wonderful . . . I'm hopeful we can get contracts signed early next week."

Young Richard Will Play For 'Boston'

MONTREAL (CP) — Somebody should tell Mr. James Casserly of Boston about this.

First, Mr. Casserly is the No. 1 fan of Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League. Mr. Casserly is 69, wears a beanie of the Bruins colors and has a particular dislike for Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Montreal Canadiens. Last the great hockey hero's "I think you're a confounded bum."

Well, Mr. Casserly, another Richard will play hockey before a jammed Montreal Forum Saturday night and—of all things—he will line up with Boston.

He is nine-year-old Norman Richard, son of the famous Rocket himself.

Norman's team is named Boston. It's from suburban Ahuntsic and will meet Notre Dame de Grace Royals in a 15-minute Pee-Wee game, an affair to help publicize Minor Hockey Week in Canada. The game will be staged prior to the NHL game between Canadiens and New York Rangers.

Oh, yes, Mr. Casserly: Norman wears sweater No. 9, the same number as his illustrious dad.

Williams May Sign Today

BOSTON (AP)—Ted Williams, in remarkable condition for his 40 years, was expected to sign his 1959 Boston Red Sox baseball contract today.

The lefthanded slugging left fielder figured to retain his status as the highest paid athlete in the game when he emerged from a Fenway Park chat with Joe Cronin and Bucky Harris.

"I am better right now than I was last year at this time," Williams said. His contract last year reportedly was worth $125,000 or more.

Intelligencer Loses To Firemen-City Hall

Firemen-City Hall Combines pulled out a 7-6 victory over the slumping Ontario Intelligencer Inkspots in a City League hockey game played last night.

George Woodhouse riarred for the Combines with a three-goal performance. Fred Smith bagged a pair with Jack Kane and Bruce Diamond getting one apiece.

The Thompson boys accounted for the most of the Intelligencer scoring with Lyle firing three goals and Merv a pair. Harvey Bridger got the solo one.

Pete Young handled the refereeing chore.

HELP AILING ROYALS

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Royals, injury-ridden leaders of the Quebec Hockey League, have called up three players from Hull - Ottawa Canadiens to strengthen their lineup. They are right winger Johnny Annable, left winger Bob Ellett and defenceman Jacques Begin. Royals were down to 11 men due to injuries.

Willie Mays, San Francisco Giant's outfielder, looks like and is a happy man as he makes a phone call from his New York home today. The day before, during another phone call, this time with Giants president Horace Stoneham, he got a new contract for the coming season estimated at $80,000. Picture as well behind Willie shows him leaping to make a spectacular catch at Ebbets Field. (AP Wirephoto).

At the McCarthy

Kathryn Grant's marriage to Bing Crosby called spectacular attention to the fact that Miss Grant is an important motion picture personality in her own right, a star who, can, indeed, stand on her own two pretty feet. Miss Grant achieved stardom in "Operation Madball."

Now she nails it down with her performance as the beautiful Princess Parisa in Columbia Pictures' spectacular Technicolor adventure, "The 7th Voyage of Sinbad," filmed in Dynamation, the newest movie-making miracle.

Kerwin Mathews is also starred, in the title role, and Richard Eyer is co-starred as the Genie. The Arabian Nights adventure is currently at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

Miss Grant followed "Operation Madball" with another starring role in Cinerama's "Walk," and now, her most important role of all, as Princess Parisa.

Torin Thatcher is featured in the Morningside Production.

AT THE BELLE — Robert Taylor and Patricia Owens form a new romantic team in "The Law and Jake Wade," co-starring Richard Widmark in an adventure story of outdoor drama now playing at the Belle Theatre.

Gil McDougald Prefers Trade To Pay Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gil McDougald says he would rather be traded away from the world champion New York Yankees than take a pay cut.

"If I accept a cut," the infielder said, "I admit a weakness, and I have to think I don't have any or I'll give the game up."

McDougald said the Yankees' first contract offer for 1959 called for a cut of more than $4,000 from the reported $20,000 he received last season. It followed on the heels of reports that New York was asking Mickey Mantle to take a cut.

McDougald's 1958 batting average slipped 39 points to .250, but he topped his 1957 total in home runs and runs batted in.

Kingston Wins Tankard Group

KINGSTON (CP)—A Kingston Curling Club combination of veteran tankard player Jack Sands and Queen's University student Mike Chernoff Thursday night won the Kingston area playdowns by defeating an Athens, Ont., entry 20-10. The Kingston rink will advance further in Ontario playdowns.

DENY CONTRACTS

AUBURN, Ala. (AP)—Halfback Tommy Lorino and end Jerry Wilson Thursday denied they have signed football contracts with Edmonton Eskimos but said they plan to sign after baseball season ends. Both intend to play baseball with Auburn Tigers this spring. Wilson said his contract calls for $12,000 and Lorino said his calls for $9,500. The Birmingham Post-Herald reported earlier that both had signed with the Western Interprovincial Football Union club.

The Late Cecil B. DeMille Most Colorful Movie Maker

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP)—The death of Cecil B. DeMille erased the most colorful movie maker on the Hollywood scene.

DeMille always invited superlatives. His films were the biggest, made the most money, were seen by more people throughout the world.

Superlatives aside, what kind of a man was he? The answer is best told in his own words.

Despite his outward assurance, he said he faced his job with trepidation. "I have never made a picture without being frightened. Of what? Of my own ability. Of whether I squeezed the most out of my material. Or whether I created something that would wring the public's heart." TOOK GREAT PAINS

He prepared his scripts with infinite pains. "A good story is everything. If you have that, the director and the stars do not make much difference. They can help a picture a little or hurt it a little. But they can't make a good script into a bad picture, or a bad script into a good picture."

He made pictures for the public alone, though the disdain of the intellectuals stung him. He often wondered why critics were hostile. If the people are entertained, that should be enough. Every time I make a picture, critics' estimation of the public drops 10 per cent."

He demanded loyalty from his ever-present retinue. He denied the legend that he hired only yesmen. "I pay pretty generously, so why should I pay a man more than $20 if all I wanted him to say is 'yes'?

He was a stern taskmaster and could wither an extra at a hundred paces. "I have been called a tyrant, a despot and a martinet, because I lose my temper when I see someone playing checkers on a set that cost $40,000 a day when he should be paying attention to his job. It's the same with alibis. I don't have enough time on this earth to listen to alibis."

He had been planning two more productions on a schedule that would take him to the age of 85—"and then they'll have to come and wheel me away." But after returning from a strenuous tour for his last picture, his heart wore out before he could conclude his work.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Saturday, January 24

Aries (March 21 to April 19)—You have a daytime opportunity to visit beautician or barber and thus have a few delightful hours at play. Later in the day, however, a money problem arises that momentarily ruins your fun. Take it in your stride.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)—You will have to work hard at it, but affairs at abode can be nicely straightened out if you apply yourself early. P. M. you are inclined to use force and scare off one who would enter your home. Use the right psychology instead.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)—A. M. just fine for calling on relations and chums and having fun. Good for shopping, too. Tonight then a problem arises with either a fellow worker, your clothing, your health. Use caution and all will be well.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — A. M. time for visualizing methods by which to increase your abundance through right investments, etc. Consult experts and influential persons P. M. take care not to be extravagant in some fleeting moments of hilarity.

Leo (July 22 to August 21)—A day for thinking of yourself almost exclusively: your appearance, your health and personal pleasure. There is a strange situation going on at home that needs much diplomatic handling. Be kind and understanding.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23)—Any private worries can be solved most ideally now by generosity and graciousness, especially in mien. P. M. read over that letter you received very carefully, since it is a bit of a heartache. Be cordial. Smile.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23)—That group of people you feel could assist you at this time will do so if you go to them honestly and state your desires. P. M. do not become discouraged in the face of some monetary worry. Have faith.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—Civic and mundane affairs impossible to handle during workday week now quickly taken care of. Perform your duties to that sphere efficiently. Get in touch with powerful persons. P. M. do not irk temperamental higher up.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—You have only to fall in step with the fine opportunities and people all about you today to get into the real swing of things. P. M. don't fret over that secret worry that turns up. Laugh and rise above it.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—A Saturday just ideal for broadening your vision and getting into ventures of real scope and magnitude. P. M. take care that one very conscious individual does not put one over on you, to use the vernacular.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Contact all associates as early as possible today and cement better relations. Follow regulations to the letter and steer clear of any arguments between partners and a higher up. Be objective with all and stick to own knitting.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20)—Nice time in A. M. to put abode in most delightful order and condition. Later, run away from housework and dull tasks and get in with interesting, dynamic, delightful people for fun and profit. This will refresh your mind and memory.

If your child is born today ... The attractive child born today will be blessed with a most enchanting smile and appear to have a veritable halo around his or her head. But he or she will require many a pat on the back to bring out the great potential in this fine native. Sensitivity is great, and the slightest unkind word will bring forth a downpour of tears. Good chart for work with or before public. Too much generosity here, however.

improvement in the position of regional carriers.

The board noted that the United States Congress has ordered the U.S. military air transport service to expend at least $80,000,000 with commercial carriers in 1959 and that British utilities civil carriers for military use.

"There are some tasks which by their very nature can be performed only by the RCAF," the board said.

"There is, however, a large portion of the work now performed by the RCAF, such as movement of military personnel and supplies, which could be undertaken by commercial carriers."

The board also suggested that, "for prestige purposes," commercial carriers be used to transport senior Canadian government officials on official visits to foreign countries and high officials of foreign governments visiting Canada.

One task which commercial carriers could not perform for the government would be the dropping of army paratroopers.

In 1958, RCAF transport command carried 14,000,000 pounds of cargo and more than 70,000 passengers.

Sosa Blanco's trial was the first of three Castro had announced for the Havana Sports Palace to justify to the world his speedy military judgments. Of the 17 defendants, some 250 of whom already have been executed, 4 — Antiques

Nearly 400 foreign reporters were in Havana at Castro's invitation for the opening session of his justice.

Sosa Blanco's trial began more than three hours late. Repeatedly the crowd interrupted testimony with outbursts.

Sosa Blanco was charged with 108 high crimes. Witnesses told of seeing him personally shoot persons on many occasions and turn dozens of farmers over to police to Castro. The prosecution in summing up said it had proved he caused the deaths of at least 19 persons.

name as Mrs. Gladys Garcia, and told her she was receiving prenatal care at the hospital.

She quoted Mrs. Garcia as saying she might not be able to help find a better apartment. The Tavarezes occupy a 17-room flat.

Mrs. Garcia said that Garcia prepared at her apartment Thursday night and gave her an account of a "good" apartment in the same area. Tavarez went to the house address, which turned out to be a post office.

She hurried home and found the woman and her three children gone.

Questioning neighbors, Mrs. Tavarez found her two oldest youngsters in a neighbor's apartment. Later police were called in.

DEBUNKING

North Toronto suburb of Thornhill, was asked if believes he was responsible in some other area when he talked about flying saucers and countries being wiped out in a war by a germ attack.

"No," he replied, "I had hallucinations very excessively in mind.

But then I have never actually denied any knowledge of bacteriological warfare."

He said he appeared to have received something of importance, however, from the whole field into the open where people the world over could think about it.

Meanwhile, Dr. Brock Chisholm, director-general of the World Health Organization, ventured the debate be opened up country with a single biological and a few devoted distributors could prepare the entire world.

The News - Chronicle story about Solulmo, he claims, will help convince people that war is out of date.

No government can assure its people security," he said, "All it can do is step up retaliation if attacked.

Retaliation is of very little comfort if you are dead."

The defence research board station at Suffield, Alta., has been working for some time on antidotes to germ warfare but security around the project has always been stringent. No reporters have been allowed to the Suffield station.

PARIS (Reuters) — Producer Robert Rossellini has agreed that actress Ingrid Bergman should have custody of their three children on condition he is allowed to see them wherever he visits France, their lawyers announced Wednesday.

Colored, Indian Populations Have No Direct Voice in South African Government

South Africa's biggest minority groups have almost no voice in the country's affairs, Russell Elman, former Canadian Press Staff Writer now touring the Commonwealth, describes their position under the government's racial segregation policy.

By RUSSELL ELMAN

CAPETOWN, South Africa (CP) —In the face of stiffening racial barriers South Africa's Colored and Indian population is as politically impotent as the African.

The 1,350,000 Coloreds and 460,000 Indians, the largest and most important minority communities in the Union's complex racial pattern, have no direct voice in the government and are powerless to shape their role under apartheid.

The Coloreds, of whom the majority live in the Cape Province, are a race of mixed European, Hottentot, Bushman and Bantu origin. The Cape Malays, imported as indentured labor from the Far East in the 19th century, are also classified as Colored.

NOT DEFINED

In legal terms, however, there is no single valid definition of a "Colored person." Various acts of Parliament define him as a "person who is not a European and not a native;" in practice, the visual appearance and the society in which he associates are the deciding factors of his racial grouping.

In Capetown many light-skinned Coloreds pass as Europeans, live in the same districts and employ African servants. Coloreds are often highly - skilled artisans—diamond cutters, machinists, furniture makers—and in many instances they receive equal pay for work with Europeans. Their average monthly wage is probably at least double the (£35.25) earned by Africans in Johannesburg but far below the £77 for Europeans.

In the past Coloreds tended to regard themselves as appendages of the Europeans but today the division is becoming more distinct. Racial classification under the Population Registration Act makes it more difficult to cross the color line; residential, transportation and social segregation is being enforced; and certain jobs formerly held by Coloreds now are reserved for Europeans. Mixed marriages are prohibited by law.

Among Coloreds feeling is still bitter over their removal from the only common voters roll in 1853. The government enlarged the Senate with its supporters to obtain the two-thirds majority of a joint sitting of both Houses of the constitution.

SPEAK FOR COLOREDS

Coloreds are represented in Parliament by Europeans. There are still Colored councillors in Capetown but on the whole the Colored population is lesderless and lacks political organization.

The government, implementing its policy of separate development, set up a new department of Colored affairs in 1951 as a liaison between the authorities and Coloreds. New schools are being built, housing estates developed, and land has been set aside to encourage farming among the Coloreds.

"We're interested in the positive side," said Dr. Isaac Duplessis, commissioner of Colored affairs. "We try to find work, provide housing and open new channels of employment. We are here to champion the cause of the development of the Colored people."

In Natal the Indian, rather than the Colored, is the third major racial group. Descended mainly from low caste Hindus brought in as cheap labor on sugar plantations between 1860 and 1911, the South African Indian today considers himself fully assimilated, speaks with a distinct South African accent and has adopted western living standards.

There are businessmen in the millionaire class, doctors, lawyers, teachers with about 80,000 Indians in industry. The Indians have a high birth rate and many families are in poor circumstances.

The Indian is not subject to pass laws like the African but needs a permit to leave Natal. He is forbidden to live in the Orange Free State and cannot travel on the main national road from Durban to Capetown through the Trans-Kei African reserves.

He has few direct ties with India, but with no voice in the Union government he tends to look to Prime Minister Nehru as his spokesman. Nehru's pleas and United Nations debates on the position of the Indian in South Africa are ignored in Pretoria.

Under the Group Areas Act, zoning land by racial occupation, Indians will be required to relinquish property held in European districts. The South African Institute of Race Relations says the Indian is likely to suffer more hardship than any other racial group.

HURT BY ZONING

An institute survey estimates that half the property owned by Durban's 175,000 Indians will be involved in the re-zoning. Less than three per cent of European property is affected. About 60,000 Indians are compared with 3,000 Europeans may have to move.

"We are being economically strangled," said P. R. Pather, president of the Natal Indian Organization. "In the proclaimed areas we must sell to Europeans at a deflated price, and we cannot start new building except in special circumstances. Because of uncertainty Europeans are reluctant to lend us money on mortgages."

Meanwhile, in line with developments for Africans and Coloreds, new housing and welfare schemes have also been launched for the Indians in Pietermaritzburg, capital of Natal, Indian women dressed in colorful saris cook hot curries in their whitewashed prefabricated homes.

Similar housing estates with waterborne sewage and tarred roads are being constructed in Durban. In the Transvaal a new higher class Indian township, called Lenasia, is being built 18 miles west of Johannesburg.

TWEED

Braille Magazine to Include Article by Mrs. K. Belch

TWEED — The Canadian National Institute for the Blind has a project underway to publish a magazine printed in Braille to be issued free to all children in their institutions.

They have contacted publishers of magazines for suitable articles for this purpose.

One of those chosen is a story entitled "Pioneers of Canada's Unknown Seaway." It is a descriptive story of a farmway and little known seaway in British Columbia, and was written by Mrs. K. Belch of Tweed.

Mrs. Belch made the trip along this waterway sometime ago. She was so impressed by the beauty of it, and the interesting old pioneers of the district that she wrote an article on it, which she summitted to a publishing house.

It was accepted for their magazine, and now Mrs. Belch is delighted to learn "Pioneers of Canada's Unknown Seaway" is one of the stories chosen by the Canadian Institute for the Blind for their Handicapped children.

From among other articles she has written, ones entitled "Oo Playmates Soub Your Child?" was published recently by Liberty magazine.

CBC Union Defies Head Office Edict To Resume Work

Montreal Union Heads Seek Toronto Support

MONTREAL (CP) — A union with 675 CBC members decided Friday night to defy a back-to-work directive from its international office as eight union leaders set out to gain sympathy in Toronto for the strike of CBC Montreal television producers.

Compliance of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees (CLC) with instructions received to be on their way from the New York general office would have created a major breach in the solidarity of union support for the 74 CBC producers who have been on strike since Dec. 29.

The CBC announced that it had received the following telegram from Hugh Sedgwick, vice-president in Canada of IATSE:

"Please be advised that I have been notified by the general office of IATSE that business agent Yvon Dansereau has been instructed to take all necessary steps to have our people return to their jobs."

Mr. Sedgwick said in an interview at Hamilton, where he has his headquarters, that the telegram came directly from IATSE to Mr. Dansereau.

Mr. Sedgwick is in TORONTO

Mr. Dansereau was one of the eight union leaders who left by train late after the decision by the Montreal situation to CBC union leaders in Toronto.

Ralph Mellor, president of the Montreal IATSE local, said in Toronto:

"In Toronto, the Toronto Association of Television Producers and Directors said it would oppose any move to extend the Montreal dispute to other Canadian centres.

Lew Casey, president of the association, said in a statement that the association "deplores" the breakdown of negotiations and urged they be resumed "in the interests of broadcasting."

Announcement of the situation would be laid before the Toronto CBC staff at a rally where cheers from a mass meeting here Friday of 900 CBC union members.

MEET LABOR MINISTER

Meanwhile in Ottawa representatives of a new movement placed their case before Labor Minister Starr, but there was no indication the federal government would intervene in the dispute.

"We had a nice meeting," said Jean Marchand, president of the Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor, with which the producers' association of Montreal is affiliated, said:

"No decision was made. Mr. Starr listened to our point of view and we presented to him the internal problems of the strike. We wanted him to be informed of the unofficial steps but made no comment."

The strike was called by the Montreal producers "in order to recognize their association as the official bargaining agent." CBC has maintained that the producers'

Castro Suggests TV Blackout on Future Trials

HAVANA (AP) — An appeal court today considered the death sentence given in a circus arsonist crimes trial. The two remaining showcase trials were postponed until March 2.

Revolutionary leader Fidel Castro was reported to have suggested a radio and television blackout on the other trials in an apparent effort to avoid too much public excitement.

Foreign correspondents invited to the trials had criticized the carnival atmosphere of the trial that opened Thursday before 17,000 shouting Cubans and ended Friday morning with many still watching on television.

PROPER PROCEDURE

A sampling of opinion among the 322 foreign reporters here indicated agreement with the legal procedure used, however.

Maj. Jesus Sosa Blanco, 51, a career army officer was sentenced to die before a firing squad on charges of murdering at least 25 persons in Cuba's eastern province, scene of the bitterest fighting in Castro's two-year campaign that overthrew dictator Fulgencio Batista Jan. 1.

The condemned man's wife Amelia visited him Friday in La Cabana fortress. "I can't believe everything that was said about him at the trial," she later told reporters.

The defence did not call any witnesses at his trial. The prosecution called 45.

TRIALS POSTPONED

Trials for Lt.-Col. Ricardo Lois Grao, 45, and Capt. Pedro Morejon, 38, also career army men were postponed until Monday. They face charges of assassination, homicide and robbery.

Their trials are scheduled in the 17,000 - seat Sports Palace where Sosa Blanco was tried. Morejon and Grao were brought to the Sports Palace Friday before the postponement. They were threatened by a crowd as they were being taken out to return to La Cabana prison.

An estimated 400 persons surrounded their car, making hostile gestures and whistling and jeering. Troops brought their jeeps to the ready position and army trucks carrying more troops took up positions around the car. The defendants were driven away without a direct clash.

Gas Poisoning Puts Three in Critical Condition

BRANTFORD (CP) — Three persons were in critical condition Friday night suffering from effects of carbon monoxide poisoning which killed one man Friday.

Dead is Harry Williams, 78, in hospital receiving oxygen treatment are his son Fred, 47, a daughter Alice, 44, and her husband in his home, Charles Trowhill, 50.

Police, called by a neighbor, forced their way into the home and found all four overcome with fumes, believed to have come from a gas burner used to heat the house.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: A warming trend spreading eastward through the central plains states is preceded by a band of light to moderate snowfall which extends from southwestern Ontario to Minnesota today. The snow will spread all over central and southern Ontario this afternoon. Temperatures will rise steadily in southern Ontario tonight and are expected to come close to the freezing point Sunday morning. A temporary let-up Sunday morning will be followed by a new surge of snowfall late Sunday.

Little moderation of the cold is expected in northern Ontario this weekend.

CONSERVATIVES RAP A. V. ROE IN COMMONS

Company Blamed For Big Lay-offs

OTTAWA (CP) — A British-controlled industrial empire was come under fire in the Commons for action within its growing Canadian sphere.

The criticisms were levelled by two Progressive Conservative members from Nova Scotia against A. V. Roe (Canada) Limited, top Canadian subsidiary of the Hawker Siddeley group in Britain.

Hawker Siddeley is said to have Britain's largest single dollar investment in Canada.

The MPs were critical of A.V. Roe on two main counts:

1. Large-scale layoffs in Cape Breton and Toronto.

2. Meagre help in finding work for miners affected by the closing of No. 2 colliery at Springhill, N.S., where 15 miners died in a mine tragedy last Oct. 23.

CONTROL MANY JOBS

Robert Muir (PC—Cape Breton North and Victoria) said 10,000 persons in his home province are dependent upon the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, controlled by A. V. Roe.

When A. V. Roe acquired control of Dosco, said Mr. Muir, a Conservative member, the parent company promised better days for the Maritimes.

"These miners were asked to boost their production. This they did, but what did they get in reward? Layoffs. Is it not a strange coincidence that these layoffs should occur in the middle of the wage negotiations now going on?"

R. C. Coates (PC — Cumberland), said Springhill's No. 2 colliery owned by the Dosco-controlled Cumberland Coal Company was closed after the mine tragedy, leaving 300 people jobless. All A. V. Roe could do was to find jobs elsewhere for about 200 men, Mr. Coates said.

Douglas Fisher (CCF — Port Arthur) said people in the Lakehead know how the people in Springhill feel. Canada Car, a subsidiary of A. V. Roe, is shifting its operations from the Lakehead to Montreal.

RESCUED FROM FLOODED MINE

John Gadomski is covered with a blanket after being brought to the surface from the workings. A raging Susquehanna River burst through a slope, trapping forty-five miners. Thirty-three were rescued and twelve are still missing. (AP Wirephoto).

Rescue Workers Continue Efforts to Aid Trapped Miners

PITTSTON, Pa. (AP) — New problems faced the Wyoming Valley of northeastern Pennsylvania today as rescue workers continued efforts to reach 12 trapped miners and to halt the flow of the Susquehanna River into the valley's coal mines.

Shortly after midnight, a little hope remained for the men missing in the flooded workings of the Knox Coal Company mine in Port Griffith since the Susquehanna burst from its course and formed a mine-wide lake.

A handful of relatives and friends maintained a vigil on the slope that a chance remains in the blackened tunnels may have led some of the missing to higher ground. Rescue workers said there was an outside chance that, if they reached higher ground, eddy.

Suspend Sentence On Jack Brett, Must Post Bond

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jack Brett, 28, who posed as a doctor in Vancouver hospitals and helped deliver five babies, was given a suspended sentence Friday after pleading guilty to passing a forged document.

Magistrate Lionel Beer told police court that Brett post a $500 bond on a promise to keep the peace for a year. Brett pleaded guilty.

Brett allegedly forged the document to enter St. Paul's Hospital and pose as an intern between April 2 and April 28, 1958.

Brett was released on custody long enough for this very foolish act," the magistrate said, "you learned how to practise medicine now I imagine you know how a jail works."

He was arrested about a month ago in Regina and has been in custody here since.

Raising 20 Children Duck Soup Compared With Running Council

RAYSIDE, Ont. (CP)—Raising 20 children, says Malvina Lee, who was duck soup compared with running Rayside township council.

Mrs. Labine, 65, was elected reeve of Rayside Township, 15 miles west of Sudbury last month on her first bid for public office.

Says the 220-pound widow: "If I had known how it was to be on the council, I'd never have gone in." Mrs. Labine defeated incumbent Tyne Castonguay who sought a third term as reeve of the township, by 1,500 votes.

Among Reeve Labine's current problems are two of the councillors never vote with her and one sometimes does, but not always. But I have to have a majority."

The other councillors are Deputy Reeve Charles Clement and Wm. Lucien Arbour, both members of the township council, and newcomers Yvon Gagnon and Lucien Smart.

At one point, Mrs. Labine said she found Mr. Gagnon's name had been stricken from the fi-

Liquor, Elections Will Be Big Topic in Legislatures

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Liquor and elections occupy attention in provincial legislatures plan this year.

Unemployment, education and hospital insurance are also geared to the likelihood of an election year in late spring or early fall.

A Canadian Press roundup of provincial legislation plans and proceedings shows that elections are expected later this year in four provinces—Prince Edward Island, Alberta, Ontario and Manitoba.

The British Columbia legislature opened Jan. 22 with the throne speech statement that unemployment "is the most serious."

The question of allowing more liquor-drinking facilities in Saskatchewan is expected to hold the spotlight when the legislature opens Feb. 12 in Regina. It is expected to allow establishments to sell liquor by the glass.

The question of loosening liquor laws in Nova Scotia will also come up when legislators gather in Halifax Feb. 26. Legislation is also expected to be a major issue.

The new Brunswick, particularly in the national hospital insurance scheme will provide material for discussion starting Feb. 12.

The sale of publicly-owned Quebec Hydro's Montreal gas system to the Quebec Natural Gas Corporation threatened, briefly, to become an issue in the current session of the Quebec legislature.

But a Liberal-inspired debate on the matter out of order before cause libel suits taken against the Montreal Provincialgazette daily.

Le Devoir, by the premier and the other government officials were before the courts.

Le Devoir had published a series of stories on the gas sale.

Manitoba legislators are unlikely to get into action before March—unless a Feb. 27 vote on the minority Conservative gov-

Surplus in Dec. Double That Shown in '57

OTTAWA (CP)—With increases in revenues outstripping a similar trend in expenditures, the government posted a $33,100,000 surplus in December, the monthly finance statement issued by Finance Minister Fleming shows.

The figure, announced Friday by the minister, compares with Dec. 1957 surplus and parallels the deficit in the first nine months of the present fiscal year is $120,-000,000. For the same April-December period in 1957 there was a surplus of $387,500,000.

The deficit is expected to soar in the remaining months to April 1 as the usual year-end expenses accumulate. Mr. Fleming has forecast a peacetime record deficit of $100,000,000 for the full year.

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—John T. May, 87, a former city alderman, died Wednesday. In the early part of the century he was a well-known London basketball player. He retired in 1919 as hotel inspector of Oxford and Middlesex counties.

PRESENT SESSION MAY BE PRELUDE TO AN ELECTION

Frost Says Session Will Be Heavy One

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario legislature starts a session Tuesday that shapes up as a prelude to a provincial general election later in the year.

Natural gas and fiscal relations with Ottawa loom large as subjects for debate—and a string of others may arise as political parties lay the groundwork for the coming campaign.

The Progressive Conservative government enters the fifth session of Ontario's 25th legislature backed by a heavy majority with 98 members in the present House. There are 11 Liberals and three CCF.

Premier Frost says it will be a heavy session, indicating it might exceed the 39-day sitting of last year which passed 186 bills. Prorogation is expected before Easter Sunday, March 29.

The budget is to be brought down in mid-February. Spending plans for the major departments —highways, education, public works, and municipal affairs—are expected to be only slightly higher than last year.

TAX CHANGES UNLIKELY

Tax changes are not expected in the provincial tax structure although there are indications the government may review succession duties of estates qualifying from exemption from succession duties. Estates worth $50,000 or less now are exempt if left to direct heirs.

A committee of members is expected to submit a report, said to contain some 50 recommendations, on its study of the province's labor legislation.

Prospective legislation includes:

A provincial energy board or department to supervise natural

Winnipeg Paper Says 20 Million Rail Aid Planned

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Free Press says in a dispatch from Ottawa that a government decision to subsidize railroads up to an amount of about $20,000,000 a year has been made.

The newspaper quotes informed sources as saying it will form the basis for the policy announced in the throne speech at this session. The subsidy is designed to alleviate the discriminatory effects of the recent horizontal increase in freight rates.

The story said the government's decision to pay a subsidy will be announced during the session.

"It will be over and above the $7,000,000 subsidy in respect to the "bridge in the Lake Superior area."

The "bridge" subsidy on traffic between Armstrong and the Lakehead was established following the findings of the Turgeon royal commission which went in 1951.

In Ottawa, Prime Minister Diefenbaker's only comment was:

"Interesting speculation."

Harold Scarlett Given 15 Years For Manslaughter

Has Trouble Agreeing With Jury Says Judge

By ALTON GEORGESON

COBOURG — Harold "Gus" Scarlett, Trenton railway worker and father of four small children, was sentenced to 15 years in penitentiary for manslaughter by Ontario Supreme Court Justice George A. Gale yesterday afternoon.

Scarlett had appeared on a charge of murder in the stabbing death of his 24-year-old estranged wife at her home on John Street in Colborne last December 29. The 12-man jury brought back a decision of guilty of manslaughter after deliberating for almost three hours.

As the foreman of the jury stood up to make known the decision, Scarlett's hands turned white as he gripped the arms of his chair in the prisoner's box. He relaxed visibly when he heard the announcement of "We the jury find the accused guilty of manslaughter."

Mr. Justice Gale recessed the court for 10 minutes while he considered the penalty to be given and Scarlett was taken to the cell in the building. He returned to the court to hear his sentence he appeared an entirely different person in that he tension, which had held him sitting upright and tense throughout the trial, had left, he sat relaxed.

Before pronouncing sentence Mr. Justice Gale told the prisoner, "The jury has just recently found you guilty of the crime slaughter and it is now my responsibility to impose a sentence upon you.

"There are several things in your favor," he told the young man and have led a normal life. You have had service in the army and Navy. You have been a reasonably good father to your children and a reasonably good husband. You have carried out your responsibilities at work well and you have attended church quite regularly.

"But there are other things as well. I do not ignore the other circumstances you have been in and charges under the Ontario Liquor Control Act in the past years. The crown had read off the accused's police record which showed these charges under the criminal code but also the convictions with fines under the Liquor Act. Your action on the night of December 29 last year brought an end to your wife's life. She had a right to live and you took that right away in a most savage and brutal way. Six members of the way she lived you had no right to take her life.

"Your plea of automatic amnesia was found favor with the jury and they have accepted your charge to manslaughter and admit I have trouble trying to arrive at a proper sentence.

"I sentence you to 15 years." CHARGE TO JURY

During this morning yesterday Mr. Justice Gale charged the jury on the matter of the crime care. He explained the different phases of the case and the different charges that were presented.

"It is not my deal only with the evidence as presented in this court," he charged the jury, "but what you may have 'seen' or read previous to the trial must be purged from your minds. Your responsibility is a heavy one but public welfare demands that justice be carried and, when detected, punished. If you are to be guilty of any belief you reach a decision that will have a land of lawlessness. You also are to be reasured

Montreal Woman Ready to Teach Stratford How to Make Coffee

MONTREAL (CP) — Mrs. Jo-hane Bellavance is willing to lecture Stratford restaurant operators on the art of making coffee, so visitors attending the Ontario community's summer Shakespearean festival can enjoy good coffee after the show.

The Montreal food expert Wednesday told a convention of the Ontario Hotel Association in Toronto that she would go to Stratford, but you can't get a good cup of coffee in the whole town."

Her statement brought an invitation from Mayor Robert Mountain of Stratford for a coffee date.

Said the mayor: "I'll take her out for a good cup of coffee—after. Honestly, I'm willing to interview here she plans to return to Stratford after this summer and it asked would address restaurant operators there on how to make good coffee.

She said she has attended the festival every year since its inauguration and has found coffee served in every restaurant in Stratford "undrinkable."

"The statement I made in Toronto was intended as constructive criticism and not to offend the community. I hope it was taken in that manner.

"It's really a shame because the festival provides such wonderful entertainment. But half the enjoyment of a production is distorted when you have a cup of coffee afterward and there's no place that's good.

She was told that Mayor Mountain had pointed out his community has a theatre, concert hall and a seasonal influx of visitors to patronize its restaurants.

"That fact that it's seasonal doesn't mean a good place to go to the rest of the year can't be provided," she said. "After all the festival is some of Canada's best talent."

Mrs. Benoit suggested a restaurant decorated in old English style should be built in Stratford

Former Liberal Member Takes Seat in House

OTTAWA (CP)—The action of former Liberal MP in taking a seat in the Commons broke was raised in the House Friday by a Progressive Conservative who said it was a matter of indifferent in Canadian or British parliamentary history.

David Gourd, 74, member for Chapleau, Que., from 1945 to 1957, slipped into the chamber for just a few seconds Thursday night, bienvenue said Friday in an interview.

J. O. Gour (L—Russell) said his brother "sat in one of the back-row seats in the Liberal opposition section" for half a minute" to see if J. J. Martel (PC—Chapleau) was in the House. He wanted to ask Mr. Martel to come to the opposition lobby to discuss matters concerning the constituencies of Chapleau in northwestern Quebec.

The brothers spell their names differently. David Gourd years ago adopted a different spelling of the family name.

The incident was brought to Speaker Roland Michener's attention by Frank Brunt (PC—York Scarborough).

Mr. Michener said the matter should have been raised at the time, but added:

"I think it would be improper for anyone not being a member of the House to enter the House without its permission, so I am afraid that was a matter of yesterday and we are dealing with today's business."

"DISEASES WHICH AFFLICT US ARE AS DIFFERENT AS THE FEATURES OUR FACES"

(Author's name below)

When a physician treats a sick person, he may first relieve pain or other discomforts, but he always concentrates on curing the cause of the trouble. When people try to treat themselves, they seldom cure the cause because of lack of knowledge of how to properly diagnose.

Home remedies that temporarily relieve pain can sometimes create severe danger, because they enable the disease to take a firmer hold and eventually to become more difficult or impossible to cure. Always let your physician determine the cause of your sickness and prescribe the proper treatment, and you will prevent serious trouble.

Icy Roads, Walks Cut Attendance At Market Here

Slippery walking conditions and rural roads treacherous with ice, kept attendance on the local farmers' market at possibly its lowest ebb of the season on Friday.

Only a very few farmers put in appearance on the market square, while attendance at the outside market was equally slim.

Eggs sold at the market at extras with grade "A" selling at 43c and medium 38c per dozen. A few chickens were offered at 30c per lb.

Apples were about the only thing offered on the outside market, with prices at the usual 70c for six-quart baskets of top grade Spys and Delicious, and 65c for Mcintosh. Hamper lots of Spys and Delicious were quoted at $2.75, with $2.50 asked for Mcintosh.

Lorne Brickman, Victoria, Enjoys 80th Birthday

Resident on the homestead at Victoria in Prince Edward County, where five generations of his family lived, Mr. Lorne Brickman celebrated his 80th birthday on Wednesday last. On Tuesday evening a number of his friends and old associates for many years gathered at his home to wish him the best on his birthday, and the hope for many more years of useful life. He received a number of beautiful gifts and messages of congratulations.

His daughter, Miss Audra Brickman, who resides with her father, prepared a most sumptuous dinner for the guests and after the dinner all enjoyed a social hour talking over old times in the neighborhood. Mr. Brickman is quite active for his age and still operates his farm. He is a direct descendant of the United Empire Loyalists and takes an active interest in the work of that association.

At Victoria United Church he is a guiding influence. As superintendent of the Sunday School for many years, he has seen many of the boys and girls of the county pass through the doors and on into the world of business. As a steward of the congregation, he gives freely of his time for the furtherance of the gospel in his community. Mr. Brickman is highly regarded in his district.

Male Employees County Jail Get $130 Hike Across Board

An across the board increase of $130 annually for all male employees at the Hastings county jail was authorized by members of county council as they concluded their inaugural session at Shire Hall Friday afternoon. The increase is retroactive to Jan. 1st.

Discussion on jail salaries was one of the last items on the business agenda, with council accepting the recommendation of the finances committee. Jail employees had requested an increase of $200 per annum, together with a 40-hour week and establishment of a salary schedule.

No action was taken on the 40-hour per week request while setting up of a salary schedule was deferred. Neither was action taken on a request for salary increases for the matron and assistant jail matron.

The wage for casual male employees was raised from $8 to $10 per day.

Warden Jack N. Brown quoted figures showing that jail salaries paid in the county jails in most other counties of a comparable size, the range being from $150 to $400 less.

Speaking in opposition to the request of the jail employees, Reeve Earl Sager of, Madoc township noted that agriculture was the most important industry in the county and although it was in agriculture that the county looked for paying the big share of its county rate, prices for agricultural products were generally lower now than for the past ten years.

COUNTY COSTS UP

On the other hand farmers' costs had been continually on the increase with cost up from 60 to 70 per cent in the past years.

Farmers were finding it impossible to hire help at the rate asked and were even finding it difficult in some areas in the unemployment insurance commission.

He noted that jail salaries were already much higher than those received by workers in Ireland, member of the Belleville industrial commission declared Mr. George Coling of Brighton, L.O.D.A. representative who asked for a grant.

Mr. Coling outlined the work of the Association in the interests of field and in the promotion of the tourist industry and quoted figures relative to the shows at sports men's shows at Cleveland and New York and the Toronto Sportsmen's show, to the Central Ontario area served by the L.O.D.A.

The motion for the county to pay a $500 grant to the Association was presented by Reeve Wilmott Rose of Frankford.

Impressions of their first attendance at county council were given by the eight new members of council, while Sidney Roy of Harbrich Hamilton of Sidney expressed the appreciation of council members to Warden Brown for the efficient manner in which he had conducted the civil business during the session.

Man's Progress Outlined to A.O.T.S. Club

The Bridge Street A.O.T.S. Men's Club held its monthly meeting this week, at which the new executive for the year was elected. The guest speaker for the occasion was Mr. J. C. R. (Bud) Punchard of Northern Electric, introduced by Fred Allcorn the speaker entranced his audience with an address on the technological advances of man over his little span of the last 50,000 years.

Mr. Punchard emphasized the tremendous upswing in scientific advance and discoveries since 1945. Substantiating his remarks with facts concerning the advances in transportation, speeds, explosives, missile ranges, standards of living, productivity and wealth, the speaker drew a verbal picture of man's technological history over the past 50,000 years.

Only a few years man lived in caves. After 45,000 years of this somewhat rustic existence, man began to indulge in picture writing. After a period of 3,000 years more Christianity appeared on the face of the world. Since about 100 years ago all the advance mankind has made, during which we know today have been developed. The cost of modern warfare was illustrated to the point where a B-52 bomber costs more than its weight in gold. Cost of transportation of man has increased from the Wright brothers in 1930, when someone invented the iron horse, to 18,000 miles per hour, the speed of the average satellite in space.

ASTOUNDING PROGRESS

More progress has been seen in the lifetime of the citizen today than has been made by man in his entire history up to about fifty years ago. Each year the individual sees more technological progress than the whole generation would have seen not long ago. Take the speaker's son whereas it took 250 years for man to develop the short bow since a long bow, it has only taken modern man 10 years to progress from the atom bomb to the hydrogen bomb.

Mr. Punchard warned that the progress is becoming known as a moral code. It is up to our society and civilization to provide the morality to harness the developments of today for the prevention of war and the good of mankind.

Technical development must be matched by moral and social intelligence if the former is to be utilized to the benefit of man and his offspring. Ed Buchanan expressed the appreciation of the club members.

The club's executive for 1959 is: Ray Gunnulfsu, pas president; Edson Clinton, president; Doug Courtney, vice-president; Rex Caplin, secretary; Vern Hall, treasurer. Honorary president is the Reverend Harry Davis, and chaplain will be the Reverend Robert Sherwin.

Special guest for the evening was the Reverend W. Woodland, in charge of television and radio for the United Church of Canada. The new officers were installed by Bryce Mackie, district chairman of the A.O.T.S. Men's Clubs. The sergeant-at-arms for the meeting was Ray Leslie and the sing-song was led by Joe Shortt.

that an innocent man should not be found guilty.

"I will outline the law to you and you must accept my statement of the law. You are the judges of the facts and I must accept your findings. All the evidence which has been presented in this court you may accept as facts or you may reject it.

"All I will discuss is the evidence, you will decide what the facts and what flows from those facts.

ONUS ON CROWN

"In this case and in all other cases the onus of proof rests on the crown, that the crown must prove beyond any doubt that the accused committed the crime with which he is charged. You must remember that he is innocent until found guilty. He does not have to prove his innocence. The crown must prove that he is guilty."

The Judge then reviewed the case for the jury and expressed his views from time to time.

Before the jury retired for deliberations he told them: "You must decide on the facts and you have a duty to give the accused the benefit of any doubt. You are not to be concerned with any consequence which your verdict may bring.

"I suggest you pick a foreman. If you have not already done so, when you retire to act as a chairman. Then you will endeavor to perform for the state and your fellow citizens as well as the accused. Honor the oath you have taken and you will undoubtedly arrive at the right result."

The jury retired at 11.45 a.m. and returned at 2.30 p.m. The jurors were served lunch in the jury room.

Following the return of the jury and the reception of its decision the justice dismissed the jurors and in thanking them said their decision in the cases owed them a debt of gratitude for their time and care.

Members of the jury were: Walter Broadbent, Herbert Hillson, Edson Clinton, Ralph Heath, John Archer, John Aird, Douglas Coolbridge, Thurlo Harvey, Frank Buchanan, Wayne Gunter, Kenneth McShelle, and Ray Gannon.

Counsel for the defence was A. H. Richardson, of Cobourg, and acting for the Crown was Harry Drayman, Q.C.

The trial began on Monday, January 19, at 2 p.m. in the county room of the Belleville Buildings of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham at Cobourg and resumed at 10.00 a.m. yesterday (Jan. 23).

Non-European Uprising Against White Rule Not Expected in Next Five Years

Russell Kimm, former Canadian Press staff writer now touring the Commonwealth, in the following story reports on development of the racial segregation policy of the 10-year-old South African Nationalist government. .... .

By RUSSELL ELMAN

PRETORIA, South Africa (CP) — Few South Africans are prepared to predict the future course of apartheid.

After 10 years of Nationalist party rule opinion is sharply divided on whether the government's policy of separate development for European and non-European can succeed without leading to bloodshed or causing economic difficulty.

In view of the Nationalists' election victory last April when they won 103 of 163 seats, no official change of attitude seems likely in the next five years. At the same time a non-European uprising against white rule is also considered improbable in the near future.

LACK ORGANIZATION

Forbidden to carry arms, poorly organized and with no outstanding leader, Africans would be no match for the disciplined, well-equipped European police, army and air force. Overseas interests are continuing to invest in the Union, although at a reduced rate, indicating a certain degree of confidence in the country's stability.

There is still a reservoir of goodwill between the races. Europeans frequently organize relief when African communities are struck by disaster, give blood for Africans and are engaged in voluntary welfare work. Most Africans still greet Europeans with a smile rather than suspicion and last September a black nanny made the headlines at Johannesburg when she dragged her employer's 13-year-old son to safety in a fire.

Incidents of violence between European and African are rare but recently European hoodlums in Pretoria broke up a student group meeting to which Albert Luthuli, president-general of the African National Congress, had been invited. In Johannesburg hundreds of African women, protesting against the issue of reference identity books, were dispersed after police baton-charged them and used tear gas.

Writing in Drum a European-owned monthly for Africans, Luthuli expressed fear of a growing hostility between the races.

"I feel that the (African) people are developing a hate for the white man, especially the youth and the less understanding," he said. "My view is that it is only fear which prevents most non-whites from showing openly their hate for whites."

RECKLESS TALK PARTY

In November an extremist minority wing of the African National Congress, called Africanists, broke away from the main party. Their avowed aim is "drive the white man back into the sea" if Europeans continue to refuse to co-operate with Africans, but so far any action has been limited to words.

E. A. Deane, a Colored councillor in Capetown, warned that resentment was growing among Coloreds too. At a protest meeting against reserving jobs for Europeans, he told a multi-racial audience in the city hall:

"We have always been prepared to work with the whites, but the harmony we have known in the past has gone. Friendship has turned to hatred."

Coloreds are people of mixed European, Hottentot, Bushman and Bantu origin.

Co-operation among Coloreds, Indians and Africans, non-existent in the past, is steadily increasing. Inter-racial barriers in sport and other non-political activities are breaking down and the Indian National Congress is reported to be aiding the African National Congress. Ten years ago more than 100 persons were killed in race riots between Africans and Indians in Durban.

LOOK FAR AFIELD

With no say in their administration at home, non-Europeans are beginning to look outside the Union for support, particularly to India and Ghana. At the recent African People's Conference in Accra delegates decided to organize boycotts of South African goods in their own countries, while at the last session of the United Nations only five countries voted against a resolution asking South Africa to re-examine her racial policies.

The Union government so far has been little outside opinion, regarding it as an interference in its domestic affairs, and continues to implement its segregation policies. However the ideal of total territorial separation is impracticable under present circumstances in South Africa where the Europeans established a base, to a large extent based on native labor." Dr. Malan in Parliament in 1951, "It is not practicable and does not aim at any party to endeavor to achieve the impossible."

The government is still on record as promising Africans "rights of their own" and "all that they had before" but has announced no time-table for the progressive granting of political rights to the Africans within their own areas.

THE FUTURE

"This further development will be determined by those who will have to be governing the country according to the circumstances prevailing at that time," Prime Minister Strijdom told parliament in the assembly. "It was not demanded of the British Empire, for example, that it should announce long in advance when different parts of that empire would be granted freedom."

Christian Fristaan, head of the native affairs information department, said it is impossible to fore cast what will happen for any great length of time.

"With realistic planning, we aim at targets of five years with a further five years if possible," he said in an interview. "It is nonsense to talk about 100 years from now."

Meanwhile despite apartheid, a gradual economic integration is continuing. In view of the large scale white immigration, a shortage of European skilled workers is being met by non-Europeans. Today there are more Africans in urban areas than 10 years ago and the 1956 Tomlinson report on the economic development of Bantu areas predicted there will still be 6,000,000 Africans in white areas in the year 2,000.

LONG PROCESS

The South African Institute of Race Relations, a non-political but liberally-inclined organization, foresees integration processes continuing for many years. While recognizing that fundamental human rights must be given to the entire population, it considers at present the great majority of Africans are not in a position to undertake the full responsibilities inherent in such rights."

However, in a policy statement the institute adds that ideals, knowledge and society are not static. With the passing of time attitudes, moral norms and patterns of thought constantly change.

"With present world trends, is it possible that the year 2000 will see a white dominant minority benevolently wielding power over a large black passive majority?" it asks.

A special Youngtimers' Dance was held in the Armouries last night, at which over 500 Belleville youngsters were in attendance to honor the departure of Harvey Homan for the United Kingdom. Mr. Homan is seen above receiving the congratulations of Recreation Committee Chairman William VanTassel (right) at a special presentation ceremony held at the dance. Mr. Homan was presented with a piece of luggage and a travelling kit.

Name C.A. Baker Acting Chairman Of Centre Board

TRENTON — C. A. Baker was named as acting chairman of the Community Centre Board at the regular meeting of the group held in the board rooms on Thursday night.

The board had nominated John Farrell, a new member to the board, as chairman but as Mr. Farrell had a fire in his home a few minutes before the meeting time he was unable to be there. In the meantime Mr. Farrell will be approached for his acceptance of the post and will be installed at the next meeting.

Councillor Vagn Lange, reappointed to the board by the council last week, was re-elected as vice-chairman of the Community Centre Board.

The naming of the various committee chairmen was left until the next meeting to enable the new chairman to express his views in this matter and to name the persons he thinks would be best for these jobs.

A Hockaday, 53 Marmora Street, who has been employed by the board to look after repairs, etc., of the rink was given a $10 per week raise in pay and it was also understood he will take training in the trade of engineer. When he is successful in passing the tests and getting a certificate he will be in complete charge of the ice-making plant.

The board also expressed their appreciation to Don McPherson of McPherson Tire Sales on King Street and former member of the board for his donation of a set of goalie equipment, which will be left at the rink and for use by the minor leagues.

A financial report was presented at the meeting which showed a total operating deficit of $4,017.48. It was pointed out the deficit was a considerable amount less than at the end of 1957 when it was set at $7,034.93.

In retiring the post as active chairman of the board Cliff Baker said, "I will not be a candidate for the chairmanship this year. I have a considerable amount of work coming up this year as chairman of the Public Utilities Commission and there will be building the addition to the filtration plant. I have enjoyed this post for the past five years and I feel that it is time someone else should take it over. Before stepping down I would like to thank the members of the board and the press for their co-operation during the past year."

Councillor Aziz moved that a letter of thanks be sent to the chairman expressing their appreciation for the work he had done during the past years.

Crown Claims Parts Brought in To Escape Ban

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)— Judgment has been reserved in a case involving the sale of an auto alleged to have been brought from the United States in parts to escape a ban on importation of used cars.

Magistrate Johnstone L. Roberts said Friday he would give written judgment in the case of Benjamin Yuhasz, a Niagara Falls ga. ge owner charged with selling a 1952 model car which the Crown claims was unlawfully imported.

The case is believed the first of its kind in Canada.

Evidence was that on Jan. 13, 1958, Yuhasz declared a body, chassis, rear axle and two wheels with Canadian customs officers. Four days later he declared a motor assembly and other items.

CAR STORED

A provincial police constable stopped a car driven by James A. Earl of nearby Chippawa on March 29, 1958, for a routine check. Wilfred S. Martin, speaking for Crown prosecutor, said the car was "substantially the same" as the one assembled from imported parts in Yuhasz's garage.

Customs appraiser Mervyn J. McCutcheon said revelations state an automobile without a motor or axle be imported provided it is not used with an imported engine.

Defence counsel Francis J. Matthews contended the parts were not a car as purchased and ordered it giving "a retrospective effect to the act by making something illegal which was originally lawful" was the original intention of the act.

He referred to a 1941 court case in which a man was convicted of importing band instruments from the United States and assembling them in Canada.

"The case represented a definite attempt to circumvent the law," Mr. Matthews said. The parts were assembled without additional engineering and were new parts.

In the case of Yuhasz, work had to be done on the parts and one door was replaced, he said.

Peggy Officer Robert E. Thyme, son of J. V. Thyme, Stirling, Ont., is serving in Naval Radio Station Altes Leis, in the Atlantic Command of the Royal Canadian Navy. He attended Bridgeton high school before joining the navy in May, 1949. He is serving as a telegraphist-cryptographic operator and is shown routing traffic through the station. Located just outside Dartmouth, N.S., it is one of the largest naval stations in the Commonwealth.

200 CROSS LINES

Members of other unions have refused to cross picket lines. But the CBC claims 900 have returned to work.

The other CBC unions are bound by a clause in their contracts forbidding sympathy strikes. Officially they just say that their employees are off the job because it is impossible for them to cross the picket line. The CBC contends other employees have given up safely.

The CBC Thursday sent back-to-work ultimatums to the 1,200 of its 2,500 Montreal employees who refuse to cross the picket lines, informing them that if they were not back to work within a deadline—in effect, Monday at 9 a.m.—the corporation would assume they had resigned.

The CBC Friday hired 80 body guards at $30 a day to protect families of strikebreakers. The wife of a non-striking CBC technician was struck in the mouth by two men seeking her husband Thursday night.

Cabin at Motel Razed by Fire, Loss $2,500

Fire loss estimated at approximately $2,500 resulted Friday morning when a double cabin at the Green Trees Motel on the Belleville-Trenton highway was completely destroyed.

A cigaret-butt which set fire to the bed is believed to have been the cause of the blaze.

Five civilian painters at the Trenton Air Station had been living in the double cabin and the men's clothes and other personal possessions were lost in the blaze. One man lost $60 in cash.

Belleville firemen could do nothing to save the double cabin and had a difficult fight in keeping another nearby cabin from also being destroyed, the distance of only four feet separated the two cabins and the siding and roof of the second cabin were badly scorched before the fire was brought under control.

Ohio's Flood Damage May Be Hundred Million

CHICAGO (CP)—Ohio's flooding rivers may cause in excess of $100,000,000 damage and claim up to 30 lives by the time they recede and their destruction is cleaned up.

Governor Michael V. Disalle made these predictions Friday after he declared Ohio in a state of emergency. President Eisenhower said federal aid would be forthcoming for the flood-stricken portions of Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Meanwhile, the destructive combination of mid-week snows and fierce winds which had raced through the U.S. Midwest, apparently had abated along the northeastern tier of states.

U.S. EARNS CONGRATULATIONS

RCAF officers will assume operational control of the DEW radar line.

The United States Government is to be congratulated on its acquiescence in this change in control.

From the standpoint of a Canadian, there is no logical reason why these radar installations, on Canadian soil, should not be under Canadian control if the Canadian Government so desires, and the desires of the Canadian Government should be the sole determining factor.

From the viewpoint of a citizen of the U.S., however, here are expensive developments, paid for with U.S. funds, on which the very existence of the U.S. may depend. Can we blame the U.S. Government for feeling that it has a vested interest in the manner in which these radar stations are operated?

Can be be certain that, no matter what international law may say about sovereign rights, U.S. officers would have remained in control of these radar installations if the U.S. government had thought this was essential to protect the national safety.

It is pleasing to learn that the U.S. trusts RCAF as it would its own service personnel.

Decisions like this emphasize the real and great difference between the policies of the U.S. today and the policies of most other great powers, past and present.

This does not mean that Canadians must not be on guard against invasion of their sovereignty. It does mean that they should recognize that most of these threatened invasions are the result of inadvertence. Any expansionist tendencies in present-day U.S. policy occur in spite of, rather than because of, the political philosophy of that nation.

WE ARE SLOW-POKES

We have a pretty good commercial printing department down here at The Ontario Intelligencer'— but we cannot print a book for a customer in five minutes by Until the other day, we were not unduly worried by that fact. Very few people had been demanding that books be printed in five minutes. Anyway, we fancied that our inability to perform miracles was common to all mankind and, indeed, imagined that "Do you think we can print it in five minutes?" was an adequate defence which could be used by any printer in the world with perfect safety.

Alas and alack, science has caught up with us. Now, if anybody wants a book printed in five minutes we shall have to confess that we do not yet possess the necessary equipment for xerography. We like that word, xerography. It sounds so much more impressive than electronic printing. The latter synonym is vulnerable. Printing is our business, anyway. And nowadays everybody knows there is nothing complicated about "electro." It just denotes that one presses a couple of whoozits and starts a few thingamajigs whirling to do work formerly requiring a dozen hands and at least two human brains. As for static, why to the proletariat that's been getting its money in the air, while to those with wider understanding it just suggests a state of immobility. So let us have it understood that it is xerography, not electrostatic printing, which we do not do at The Ontario Intelligencer. This xerography has been developed by a bunch-of subversive printers over in England. It enlarges a photo on paper at the rate of 20 feet a minute. It is obvious that even "Gone With the Wind" could be printed in a breeze by this system. Texts, diagrams, graphs, charts or line drawings reproduce well— but no half-tones. Heck, the thing will never catch on. What's a book without pictures? Now take the life of Brigitte Bardot, for instance. Who would want—But you get the idea. In spite of the spelling, they left Eros out of xerography.

AUTOMATION — OR RED TAPE?

Five years ago "white collar" workers in the United States were outnumbered by "blue collar" workers by 3,000,000. Today there are half a million more workers with white collars than with blue collars.

The change is said to be the result of technological advances which have converted assembly line workers into push button operations.

If 'tis so, 'tis a pleasant development, but we cannot strung off the fear that the change may be partially the result of mother change— of the onward surge of a tidal wave of paper work, with more and more people being required to wield pencils to keep one man turning out the goods.

Why Sentences Differ

Windsor Star

Magistrate J. Arthur Hanrahan has done the public a service by outlining the various factors to be considered in imposing a sentence. He did so in explanation of an eight-year penitentiary term accorded an armed robber.

Most people may think of a prison term, or other sentence, primarily as punishment. It is that, but it would fail far short of the ideal were it only that.

Society must have the right to punish those who break its laws. That can have a double purpose, to punishment, pure and simple and as a discouragement to the cultural against committing other crimes in the future.

Imposition of a sentence, however, is not merely a matter of concern only to the judge or magistrate and the convicted person. There is a larger responsibility.

Society has a right to protection against those who break its laws. But it has a right, apart from the punishment aspect, it may be advisable to put a convict behind bars where he can't be a menace to the public.

The judge or magistrate must impose sentences which conform to the law, but he must do more than narrow legal principles involved. An insulated crime is led in a social atmosphere and which forms part of a pattern, not only one of a series of similar crimes.

In this concept it is quite proper for a magistrate to think of a sentence not merely as a deterrent to the one being sentenced. It likewise can act as a different factors, and different similar crimes.

Magistrate Hanrahan mentions one other consideration. Among these are the circumstances in which a crime is committed and the manner of it. Another is that a confirmed criminal, who has little or no hope of redemption, should be treated differently from one whose rehabilitation seems possible.

There also is the quality of every case. There is no yardstick to measure all with mathematical exactness.

That is why our judges and magistrates should possess sound judgment, common wisdom. Knowledge of the law is essential but a broad understanding of society — and of human nature — also is essential.

May Uncover Old Whisper

Chicago Tribune

Dr. Machteld J. Mellink of Bryn Mawr college has reported to the archaeological institute that she has come within mouthing distance of unlocking secrets to the palace of old King Midas, he of the golden touch. We wish to caution that he must not be scared off by whispers as she tears down walls.

The excavations at Gordion, in what is now modern Turkey, seek to uncover the palace used by neat summer. Though Midas, who died 700 years before Christ, is known to have possessed a fabulous treasure, Dr. Mellink says that the aim of the expedition will add greatly to knowledge of the Phrygian language.

According to Ovid and other classic writers, Midas was a good fellow, but dumb. This is attested by his legend of how he gained the golden touch. The story is that he found Silenus, who had escaped from a drunk the train of Bacchus and lost his way. He took the old boy under his roof in the royal rose garden.

When Midas returned him, Bacchus asked him to name his wish, and Midas, without reflection, wished that everything he touch. When he found that food, water and wine turned to gold he was overjoyed at his good fortune considered, and Bacchus freed him of the golden touch by directing him to wash in the river Pactolus.

The legend of Midas' stupidity involves the whisper, which we hope to find. Midas made the mistake of voting for Pan, the goat footed piper, in a contest against Apollo. Apollo decided that anybody dumb enough to vote against him deserved an ass' ears. He conferred them upon Midas.

The king hid them under a turban, but his barber was inevitably privy to the secret. So Midas pledged him to silence, and whispered the secret to him on the barber that he finally went and dug a hole in the field and whispered into it, "King Midas has the ears of an ass." He filled the hole, but reeds grew in the spring reeds which grew up to this spot whispered the secret to the wind.

So if Dr. Mellink chances to dig up the original hole, let us trust that she will not be frightened. It is, after all, an old piece of gossip.

Anniversary Of Aviation

Ottawa Journal

This year marks the 50th anniversary of the powered flight in Canada, of J. A. D. McCurdy and his "Silver Dart", and the achievements in not only in the far and how fast Canadians have flown in the half-century but how often they have carried on Canadian wings.

In the four days of RCAF expansion and civilian aviation. Jennies of United States design and Hawker Siddeley Canada, and imported Moths and Avians, and Fairchilds and Junkers Junkers from Germany. Fokkers of Dutch design were in the Canadian skies. Then there were various Vickers from England and the appearance of the motor Ford from the United States, among a veritable medley of imported aircraft. Practically of many now remembered only by those who flew when engines were sometimes known as phoenes.

The air traveller finds today that Canadian-built — and often Canadian designed — aircraft keep formation in the skies of the world. Where are there scheduled services of machines like the Canadian fleet or ski freighters used far and wide across the southern polar continent as the boat, by the United States, and other countries? The short range fighter, CF-100, designed and built in Canada has been the pride of the RCAF for many months. Avros, designed and built in Canada, drone over from the far sea in its protective mists, and the Canadian North Star for reliability?

It is not only that the Canadian aircraft industry has designed and built its own aircraft. It is also that Canada has been able to keep imported machines, and to Canadianize them, and keep them in the air without the facilities for manufacturing parts piled high around the country.

In its way this has been an epic, the development of the air age in Canada. It is easy to forget, in praising air crews for World's performance, that all they have done would not be possible by the planners, the visionaries and the skilled men of industry in which the first requirement of success had to be faith in aviation's future.

Who Causes Crashes?

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One thing the new Canadians can do, and are doing, for us old Canadians is to teach us what we have all but forgotten, the pleasures of walking in the open air, especially in our parks and also in the open country handy to our cities and towns.

It was a policeman who first brought this to my attention more than a year ago. He had spent some years on a motor-cycle, part of his route being through a large wooded city park. Two years ago, he happened to drive on a Sunday through the park, as he formerly had patrolled, and he was astonished at the number of people he found strolling. He got out and wandered among them. They were almost all newcomers, Poles, Germans, Scandinavians, Dutch.

Not long after, he moved his suburb; and the first thing that caught his attention was the number of people he noticed, on Saturdays and Sundays, wandering about the open country and not yet civilized roads beyond the suburb. He too, drives up. They were newcomers, just happily wandering in the good air.

"You see," I explained to the policeman, "you haven't got cars yet."

"That," he said, "is the best of it. They have cars. They push them, and then go walking. You can tell at once, by their faces, because the family is playing right around it. But a dozen cars, in a park or in the country, belongs to newcomers who have gone for a lovely long ramble, and they enjoy it dozens and dozens of times."

To get to love a new land, I suppose, you must walk over it, and

"All right, you can have the afternoon off, but don't let it happen too often."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HONEST PRAISE

There is a universal hunger, and a longing of the heart, within us all, for just simple praise. But it must be honestly given and sincerely felt. Even in the animal kingdom there is this longing, I believe, for praise when earned. Of course we look for it in our friends — and for How vividly he reacts to praise. He does a bunch.

Most any animal can be trained, and when it is, just note its glisten when petted, or encouraged to do something that it likes. Man has had more to do with putting fear into the consciousness of animals and birds than with praise, I suppose.

I am sure that even these bodies of ours need a great deal of self praise, for who else than ourselves can talk the language of understanding with which we were born? HERNIA CAN OCCUR IN INFANTS, TOO

"Dear Dr. Molner: I hope sometime you will write about hernia in infants. My little granddaughter was born very small — four pounds — but at 3 1-2 months has gained to 10 pounds. Then a hernia showed up. I understand this is more common in boys than in girls. Why is that?"

Hernia can occur at any age, and in infants, as well as adults it is more likely in the male. The reason is the abdominal structure: A hernia tends to form at some weak point in the inner abdominal wall Because of the physiological development of a boy, there are more pronounced spots which are potentially weaker. You might almost think of them as "seams" which are formed in the boy's structural formation of the body.

There are two principal points of weakness. Let's talk about them one at a time.

The navel, or umbilicus, is a naturally weak point until the umbilical scar has formed. In some cases of hernia it is not usually present at birth, it may develop, soon afterward.

As a matter of fact nearly all infants show some degree of this in this region, but the general tendency is for this to become smaller and disappear within the first two years.

If the protusion is large, it may be wise to support it. In such cases the flannel binder is usually useless. A better method is to use strips of adhesive which, of course, must be replaced every 7 to 10 days. It may be necessary to continue this for about a year, and irritation from the skin is a possible complication. However, surgery rarely is necessary for an umbilical hernia.

IN THE GROIN

The other common type is hernia in the groin, or "inguinal hernia." In boys it forms along the spermatic cord, and in girls along a potential space called the canal of Nuck.

As many as half of all operations will have some degree of lingering in the early hours of the morning. If pain or vomiting tends to correct itself. NECESSITY

Have you ever stopped to ask yourself the question, "How much divine sanction does my life have?"

This may appear a merely pious inquiry with little practical significance. But think about it for a moment. God has made our lives. He has made us part of nature and part spirit. From the smallest cell of our body to the greatest enterprise of our lives, God is present and working. We cannot assume a neutral attitude about this great reality. Either we work with God and help Him or we work against God and impede Him. There is not room for neutrality or indifference between these two extremes on which we can stand.

The happy life, the full life, the achieving life, the truly rich life — these result when the sluices are opened and the refreshing water of God's strength flows through the lives. If the sluices, rutbushes our lives and makes them fruitful.

One does not have to commit some great sin in order to lose God's best. We can simply not have God's favor because they have never cared to have it, or least not sufficiently to impel them to seek after it. Then there are "sins" — sometimes very humble, ordinary people — who seem to have opened the sluices of their lives and let God's refreshment flow through even a thin line of spiritual stream. Divine sanction! Fullness of life cannot be achieved without it. Nothing else has having if we do not have this.

A Lift for Living

The Simplicity of Greatness

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Emerson said, "Nothing is more simple than greatness: indeed, to be simple is to be great."

In reading history one is struck with a certain transparent simplicity characteristic of the truly great. Saint Francis of Assisi, stripping life of its trappings and going about like a trustful child among the pompous stage play of princes; Martin Luther, the simple monk who single-mindedly held to his convictions, saying, "Here I stand, I can do no other"; George Washington, the country squire from the Potomac who cut through the pressure groups of his turbulent time to keep a singleness of aim and heart — these all manifest the simplicity of greatness.

When the Duke of Wellington died, Tennyson wrote of him: "Foremost captain of his time."

Rich in saving common sense, and in the greatest only are,

In his simplicity sublime.'

Yes, the truly great are marked by simplicity. But was Emerson right when he also said: "To be simple is to be great"? That depends on the meaning of our terms. Certainly the surgery jingle about "Simple Simon who met the pieman" describes no hero. An old scripturist proverb reads: "The simple believeth everything, but the prudent looks where he is going".

Society is believed today by too many gullible simpletons. The simplicity of greatness stems not from ignorance but from the ability to reduce life to its essentials.

SOCIETY GROWS COMPLEX

Society tends to grow complex just as fallow ground tends to grow up with weeds. Back in earlier Old Testament times the Hebrews in their efforts to appease Jehovah multiplied their sacrifices and sacrifices. Then arose a great prophet named Micah who told the people that the Lord was not pleased "with their thousands of rams and their rivers of oil" offered on their altars. He said: The Lord "hath showed thee, O man, what is good, and what doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly, and to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God?"

In religion we need today prophets who cut through the layers of ceremony and ecclesiasticism to the simple essentials of our faith. In politics we need statesmen who brush aside the complexities of bureaucracy and expanding governmental agencies and get back to first principles and individual efficiency. In our personal lives we need to pray each day for singleness of eye and clarity of judgment to seek the essentials amid the clutter of distractions.

Great living 'not only simplifies itself by sticking to essentials but it also strengthens itself by sincerity.

When Jesus looked at the Pharisees He saw, as He would see in some of us, that hypocrisy had inflated their external living so that it fitted the approved social pattern, but the inside of their lives was full of impurity and wickedness. He asked, "Did not he who made the outside make the inside also?" Then He added, "There is nothing covered up that shall not be revealed."

What the inside of life does not tally with the outside, when a person is trying to maintain a reputation without character to back it up, when he is striving to conceal a hidden vice under the cloak of virtue — all such living is a severe strain.

SOUND AT CORE

The only way to relieve the strain of insincerity is to make one's life sound at the core. Jesus worked from within out. "Cleanse the inside of the cup". Guard the eye from the lustful look. Keep anger out of the heart. Thus Jesus counseled His disciples, for "out of the heart are the issues of life."

Sincerity relieves a person from the strain of pretense and thus releases power for real pursuits.

Take it in the home. How the sincerity of love within the family circle restores one's depleted strength after a day of buffeting with blunting business pressures and shadow-boxing with the insincerities of polite society. In the bosom of the family one can say what he thinks, thrash out his secret thoughts, knowing that love will blow the chaff away and keep the grain.

Or think how sincerity in speech would relieve the strain of pretense in what we call our social contracts. Jesus stressed that. He said, "Let your speech be yea, yea, and nay, nay." When the Master denounced profanity, He was hitting at insincerity as much as at irreverence, for the reason that then put oaths into their speech was to give force which it had come to lack because the speakers did not mean what they said. Don't profane your speech by allowing the God-given vehicle of your voice to carry insincere words across the table or across the street.

To stick to the essentials and to have the strength of sincerity may not always make you great in the headlines. But those who know you best will call you "a great fellow" and "a great soul." And that is a mark of greatness.

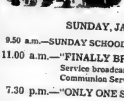
WINTERING OWLS

Have you ever gone winter birding with somebody who kept looking down at the snow-covered ground near his feet instead of up at the sky where birds might be flying or into the trees and bushes where they might be roosting? He might not have been as crazy as you at first imagined, because presently he might have picked up a little grey object and calmly said, "There must be a screech owl living near here."

Then, after circling several trees at though playing find-around-a-rosy by himself, he might have sung at a tree and called out, "Yes, a pair of screech owls have their home in this old trunk."

What did he find. How did he know where to look for owls?

Owls are nocturnal birds of prey, sleeping during the day and hunting by night. Many of them may be found living in the settled Canada throughout the winter months, and although they may hunt over a fairly wide territory their habit is to carry the prey home before demolishing it. The various species have special preferences, but small mammals are the usual diet. These are swallowed whole, and the indigestible part, such as hair and bones, is then disgorged, all neatly wrapped up in the form of pellets.



BENEFICIAL BIRDS

The size of a pellet is a guide to the size of the owl. When broken open, the contents of the pellet tell the nature of the food eaten, and the finding of a number of similar pellets under a tree is an indication that the owl, or a pair of owls, lives somewhere in that tree. The examination of pellets proves that owls could be classified among beneficial birds.

Screech owls eat almost any kind of animal food, but their winter diet is of necessity reduced to small mammals. It is quite in order for a pair to stay in our towns through the cold weather, generally living on mice and rats. The home is often an old woodpecker hole, but natural cavities in old tree trunks and even man-made bird houses are sometimes used.

Great horned owls may be found wintering in our city parks, where they have the opportunity of catching larger prey than little screech owls can manage: pigeons, starlings, domestic cats, squirrels, and so on. If the favorite district is outside city limits, grouse or pheasants may be available for dinner. Daytime is spent screened in a tree such as a big, old pine, where there is protection from prying eyes.

C. Evangelism Meet Held at Bethel Hall

The annual meeting of the Child Evangelism Fellowship of Belleville was held on Monday evening at Bethel Chapel, with approximately 70 in attendance.

A well planned program was presented with various members of the Fellowship taking part.

Mr. Floyd Quinlan introduced the evening's activities by reading in a hymn-book of old favorites, accompanied by Mrs. Beverley Foster at the piano.

Following a brief devotional by Mr. Cummings, the meeting was directed by Mr. Angus Hannah, who spoke briefly, welcoming the gathering, and introduced the Reverend and Mrs. Riddall, of Frankford, who rendered a selection in song, "Alone", with Mr. Riddall at the piano.

Mrs. Hannah presented a demonstration in flannelgraph of a lesson in obedience, depicting the "Destruction of Sodom". This was followed by a co-related memory work in flannelgraph of Romans 6:23, "For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life", by Mrs. J. Weese. Added to these presentations was the closing hymn for the evening, "Faith Looks Up to Tne." Prayer by Miss Harrison.

Miss Marion [illegible] Otawa, area director, gave words of encouragement, by outlining some teachers assistants' programs, and methods of encouraging Christian education and child evangelism. She also demonstrated a flash card story, "Who Stole the Watermelon?" on the theme, "Be sure your sin will find you out."

Mr. Riddall again favored with a duet, followed by the presentation of "Wonderful Grace of Jesus", supported on the piano by Mrs. B. Foster.

Mr. Riddall brought a challenging message on, "Without a vision the children perish", mentioning especially the importance of parents praying with and for their children that they might know and have communion with God.

Mr. Hannah presented the various needs of Child Evangelism, and Mr. Riddall closed the meeting. Refreshments were served.

Fuller, Shorter Skirts Shown At Florence

FLORENCE, Italy (Reuters)—Fashion buyers and journalists from three continents Friday began their migration from Florence, the home of Italian fashions, to Paris, the world's fashion capital.

In the last nine days they have seen over 2,000 models presented by 44 Italian high fashion and boutique designers in Rome and Florence.

A new line emerged—shorter, fuller skirts with the waist sometimes fitted a little higher than at the natural line. But it was a Paris endorsement next week.

For many years the Italian houses correctly predicted the line that Paris dictated, so it may be that in the spring and summer women will be wearing the clothes which seem unexciting after past periods of sacks and empire lines.

The most important feature, used by every Italian designer, was the Japanese obi-sash.

The new materials were all architectural. They were taffeta, starched cotton, heavy silks, stiffened organza and sacking for the plain.

There will be a great deal of check and plaid for the short new spring and summer, and the predominantly new colors will be pale green and pink, to relieve the shock taken out of it.

As always, it was the boutique and accessories collections that excited attention, for in these Italy's fantasy and craftsmanship are unrivalled.

Italy produced a lot that was pretty, much that was witty, clothes that were elegantly wearable, but nothing that makes big fashion news.

Women Make Progress In Japan

VICTORIA (CP)—Women are making leadership in Japan, says David E. Woodworth, director of Victoria's Family and Children's Aid Society who returned recently from the Orient.

"In Japan they have," he said in an interview, "as I see it, women are the healthiest, happier and stronger of the sexes. Japanese men are worried, but seemingly helpless in the face of great change."

During his three-month visit as a delegate to a series of international conferences on welfare and social work, he observed a more apparent acceptance of democracy, but detected beneath a "seething unrest."

"Social services are modelled on the British and American, but they aren't what they appear to be," he said.

"There are loans instead of social assistance as we know it to widows, single parents and war veterans.

"Then there is an institution known as the public pawnshop where people can pawn goods and get help out in debt to the government."

Mr., Mrs., E. Vivian Mark Fifty Years of Marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Vivian, 2nd of Thurlow, recently celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary at the home of their son, Gordon L. Vivian and family, of Bronson.

A reception was held in their honor in the afternoon from two to five, followed by a supper given by the family.

Mrs. Vivian was the former Miss Eta Shetler and Mr. Vivian the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Vivian.

They have one son, Gordon, and three grandchildren, Beverley, Richard and Douglas.

Since their marriage they have resided on their farm on the 2nd of Thurlow.

Many beautiful cards and gifts were received to mark the happy occasion.

Mother With 17 Children At Home Gives Advice

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP)— Mrs. Rollins Collins gives this advice to mothers: "Relax and enjoy your children. Always treat them as individuals—and don't be afraid to pick up your baby."

Mrs. Rollins has been married 20 years. She has 17 children and all of them are still living at home.

She is 41, her husband, a boat-builder, is 44. Both say "The more the merrier."

"Young couples just starting out have it harder than we do," said Mrs. Collins. "They try to live up with the latest in everything. We know we can't and I think we're more contented."

SOME PROBLEMS

She says this is what happens in an eight-room house containing 19 persons:

"There's no use hoping for a spotlessly clean house all the time.

"But you want to make a telephone call, the line forms behind the fastest runner.

"Lack of quiet and privacy is our biggest inconvenience, with children doing homework and others entertaining friends."

The children are Lendre and Leonard, twins, 19; Ronald, 18; Adele, 17; Bob, 16; Paul, 15; Helen, 13; Rita, 12; Tom, 10; Barbara, 9; Jean and Joan, twins, 8; Michael, 6; Danny, 5; Cathy, 4; Jeff, 3; and Pamela seven months.

Mrs. Collins is training to be a teacher; Roy speaks of being a pilot, Jean a nun, Lenny of joining the Royal Canadian Air Force as an air stewardess.

The family spends $45 a week on groceries, and also buys 56 quarts of milk, 75 pounds of potatoes and 42 loaves of bread.

Meals for the day take three dozen eggs, a gallon of milk and three pounds of meat.

Chapter 55 OES Holds Inspection Day

Belleville Chapter 55, O.E.S. held its annual inspection on Friday evening of January 16th, in the auditorium of the Masonic Temple. In spite of unfavorable weather conditions, a large crowd was on hand to witness the ceremony. Presiding Matrons and Patrons were present from Colborne, Quinte Trenton and Minerva Chapters.

Mrs. Helen Marston, Dan-ish District Deputy Grand Matron, was guest of honor and was warmly welcomed by Mrs. Reta Clarke, Worthy Matron and Mr. Ivan Clare, Worthy Patron.

Following the initiatory work, Mrs. Marston gave a brief address and commended the OES officers on the efficient manner in which they performed their various duties.

A social hour and refreshments brought another happy evening to a close.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

What in the world is the world coming to? Never was it more true than it is today that a penny or more knows what they may see next. Wednesday night after tidying the supper dishes and turning the lights out in the kitchen, we felt certain that we were going to bed or else all the talk about outer space and the moon had gone to our heads. For there, out through our back window, believe it or not, was a huge balloon all lighted up like a globe from another world. Things like this are hard on weak hearts. It is true. We did see this thing and it was neither fantasy nor over indulgence nor injections. Right out in the middle of a vacant field to the west of our house was this huge transparent balloon, just like a white pufball with the insides removed and electric light fixtures installed. We went outside and we could hear men's voices. It was raining cats and dogs or your reporter would not have run through the snow to investigate.

We wonder if anyone else saw it. Surely, and it is still a guess because we do not know for sure, by now the watch on those plastic contraptions we have seen advertised. Whether anyone else watched or not is a pin into it or not, we do not have. The thing was there and while balloon had disappeared leaving but four lamps and soon after that, darkness. Thursday morning all that was left was freshly fallen snow. Somebody lighted up puff-ball had appeared the night before. Thursday we watched and looked fully, but nothing appeared.

Perhaps we have stumbled on to can be forgiven if they start seeing flying saucers in their every day lives. Imagine seeing an old-fashioned winter are fine, but unannounced, freak balloons on a rainy, stormy night in vacant fields create havoc in the unsuspecting.

It is quite true. And we do expect that it was a plastic affair, but it was a surprise to look out the window and see this great bulk, in the night on a vacant field where cows had so short a time ago browsed.

Congregational Meeting

STONE CHURCH

FOURTH SIDNEY — The annual congregational meeting of the Stone Church was held on Saturday night in the Stone Community Centre hall. In spite of the icy condition of the roads, there was a good attendance. The ladies provided a sumptuous supper which everyone enjoyed.

The Rev. R. McMullen called the meeting to order and conducted a short worship service with Miss Shirley Chisholm at the piano.

Mr. Garfield Evans was appointed secretary pro tem and in minutes of the last meeting which were discussed and approved.

Mrs. Omar Chisholm read the Women's Association report stating that money was raised by quiltings, a silent auction, bazaar and during Pre-Lenten church floor had been sanded and finished. Also that a share of the parsonage work had been paid for and other small items and books showed a credit balance to start 1959.

Mrs. W. J. Tuffs, the Women's Missionary Society treasurer, gave this report and this year's budget was left in the hands of Ion Band and Baby Band, reached the Convention.

The Sunday School also had a successful year and had a balance for the coming year. Mrs. Jeannette Twiddy gave this report.

Mr. McMullin gave a general report of services held and marriages. He thanked the members for the nice gift to his wife and himself at Christmas and other small kindnesses shown.

The election of officers followed, the elders and trustees will remain the same as before.

After a short discussion, it was decided to adopt the system of electing one steward each year. The stewards appointed were: G. LaBrash for three years; Harold Twiddy for two years, and Garfield Evans for one year, and G. Lane as treasurer.

Mrs. H. Gray was re-appointed as Sunday School superintendent. The church organist is Mrs. H. Whitfield, with Mrs. J. Seeley and Miss Shirley Chisholm as assistants.

Messrs. Carl Twiddy and Wayne LaBrash were appointed Sabbath collectors.

Mr. McMullin closed the meeting with prayer.

Designer Bases All His Clothes On Paintings

By JENNY NICHOLSON

FLORENCE, Italy (Reuters)—Marquis Emilio Pucci, the "king" of Italian fashion designers, believes even beauty can be beautifying the world's beaches for 10 years, has specialized in collection for most his fiancee, Baroness Cristina Rocca.

The 20-year-old Cristina bears such a remarkable resemblance to a face of a girl in one of Botticelli's famous picture Primavera, that the Marquis has chosen her for next summer on Botticelli paintings.

The look is basic—simple, semi-fitted chemises for summer collections and the slim figure from the waist put in its natural place with fitted belts.

For the evening he dictates brief ruffled bikinis over which he puts Italian lace shirts in big puffed sleeves and big v-cut collars. Long shorts are his only innovation, reaching to mid-thigh but shaped over the hips to make them more becoming than Bermudas.

The Botticelli motifs made the Emilio collection the most romantic and memorable at the current Florence exhibition. Here the dresses blown on to Botticelli's Venus and scattered them in different colors all over evening dresses.

Even the scarves and shirts he reproduced the scene through the window in The Annunciation and framed it in the Botticelli from The Nativity.

Many of the new designs on the Botticelli theme, his most recurring were significantly transposed from the Botticelli wedding scene. Many of the Renaissance figures appeared in miniature through foliage and heraldic backgrounds from other pictures.

Emilio said Thursday: "I think we are emerging from the era of the confusion of years when boys look like girls and girls like boys. I predict a return to the Renaissance when women were truly women."

Careful Packing Is the Key To Wrinkle-Free Travelling

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

Once you've decided what clothes you're taking on a trip, your wardrobe problem becomes one of keeping your things in wearable condition; i.e., clean and pressed.

How well you succeed at that depends largely on how you pack, what you pack, and when you unpack.

This business of unpacking is generally overlooked in all the free advice about bag and baggage that goes around. It's often cast as important as loading up.

Most clothes, unless they are made of silk or cotton, will hang clean of wrinkles in inverse proportion to how long they are crushed and how long they are allowed to uncrush. Thus suits, dresses and anything else that normally hangs in a closet should be allowed to do that until just before you leave and should be pressed to get its natural habitat as soon as you arrive, unless you're just making a quick overnight stop and do not even bringing to your room the bag with your non-travel clothes.

If your packing calls for all your clothes to be in wrinkles of the usual type, the way to avoid a minimum of wrinkling pressure on them is to get increase- susceptible items in the top of your bag. Here they can be accessible for quick hanging and also have the least wrinkle-making pressure on them while packed.

FOLDS ARE KEY

The fewest folds obviously mean the fewest unsolicited creases, so for dresses and suits must go into suitcases, they should go into the largest ones where they must be folded the fewest times. Tissue in the folds and plastic covers and cre-ate spaces to help preserve the proper press.

Try to follow the natural lines of a garment in folding it. Generally speaking, that means lengthwise; if any wrinkles remain when the item is worn, they will be less apparent. For example a man's jacket can have the shoulders folded back with the crease down the back then doubled over the other way, thus making only two basic creases.

This is the contrary to many of the fancy techniques of inside-out-upside down folding of which you may have read, but it's simple and it does work.

A more wrinkle-resistant type of bag, if it does carry well, is the currently popular kind in which clothes are hung on hangers; then the whole business doubles up and fastens so it may be carried as a suitcase or luggage.

Woollen clothes that don't hang smooth quickly enough to suit-some may be helped along without a trip to the cleaners by hanging them in the bathroom, turning on the hot shower and letting them steam for a while.

There is little that can be done for the fragile fabrics of a woman's wardrobe — silks and similar delicates are short of ironing them. To this end a wo-man's best friend is an inexpensive, compact and light-weight travel iron. Most hotels and motels make ironing boards available to guests. Those that do not given to such chores on vacation, will valet service which usually provide quick pressing service except Saturday afternoons and Sundays.

PACK CLEAN CLOTHES

One trick to keeping clothes clean before they're worn is to make sure they're packed when they're in a dust-tight case swept out or vacuumed with the appropriate attachment to your vacuum cleaner. Shoes, the items most likely to soil whatever they come in contact with, should be packed in the bottom of the bag, flat heels soles down and high heels level to one, or their sides for compactness, and inside plastic bags or old stockings.

Light plastic bags should also be used to contain shirts, blouses and such apparel as must remain absolutely unsullied.

Some plastic envelopes of soap flakes and a few moments a day will keep washables perpetually clean through your trip and allow you to minimize on the quantity taken. If you fall behind in your laundry, wrap soiled things in the plastic bags they have started from when clean, thereby protecting what you have left from undesirable companions.

Miracle fabrics are too well known for their easy washability and wrinkle resistance to require further elaboration here. If your trip will be preceded by any shopping for clothes they're well worth keeping in mind.

Many travellers prefer to roll, instead of fold, such items as sleeve and sock, pullcoats and necktiles. A plastic bulge in the suitcase, but this method does eliminate fold-creases altogether.

Plastics articles generally, will not leak, even in the air, if the caps tightened well. You can go to the Legion Hall for meeting everything to plastic bottles if you wish (we never have), but an adequate imitation is a plastic or leather case.

Christians Set Child's Way

By Alma Mason

Are we not feeling today the smothering effects of a peril different from any other the world has known? Are we not suffering from the apparent deliberate flouting of authority by some and the weak and spineless fear of black abyss of what we dub "the teenage terror"?

In our bewilderment shall we not turn to the Bible for help? There we are told that obedience to God's plan is primary, fundamental and essential if we are to play a useful part in the game of life. Respect and obedience cultivated early in the home and administered with loving patience will establish young feet firmly for a straight, upward climb.

Have we spoiled our children, overindulged them, neglected to help them build their lives on a steady spiritual foundation? Perhaps we should stop and ask ourselves some direct and soul-searching questions.

Have we, as parents, set our children a proper example in neighborliness and kindness toward others? Have we taught them to protect the weak and helpless? Have we provided for them a real home with friendly doors flung wide; a home where young friends are always welcome?

Have we taken an intense interest in the aspirations and desires of our children, helping them to foster and nourish the worthwhile ambitions and discard the bad? Have we taught them respect for teachers and older folk?

Have we shown them the value of tolerance by being tolerant, the virtue of love by being loving, the rewards of obedience by being obedient to the laws of God — the community and the country? Have we been too busy feeding, clothing and educating our children to mold and strengthen and feed their characters?

We may endow hospitals and universities and leave an untarnished name — but the most valuable gift we can leave to prosperity is good children. When we are gone— who will be left to take up the challenge on the side of righteousness in the never-ending conflict between good and evil? Surely not those who are insecure, disturbed and lawless?

Obedience is a vital part of well rounded education. If girls and boys do not early form the habit of respecting authority they will never be properly educated. No matter what university degrees or professional standings are achieved, without having learned self discipline, without proper response to the spiritual influences of life, destructive forces will wreak havoc and bring ruin.

Until we can successfully instill into the hearts of our young people, who must bear the standard after us, that true happiness can only be established when attuned in harmonious relationship with those about them and with God, we have failed in our parenthood.

Let us earnestly pray and strive to set the feet of our boys and girls on the straight way, enabling them to face the future and their task in isonormy with faith, with confidence and with courage, having learned that love — not might, is the supreme and perfect fulfilling of the laws of God and man.

God gave me you to love and hold;
God gave me you to teach and mold;
God gave me you to fill my need;
God gave me you to lift and lead.

I must walk straight with head held high
So you will see a cloudless sky.
Loving my neighbor, friend and foe
So that your life will richer grow.

Because of you I must be strong;
Must bravely smile the whole day long;
I must be gallant, steady, true;
I must keep faith because of you.

GOOD MANNERS

BRIDE'S FATHER AND GROOM ARE MINISTERS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My father is a Protestant minister, and my bridegroom-to-be is also a Protestant minister. Neither has the honorary degree of "D.D." as he has married soon — a formal afternoon wedding in our church. Will you please tell me the correct wording of the invitations to the ceremony? Bride-to-be.

Important note: "The Reverend" must be used before the name of your father and before the name of your bridegroom. Be sure to direct the engraver about this, particularly about "The" necessary before "Reverend."

Here is the correct form for your wedding invitations:

The Reverend and Mrs. Paul Brown

ABOUT TIPPING MOVING MEN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We're moving soon to our new house. Ever since we were married, fifteen years ago, we have lived in the same apartment, and so I have had no experience in dealing with moving factors. Should I tip them? If so, can you give me some information about how much?—H.

Moving men usually are tipped, and quite generously, if they are (as they usually are) co-operative and particularly helpful. It is impossible to name the size of the tip, since this depends on many factors: on the total up to the head man, and ask him to divide it with his assistants, or you yourself may divide it as you feel is fair.

CORRECT FOR BUTTER BUY BREADS ALL AT ONCE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me if it is correct or incorrect to butter hot breads, such as biscuits and muffins, all at once? I know this isn't correct with a slice of bread, but to me it makes sense with hot breads.

Elsie W.

It is correct to butter biscuits and similar hot breads all at once . . . and, as you say, sensible too because they taste so much better when the butter has melted into them.

Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

Here is a great hymn of Christian fellowship and brotherhood.

It was written in 1908 by John Oxenham, the English poet, and its familiar tune, "St. Peter" was composed in 1839 by Alex. Ander H. Reinagle, an English musician and organist.

Mr. Oxenham was both a poet and a novelist. He travelled widely in Europe and in America for a number of years before he gave over his life to writing. One of his first works, "God's Prisoners", was published in 1898 and was followed by several novels and collections of verse. "Selected Lyrics" was made its appearance in 1925, was well received.

During the first World War, Mr. Oxenham wrote an impressive little hymn which expressed a yearning for spiritual escape from the pressures of the world, "Hid all the traffic of the ways, Turmoils without, within—

"In Christ There Is No East or West"

In Christ there is no east or west
In Him no south or north;
But one great fellowship of love
Throughout the whole wide earth.

In Him shall true hearts everywhere
Their high communion find:
His service is the golden cord
Close binding all mankind.
Join hands, then, brothers of the faith,
Whate'er your race may be;
Who serves my Father as a son
Is surely kin to me.
In Christ now meet both east and west,
In Him meet south and north;
All Christly souls are one in Him
Throughout the whole wide earth.

Make in my heart a quiet place
And come and dwell therein
A little shrine of quietness
All sacred to Thyself.
Where Thou shall all my soul possess.

And I may find myself.

Mr. Reinagle, the composer, come from a prominent musical family. His uncle was a well known violinist and his father was a violoncellist. John Wesley Reinagle, after being attended a concert where the father performed,

"Tools do not make the man, but they make this work and so show what the man is." —Lyman Abbot.

"We don't stock them; neither pen holders nor pen nibs. Sorry Ma'am."

What a shock!

A second glance at the modern ball-point pen brings to focus the fact that many of the younger generation have never known the joy of writing with a long, slim pen holder of mother-of-pearl, gold or just brightly painted wood. Nor the delight to be had from a fresh new nib; the fascination of dipping it in the liquid jet of ink. All this is faded and gone, relegated to the heap of relics and the stylus, Old-fashioned! It seems, like m'lady's gowns, there are fashions in pens.

Perhaps the pen identifies a civilization and its style designates a sort of "age" in the development of its culture. The b.p.p. of this atomic age produces immediate availability upon demand — "You can write out business forms in triplicate with it, which you could not do with a pen," whereas its great, great-daddy, the stylus, made neat precise characters in baked clay tablets in Chaldea back in 4,000 B.C.

John Drinkwater points out that writing in China is said to be invented by the Emperor Fu Hsi about 2,800 B.C. That the Indian Vedas were written at least a thousand years before Christ, and the earliest Hebrew books about 600 B.C., while Japan had no literature until about the 5th century A.D.

But the Egyptian Precepts of Ptah-Hotep, said to be the oldest book in the world, written 2,500 years before Solomon's Proverbs and 2,000 years before Moses. In fact, "the space of years between Solomon and ourselves is not so great as that between Solomon and Ptah-Hotep."

The pen, whatever its modifications, is the real, is the oldest implement for the future records of our forest hope (which) is forest memory.

NO FINER TOOL

Man has finer tool with which to fashion bridges of understanding, tolerance, insight, and inspiration, than sincerity than by his pen.

Pen friend. Have you ever heard of them? A means of gaining peaceful negotiation between peoples, fostering understanding, contacts. Ideas, is the aim.

Here is a copy of a letter from a Japanese university student in Tokushima City, on Sunday School teacher seeking information for a class project about Japan. The contact was made through a Japanese pen club, and the writer, a seventeen-year-old June Monato, a native of Tokushima City, it reads in part: "I live with my father, fifty years old, mother, forty-years old, grandmother, seventy years old, two younger sisters, a lovely dog and cats. My mother has no occupation and is always at home and is busy cooking, sewing, writing letters, sweeping and so on. My grandmother is crazy for motion pictures and she always goes to the theatre in the afternoon, except when she has another important business.

"My father is a principal of a junior high school in this city and every day he goes to school by bicycle, except on rainy days. He is, indeed, quite mild and tender and nobody has found him angry. There are about 1,200 boys and girls and 52 teachers in his school which is the biggest in the city.

"I now attend Waseda University. There are several courses in it, a political, economic, law, commercial, and scientific courses. Belong to the law course, and passed my form number two. As for the educational system in Japan is 6, 3, 3, 4 system — elementary school for 6 years, junior high school three years, senior high school three years and university four years. I shall graduate from university in about two years. I am studying constitutional law, constitution of Japan, civil law, commercial law, and so on.

"I want to be a lawyer or a public procurator or an official in the future. I am making great effort to pass the examination to become a lawyer. Nevertheless, I must earn money during the vacation. The enrolment ratio of liberal arts and scientific students is 7 to 3 in Japan, 3 to 5 in the United States and 3 to 7 in the Soviet Union. As there are not many students in scientific course in our country, the Educational Ministry has recently started a five-year program to increase the number of students in the scientific faculties of universities and colleges."

The Bible Today

It was Pentecost which first impressed the disciples of Jesus with the truth of his greatest lesson, that their message was for all races of men, and to be translated into all languages. Their own experience now taught them that Christianity can speak in all tongues. For the last 155 years the Bible Society has been attesting that it men have any human language at all, it is possible to tell them about God's love for them in that tongue. Every year the translators break into about 20 new language groups, and another 20 gates are opened to the teaching and leadership of the missionary. Suggested readings for next week:

Days and Customs of All Faiths

Young People and Religion

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

Sunday, Jan. 25 — Youth, more than any other part of life, is a time of choices. What the adolescent decides on any given day matters much more than a similar decision made at the age of, say, 35 or 55.

Boys and girls living in this crucial period, Youth Week in 1959 theme puts squarely the challenging question, "Dare we live in the household of God?" Sponsored by the National Council of Churches, Youth Week extends from Jan. 25 to Feb. 1, including both Sundays. Its purpose is to put the difficult problems of young people in the forefront in the thinking of both church and community.

Printed materials provided by the National Council for the weeklong emphasis are aimed at helping youngsters consider, under Christian guidance, the nature and purpose of the church, and the risks and rewards of life within the avowed family of God.

In many Protestant churches today worship services will be conducted entirely by the young people of the congregation.

ST. PAUL'S CHANGE OF MIND

Monday, Jan. 26 — Moved from yesterday because the third Sunday before Lent outranks it in the calendar, today commemorates the conversion of St. Paul, which took place along the road as he journeyed to Damascus with an order in his pocket to round up all the Christians in that city and bring them, bound, to Jerusalem for trial. Until this dramatic moment Paul, known then as Saul of Tarsus, had been the new church's most violent enemy.

There is no good reason why this particular day should have been selected for this festival. No one knows the actual date of Paul's experience.

We do, however, know two things about it: from his own testimony in 1 Corinthians, chapter 15, verse 8, he tells us plainly that he saw the risen Lord. And in Galatians, chapter 1, verses 11 to 16, he states that he then and there was commissioned to preach the Gospel to the gentiles. On the basis of this experience Paul made his claim to be an apostle, implying that he had a directive equal to that of the 12 original apostles.

Some of Paul's contemporaries contested this claim. Because of his name (Saul) and his pre-adolescent decides on any given day matters much more than a similar decision made at the age of, say, 35 or 55.

It is often assumed that Paul's conversion was a moral one, the result of a long inner struggle with his sense of guilt and sin, because of failure to live up to the Jewish law. But this is not likely. He himself says that this life before his conversion was blameless as far as the law was concerned. (Galatians, chapter 1, verse 14; Philippians, chapter 3, verse 6). It must rather have been in the realm of intellectual belief, not of conduct. There, journeying along the hot and dusty road, a great intelligence at long last brought him to the solid conviction that Jesus of Nazareth, whose followers he had been persecuting, was really the Son of God.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Shelley R. — I want to tell our parents about Stan.

Stanley R. — Does she think I'm going to take orders?

Shelley R. — I am so upset about my brother Stanley, who has gotten involved with one of my best friends.

Stan is 28 and has been quite a Don Juan. The girls really go for him. I have often warned my girl friends against him because he has no scruples at all. I was really upset when my friend Isabell fell for him so hard. But then I began to think Stan was working out because he seemed to care for her. Well, I guess I'm mistaken because I learned from other girls that they are having an affair, and when I asked Stan if he is planning to marry Isabell he laughed at me.

I am furious that he should do a thing like this to such a lovely girl. I am thinking of telling my parents know what a cad they've introduced into the world. Maybe they can do something with him.

Stanley R. — Miss Tattle Tale thinks she is still age six and I'm 10, and she can run my life by running and telling Mommy and Daddy when I do things she doesn't believe in. I have come off with that stuff! Does she really think I'm going to take orders?

There are a lot of things in life my sister Little Miss doesn't understand. This "lovely girl" Isabel actually threw herself at me and wouldn't take no for an answer. Shelley doesn't believe it, but half the things she blames me for have happened just about like that. I may flirt with girls, but it takes a lot more than that to make a conquest.

I think Shelley pokes her nose into my affairs entirely too much. She has a number of friends of her own and keeps

The Council: Shelley is being a bit unrealistic if she thinks she can influence her 28-year-old brother by "tattling" on him to her parents, but we do think that Shelley ought to consider her desire to do just that a measure of how deeply he has upset his sister.

Possibly Shelley is a little overconcerned about his private affairs, but Shelley ought to recognize that she can't help looking up to him somewhat as an ideal. He has always been her big brother. Probably she has tried to emulate him in certain respects and has looked forward to marrying someone a little like him.

Stanley has not only smeared this ideal image Shelley cherishes in her heart, but has confused her about her own values. Brought up under the same roof with Stanley, she probably always believed that they shared the same principles. When she thinks of telling all to her parents, Shelley is probably really saying that she wants her brother to remember the things they were taught, the way of life that nurtured them. Possibly she childishly hopes her parents will somehow restore order to the whole world of her own mild sex feelings.

If Shelley remains uninfluenced by his sister's concern, we can only recommend that Shelley preserve herself from the life and affairs as fully as possible. She should find her own groups of friends and avoid merging them with her brother in any way. She should also look to her own values and remember that she is not responsible for the morality of either her brother or her girl friends. Presumably they are old enough to look after their own choices.

American R.C.'s Begin to Talk Theology With Protestants

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) —American Roman Catholics are beginning to talk theology with Protestants. Not officially, and sometimes only in limited fashion, but the approaches are being made.

"It's a developing thing," said Rev. Walter J. Ong, noted Jesuit scholar and professor at St. Louis University. "More and more dialogue is going on".

This, in the United States, is a rare departure. In the past, there has been little direct communication between doctrinal experts of the two faiths.

Although invited, Catholics generally have avoided taking part in such inter-denominational parleys on the ground this might becloud a firm teaching—that theirs is the one true Church.

To Catholics, this remains an unchangeable absolute.

AVENUES OPEN

"But it's not a permanent barrier to conversation and theological exchange," Father Ong said. "Steps are being taken to keep the channels open, and the more that can be done, the better off we'll be."

Several Catholic publications have been launched carrying a cross-section of religious interpretation both by Catholic and Protestant authorities, including:

An "Operation Understanding," originated by Catholic editor Dale Francis of Austin, Tex., is being sparked for sending Catholic journals to Protestant clergy and Protestant journals to Catholic clergy.

Various leaders, including Southern Baptists, also traditionally aloof from interdenominational affairs, have endorsed the plan.

MONTHLY MEETINGS

A monthly round of conferences between Catholic, Protestant and Jewish theologians, financed by the Fund for the Republic and dealing with the basic issues of faith in a free society, is in its second year.

Recent scriptural and archaeological studies, particularly of new documents found in the Holy Land, have been pursued jointly.

A Catholic-Protestant commission last year drew up the first mutual policy statement on the place of Christianity in higher education.

Numerous Catholic thinkers, analyzing the Church's past reluctance in the United States toward first - hand contact with Protestant discussions, have urged more efforts on this behalf as a needed part of spreading the faith in a vital sector.

Men such as Dr. Jacques Maritain, Princeton University philosopher; Rev. Dr. John B. Sheerin, editor of the Catholic World; Rev. John A. O'Brien, of Notre Dame; Rev. George H. Tavard, of Assumption College; and many others have urged more church activity in this sphere.

Father Ong said practical considerations have kept Catholics from participating actively in conferences held by such groups as the national and world councils of churches.

These organizations have continually held out an invitation but Catholics have declined, lest their inclusion imply the Church was on a level with others — and thus obscure its belief that it alone embodies Christian truth.

Eastern Orthodoxy, also holding it is the one true faith, does take part.

"The chief difficulty," Father Ong said, "is not that the leaders who participate in the conferences would misunderstand the point, but the practical danger is that erroneous impressions would be given the lay-in-formed."

Yet, he added, there is a need for more contacts to eliminate mutual misconceptions, to ease tensions, to combine influence in social causes, to make the Catholic position known and felt in wider circles, and perhaps plant seeds in the cause of Christian unity.

At least, the effort is alive.

"It's just a question," Father Ong said, "of how far it can grow."

Scotsmen Around World Still Drink Health of Robbie Burns

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Something less than 200 years ago a farmhand called Burns stood one day behind a plow in his father's fields in Ayrshire and whispered fiercely into the Scottish sky:

"That I for poor auld Scotland's sake
Some useful plan or book could make,
Or sing a sang at least."

Troubled, rebellious Robert Burns was, fortunately, hopeless at farming. After two tries at making a living off the land, he deserted the plow permanently.

In June, 1786, Burns and his friends watched skeptically the publication of the first book of his poems at Kilmarnock.

Says an encyclopedic version of his life: "The result was a furore of appreciation which dazzled and somewhat unbalanced the young farmer."

GOT HIS WISH

Robbie Burns got his wish to "sing a sang" for Scotland. The Kilmarnock volume was the overture. He went on, until his death amid poverty at 37, to create a symphony of the Scottish spirit.

The fact that Scotsmen around the world still drink his health on the anniversary of his birth is perhaps the best indication of Burns' impact on 18th Century literature.

This year, on Jan. 25, Scottish societies and the 1,500,000 Canadians of Scots descent will observe the 200th anniversary of the poet's birth at Ayr.

This Saturday, at Saint John, N.B., the Heather Society and the Presbyterian church will conduct a typical Burns night observance —one day early, with recitations of his works, singing, Highland dancing—although Burns was a lowlander—and piping in the haggis.

Also on Saturday the Halifax North British Society will hold a Burns dinner with Dr. Watson Kirkconnell, president of Acadia University, proposing the toast.

However, at Vancouver the annual dinner has been cancelled because of the declining support.

Quebec City has put its Burns night and dinner-dance ahead to Jan. 30.

The Edmonton Scottish Society will hold its Burns supper Saturday, and Montreal's Caledonian Society has a huge bicentennial dinner scheduled for Friday.

BIG CELEBRATION

Toronto has been whooping it up in the Burns vein since Jan. 17 when the Sons of Scotland held their annual fling at a downtown hotel. This Saturday, the Daughters of Scotland celebrated in the same ballroom.

More than enough, perhaps, to draw from the poet himself a wandering observation like that in Tam O'Shanter:

"... Tam saw an unco sight!
"Witches and warlocks in a dance!"

102 YEARS OLD

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Mrs. Elizabeth Sinclair, oldest woman in London, will celebrate her 102nd birthday without ceremony today. She is confined to bed in the home of her daughter, Miss Margaret Sinclair of London.

Little man you've had a busy day

This little spaceman is just back from a trip to Mars (out in the backyard) ... and now his leader is packing him off to bed.

While he was away, she washed the floor ... the dishes ... several large piles of clothes ... and still there was plenty of hot water for this spaceman's bath. Reason? Because she has a modern automatic electric water heater with abundant storage capacity and quick recovery when more hot water is needed. Heating water electrically is safe, clean, modern and costs just a few cents a day on special Hydro flat rates.

You get more out of life when you get the most out of electricity.

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce

J. N. YANOVER
President, 1958

R. G. HAMILTON
Secretary-Manager

The President's Message . . .

I could not let this opportunity go by without expressing to you, the Members of this Chamber, my deep appreciation to you for your confidence in me and for the support that you gave me during this past year.

It is a great honor to be President of a Chamber of Commerce, and until you have served in some capacity, one does not realize the personal satisfaction that is yours in so doing.

I accepted the responsibilities as your President with one objective in mind, and that is to continue the good work and leadership which has been established by my predecessors.

I was particularly pleased that this year most of our old records have been restored to us. It is of real historical interest to review those records of meetings and note the great men who served this organization since its inception.

I would like you to know that the Board of Directors, which you chose, gave most generously of their time during our many deliberations.

I know that the Staff has served you well from our central location on Campbell Street. The office is fully equipped and maintains an excellent library of reference books for your convenience.

I trust you will read, with interest, the records of achievement that may be found throughout this annual report.

Sincerely Yours
J. N. YANOVER,
President, 1958

Annual Report of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce . . . 1958

AIMS AND OBJECTIVES — The Belleville Chamber of Commerce is a voluntary association of citizens organized to promote the commercial, industrial, tourist, agricultural and civic welfare of the community and district in which it lies. Membership is open to all who may be interested in the development of the community. This Chamber's aim is to ensure that the social and economic affairs of the community function upon well founded long term policy and principles embodying the greatest respect for private enterprise. So long as there exists a difference between what a community is, and what a community should be, there is a need for a Chamber of Commerce.

BUSINESS PROTECTIVE SERVICE — The Chamber staff provided a great service to the members and citizens through the screening of itinerant pedlars and hawkers and door-to-door salesmen investigating the companies which they represented. The Chamber endorses the slogan of the Toronto Better Business Bureau — "before you invest—investigate". Merchants and businessmen were forewarned of those unscrupulous sales techniques and unprofitable solicitation of program and other undesirable medium of advertising. This service has made membership in the Chamber a distinct investment in money saving. Complaints between consumer and vendor are investigated by the Chamber Manager and a record of satisfactory adjustment of problems has been maintained. Members and the public are urged to continue to call the Chamber Office when they are approached or solicited for financial support to program advertising and other mediums of money making schemes.

CIVIC AFFAIRS — The Board of Directors of the Chamber maintained interest in the study of various phases of local, provincial and national government. The Chamber sponsored its annual civic candidates meeting. These meetings while not always too well attended, provide an opportunity for the citizens to hear first hand such projects and thinking of aspiring candidates to civic office. These meetings could not be possible without the co-operation of the Board of Education, radio station and the newspaper. The Chamber attended many Canadian citizenship ceremonies throughout the year and witnessed many new Canadians receive their citizenship papers at special ceremonies held in the courthouse. The Chamber's interest in new Canadians receiving certificates is in keeping with the Chamber policy to encourage immigrants to Canada who bring with them culture and a knowledge of various trades and professions and who, in turn, bolster the economy of our country through their purchasing power. The Chamber has endeavored to create good-will among its citizens by having representation at meetings and assisting various organizations in their service work. Contact may be made for speakers and the office may serve as a clearing house to check on the promotional organizations which travel from city to city using the service organizations located in the city to sponsor their events.

COMING EVENTS REGISTER — Many organizations throughout the city regularly take advantage of the Coming Events Register which is provided for their use. It is the hope that through the constant use of this register, attendance at functions may be increased and that it may prevent over-lapping of functions of the fine organizations that do their share of service work in the community.

GROUP INSURANCE — The Group Insurance Plan has been in operation since November of 1955. This Group Plan extends coverage to its member firms, their employees and families. There are presently 39 firms participating making a total of 127 individuals. Substantial claims have been made to date which are in excess of $28,000.00. December 31, 1958 concluded the basic hospital coverage which was provided by this Group Plan and which has been taken over by the Canada Government. However, the Plan was revised and covers the difference between basic or standard ward rate and a semi-private. Additional benefits were added in order that the employer, employees and their families may enjoy the finest in hospital, medical and surgical care, so that their work may not be interrupted through any catastrophe which might come to them.

MISCELLANEOUS — The Chamber's monthly Newsletter was prepared by the staff and mailed to the membership throughout the year 1958. Through this medium, the membership were provided with such information which might be considered to their particular line of endeavor.

BUILDING TRADE — The Chamber office devoted considerable time to the Building Trade through the Belleville and District Builders' Exchange. The Chamber Manager serves as Secretary-Treasurer of the Exchange. Some eighty-one Plans and Specifications of buildings and other work projects were received at the office and made available to the members of the Exchange. Much work was involved in the administration and control of the Plans and Specifications and many brought about through the Department of Public Works, School Boards, Department of National Defence, and other private builders fulfilling the needs of institutions, government projects and private interests.

PLANNING — The Chamber played a small part in the planning and the growth of Belleville and in the adjoining Townships of Sidney and Thurlow, through the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board. The Chamber Manager serves as Secretary-Treasurer of this Planning Board. Through this association a knowledge of the transfer of properties and sub-divisions proposed for development and all records recorded or recommendations are directed to the office of the Minister of the Department of Planning and Development.

INDUSTRIAL PROMOTION — The Chamber continued its efforts on behalf of the community through the Industrial Committee and Industrial Commission. The Chamber staff provided a great deal of information to enquirers of land for factory sites, rental projects and other business ventures. While the promotion of new industries was successful, local firms sought assistance in obtaining new product lines, increased markets and in expansion of their present services. Co-operation was extended by the Chamber Board and the Industrial Commission as being of equal importance in maintaining the economy of the city and district.

OTHER SERVICES — The Chamber of Commerce office is a source of information for its members and the public on many subjects. Hundreds of enquiries are received throughout the year enquiring about road conditions, statistics of this city and others, store hours in Belleville and elsewhere, travel information and numerous other topics. All enquiries are acknowledged and carefully handled by a friendly staff. It is the hope that through this service a friendly relationship may accrue which may arouse an interest in and promote future business to this city. The Chamber is privileged to assist the Welcome Wagon Hostess in serving the needs of new residents to this community. The Welcome Wagon Hostess visited over 200 new families during the year 1958. It must be understood that this figure is merely a minimum of the people moving into the city and those who move into the city and, for various reasons, do not make contact with the Welcome Wagon hostess or the Chamber of Commerce office. The Chamber maintains wastepaper disposal containers that may be found at the street corners in the downtown section of the city. The Chamber was pleased to be associated in a small way with Belleville's Fire Department in its annual Santa Claus Parade.

Report of Committees . . .

BY LAWS & REGULATIONS COMMITTEE—Mr. G. A. Freeman, chairman

The Committee introduced a Notice of Motion amending that part of the By-Laws under Term of Office, Article 4, Section 3A. The amendment to the By-Laws now reads: "The incumbent President shall hold office for more than two consecutive terms (4 years) but after a lapse of one year he would again be eligible for re-election. Other eligible executive retaining to the two consecutive terms (4 years) of office shall not apply in the case of individuals holding the offices of President, First Vice-President and Second Vice-President."

The motion was approved at the last annual meeting in January, 1958.

FINANCE COMMITTEE — Mr. A. J. Wolfenden, Chairman.

The Finance Committee prepared the budget which was presented to the Board early in the year 1958 and received full approval. Financial statements were prepared monthly and presented to the Board of Directors as well as quarterly statements to judge that the affairs of the Chamber be financed within the approved budget.

MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE — Mr. A. J. Wolfenden, Chairman.

Prior to, and following the Annual Meeting which was from April 15 to 20th, a methodical approach to increasing the membership of the Chamber was made. There was a new membership admitted to the Chamber during the year and, in addition, some 14 were added by reason of transfer from individual memberships to Belleville with their company.

PROVINCIAL AND NATIONAL AFFAIRS COMMITTEE—
Mr. J. C. R. Punchard, Chairman.

Many resolutions from the Provincial and National Chambers were reviewed throughout the year. Policy declarations and resolutions were reviewed prior to the Annual Meeting of the Chamber of Commerce which was held in May at Kitchener, Ontario and the Annual Meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce which was held in October at Montreal, Que. The Belleville Chamber of Commerce was represented at these Annual Meetings and supported many of the resolutions which have since been submitted to the Provincial and National Chambers.

TOURIST COMMITTEE — Mr. J. A. Ireland, Chairman.

An excellent job was done in promoting the Tourist Industry to Belleville and the vast area surrounding the city. 13,000 Highlands of Hastings folders were printed and distributed throughout the year made up of literature from the Ontario Department of Travel and Publicity and the Canadian Government Travel Bureau and distributed by the Chamber office. The Highlands of Hastings Tourist folder was distributed to ports of entry into Ontario, through tourist agencies, automobile clubs throughout Canada and the United States, oil companies, private industries, conventions, and through direct enquiries to the Chamber office. The Highlands of Hastings folder campaign was a wide publicity campaign as supported by Belleville business men, tourist operators throughout the area from the Bay of Quinte to Bancroft and north to Lake St. Peter. The Highlands of Hastings folder is made possible by equal contributions from the Council of the City of Belleville through the Industrial Commission and by the Council of the County of Hastings. The Chamber's Tourist Committee met with a committee from the County of Hastings and in this way, co-ordinate the planning of the folder. Through Belleville's participation in the great Ontario Development Association was made possible representation to the Cleveland and Harrisburg Sportsmen's shows held early in the year 1958. Over 3,000 names of interested people wishing to visit this area were obtained and on return, the office of the Lake Ontario Development Association, compiled the names and sent them out to the various participating communities who, in turn, made them available to tourist operators located within the Lake Ontario region. The Chamber staff secretary compiled and assembled these lists and mailed them to all the tourist operators who contributed in any way to the financing of the Highlands of Hastings folder.

MANUFACTURERS SECTION — Mr. R. G. Walsh, Chairman.

The Manufacturers Section of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce embodies all those manufacturers of the city who support the Chamber. A sub-committee under the joint chairmanship of Mr. J. C. R. Punchard and Mr. S. Sillitoe was formed in 1957 and continued to function in obtaining reports relative to the area industrial information which will be required for the City of Belleville. Another aspect of interest to manufacturers and supervisory personnel was the instigation of lectures in Advanced Administrative Training which commenced in September, 1958, through the efforts of the members in the Industrial Field.

RETAIL SECTION — Mr. Harold Parrow, Chairman.

The Retail Section of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce was most active during the year 1958. Many meetings were held throughout the year by the Chairman and representatives of the various classifications. Topics under discussion and planning were Store Hours, Improved Parking Facilities, and extension of Christmas Street Lighting Program. There were many occasions throughout the year in which the merchants were alerted of cheque artists and other pedlars who were seeking easy money. This was made possible through the co-operation of the Police Department and the appointed representatives.

PARKING COMMITTEE —

A sub-committee of the Retail Merchants under the Joint Chairmanship of Mr. Dave Lunn and Mr. C. B. Colling realized an ambitious dream in providing off-street parking for customers along the banks of the Moira River. Only through the co-operation of the Chairman of the City's Parking Committee, Council of the City, and this sub-committee, was such a project made possible. The merchants and other business firms pledged financial assistance to the project, this provided the necessary impetus and as a result Council of the City was able to negotiate a satisfactory settlement with the owners of the property in order that levelling, paving and metering of the area could be completed by the end of the year. This completed area provides approximately 150 parking spaces for customers. This is the second of three proposed areas to be developed by the Parking Committee.

TRAFFIC COMMITTEE —

The Board of Directors of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce appointed Mr. C. B. Colling to serve on the City's Traffic Committee during the year 1958.

Affiliations . . .

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce is a member of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, the Ontario Chamber of Commerce, the Canadian Retail Federation, the Canadian Tourist Association and the Better Business Bureau. Liaison was established with the Canadian Chamber of Commerce through Mr. G. A. Freeman who served on the Ontario Regional Directors Committee. Mr. A. O. Drysdale served as Director and member of the Education Committee of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce. The Secretary-Manager served as Secretary of Zone 3, Lake Ontario Development Association, Treasurer of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce Executives, and is a member of the American Chamber of Commerce Executives.

In Appreciation . . .

The Board of Directors of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce acknowledges the kind courtesies extended to the various members of the Board by his Worship, Mayor Gerald B. Hyde, who also served as a director of the Board of the Chamber; by Council members; the Manager-Treasurer and City Department Heads; by the Warden of the County of Hastings, Mr. Lloyd H. Price, Members of County Council and the Secretary-Treasurer, for their many acts of confidence and assistance throughout the year; and to all other citizens who assisted in any way in the affairs of the Chamber of Commerce. Appreciation is extended to Mr. W. H. Morton, President of the Ontario Intelligencer and Department heads for their generous publicity of the many activities in the news columns of the daily newspaper; to Mr. W. H. Stovin, Manager, and associates and department heads of Radio Station CJBQ for the co-operation and generosity with the Public Relations Program and publicity given to many news releases, through the media of radio; to the Management and Staff of CKWS-TV, Kingston, for many news releases of interest to Belleville and district; to all newspapers and magazines which have recorded in their publications, many activities of interest to Belleville and its Citizens.

Manager's Report . . .

I have prepared the ninety-fourth annual report of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce. In addition to the material for this report, I have tried to be brief, but, at the same time, provide the members with a knowledge of all activities and to generalize those which may be of a particular interest to the membership, as they affect the community as a whole.

There are many men and women in the Chamber to whom I would like to pay tribute, however, space does not permit this, but, to mention the "United Appeal", the many letters of appreciation received which has brought together a unanimity of thinking of nearly all our citizens in the community.

Many man hours were spent in bringing about improved parking facilities for customers to Belleville. This project is now made possible through the generous co-operation of Belleville Merchants and other business men, in working with Council members of the city. You may be justly proud of this achievement.

This report concludes for me a most interesting three year tenure in serving the members of the Chamber and a great many citizens of Belleville. Chamber work is most interesting, but most important of all it is the people with whom I have made contact during the many aspects of Chamber duties that has made my stay so worthwhile. Everyone has been most co-operative and all were an inspiration to me in so many ways.

While my duties take me elsewhere, the many friends and acquaintances that have been made will go with me and my family as I continue the work of community building.

Yours faithfully,
R. G. (Bob) Hamilton

Chevies Battle McDonalds To Five-All Stalemate

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

The battle-hardened Belleville McFarlands, Canada's senior "A" hockey champions, board a plane at Malton Airport, Toronto, on Sunday, February 1. Destination, Prague, Czechoslovakia.

They step from the plane at Prestwick, Scotland the next day straight into a familiar hockey team dressing room. They play the Paisley Tigers that night.

The game tees off a series of 15 exhibition games for the Canadian ice-lane Maroo Folos before they get down to the serious business of the world tournament set for Prague March 5-15th.

They will play six games in Sweden and the balance in Norway, Finland, Germany, Italy and Switzerland before arriving in Prague.

Following the world tournament they will play three games in Czechoslovakia and three in Britain before proceeding home. There is a possibility of one or two games in Paris.

European games will be played in Oslo, Helsinki, Dortmund, Garmisgr, Cortina, Bolzano and Basel. British games are slated for Nottingham, Brighton and Wembley.

The Macs wind up a tightly-packed 48-game Eastern Ontario senior league schedule at home on January 30. And they will finish it in either first or second position.

The McFarlands, says playing coach Ike Hildebrand, will be in good shape. They jammed 48 league and eight exhibition games into a 86-day schedule. Establishe a line of glory after a slow start. They are now said to be as strong, if not stronger, than the Whitby Dunlops when they left last year for the world tourney at Oslo.

The Macs expect to be hoistered for the overseas junket by George Gosselin, Denis Boucher, Connie Broden and Pete Conacher. Another goalie, Johnny Albani, will join the club.

While heavy schedule commitments did not permit much instruction on international hockey rules, the Macs received many valuable tips from Les Paul Laniraude, Flamingo player of a year ago, and others. Coach Hildebrand figures the exhibition games played overseas will be sufficient to give his charges the savvy on the rules.

Competitions for the 11th world and 25th European championships will take place in Czechoslovakia. Nations competing are Canada, Russia, Norway, Poland, United States, West Germany, East Germany, Italy, Switzerland and Czechoslovakia.

Red China and Finland have withdrawn from the world tourney but this will not interfere with the McFarlands' exhibition games at Helsinki.

Qualifying competitions between the twelve teams competing in the world tournament will take place in three different Czech cities. These are Bratislava, Brno and Ostrava.

The teams will play in three different groups. Canada, Russia and Sweden, the top three of the last world championships will be seeded in the different groups.

In picturesque Bratislava, the capital of Slovakia, is located the best ice stadium in the country. It seats some 16,000 spectators and is the home of the national champions, the Red Star Brno club.

In Ostrava, the coal and steel centre of the country, there is a modern "indoor stadium" seating some 20,000.

Six surviving teams from the elimination series will compete in Prague in the world tournament. These games will be played in the Winter Stadium, a handsome edifice with a seating capacity of 14,000.

"Playing here," said Coach Hildebrand, "is something in our favor. I understand the rinks in most of the exhibition games will be played on the wind-swept, snow-blown outdoor rinks of Europe. Playing indoors will give us one strike."

While a lot of the experts have taken it for granted Russia and Canada will meet in the tournament finals, Hildebrand said he is not splitting the entire teams short. Sweden has a strong team, so has Czechoslovakia.

"We are going over there as a hockey club, to play hockey. And that is what we are going to do," the square-jawed little coach said. "We realize we are up against rough teams and we'll be up for the game for victory in every game regardless of the opposition."

"We know, too," he added, "that the eyes of fifteen million Canadians, not to mention the rest of the hockey world, will be on us, and we hope our very best will be sufficient to retain the world hockey title for Canada."

GAME FISH MEET

The January meeting of the Belleville Fish and Game Club will be held on Tuesday, January 27, in the YMCA at 8 p.m. A good program of films has been arranged and all sportsmen in the district will be welcomed.

Six Penalties Prove Costly As Clubs Blow 2-Goal Lead Ikemen Unbeaten in Twelve

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Theatrically speaking, the McFarlands should wrap up that battle of champions scheduled for Whitby tonight, if last night's performance against the Cornwall Chevrolets is a criterion.

A footlight tradition says, poor dress rehearsal, good show opening night. Last night the Macs emerged from a scuffle with the Chevies with a 5-5 tie to stretch their unbeaten string to twelve, and increase their league lead to three points.

Penalties played an important part in a game that was off the championship beat. Six of the ten goals were scored while sinners looked on, Cornwall taking advantage of manpower on four occasions. Both teams blew two-goal leads in a game that saw the Macs outshoot the foemen 28-22.

The Chevies grabbed a one-goal first period lead and increased it to two before the Macs struck suddenly to even the count in a matter of seconds in the second chapter. The third frame was wide open, each club scoring three goals with the Macs holding a two-goal lead at one time.

The Macs were off effective play that marked their last few victories. Passing clicked spasmodically and they lacked target effect on numerous occasions when on top of the Chevies goal.

Twelve minor penalties, six of them costly ones handed out by Referee Vern Goyer, the McFarlands drawing seven.

Moe Boucher, one of the highest goal-getting defencemen in the league scored two elevenths and twelfth goals of the season, with Ike Hildebrand, Lou Smirke and Floyd Crawford registering the others. Al Dewsbury hun three assists, Bradley two and Hildebrand, Bryden, Smirke and Mc-Lellan one each.

Aggie Kukulowicz, a newcomer scored once and had two assists for the Chevies, while Reg Gifford led the parade with two goals Melski and Boucher got the other pair.

The Macs started into third from the scamay city showed little or no respect for the Allan Cup champions in the first period, their two-way checking stymying the Chevies attacks practically all through the heat.

The Macs passing could have been better, but they were hounded closely behind the Cornwall blueline. Neither Bell nor Devaney were forced too hard the Macs goalie being the target for some shots and Devaney picked out six.

Aggie Kukulowicz, a newcomer to the league, hit the webbing for the only score of the period when he slipped the puck through Boucher's legs whirled around the defencemen and back Bell for the marker.

Near-twin Cornwall penalties around the seven-minute mark paved the way for the Macs opening and tying goals, but not before the driving Chevies had grabbed a lead shortly after the frame opened.

The Macs defence looked anything but champions after a minute of play when Melski and Gifford set up the opening puck from McLay's shot. The Macs drove back but were still impotent in the attack zone. Winner Brown raced in alone but Devaney stopped him on the doorstep.

Muir's high-sticking sentence fatled the Macs' opportunity and 40 seconds after he was chased Goyette was given the gate. Seven seconds later Bell fumbled a hard-driving back hand from Boucher but Devaney for the Macs' first goal.

The light had scarcely stopped blinking when Hildebrand on the drive from the faceoff blasted home a crease shot that tied the count, Dewsbury and Ilraaley assisting.

McLellan and Jones of the Macs got the heave-ho before period end as did Melski of the Chevies but no scoring resulted from any of the sentences. The Macs held an 8-7 shooting edge in the period.

Cornwall power plays paid off in the six-goal, six-penalty third period, the Chevies scoring three times while Macs were in the boxes. The Macs scored once when with the man advantage.

Lamirande set a pattern at 1:40 seconds and Griggs bouncing puck eluded Bell to give the Chevies a 3-2 lead. Smirke got that one back a minute later on a neat power play with Bradley and Menard.

Goyette's sentence paved the way for the Chevies' fifth goal of the season with Hildebrand and Dewsbury helping and Hildebrand's shot from Crawford up beautifully to give the Macs the lead.

Smirke was heaved at 10.09 and three minutes later Crawford's shot from Smirke had a successful foray Grigg cutting the Macs lead to 5-4.

With less than five minutes to go Moe Benoit was given the heave and the Chevies raced in to get the equalizer. They got it at 2:27 when Griggs cross-net shot struck Boucher's lifted stick and deflected into the net.

Goyette got the gate with 46 seconds left and the Macs put on the pressure but time ran out and they settled for the stalemate.

Ferree Leads Golf Tourney

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)— Par remained anything but par today as Jim Ferree, a young professional, led the way into the third round of the $15,000 Palm Springs golf tournament.

Of the 41 invited pros, only seven were over 71-71—142 for the 36-hole listance.

Ferree, whose biggest win as a pro was scored in the British Columbia Centennial last year, had the pace with a pair of 66s for 132.

One stroke behind were Doug Ford and Wes Ellis Jr., also with 66s Friday and Bo Wininger, who had one of the best of the par whacking in the second round.

Trailing back of the leaders were three dangerous challengers — Ken Venturi, the 1958 National Open champ, and Jim Demaret, who three times has won the event.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver shot a three-under-par 68 for a 138.

The Rangers Andy Hebenton Headed Toward Best Season Here

By KENNEDY WELLS

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Working quietly in the shadow of a high-scoring clubmate, Andy Hebenton of New York Rangers is headed towards the best season in the National Hockey League.

Playing, as he does, the same position as Andy Bathgate, the broad-faced right winger doesn't rate much excitement from the fans, but to coach Phil Watson he is one of the most valuable men on the club.

"I can use him anywhere," Watson says. "On the power play, or if we're a man short or if I think one of the other wings is slowing down and needs a rest—Hebenton's always ready to climb onto the ice."

This is quite a tribute from Watson, who prefers fast-skating, hard-shooting forwards to the defensive style Hebenton's always been tabbed with having. And especially when it's conferred on a relatively fellow whose style couldn't be farther from the rough, tough brand of play fiery Phil asks from his players.

Hebenton, a 29-year-old Winnipeg native, has a flair for six minutes in penalties this season and ended well up in the mid-season voting for the Lady Byng Memorial Trophy—an honor his gentlemanly play won for him a season ago.

He just doesn't brawl, and he's got some good company behind his pacifism.

"I figured I was on the team to score, and I found I couldn't do it in the penalty box, so I stopped getting penalties," Hebenton says.

In the minors he once racked up 167 penalty minutes in one season.

In the NHL he has scored more than 20 goals in each of his three seasons, 24 the first, 21 the second and 24 last season.

This season he has scored 18 in 44 games—along with 12 assists—and is usually finishes much stronger than he starts.

Part of this Hebenton credits to centre Camille Henry, who was runnerup him as Lady Byng winner last season and was one step above him in the voting this year.

Henry, who made his name as a man who could score with Rocket Richard, becomes despite his small stature, has turned playmaker this season with a resultant increase in the number of his assists and Hebenton's goals.

Hebenton was also valuable—he hasn't missed a game since he broke in with 254 games ago—and rearguard Bill Gadsby back from five days of beating their weary bones in the Florida sun. Rangers are in Montreal and Boston this weekend. Hebenton will be without Richard and Phil Goyette, but rookie star Ralph Backstrom will be in action again.

Toronto Maple Leafs are host to Boston Bruins and Chicago Black Hawks visit Detroit Red Wings.

Sunday Canadiens are in Detroit, Toronto is in Chicago and Rangers are in Boston.

Macs Meet Tough Czechs In Tourney Preliminaries

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Canada and Russia, winners and runners-up for the 1958 world hockey title, virtually drew a free ticket to the final round of the 1959 tournament in the cards for the preliminary competition announced by the International Ice Hockey Federation Thursday night.

Since the lineups of most of Canada's rivals vary only slightly from year to year, the IIHF had an easy job separating the entries for the tournament in Czechoslovakia in March, ensuring that the two class teams get every chance to qualify for the final.

The 12 entries include hockey's big five — Canada, Russia, Sweden, Czechoslovakia and the United States—and seven outsiders whose championship chances are admittedmin.

FIRST PLAY MARCH 5

For the preliminary round, which begins March 5, the teams are split into three groups of four on a round-robin basis with the first two in each group qualifying for the six-team round-robin that will declare the winner.

Group A, playing at Bratislava, includes Canada, Czechoslovakia, Switzerland and Poland with the first two odd-goes favorites to top the standings.

Canada's showing against the Czechs at Bratislava may prove a yardstick for Belleville's chances of retaining the title won by Whitby at Oslo last year.

The well-drilled Czechs haven't held the title since 1949, and finished fourth among the eight teams at Oslo last year. But they held Whitby to a virtually even terms for two periods before losing 6-0 and bodychecked the fourth-place Russians to a standstill in earning a 4-4 tie.

Group B, at Brno, should be a cakewalk for Russia and the U.S., who have Norway and East Germany to contend with.

Sweden, who upset the Russians in the 1957 final in the absence of a Canadian entry, appear to have a troublesome round against Finland, West Germany and Italy in Group C, with the first four in each group providing the chief interest of the round.

ITALY HAS CANADIANS

Of the three, the Finns probably will be the best conditioned and the least skilled. The West Germans have the most international experience but the Italians have benefitted from Canadian coaching and are likely to include a few players with Canadian citizenship in their lines.

Swede, Champ May Sign Next Week

NEW YORK (AP)—Barring a last-minute hitch at the conference table, a world heavyweight championship fight between champion Floyd Patterson and Ingemar Johansson could be ordered by the New York State Athletic Commission probably will be signed Tuesday or Wednesday.

Promoter Bill Rosensohn emerged Friday night from a long conference with Johansson's manager, Edvard Ansehn, and Cus D'Amato, manager of the world heavyweight champion—but with little reports.

"Everything went well," said Rosensohn, whose only previous fight venture was the Patterson-Roy Harris bout in Los Angeles last August. "There seems to be an agreement on all basic terms and conditions."

Among items to be settled is the matter of a guarantee to return bout contract. Rosensohn also wants to be assured he will be signed to stage the next bout over Johansson's services.

Rosensohn said no site will be selected for the contract is settled. That will be up to the promoter, who will make up his mind in 30 days. It will be held in June.

"I prefer New York or Los Angeles," he said. Colorado Springs also is a possibility.

Bisons Lose To Rochester

The ever-changing battle for a spot in the American Hockey League playoffs today found Rochester Americans in fourth place.

In the only game Friday night, the Americans thumped the pace setting Buffalo Bisons 4-1 to go a point ahead of Springfield and Hershey are far ahead, locked in another three - team struggle.

Buffalo stepped in front early in the second session on Dick Gamble's goal. Rookie Bill Hicke tied the score at 6:16 with the Bisons two men short. Dave Creighton put the Americans in front and the league leaders again had two men in the penalty box.

Rudy Migay scored a pair of insurance goals in the final period.

Mayor Says Overseas Fund Assured of Getting $35,000

BELLEVILLE (CP) — Belleville McFarlands, who will represent Canada at the world hockey tournament in Prague, are still looking for money and players.

Mayor Gerald B. Hyde, treasurer of the club's Overseas Fund, said Friday that $20,000 of the $50,000 required to finance the European trip has been collected. "We are assured of reaching the $35,000 mark," he said, "and we expect to make up the difference in the next few days."

The McFarlands hope to add Pete Conacher and George Gosselin plus "another centre man" to their roster before they depart Feb. 1 for a European warmup tour.

Billy Reay, assistant manager of the team, said it doesn't appear Connie Broden of Hull-Ottawa Canadiens in the OHA Senior A will make the trip. "It's up to Broden himself, but he didn't year.

seem too much in favor of it," said Reay.

At present the only replacements with the team are forwards Billy Graham of the Senior A Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen and Dennis Boucher of Montreal Royals, a Quebec Senior League club.

McFarlands are trying to have Conacher, formerly of Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League, reinstated to amateur ranks. Gosselin of the North Bay team signed with the Whitby Dunlops when they won the world title at Oslo last year.

BRAVES SIGN MATHEWS

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Eddie Mathews of Milwaukee Braves signed his 1959 contract Friday. The veteran's announced but his slugging third baseman, who had a mediocre 1958 season, hitting only .251, probably matched his estimated $35,000 salary for last Minor Hockey Week In Canada-Jan. 24th To Feb. 1!

Will Focus Public Spotlight On Men Behind the Scenes, Game's Advantages to Youth

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has designated the week of January 24—February 1, as "Minor Hockey Week In Canada." From the Atlantic to the Pacific hockey men will pay tribute to the work being done for minor hockey.

They will take time to honor the men who make hockey possible for boys — the men who are the volunteer workers, the managers, coaches, secretaries and referees. Without those men there would be no minor hockey.

Another purpose of Minor Hockey Week is to direct public attention to the many advantages of boys' participation in the sport; to its character-building, physical and other benefits and to encourage further promotion of minor hockey in every community in Canada.

It will point out the ability of hockey to help youth by teaching true sportsmanship, develop competitive spirit, how to give and take; to co-operate with others; play and work with others; to respect authority and to respect other people's property.

FAMILY AFFAIR

Many hockey men agree that minor hockey should be a family affair, that parents should take, not send, their boys to the arena. They believe organized minor hockey can contribute to the development of better Canadian citizens and that all Canadians can assist to see their outstanding hockey players were properly supervised coached and fed.

The boys agree that all Canadians by Joe to see Canada retain world hockey supremacy and that can best be done by developing more and better players starting in with the stars of tomorrow — today's minor hockey players.

Last May the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association was told that the 1957-58 season there had been 90,400 players registered for minor hockey under CAHA rules and regulations.

These figures are only part of the picture. There are thousands of other boys playing under the jurisdiction of CAHA affiliates, but not registered with the CAHA. A conservative estimate would be there are in excess of 150,000 Canadian boys playing part or organized, properly supervised minor hockey.

THE CAHA

In Ontario the week's observances are under the direction of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, the largest organization of its kind in the world.

OMHA president Jack Oakes and his hard-working executive have been busy lining up varied programs throughout the province. They will be out every night next week attending these functions in one part of the province or another.

Last year the Ontario Minor Hockey Association registered almost 35,000 players in Ontario.

In Eastern Ontario the estimated number of minor hockey players under 18 playing under OMHA supervision this season is 7,410. Of this number 6,200 are playing in local minor leagues, the remainder in OMHA league play. Teams entered in playoffs for bantam, midget and juvenile provincial titles amount to 62.

EASTERN STALWARTS

Supervising the administration and organization of the OMHA in Eastern Ontario are those two executive stalwarts Doug Patterson of Stirling, and Albert Watkins of Peterborough.

Under the expert guidance of these men, minor hockey in "Lower Canada" has mushroomed from a few teams into thousands of future stars of the ice lanes. Too much credit cannot be given this doughty hard-working pair and the faithful of men who work with them in the far-flung corners of their district.

Equally hard-working are the small group of hockey-minded men who comprise the Belleville Minor Hockey Association. With Recreation director Lorne "Red" Doran in an advisory capacity, President Bill Brennan and his executive, with their co-workers, are doing a splendid job for minor hockey here.

Over 1,100 boys operate under the organizational guidance playing in many teams in the various classifications. At the moment they are busy planning a joint Minor Hockey Week banquet with the Picton Minor Hockey Association.

Heading the Belleville Minor Hockey Association are: Bill 3658-59 season is President Bill Brennan; Past President and executive are vice-presidents Mel Richards and William Scott, secretary, Cecil Vokes and treasurer William Hurst.

The committee men are: Fred Foole; peewee, Harry Rollins; bantam: Neil Hallam; midget, Homer Hall.

DOING FINE JOB

In the outlying districts of this part of Eastern Ontario many boys-minded hockey men are doing yeoman service. Many of them have to operate open-air rinks and depend on the weather for their playing conditions. Theirs is not an easy task but they are it with a smile, and their reward is the smiling faces of puck-chasing youngsters.

As Doug Patterson says, "to name a few" here are some of the men who have been instrumental during the years in the success of minor hockey in the district:

Havelock, Don Kirk, OMHA Honor Award winner in 1956; Bancroft, Lorne Wray, major; Snowdon; Cooper, Ross Rollins; Coe Hill, Vern Gunter; Apsley, Bellford, Cy Johnson; Frankford, Herb Rankin and Doug Bastedo; Kingston, Ron Sheppard; Marmora, Bob Boland, Sheppard, Percy Gray; Madoc, Doug Pigden, Clem Treverton; Stirling, Doug Robertson, Jack Wratten, Walt Pringle; Tweed, Don LeSage, Dick Graham; Trenton, Barney McColl-lum, Jack Jemmett, and Wellington Wilson Ainsworth, Frank Brimacombe and Jack Ogilvy.

Tribute will be paid to those unsung heroes of the sweater and whistle brigade, voluntarily give their services, usually one of the most thankless jobs in hockey.

All of the teams have to have some sort of financing. All kinds of service clubs such as Kinsmen, Rotary, Kiwanis, Legion men, Lions, Y's Men as well as recreation groups, merchants, manufacturers and many private sportsmen who are interested in boys and hockey are providing finances and in many cases the coaching, managing and transportation.

Minor hockey without doubt lays the groundwork for the stars of the future, not a few of whom will be National League players. Many major league players of the present time got their start in organized minor hockey. Eastern Ontario has produced two that are playing today with the Hull of the Chicago Black Hawks,and Bernie "Winner" Brown, a former Belleville McFarlands.

ENDORSE MINOR HOCKEY

Prime Minister John Diefenbaker and premier Leslie Frost of Ontario both endorse Minor Hockey Week.

Said the Prime Minister, "We must look to amateur hockey to maintain the type of material that will ensure that Canadians retain their place in international competition. But more important in my mind is the training it gives Canada to be keen, to work hard, to play hard, to play fairly and to work together.

"My hope is that those who have responsibility for sport will find an abundance of youngsters who are keenly interested in the sport, that the base for the truly national sport will remain as it is now, a solid foundation for the body and a school for character building."

Premier Frost said: "Young people who participate in the activities of the minor hockey associations in our land, stand to reap a two-fold benefit. Firstly, they will be fundamentals of a healthy sane approach to life and secondly, young people little time for less desirous pastimes, and secondly, a healthy body and the experience obtained from fair competition, as much to develop fine keen minds."

Marlene Reaches Semi-Finals

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—Stars of former years opposed the current co - medalists today in quarter-finals of the Lee Doherty amateur golf tournament for women.

Joanne Goodwin, 1956 winner, was matched with Barbara Mclntire. The other pairings: Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto, 1954 runner-up and Marge Burns of Greensboro, N.C.

Miss Goodwin, defeating Betty Kerby 3 and 1, turned in one of the most spectacular shots of quarter-to-final play in a pelting rain. She canned a 50-foot putt for a birdie.

Mrs. Streit defeated Mrs. William Hartson, one up. Mrs. Hartson carded the 10th hole with a 25-foot putt and won the 11th to take a temporary lead.

WINS DOWNHILL

MEGEVE, France (AP) — Andreri Molterer of Austria Friday won the downhill event of the 1959 French Alpine ski meet. The national ski meet of the French season. Molterer was timed in 2 minutes, 38.8 seconds for the treacherous course. The race was delayed an hour because a small avalanche had covered the course.

Beaux and Belles Enjoy Spiel at Curling Club

The Beaux and Belles Bonspiel at the Quinte Curling Club with a total complement of 32 rinks, including 21 local quartets, is already a howling success. This year, for the mixed curling bonspiel ever held by the club, the executive accepted the general chairmanship of the event and up to now has a committee of Mrs. Gerry Ernie Wilkinson, M. White, L. E. McLean, Mrs. S. Peverley, Mrs. S. Wilkinson, Mrs. Jack Lane and Mrs. E. Gowsell working at top speed. A terrific amount of effort has been put into the event, the prizes are beautiful and the entry list huge.

There will be two events in the spiel. The rinks that draw byes in play are in Event "A" and the losers drop down to Event "B" for the next two full days of games and has a chance to cop it all. The spiel is self supporting, the entry fees and prizes are made by the committee. Mrs. Jack Bird, president of the ladies' section has organized the culinary end of the spiel and the women committee members have supplied all the delicacies and they are just out of this world. The fellowship spirit at the bonspiel is the finest and the participants have already signified their intension of being back next year.

The play has been exceptionally keen in every draw. Some big ends were registered but on the whole the games have been slow, some decided by the last rock. Due to commitments by some of the rinks, the complete draw was not finished until Friday night but everything is now ready for the finals on Saturday and some close games can be expected.

Along with the bonspiel there will be a "draw" competition, open to all and women. Each rink will be allowed to throw one rock and the closest to the "button" will be declared the winner. This competition will separate the men and women from the boys and girls and a lot of speculation is being bandied about the clubhouse. Those not curling in the spiel are getting a "kick" but second-guessing on shots from behind "the glass."

The results up until the end of curling Friday night were: —

KINGSTON' (CP) — Queen's University Golden Gaels, winless in three previous starts, defeated the University of Toronto Blues 43-56 Friday night in a senior intercollegiate basketball contest.

Queen's, playing their eighth game, broke into an early lead and were never headed, leading 29-19 at the half-time.

Toronto, with one previous win, arrived late in Kingston because of a train delay. Blues had difficulty finding the basket, particularly in the opening half.

Murray Prior and Gregg Stone led Queen's scoring with 14 points apiece. Ryan Richman led Toronto with 12 points and Norman Menzel scored 10 points.

In an intermediate game Toronto downed Queen's 57-37.

North Bay Would Welcome Junior 'A' Hockey Franchise

BARRIE, Ont. (CP)—Pete Pelangie, owner of North Bay Trappers in the OHA-NOHA Senior A series, says he would gladly replace his senior hockey team with a Junior A franchise.

Pelangie was commenting in a telephone interview from North Bay on a statement Thursday night by coach Hap Emms of Barrie Flyers that he was "seriously considering" moving the Junior A franchise out of Barrie. North Bay was mentioned as a likely new home for Flyers.

"If Emms was serious about moving the club, Pelangie said, "I would drop the senior team and stick with the juniors."

He said although Emms would not be in complete control they would come to some arrangement. He and Emms talked about the move a couple of months ago.

He said North Bay was a junior hockey city and added Trappers have spent much money travelling in the OHA-NOHA circuit.

Emms said Flyers team with its lower expenses could operate successfully in North Bay.

The fifth-place Flyers have lost money for the last three seasons and this year's club, Emms claims, has apparently brought the matter to a head.

Barrie Examiner Thursday asked fans to write and tell why they couldn't support the games. Mayor Willard Kinsie said Friday he will do everything in his power to keep the club here and suggested establishment of a new league.

The North Bay arena seats at least 5,500 compared to Barries' 4,000, and Trappers draw an average of 1,500 fans a game.

A club can be transferred only if the transfer has the approval of the junior A council and sanctioned by the OHA.

Barrie and North Bay are affiliated with Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League.

Grid League Pension Issue Is Deferred

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The player pension issue was put off until April and the player draft reduced from 30 to 20 rounds Friday as National Football League owners wound up their annual winter meeting.

Commissioner Bert Bell said owners would study pension proposals made by the players association, but added that before consideration of the subject April 23 in Chicago, the owners, also the league's 12 coaches and association representatives are scheduled to meet.

Other accomplishments during the 2½-day meeting were the reduction of the college player draft, a ruling prohibiting players from participating in more than one recognized pre-season and post-season games, and renewal of the Pro Football Hall of Fame Cardinals territorial agreement.

Most of the meeting might be described in one word—negative. Eleven proposed rule changes were either defeated or withdrawn and of the many controversial issues discussed only two gained approval.

Bell said that the owners apparently are satisfied with the league as is since they passed fewer amendments at this meeting than any other.

The most important action appeared to be the reduction of the draft. Bell said the owners decided to reduce the draft to conform with the 60-player maximum training camp squad requirements.

Brazil also won its second without a loss; breaking away in the last 10 minutes for a 65-50 decision over Bulgaria.

Life Itself Was Adventure For Famous Movie Producer

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The reason for Cecil B. DeMille's success as a maker of stirring film dramas?

Perhaps because life itself was an adventure for him.

Jesse Lasky recalled that when they were producing vaudeville sketches in New York DeMille told him one day he was getting restless and wanted to go to Mexico to get into the revolution and perhaps write about it.

Lasky didn't want to lose his best friend. He seized upon the suggestion of his brother-in-law, Samuel Goldwyn. Said Lasky: "If you want adventure I've got an even better idea — let's make some movies!"

TOUGH OPPONENTS

So DeMille set out for the west with his hearty band of movie pioneers to make The Squaw Man. And the adventure was not merely in trailblazing a new form of entertainment. The trip was up against tough opponents.

"We were just little independents bucking the trusts," DeMille recalled recently. "We had $20,000 tied up and that was our all. It occurred to me that if we had a fire we might lose all the film I was shooting so I took to shooting every scene twice. I'd sneak home one negative and put it in the attic."

There was no fire, but the "trust" found a lot of ways to sabotage the little company. DeMille said, and when the picture was done, less than half the film was useable.

"But they didn't know about the second takes. I spirited them out of the house, cut the picture on a train headed east, dropped off at Philadelphia and had prints made."

A PROFIT

The Squaw Man cost $15,500, produced $225,000 and DeMille became a top director.

DeMille always brought adventure to his job as director. He strode about his set imperiously, threatening or cajoling huge crowds to perform the utmost.

One actor balked at having Jesse Arthur flick a gun from his hand with a bullwhip in The Plainsman. DeMille took a severe lashing on his own arm until the actress improved her aim enough for the actor to risk it.

In his '30s he went to Egypt to film his greatest crowd scenes—25,000 followers of Moses fleeing the Pharaoh and the Ten Commandments. And despite a heart attack he insisted on finishing the picture which was to be his monument.

HELPED EVERYONE

LONDON (CP)—Alex Nivison, a partner in a London stock exchange firm, left money to almost everyone who worked for him. Bequests to clerks and servants ranged from £250 to £2,000.

Introduction of Minnows Ruined Lake for Trout Fishing

CHAPLEAU, Ont. (CP)—Banana Lake, once rated one of the best speckled trout lakes in this Northern Ontario region, is to be given a second chance.

The lake produced limit catches of four- and five-pound speckleds only a decade ago. The careless introduction of perch minnows by bait fishermen ruined it.

Banana Lake is 20 miles southwest of this railway town on the CPR 170 miles west of Sudbury.

SURVEY UNDER WAY

A survey now is under way on the winter ice to prepare the lake for poisoning. Because of its small size, less than a mile long and a quarter-mile wide in places, it is ideally suited for poison treatment.

District forester T. W. Houston says there's little doubt the lake can be brought back to its former condition as a producer of big trout. He cites this history of the lake in a recent report:

Until 1939 Banana Lake, which is fed by springs and has no surface outlet, was completely devoid of fish. Yet it had signs of being a good feeding ground.

Lands and forestry crews introduced 1,500 yearling speckled trout into the lake. The fish grew rapidly and reproduced at a great rate due to abundant food and a good spawning area. In a few years anglers were bringing out five-pounders.

About five years ago the first perch were being caught and the trout fishing started into a decline. By last summer it was possible to catch 60 to 70 perch in an afternoon without landing a single trout.

DUMPED BY ANGLERS

There was only one explanation for the new arrivals. Some anglers had dumped their leftover minnows into the water ignorant of the damage they would cause. The encroaching perch multiplied quickly and began taking most of the food, starving out the trout.

Next spring liquid toxaphene will be dumped into the lake from motorboats, mixing into the water through the churning outboard motor propellers. Enough will be used to kill every fish in the lake—the remaining trout as well as the millions of perch.

In 1960, when the poisonous effects vanish, a new batch of small speckled trout will be placed in the lake.

But this time Mr. Houston expects to have Banana Lake included in the provincial regulations which prohibit the use of live bait in certain trout waters.

Scouting activities

By CHRIS F. LEGGAT

Boy Scout Week will be observed in Canada from Feb. 16th to Feb. 22nd and it seems a suitable time to present items of interest about Scouting in Canada.

Over 24,000 Canadian men and women provide the leadership for more than 5,000 Wolf Cub Packs, 4,000 Boy Scout Troops and 400 Rover Scout Crews, and every one of them gives time and ability without remuneration of any kind. These are the uniformed leaders. In addition to these are many thousands more who serve as members of group committees, ladies auxiliaries, and districts and provincial councils and committees. In all more than 50,000 men and women give of their time in the interests of the Boy Scout Movement without thought of reward.

85 COMMISSIONERS

To service the membership of more than a quarter of a million boys and leaders, the Association employs about 85 men as field commissioners and executives at District, Provincial and Canadian Headquarters.

The Canadian General Council charters a Provincial Council in each province which in turn charters regional and district councils and committees to operate Scouting in defined areas.

However it is the volunteer core of leaders which makes Scouting possible for more than a quarter of a million Canadian boys. Speaking at the annual meeting of the Canadian General Council in Toronto last year, Mr. Rhys M. Sale, president of the Council and president of the Ford Motor Company), said of these leaders: "It is their dedication, their devotion, their sacrificial offer of unnumbered hours in selfless service that are the greatest assets of the movement."

12TH HOLY ROSARY CUBS

This Pack has had it problems but they are in good hands now and will go ahead. Their padre is very keen and gives support spiritually and physically to his Cubs. This is of course a great help to the leaders and when a combination of inspired men and women, such as the Holy Rosary Group, are behind the movement it must succeed.

A year ago, when Harold Lyon was made Akela the Pack was very small and not too active. Today there are three Sixes with David Lyon, Bobby Hogan and Paul King as Sixers, assisted by Seconders Kenny Smith, Gary Deakin and Pat Barrett.

First Stars were awarded to Cubs David Lyon, Paul King, Bobby Hogan and Kenny Smith. Cub David Lyon also received his House Orderly Badge.

New arrivals in the Pack are New Cubs Brian McQuaid, Bobby Mulvihill and Ricky Lyon.

TV TIPS

By JOHN WETTLAUFER

Television aerials which are kept in proper repair will withstand a great deal of punishment from the weather — but when they are neglected, they often end up as a pile of twisted metal after even a mild windstorm.

Wind damage to TV aerials has usually been included in the fire insurance, but this has been changed in policies coming up for renewal after January 1st, and property owners should bear in mind that their TV aerials are no longer insured against wind damage.

The point is this: it is now more important than ever that you keep your antenna in good condition. Guy wires rust and weaken or become loose and invite disaster unless checked regularly.

Don't risk the expense of having your aerial and rotor damaged or destroyed! CIRCLE TV SERVICE, 364 Coleman St., have the experienced men and equipment to put your antenna in safe, up top condition. The cost is small . . . far less than a new aerial. Phone WO 8-6791 (in Trenton, EX 7-7689) for a free estimate.

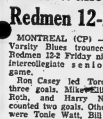
Bilts Shade Hamilton 6-5

GUELPH (CP) — Sandy McGregor came up with four goals, three of them in a tight third period, to lead Guelph Biltmores to a 6-5 win over Hamilton Cubs in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game Friday night.

McGregor climaxed a thrilling third-period display by shoving the winning goal into the Hamilton nets with seven seconds left in the game.

Guelph moved to within three points of the third-place Toronto St. Michael's Majors. Hamilton remains last.

Jean Ratelle and Enos Kraft scored the other two goals for Guelph. Bert Templeton picked up two for Hamilton, and singles were added by Neil Forth, Lloyd Haddon and Lyle Porter after a scoreless first period.



Blues Wallop Redmen 12-2

MONTREAL (CP) — Toronto Varsity Blues trounced McGill Redmen 12-2 Friday night in an intercollegiate senior hockey game.

Ron Casey led Toronto with three goals. Mike Mills, Howie Roth, and Harry Neil each counted two goals. Other scorers were Tonie Watt, Bill Kennedy and Dunc Brody.

The McGill goals were scored by Joe Irvin and Bes Killen.

Youth and the Great Outdoors

A certain gentleman, a citizen of a medium-size city in Pennsylvania, while reading his newspaper one evening, was interrupted by his high-school-age son. The boy told him of another youngster in high school who boasted of bringing home a "mixed bag" the Saturday before.

The mixed bag was composed of one ruffed grouse, one bufflehead duck, and two brown trout. All of the items mentioned were taken with a twenty-two rifle. Moreover, the trout season had long been closed and the hunting season had not yet opened. In short, the mixed bag was 100% illegal.

The man was both a fisherman and a hunter and he questioned the boy closely. Then he called up the local game warden, a friend of his. Shortly thereafter, the warden called at the house of the "mixed-bag" hunter and had a long talk with both him and his father.

Time went on and the hunting season arrived. Thinking back on the mixed-bag episode, the man told his son to ask this youngster whether he would like to go woodcock hunting. The boy went along and it was found out, all in one afternoon, what joys the outdoors has to offer the sportsman who is well equipped and who knows his business.

The boy took to hunting and fishing like a duck takes to water. He was a natural. Gradually he accumulated adequate gear — a good gun, a good rifle, rod, etc. He learned to tie his own trout flies and bass bugs. Before long he was not only a regular member of the party in hunting and fishing trips; he became practically a member of the family.

A HAPPY ENDING

Following both suggestion and example, the youngster, instead of being content with merely a high-school education, went on to obtain his college diploma. Today he holds a responsible key position in the Conservation Department of one of our good hunting and fishing states. What, we wonder, would have happened to that boy should he have decided not to go woodcock shooting on that fateful afternoon.

With this one instance in mind, consider the little news story which came in recently from Wisconsin. Here it is, just as we received it —

Madison, Wis. — In a letter to a complaining mother, Superviling Worthy Chauncey A. Weltz, Black River Falls, agrees that it should not be the function of a warden to discipline teenagers but that it becomes necessary where parents neglect that duty. The mother's son was one of three youngsters trying to escape with a deer in their car. The mother contended the apprehending warden was "sneaky." Weltz pointed out that if the youngsters were properly supervised they would not have been out in a car at 5 a.m. with 17 cans of beer, for which one of the boys was fined.

Again, we can't help but think that what will happen to these boys when they grow to maturity. Here's hoping that some interested sportsman, or group of sportsmen, takes a hand in seeing to it that these youngsters are put on the right path before it is too late.

The problems are quite a few organizations formula.ed as best to a helping hand to youngsters to put them on the right home environment for healthy adolescence. Perhaps the best known of these is the Big Brother outfit, each member of which takes a youngster and assumes the responsibility of guidance through the teenage years.

The late J. Hammond Brown, for years the executive secretary of the Outdoor Writers Associa.ion of America, originated and organized about twenty years ago The Order of the Jungle Cock. I was happy to serve on the original board of directors of that group.

TEACHING THE BOYS

Fundamentally, the purpose of this informal group was pretty much the same as that of the Big Brothers. Each member who was enrolled pledged himself to take a boy fishing at least once a year. At the annual outing, held each May at Thurmont, Maryland, no member may attend unless accompanied by a boy.

Of course, taking a boy fishing was not difficult in those days. My son was then in his teens and was my constant companion in the outdoors. But he is a grown man now with a little boy of his own so I must take boys with me whose fathers happen not to be fishermen.

Taking a boy fishing, an absolute beginner, can be a trying and tiresome job. There is so much for them to learn and teaching them requires much tact and endless patience. But that vast amount of expended patience is its own reward. When you see your young pupil improve his technique to the point where he is at last sufficient. Then it is indeed a pleasure to sit by and watch the youngster put to good use the lessons you have given him. A boy has such an unbounded sense of enthusiasm that through him you can live your youth all over again. Try it next season; take a youngster with you and see for yourself how much fun it is to teach a kid how to fish.

Minor Hockey

The PeeWees opened Minor Hockey Week here in Belleville this morning with lots of fast and furious action in the division's usual five games.

The Maple Leafs edged the Browns 2-1 in a close affair. Rickey DeMille and Garry May scored for the Leafs with Dennis Spencer assisting on both goals. Bob Lancaster was the lone Brown scorer with Ron Poste assisting.

The Macs scored a goal in the final minute of play to earn a 1-1 tie with the Rangers. Gregory Moore was the Mac hero, potting the goal unassisted, just before the final bell. Bob Furney had given Rangers a 1-0 lead with Billy Hallam helping.

Black Hawks chalked up a 5-1 victory over Quinte. The winners divided their goals evenly, one apiece for Gerry Muldoon, Brian Knudsen, Don Muldoon, Stephen White and Larry Lucas. Jim Pointer, Eugene Barbadoro, Lucas and the Muldoon boys each picked up one assist. Bob Fletcher potted the Quinte goal on a play with Terry Soule.

Paul Ruttan fired his club's last two goals to give Barons a 4-3 win over the Red Wings. John Cole and Brian Derry also scored with Chris Muir getting the lone assist. Doug Dickey had a goal and assist for the Wings. Larry Herrington and Larry Stewart also scored with Dave McLean drawing one assist.

Bruins squeezed out a 3-2 decision over the Canadiens. Carl Hannah triggered two Bruin goals with John Blakley getting the other. Peter Pearce, Gary Rutherford and Mike Brennan shared assists. Dave MacMullen and David Grant scored for Canadiens. Larry Fritz had an assist.

BCI Hoopsters Take Pair From Quinte

By PAUL FLEMING.

On Friday evening the B.C.I. V.S. boys quintet played host to their rival school Quinte and came up with victories in two of the three contests.

In the Senior tilt Quinte downed the B.C.I.S. cagers 49 to 32 in a rather rough and tumbling game. Quinte never lost a minute as they got off to a fast start and never looked back. For Quinte, Walter was the big factor in their win as he potted 19 points and backed by Green with 10, Campbell 6, Mariot 4, Fitzpatrick who played a strong defensive game on defence potted 2 for B.C.I. Skelly Morton and Elliot starred racking up 11, 8 and 8 points respectively.

The Junior game proved to be the highlight of the evening and the boys really had their hands full trying to break both the jubilant crown and over anxious cagers at the B.C.I. cagers squeezed a narrow 41-39 score past the visitors.

At the end of the first half Quinte led 23-19 and in the final frame the lead changed hands many times until the B.C.I. hoopsters finally nailed it down to their remaining set held on to post their second consecutive win.

The big guns for B.C.I. were McKenzie who played a stands-out game in racking up 19 points, Wilson and MacFarlane turning in a fine effort with 7 points apiece, Hook and Davis 4 and 2 points respectively. For Quinte Fellows led the parade with 10, Rose and Davis snaring 7 and Wilson with 5 points.

In the bantam battle the B.C.I. boys redeemed last week's loss by downing Quinte by a 26-17 decision. For B.C.I. Elsher came up with 11, Blakely and Mulhead putting 6 apiece to turned the trick while for the losers Gilley was top man with 8 points followed by Burley with 5. Acquin and Turner each netting 2 points.

Trimble May Coach Packers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Jim Trimble will be the next coach and general manager of the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League, it was predicted here Friday night.

Oliver E. Kuechle, president of the Milwaukee Journal, made the forecast in a TV sports program. Kuechle said the deal to land Trimble has been completed and that the only remaining announcement was: "When will the Packers make the announcement."

Trimble coached Hamilton Tiger-Cats to the Big Four. In three seasons his team took two divisional titles and in 1957 won the Grey Cup.

Olmedo Moves Into Finals

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)— Alex Olmedo of the United States pulled out a five-set victory over his U.S. Davis Cup teammate, Barry MacKay, today and moved within a single stop of the Australian national championship.

Playing with a strained stomach muscle which forced him to serve at never more than three-quarter pace, the University of Southern California ace at times trimmed MacKay 3-6, 8-6, 6-1, 3-6, 6-3 in steamy heat and occasional sprinkling rain.

The triumph put Olmedo into the final tomorrow against top-seeded Australian Neale Fraser, who beat Bob Mark of Australia 6-4, 6-4, 6-3.

Destruction of 4,000 Wolves Helps Game Herds to Grow

By MARVEN MOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — A poison-dealing onslaught against wolves by Quebec wildlife authorities has brought new balance to what was formerly a one-sided battle between the sharp-fanged predator and moose and deer.

The provincial game and fisheries department gave up its neutrality five years ago in the Montreal division covering south-western Quebec from Sherbrooke to the 46th parallel of latitude to the north-east.

Since then, it has destroyed about 4,000 wolves and their cousin predators, foxes.

"All animals, except for wolves and foxes, travel around a frozen lake rather than cross it on the ice, Mr. Bourque said. "The two predators however, take the shortest route to their destination across the lake and are not hesitant about crossing the ice."

He said at the outset of the program the poisoned meat did not seem to be placed far from settlements because the wolf population was thick, bold and wily.

AIRBORNE POISON

But as their numbers thinned the animals became more cautious. The baits were placed deeper into the backwoods and now much of the poisoned meat is set out by aircraft, sometimes dropped directly onto the lake from the plane.

The superintendent said this method also has another advantage. In the spring, when the ice thaws the poisoned meat drops into the lake and there is no danger to other hungry animals, as posed by poisoned meat left on land.

A difficulty, however, is to determine the effectiveness of the campaign, Mr. Bourque said. "Sometimes the meat freezes sometimes destroy up to 20 animals a year."

The poison method for killing the predators went into use after the two years of experimentation with various poisons, traps and some types of snares. Strychnine has been found the best type of poison for the job.

The method of administration is simple. A chunk of meat treated with the poison is placed in the north-eastern Quebec forest workers. There is no danger of attracting animals apart from wolves and their cousin predators, foxes.

"All animals, except for wolves and foxes, travel around a frozen lake rather than cross it on the ice, Mr. Bourque said. "The two predators however, take the shortest route to their destination across the lake and are not hesitant about crossing the ice."

Hunters also help to keep the wolf population down. As encouragement, the province pays a $30 bounty on the animals.

Free Enterprise May Be on Way Out in U.S. International Trade

By LLOYD McDONALD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP) — American business leaders are said to be giving serious consideration to the prospect that rapidly growing Communist competition in world trade markets might result in the fairly near future in the government moving into a field hitherto regarded as sacred to private enterprise.

The Research Institute of America, a private organization which claims contacts in the Communist world as well as in high-level United States circles, has circulated among U.S. business leaders a "report to management" which claims Washington already is considering some sort of government takeover in the foreign trade field.

FIGURES CAUSE DISMAY

The report, which contains statistics from Russia and Communist China indicating that the two Communist powers are rapidly overtaking the U.S. in almost every production field, says the surge in the East has caused "particular dismay" in Washington with the result that:

"... Senior United States officials have been seriously considering how to make politically acceptable the establishment of a government foreign trade monopoly which might be able to compete with the Communist monopolies on something approaching equal terms.

"It is not too much to say that continuance of Communist economic growth and the increase of 'unfair' Communist price competition could cause the end of private enterprise in international trade in the years immediately ahead."

Soviet goals in the current seven-year plan would surpass the U.S. in most economic fields by 1965, the report says. Even if Russia fell far short of these goals it "would nonetheless develop into a much more formidable competitor in world markets than it is now."

The economic advance would be over and above the production and development of weapons in the military field in which, the report concedes, the Russians are clearly ahead of the U.S.

RED CHINA MENACE

Red China's transformation, however, is regarded as even more portentous than that of Russia.

"Peiping's staggering goal," the U.S. leaders are told, "is nothing less than the transformation of China's primitive economy into a modern industrial state capable of competing with either or both the Soviet Union and the United States within 10 years."

The entire report, with one exception, is of pessimism for the future of business in the Western world. The exception is the "underlying possibility" that Russia might be forced into seeking an alliance with the West because of fear of "the surging Far Eastern power of military and economic dominance."

Centenary

CENTENARY — Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Pearson and family were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Douglas on Thursday evening.

The Young People of Centenary United Church held a tobogan party on Monday evening after which refreshments were enjoyed at the home of Miss Lorna Bay.

Sorry to report Mrs. Kelley, a former resident of this community, is seriously ill at the County Home hospital.

Miss Lorna Bay and Mrs. Bill Matthews were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Pearson on Sunday evening.

The Young People's Union conducted the church service on Sunday evening under the leadership of the president, Mr. Carman Moore. Miss Eileen Hancock told the story to the junior contingent and Miss Marion Christie delivered the Scripture. Mr. Douglas Pearson gave the meditation and Miss Mary Kenner, Mr. Allan Hitchen and Mr. R. Hart also assisted in the service.

The Rev. R. Rickard installed the officers of the Young People for the following year.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Edmondson called on Mrs. G. Bush, Trenton, on Sunday afternoon.

NO "HERO'S WELCOME"

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail quotes A. R. L. McNaughton, a Montreal consulting engineer who acted as an agent for Cuban rebel Fidel Castro, as saying he will not return to Cuba for a "hero's welcome." The newspaper says John Bitzs, a Toronto automotive firm executive, returned from Cuba with a report that Castro government officials were anxious to have McNaughton come to Cuba. Mr. McNaughton said he has no further connection with the Cuban regime.

Your Car

Cold Engine Aided by Choke, Heat Valves

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

At this time of year, the carburetion assists provided by choke and heat control valves become especially vital. Your engine depends on them, more than ever, for easier starting and fast warmup.

With a cold engine, the choke valve should be in a closed position. This restricts air flow into the carburetor and allows extra fuel to be drawn in thereby providing a rich mixture for quicker starting and warmup.

The heat valve aids a cold engine by temporarily routing hot exhaust gases around the intake manifold in order to preheat the fuel mixture during the warmup period. If hard starting, sluggish engine performance and poor gas mileage afflict your engine, it might be well to check up on choke and manifold heat control efficiency.

H. F. asks: "If the headlights go out of aim, do they usually drift toward the left or right — or does it vary?"

(A) Actually, the headlights can become misaimed in any direction—left, right up or down.

From D. R.: "A neighborhood gas station claims you can help the battery by keeping water level in the cells a little lower than usual during winter. Is this advised?"

(A) Some recommend it. The theory is that a lower water level will result in a more potent battery electrolyte solution. Motorists are cautioned, course, to be certain the level doesn't get too low.

J. S. writes: "The carburetor on my '53 sedan isn't getting enough gas. I've cleaned and adjusted it and installed another fuel pump which was first tested. Then I blew out the gas lines and flushed out the gas tank. What more can be done?"

(A) Try the vent in the gas tank filler. The fuel pump may not be able to draw gas properly if this vent is clogged.

E. W. asks: "If I have to hit the brakes quickly for a sudden stop, my engine stalls. Why does this happen? The car is a well-kept '52 model."

(A) Your car is equipped with a throttle return check which apparently isn't working properly. Its function is to slow down closing of the throttle when you decelerate quickly.

Garden Notes

Here Are New Fashions in Trees

By Flora M. Saville

In mid-September, ornamental crab trees hang thick with jewel red fruit. Where ever these crabs are grown, they form an outstanding specimen tree that delights the eye of every beholder.

One of the best of the ornamental crabs is red jade. In spring the tree is a mass of pink-white bloom. In the fall the pendulant branches are hung with bright fruit that lasts for weeks. The Brooklyn Botanical Garden claims this as one of their originals. It makes a fine specimen, or accent tree for a cottage or a ranch type house.

Stark's of Missouri have brought out a semi-dwarf apple called Starkrimson. The original tree sold for $25,000. Visitors to the nursery may see the tree heavily guarded by a close mesh metal fence. This tree bears fruit with the same color and appearance of the delicious but bears years earlier and yields twice as many apples in the first ten years as the delicious. At present it is not for sale in Canada but we can hope to have it soon.

The Lombardy poplar has many admirers, but is subject to canker, a disease which often kills it. There's another, which has the same appearance promise to replace the Lombardy, since it is highly resistant or immune to this disease. These trees can be used as a windbreak with evergreens at their sake or to mark the line of property.

EUROPEAN TREE

If you have poor soil and wish light shade Frienis Locust is for you. This is a handsome tree recently introduced from Europe. In summer the lacey foliage is light golden yellow which takes on a copper tone as fall comes, the thorns are bright red. The open branches give an airy appearance to the tree. Shade never becomes dense enough to retard lawn grass. Height approximately 40 feet. Another thornless tree is Gleditsia has a pyrmidial form, more delicate than a Lombardy, it grows to a height of 40 feet. The foliage is fern like. In spring, it is hung with fine long racemes of white pea-shaped blooms. This is good for a narrow lot, a corner accent, for the home or to mark an entrance.

Drought and disease resistant is improved coolshade elm. The first hybrid elm to receive the United States plant patent. Its growth is rapid and where dense shade is required this will become a popular choice.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Retirement Can Be Many Things Here Are Some Typical Examples

By THOMAS COLLINS

Here is a cross-section of retirement, taken from the experiences of 116 employees of an electric utility company.

They are fairly typical of what good and substantial people across the country are doing when they reach 65.

* * *

"I decided to stay on at home after I retired. But when the temperature gets uncomfortable I go to Fort Worth, Tex., where my daughter lives. Both at home and in Texas I keep the wolf from the door by doing electrical work."

* * *

"It was like remarrying my wife when I retired. We built a new two-bedroom home with all the convenience appliances. A large garden is my main hobby, but I do small jobs of wiring and appliance repair for people. So far retirement has not been a problem."

* * *

"I have just been released from the veterans' hospital after an illness. My wife has a government position."

* * *

"I like retirement. I have a wonderful neighbor who has a power lawn mower and keeps my lawn in good shape."

* * *

"I spend my retirement traveling around the United States in a trailer. I lost my wife. I came north in October; then in November headed for the south I like to fish, swim and travel. I think life begins at 70."

* * *

"I did not like retirement, so I got a job taking care of the local Presbyterian church."

* * *

"My wife and I moved to Long Beach, Calif., when I retired, and we live about ten miles from our daughter, a mile from the ocean, and a short distance from two golf courses that are popular with retired folks. I have a shop in the garage where I do woodworking. I also grow roses. My wife does flower gardening. We are enjoying retirement more than we had anticipated."

* * *

"My wife and I have been living in the Methodist parsonage since retirement and acting as custodians of the church."

* * *

"Ten months ago when I'retired I began to live the life of Riley. I've been so busy doing as I please that I've hardly had time to go fishing. When I don't feel like doing anything, simply don't do anything. For those who fear retirement I am thinking of starting a class in languishing. I belong to three different veteran outfits, and these affairs take up much of my time. Since last year I have fired a rifle over the graves of 43 buddies who have faded away.

"I say to those who are still working: quit while you are ahead."

* * *

"My wife and I wanted to be with other retired people. And for reasons of health we wanted a warm, dry climate. We moved to Mesa, Arizona, where the big league baseball clubs train. We are active in church, Legion and clubs, and in these groups have many retired friends."

* * *

"My son and I are running a plumbing shop together, and I have been doing this since I retired. I like the setup."

* * *

"I am the mayor of the small town where I live. In summer I go to my cottage on a nearby lake where I have a boat and motor. I do a lot of fishing and boat riding. In the fall I go hunting, and fish through the ice. In January I go to California for three months. Everybody should get busy with a hobby at retirement."

The campaign is being sponsored by the local Quinnette Group composed of young women who have been interested in this work and who have assisted the Mothers' March for the past four years. The Belleville Mothers' March will be one of more than 100 held throughout the province. As the home of seven orders approaches it is estimated that over 100,000 mothers will be pinning on their lapel badges, picking up their receipt books and starting out to call on from 10 to 15 of their neighbors.

Everything has been done to make the canvass as easy as possible, and to keep the captains' districts as small as possible. Each Marching Mother is being asked to call on from 10 to 15 homes, so that may complete her calls and be back home in one hour or less." Volunteers are asked to get in touch with Mrs. J. Manage To Plug River Bed Hole; 11 Mines Flooded

Push 50 Railroad Cars Into River's Whirlpool

PITTSTON, Pa. (AP) — The Susquehanna River no longer pours its waters into the anthracite coal mines of the Wyoming Valley But a gigantic pumping operation remained today before the search could begin for 12 missing miners.

The huge hole in the river bed was finally plugged Sunday night —36½ days after the rain-swollen Susquehanna ate its way into a coal tunnel under the river.

Few believed the 12 men would be found alive. One official said there was only one high spot in the flooded tunnels where the men could have escaped drowning.

Eleven mines have been closed by the relentless flow of water through the hole in the river bed and 6,000 miners nearly a third of the anthracite industry—have been laid off.

The extent of flooding was indicated by what it took to plug the breach. An army of men pushed more than 50 railroad gondola cars, many smaller cars, straw, hay, rocks, shavings, and finally tons of dirt into the whirlpool that marked the hole.

RIVERS RECEDE

CHICAGO (AP) — Floods still threatened some areas in five eastern and central states today but waters from swollen rivers and streams were receding in most sections. The worst of the winter flooding appeared temporarily ended.

The chief problem for the thousands hit by last week's devastating floods in Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, West Virginia and Indiana was the cleanup job. The Red Cross estimated more than 22,000 families were affected, with thousands forced from their homes.

Cold air, with snow or rain, added to the misery for many victims.

In Ohio, the Ohio River was the last of the state's waterways threatening further flooding. At Cincinnati it was up 5 feet, three feet above flood stage.

Floods in Ohio caused an estimated $100,000,000 damage in 76 of Ohio's 88 counties.

In many areas, Monday many roads were opened and public transportation was returning slowly to normal.

Trenton, Stirling Sewage Works Contracts Let

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Water Resources Commission today announced it has awarded $1,244,332 in contracts for sewage works at Trenton, Waterloo, Georgus and Stirling.

Six contracts worth a total of $415,981 were awarded for work in Trenton:

D. Van Alstine Construction, Trenton; connecting sewers, $22,060, Lightfoot Construction Company, Belleville pumping equipment, $17,236, Canadian Fairbanks Morse Company Limited, Toronto.

The village of Stirling will get sewers, pumping stations and a sewage lagoon built by Sherk Construction Limited, Orillia, Ont., at a cost of $202,061.

Lift Locks On Trent Valley Canals Opposed

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—The Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters adopted a resolution Saturday opposing the substitution of lift locks for the present marine railway system on the Trent Valley canal system.

The action was in support of an Orillia Sports Club stand against building lift locks at Big Chute and Swift Rapids on the Severn River.

The topic arose at the conservationists' annual meeting which concluded Sunday.

The federation was told that lift locks would open up such inland waters as Sparrow Lake, Lake Couchiching and Lake Simcoe to smelt and the predatory sea lamprey from Georgian Bay.

The Orillia club said there now are no smelt or lampreys in the Trent system.

BAD FOR CONSERVATION

Blake Uren, an Orillia conservation delegate, said "conservation-wise" lift locks would be bad. "We are thinking of fish and game on the long-range basis and not about the bucks involved in it this thing."

The resolution calls for the federation to ask the federal government and the Ontario lands and forests department to reconsider removal of the marine railway system.

As an alternative to lift locks, the federation proposes building a new marine railway.

The Orillia Chamber of Commerce takes the opposite view and would abandon the marine railway to make way for locks.

Today's Chuckle

A friend heard from the Ladies' Guild back in this home town: "This year they're not going to run a food-providing bazaar. They're going to buy a second-hand motorcycle and operate a speed trap instead."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP Synopsis: Temperatures will rise slowly to below zero readings in Southern Ontario Sunday night as colder air from the north brought clearing skies. Early - morning temperatures ranged from 10 to 15 degrees below zero from London to Trenton, while readings in the Windsor area hovered slightly above zero.

Forecast north temperatures ranged from 10 to 30 below in the Muskoka and Haliburton districts, while a light moderating trend held readings from zero to 10 below in the area north of Lake Superior.

The cold wave is expected to continue today and Tuesday, although increasing cloud over Southern Ontario late tonight and Tuesday will result in some slight moderation.

Conservatives Plan Gathering

OTTAWA (CP)—The Progressive Conservative party will hold a general meeting this year, it was announced Saturday by the executive of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada.

The executive also set up a committee to decide on a place and date for the meeting. It likely will be held in the fall in Ottawa, Winnipeg or Montreal.

The meeting will be the first called by the association since April, 1956, when the meeting was followed by a convention in December at which Prime Minister John Diefenbaker was elected party leader.

The Saturday meeting also named a committee to revise the party constitution.

Protestant Leaders Are Interested But Cautious About R. C. Council

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian Protestant church leaders reacted with cautious interest Sunday night to the possibility of invitations to the first Roman Catholic ecumenical council—a meeting of the hierarchy — in nearly 100 years.

Pope John, in a historic and unexpected move, summoned the council Sunday. The meeting of his announcement indicated that if Protestant churches were invited to send observers to such a council, many of them probably would accept.

"The whole thing is such a surprise that it would take some time to think it over," Dr. Callaghan is a United Church minister.

Dr. T. B. McDormand, secretary of the Baptist Federation of Canada, said the Pope's move was "statesmanlike and important."

He commented:

"It is a very statesmanlike and importantmove to attempt the reunion of the divided forces of the Catholic church as represented by the eastern and western church.

"In a sense, it is a movement within Catholicism somewhat parallel to that represented within Protestantism by the World Council of Churches. Even as Roman Catholics observers have attended the World Council gatherings on more than one occasion it might well be that Protestants would welcome the opportunity to attend the ecumenical council, also as observers."

Dr. Ernest E. Long, general secretary of the United Church of Canada, described the Pope's announcement as interesting and bold. He noted that no non-Roman Catholic denomination had ever been represented to such a conference.

Right Rev. John McNab, moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, said the World Presbyterian Alliance probably will debate the issue when it meets in Brazil in July.

POPE TO CONVOKE 21ST ECUMENICAL R.C. COUNCIL

Will Seek Unity Of Christian Forces

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John XXIII will convoke a general assembly — the 21st ecumenical council in the 2,000-year history of the Roman Catholic Church—to seek unity of the Christian forces of the world.

Return to the fold of the Eastern Orthodox church's 129,000,000 members was seen as a prime object of the conclave. But there are great obstacles to any formal reunification, particularly the Roman Catholic dogma that the Pope is supreme and infallible in matters of faith and morals.

Reaffirmation of the church's stand against communism may be another major subject of the ecumenical council, the first since 1870. Pope John already has expressed grave concern with the plight of Catholics in Communist lands and particularly in Communist China, where the Red regime has been trying to foster a national Catholic Church that denies allegiance to Rome.

IMMENSE GROUP

The council will bring together Roman Catholic cardinals, archbishops and bishops from all over the world in what may well be the most immense gathering in Christian history. More than 2,500 are eligible to attend.

Representatives of other Christian communities, in addition to Roman Catholicism, are likely to be invited to attend.

The 77-year old pontiff announced Sunday his intention to convene the council. He did not announce a date, but forecast that the gathering's great size and possibly long duration, the preparation may take many months.

Ecumenical means worldwide.

POSTHUMOUS RED AMNESTY

BAGHDAD, Iraq (Reuters)— Three leading Iraqi Communists hanged in 1949 have been granted a posthumous amnesty to mark "the country's appreciation of their services," the newspaper Ittihad Shaab reported.

Only debris remains of the old Turnbull Street Arena which was razed by fire at noon today. Firemen are shown pouring water into the ruins of what four decades ago was the home of Belleville hockey teams. In recent years structure was used for storage, while the front was used as apartments.

Old Turnbull Street Arena Destroyed by Fire at Noon

The old Turnbull Street Arena, scene of numerous hot hockey games during the 1920's, and of late years used as storage and apartments, was destroyed by fire at noon today.

One family, whose names were not learned at press time, was still living in the building at the time of the fire, but all escaped safely.

Three other families living in the structure moved out last week.

The fire, which started shortly after 11:30 attracted a big crowd of spectators who were attracted to the scene by the huge columns of black smoke, which rolled into the air.

Bone dry timbers in the old structure proved like tinder to the flames and firemen could do nothing to control the fire. Less than an hour after the alarm sounded the old skating rink structure lay in ruins and firemen concentrated their efforts in wetting down burning debris to keep burning embers from flying.

The terrific heat at the height of the blaze drove watchers back and paint on nearby houses was blistered.

The structure was owned by Jimmy Yeates of Belleville.

The old arena was constructed about 1914 by the late Dick Arnott and from then until 1928 when the present memorial arena was built, was the home of Belleville hockey teams.

In recent years the building had deteriorated rapidly and was used principally for storage purposes.

The east end of the structure was taken down many years ago. The central section of the building was used for farm machinery storage until the roof caved in a week or so ago and families living in the front end apartments were being moved out as quickly as other accommodation could be secured.

Khrushchev Will Be Stage Manager at 21st Congress

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

The Soviet Communist party's 21st congress, opens in Moscow Tuesday, with Nikita S. Khrushchev the unchallenged stage manager. Before it closes, about two weeks hence, the world may witness the spectacle of a dictator trying to look democratic.

But this congress will probably use all Khrushchev's opposition, including the so-called anti-party group, denounced and read out of the party on a set of charges that will be accepted by all present.

During his tour of the United States, Anastas I. Mikoyan told Americans that the Soviet form of government is being made democratic. Khrushchev himself has been exhibiting a passion for party participation in what he is trying to do. At the same time, Khrushchev is directing everything, and likely will continue to do so.

NOT LIKE STALIN

The premier and party boss is not like Stalin. At Khrushchev's direction, the party still will be hailed as the real power in the country.

But there is little doubt he will clear the party of the last whisper of opposition to his internal or external policies.

Theoretically, congresses are summoned at regular intervals to approve or change policies or leadership. In practice, the congress is just a show. Decisions are made on high, in advance.

Khrushchev will dominate the congress. His program for seven-year economic development has been discussed in mass meetings all over the country and will be endorsed. So will his programs for agricultural and educational changes, and his foreign policies.

The party has been issuing grim warnings to any potential opposition, listing corrective action. A housecleaning is in prospect, perhaps in the form of appointment of a new central committee.

Fog So Thick Firemen Walk Five Miles

LIVERPOOL, Eng. (AP)— Three fire engines roared out of Hatton Garden central fire station on Sunday night and then skidded to an abrupt halt.

They couldn't find their way because of thick fog.

Firemen jumped from the engines and walked in front to guide the way to Liverpool docks, five miles away.

The engines finally reached the Cunard cargo ship Arabia, where alarm bells were ringing.

They quenched the ship from stem to stern but found no fire. Fog condensation had set off the alarms.

So the engines turned around and headed back to the station, with firemen again walking in front.

Hungry Wolves Raid Montreal District Town

MONTREAL (CP) — Hungry, prowling wolves are striking fear into the hearts of residents of Laprairie, Que., 20 miles from downtown Montreal.

Police said Sunday night timber wolves are stealing into town after dark to raid garbage cans and dumps. They have been at it three weeks.

A 70-pound wolf was shot last week about 20 yards from a front door. The animal was a starved female, believed to have a den of pups in the area.

Constable Roland Dompierre of the Quebec provincial police said he fired three shots later in the week at a skulking grey animal, but missed.

CBC POSTPONES BACK-TO-WORK ULTIMATUM

CBU Given Time To Study Situation

MONTREAL (CP) — Some of the tension in the strike of 76 CBC Montreal television announcers was relaxed by expectancy Sunday night after the CBC decided to defer a back-to-work ultimatum.

The CBC had warned 1,200 employees who have refused to cross producers' picket lines that if they were not back to work by 9 a.m. today it would be assumed they had resigned. The implication was that they would be replaced.

CBC officials in Ottawa agreed to defer the deadline after meeting with the Council of Broadcast Unions, which co-ordinates six unions bargaining with the CBC. The delay was granted to give the CBU time to study the situation.

Union officials were generally non-committal regarding the deferment.

Heads of the Association des Realisateurs de Radio, Television et Cinema, French producers' organization, declined any comment.

There are "many rumors—all unconfirmed" said one spokesman.

CALL MEETING

A general meeting "of all unionists" was scheduled for 10:30 a.m. today.

The strike began Dec. 29 when the producers' union of radio and TV announcers with the CBC to enforce demands they have been unsuccessful in recognized as bargaining agent. The CBC says the producers are part of management and not entitled to affiliate with a labor body.

A five-hour meeting was held in Ottawa Sunday between CBC officials and a three-man union delegation headed by Tim O'Sullivan of Toronto, head of the Four Found Dead In Garage From Gas Poisoning

TORONTO (CP)—Two couples who had gone on a double date Saturday night were found dead Sunday, slumped in two cars and sprawled on the floor of a garage.

Police said all four died of carbon monoxide poisoning in the garage which they described as an air-tight compartment. The dead: Nick Macri, 25; Mildred Johnston, 20; Ivy Fornetti, 23, and Mary Davis, 30.

Joseph Macri, brother of Nick, discovered the bodies at noon when he went into the garage in suburban York township to see if his son had returned the family car.

Police said Nick apparently realized something was wrong and tried to reach the garage door. He collapsed six feet short of the metal lift-type door after getting out of the car and pulling Miss Johnston with him.

She fell to the floor, marks indicated, but he picked her up and opened the door of his brother's car, putting her in the driver's seat where her body was found.

SEEN AT MIDNIGHT

Miss Johnston were last seen alive about midnight when they entered the Macri home briefly. Then they rejoined the other couple seated in the car.

Mrs. Fernetti's husband, called partly on top of Mr. Macri's, indicating he, too, had tried to reach the door. The body of Miss Davis was upright in the back seat of the Macri car.

When police arrived, the radio was blaring, the lights and ignition were on and the driver's window was wide open. The gasoline tank was empty.

Miss Johnston, whose family is believed to be in Sydney Mines, N.S., had been in Toronto six months. She lived here with an uncle.

Miss Davis left her home in Glasgow, Scotland, about 18 months ago to visit her fiance in Cleveland. When they decided not to marry, she came to Toronto. Mr. Fernanti lived with a sister and brother-in-law in York Township.

Three Persons Die, Eight Injured When Huntsville Rink Roof Falls

HUNTSVILLE (CP)—The roof of a curling rink near this capital of Ontario's Muskoka playground collapsed Saturday with a roar that "sounded like a bomb going," killing three persons and injuring eight others.

The victims are Eric R. Chudleigh, 54, of Cooksville, near Toronto; his wife, Marion, 50, and John Canfield, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Canfield of Woodstock. Mrs. Chudleigh was the daughter of former Ontario premier Tom Kennedy.

The tragedy occurred in the Lake of Bays resort district 16 miles southeast of Huntsville. The curling rink was among the attractions offered guests by the Hotel Britannia which had about 80 registered at the time.

Hotel employees reported hearing a noise "like a helicopter landing" immediately before the timber-shaped roof buckled inward around noon.
